CANADIANS GAIN 4 MILES IN FRANCE

Nazis Hold Florence; Little Change

British Patrols Cross Arno Casualties Heavy

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 8—(AP).—The Germans clung tightly to a foothold in the hills south of the Arno River in the great bend east of Florence today after counter-attacking sharply against Indian troops of the British 8th Army advancing through the mountains north of Arezzo.

In the two great cities bisected by the Arno—Florence and Pisa—the positions of the contending forces remained virtually unchanged, the Allies holding the regions south of the stream an. the Germans still in control of the north banks.

Stormy weather, much with rain, curtailed action along most of the front. On both sides of Florence Gen. Alexander sent 8th Army patrols across the Arno, but there was no sign of an attempt to gain a foothold over the stream.

Indians Retreat.

The Allied command announced that both sides suffered heavy casualties Sunday when the Germans counter-attacked in force and recaptured Mote Grillo, nine miles north of Arezzo and a little west of Highway 71, from an Indian division.

The only considerable action on the Allied 5th Army front came in the area of San Winiato, where the enemy fired approximately 325 rounds of shellfire at the Allies, then attempted to infiltrate.

An official source declared that air photographs taken at low level disprove completely German claims that Allies guns have shelled Florence. Meanwhile German shells continued to fall in the southern sections of the city but civilians were going calmly about their pursuits.

19 Year Olds Vote In Alberta

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer).

EDMONTON, Aug. 8 —(CP) — About 450,000 Alberta men and women, 19 years of age and older, and privileged to vote, to-day will decide their next Provincial Government.

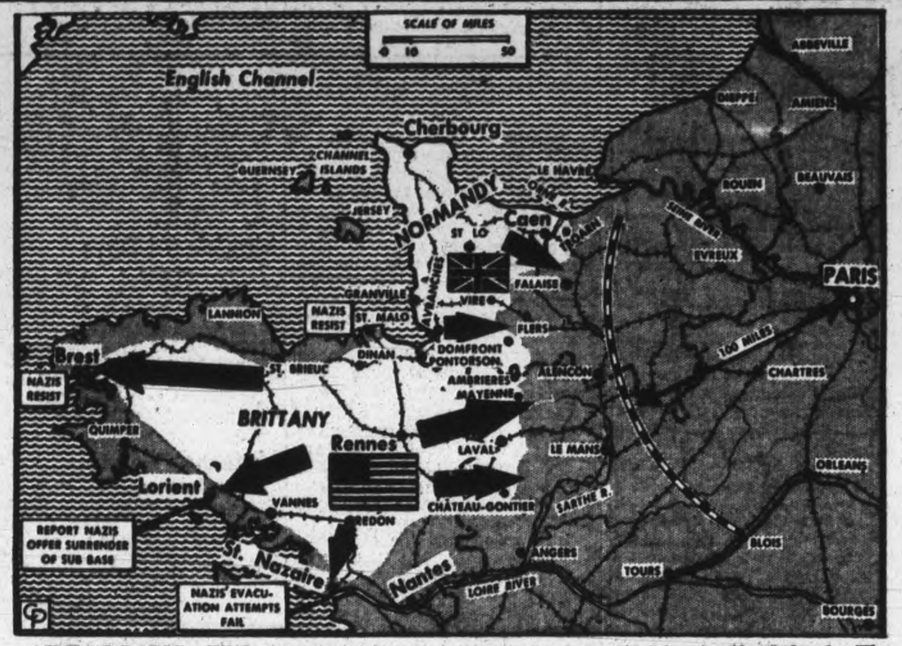
They will rule whether the Social Credit Government, elected to office in 1935 with the third term. The Social Creditors, now led by 36-year-old premier E. C. Manning, have 57 candidates in the field, one for each of the legislature seats.

The C. C. F. also has nominted 37 candidates, the Independent Party 36 and Labour-Progressive 30. Four other candidates, representing a variety of smaller parties, also seek election, making a total of 164 candidates.

At dissolution July 7, the Social Credit strength in the legislature was 35; Independent 15; Liberal 3; Iobaur 1; C. C. F. one; Independent-Social Credit one and one vacant.

Eleven women are among the candidates, five of them nominated by the Labor-Progressive Party.

Mr. Manning and his supporters bent most of their campaign criticism towards the C. C. F., which entered the Alberta contest fresh from victory in Saskatchewan in June. The Social Crediters said C. C. F. policies meant the people would lose their freedom through "socialization" programs.



AIM AT PARIS—With American forces overrunning Brittany and British armored forces and American patrols rolling ever southeastward toward Paris, have come reports that the Germans are abandoning the French capital which, up to a few days ago, they were expected to stoutly defend. The curved black and white line on this map indicates a distance of but 100 miles from Paris. Note how close to this line Allied forces have already advanced. (International)

4 Jap Divisions Wiped Out

By CHARLES R. GRUMICH—Associated Press War Correspondent

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 8—(AP).—An Allied spokesman declared today that 42,000 Japanese had been killed and four of the enemy's nine Burma divisions had been liquidated in their drive into northeast India and in Lt.-Gen. Stilwell's successful campaign in the jungle-girt Burmese mountains. "They have had the hell knocked out of them," the spokesman said in closing the books on the Japanese incursion into India. He speculated that the Japanese might retreat as far as Mandalay.

Allied patrols fanned out beyond the Burmese frontier base of Tamu and crossed the Yu River, chasing the disorganized Japanese toward the Chindwin River, headquarters announced to-day. Other forces moving south toward Tiddim on a highway from Imphal were reported making satisfactory progress.

"I would say without hesitation that the Japanese (in the Indian State of Manpur) have taken the biggest hiding they've had on any front," the spokesman said.

Now Retreating.

Of three Japanese divisions which have made the attack into India, he said only the 33rd constituted anything like a military force. This division now is retreating down the Tiddim road. The 31st and 15th divisions have been written off, the spokesman said, and "there is no chance of a Japanese come-back before a long period of refitting and rehabilitation."

British and Indian troops killed 15,693 Japanese by actual count. Gen. Stillwell's men killed 3,650 in winning the north Burma base of Myitkyina, and for all North Burma since December, Stilwell has announced 22,341 Japanese killed and 200 captured.

The spokesman said, adding that the dead alone amounted to 42,000 of the nine divisions totalling 180,000 men. The Japanese used three of their Burma divisions to invade India.

The spokesman said fewer than 5,000 effective Japanese fighting men remained in India.

More Robots

LONDON, Aug. 8—(CP)—Bright moonlight and clear skies aided British coastal defences during the night as the Germans resumed their flying-bomb attacks on London and Southern England after a brief lull.

The attacks were on a comparatively small scale and a number of the robots were shot down before they reached their targets.

Almost 2 Million Voters May Go To Quebec Polls

MONTREAL, Aug. 8—(CP).—Electors of the province today go to the polls to decide which of three parties will be elected to form a government at Quebec for the next five years. Only the Liberals, the Union Nationale and the Bloc Populaire have sufficient candidates in the field to assure sufficient majority.

A record of 1,875,505 voters are registered and total vote is expected to exceed 1,000,000 for first time in the province's history. Only 753,310 voters were on the lists in 1939 but during the past Legislature, the franchise was extended to include women while movement of war workers to the province also has accounted for the jump.

Last night party leaders made their final appeal to the population. At Montreal, Andre Laurendeau spoke in his own constituency of Montreal Laurier. Mr. Laurendeau was confident in his last speech and said: "Tomorrow night I hope—I am even sure—that I will salute you as your representative in the Quebec Legislature and the Premier of this province."

He asked the electors to vote for the Bloc and get rid of the "old-line parties which have given us in 25 years two wars and one economic crisis."

Would Defeat Godbout

Maurice Duplessis, Union Nationale leader, spoke at Three Rivers and Cap De La Madeleine and predicted that the Liberals would not elect more than 12 candidates. He added that Premier Godbout would be defeated in his home constituency of L-Islet.

Montreal Riot Injures Many

MONTREAL, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Hundreds of persons became involved in an election-day clash between two rival gangs in the heart of Montreal's east-end today, with three persons suffering gunshot wound requiring hospital treatment and an undetermined number suffering minor cuts and bruises.

Police riot squads converged on the trouble spot, at the corner of St. Catharine street and De Bullion street, after several automobiles were overturned on lawns and windows smashed.

The trouble broke out in front of the Liberal headquarters for Montreal St. James riding, and Liberal organizers claimed it started when gangs of men from 14 automobiles tried to storm the headquarters.

Bystanders said that as soon as the carloads of men drew up at the street corner, another gang descended from a nearby house and battled with the attackers in a melee which lasted almost 40 minutes before police reserves dispersed the fighters.

At one time during the fight police received permission from Chief Fernand Dufresne to use tear gas to storm the house in which some of the gangs were said to have holed up. However, the gas was not used and those taking part in the fray made their escape.

Detectives described the outbreak as the worst brawl in 10 years in Montreal. Forty minutes after it started the original contestants seemed to have disappeared and police were left straightening out a traffic tangle and telling spectators to move on.

A newspaper cameraman who attempted to take a picture at the height of the battle was set upon. He suffered head injuries after being struck with a club, and his camera was smashed.

8 German Officers Hanged

Climax To Assassination Plot

LONDON, August 8 —(CP) — Field Marshal Erwin Von Witzleben and seven other German army officers were hanged to-day, Berlin announced, after a trial in which they confessed plotting to kill Hitler and surrender Germany to the Allies.

This brought to 16 the announced deaths of alleged conspirators in the Berlin proclaimed plot which culminated in the July 20 bomb explosion at a Hitler headquarters.

To-day's executions took place two hours after conclusion of the trial of Von Witzleben and the seven others, all of whom had been expelled previously from the army.

An official account of yesterday's trial, broadcast by D. N. B. disclosed the alleged plot against Hitler had been hatching since last summer.

Col. Count Claus Von Stauffenberg, named by Berlin as the actual assassin, was declared to have brought explosives into Hitler's presence twice before July 20— but to have refrained from letting them go because Henrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, was not with Hitler—"he was to be finished at the same time."

Three former generals and four lesser officers were tried with Von Witzleben, who was quoted as testifying that he and Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck were to have headed the military under the coup.

Beck, former chief of German general staff, committed suicide, Berlin said, after frustration of the conspiracy. Berlin announced earlier the death o seven other accused officers —four by execution July 20 and three more by suicide.

Red Armies 30 Miles Past Vistula

Galician Oil Wells Captured; Drive Nears Memel

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 8—(AP)—A new eruption of Red Army attacks which captured more than 60 communities beyond the enemy's broken Vistula River defences threatened today to strangle German communications between Krakow and Warsaw in the heart of Poland.

Striking out afresh yesterday from the Vistula bridgehead Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army reached points 30 miles west of the river, Soviet field dispatches said.

Thrusting beyond newly-occupied Szydlow, the Russians directly menaced Kielce, astride highway and rail arteries 25 miles to the northwest. The direction of the drive raised the possibility the Red Army troops might outflank Krakow on the north.

Last reports placed Soviet columns within 37 miles of Krakow, last big Nazi bastion before German Silesia, now 75 to 90 miles away.

Moscow's guns sounded last night for twin victories—the fall of the oil centre or Boryslaw in the Carpathians, and the capture of Sambor, communications hub whose fall gave the Russians a grip on five routes leading into nearby Czechoslovakia.

2,000 Oil Wells

(Information available in London indicated that through capture of Boryslaw the Russians had regained some 2,000 Gailcian oil wells which had been feeding the Nazi war machine. The Germans thus were left only the Ploesti fields in Romania, which have been repeatedly bombed by Allied airmen.)

Far to the north three powerful Soviet armies began a pincers movement of German East Prussia along a 200-mile front. One of these—Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's 1st Baltic Army—bent back sagging German defences in Lithuania in twin drives toward Memel and Tilsit, key East Prussian cities. His troops captured 50 towns and villages, including Saukenai, 77 miles east of the Baltic port of Memel.

Bagramian's troops, who last week plunged to the Baltic coast south of Riga, advanced as much as 20 miles yesterday in this new surge toward the sea.

To the south the capture of 40 communities, including Andrusaicial put other Red Army troops 53 miles east-northeast of Tilsit.

The latest Soviet communique made no mention of the sector opposite the East Prussian border where Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's 3rd White Russian Army has been meeting strong resistance, but it told of a new advance toward the southern border by Gen. G. F. Zakharvo's 2nd White Russian Army which captured Knyszyn, 15 miles northwest of Bialystok, and Lapy, to the southwest.

Ilsley Investigates Strike Speech

OTTAWA, Aug. 8—(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley said here early today he would reserve comment on a report from Quebec that Wilfrid Hamel, acting provincial labor minister, in telling striking taxi drivers to disregard prices board rulings and start charging a 35-cent starting rate, had said that Quebec was master in its own boundaries and he would see that some people in Ottawa understood that.

Mr. Ilsley was shown a press despatch containing Mr. Hamel's statement in which he asked 300 taxi drivers to go back to work after a week-long strike.

"I will reserve comment on that matter until I have an official version of just what Mr. Hamel said," Mr. Ilsley declared. He added: "I cannot comment on that now."

Earlier, Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board, said the board had not approved a 35-cent starting rate for taxi drivers in Quebec, and that it had offered the taxi operators their choice of the starting rate in Montreal, Ottawa or Quebec pending a definite decision on the rate after the submission of balance sheets.

Allies 100 Miles From Paris Advancing On 130-mile Front

Canadians Start First Major Drive In France

By ROSS MUNRO,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, August 8 — (CP-Cable) —Canadian and British troops of the 1st Canadian Army to-day cracked through the centre of the German defence line south of Caen for a gain of 6,000 yards.

Canadian troops with Ontario infantry and Quebec tanks in the first assault wave captured Roquancourt on the west side of the highway, a mile and a half southwest of Tilly La Campagne, which now is by-passed and under assault by follow-up troops.

Firmly Held.

Ground action opened at 11:30 p.m. Monday as the 1st Canadian Army, in its first major attack, hammered on the German hinge on which all the enemy forces in northwest France are pivotting to face the British-American advance from the southwest. The Canadians got themselves established on high ground south of Roquancourt, while British troops on the left captured the towns of Garcelles Sequeville 1½ miles southeast of Tilly and St. Aignan De Cremesnil a mile further south.

The British also gained high ground, and this area astride the Falaise highway, dead in the centre of the German defence position, is being firmly held by these two forces.

General Crerar personally briefed more than 100 British, American and Canadian war correspondents for the Canadian-British attack. The new offensive attracted reporters from the entire Allied front.

D-Day Tension.

They gathered in a barn near Canadian army headquarters where the Canadian commander gave them the entire plan and an informative off-the-record background talk.

There was almost a D-Day tension in the air prior to the start of the attack by Canadian armor.

This night attack employed a variety of novel devices for the most spectacular undertaking since the landings on the coast of France.

Practically everything about the operation was as new and untried in grim battle as is the Canadian army itself. It was a display of imaginative planning on an elaborate scale.

Even as this is written some hours after the assault was launched, the battle is continuing over the bald, undulating battleground where the Germans are well dug-in along chosen lines from which they have bee able virtually to defy frontal assault, because of the broad sweep their machine-guns and artillery have had of all ground over which such attacks had to pass.

Loses Diamond

STRATFORD, Aug. 8 (CP).—A local housewife in the midst of her housework noticed the diamond was missing from her engagement ring. She never could find a thing as small as a diamond and abandoned all hope of ever seeing it again. That night her husband was in the cellar. He bent to pick up a dropped match, and something sparkled in the dim light. It was the lost diamond.

1,000 Bombers Pulverize Huns In France

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 8 — (AP) — A thousand American heavy bombers struck a second tremendous blow today at the hinge in German lines south of Caen and ranged widely over France attacking air fields and flying bomb installations.

An estimated 1,800 tons of bombs were cast on German lines before the advancing 1st Canadian Army in the same area pulverized last night by 1,000 British and Canadian heavy bombers which dropped around 6,700 tons. About 600 American planes participated in this action.

Some 400 others beat up airfields at Romilly Sur Seine, 55 miles northwest of Paris, and at Le Perthe, northwest of Romilly. They also bombed the platforms from which robot bombs are hurled at England.

Up to 750 fighters escorted the American bombers.

The attack last night by the R.A.F.'s Lancasters constituted their first operation in darkness in close support of ground forces.

In the hour before midnight, the big bombers dumped an estimated 6,700 tons of explosives in enemy fortified points in the area of May Sur Orne and Tilly La Campagne on both sides of the Caen-Falaise road.

The midnight bombardment formed one of three separate prases in aerial support given Gen. Eisenhower's advancing armies.

The other two phases, in which Allied airmen dealt hard blows to German armor, transport and supply, were:

1. British rocket-firing Typhoons and fighter-bombers teamed with American fighter - bombers and knocked out at least 163 tanks in repeated blows against a counter-attack on the American Avranches corridor.

2. American heavy bombers, fighters and fighter-bombers ranged over France from end to end, smashing German transport routes and supply centres.

In the Avranches sector, the British 2nd Tactical Air Force destroyed 81 tanks and damaged 54. The U.S. 9th Air Force destroyed 26 and damaged a large number.

All operations over France yesterday and last night totalled more than 4,000 offensive sorties.

Great destruction was created close behind the German lines as bombers and fighters attacked 10 major transportation targets and 11 major fuel dumps. Fighter-bombers destroyed or damaged 131 locomotives, 382 railroad cars, and 196 motor vehicles.

Besiege St. Malo 163 Hun Tanks Destroyed In Day

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, August 8 — (CP). — Allied troops advancing in two powerful surges at the wings of a 130-mile front drove to-day to little more than 100 miles from Paris, and the Germans desperately rushed in forces from southern France.

Canadian troops storming over the Orne in a four-mile advance into the main enemy line south of Caen punched through a once-impregnable anti-tank screen to seize strong-point vilages by the dozen. Americans on the southern flank struck towards Le Mans and advance elements were reported already in that city only 110 miles from Paris.

Canadian and British assault columns of the 1st Canadian Army slammed at the Nazi defence line astride the vital highway to Falaise in the night attack, spearheading their assault with tanks and infantry in specially armor-plated carriers, while Bofors, light ack-ack guns fired tracers, in dead straight lines down each side of the highway, setting a path of fire to guide the attacking columns.

As the drive went forward 600 U.S. heavy bombers battered the Germans' stout Caen hinge which had been loosened last night by an unprecedented 1,000-plane R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. bombardment.

The exact sector where the Allies were little more than 100 miles from Paris was not specified. A report that Allied forces had definitely pased the 100-mile mark circulated late to-day but proved erroneous.

American troops on the southern flank striking towards Le Mans left behind them to the north-west the reckage of the Germans' abortive but still-writhing counter-attack in the Mortain area.

(Berlin radio acknowledged Americans had broke into St. Malo at one point.)

Fall Of Guam Expected Soon

PEARL HARBOR, August 8—(AP). — American Marines and soldiers on Guam have compressed several thousand Japanese into the southern tenth of the island, bringing complete reconquest of the former U.S. naval base near to-day.

Other bad tidings for the enemy:

Apparent neutralization of Yap Island, once-mighty Japanese airbase in the Carolines 600 miles south-west of Guam.

Slicing of the Japanese supply line between Aitape and Wewak in British New Guinea.

Reports— Tokyo-originated — of American airplanes over the Philippines on Monday (U.S. time).

The Tokyo radio said a large plane dropped "three small bombs harmlessly into the sea' near Davao, Mindanao, at 1 a.m. An hour later another plane "fled before reaching Davao."

There were no substanting reports from Lt.-Gen. George C. Kenney's Far Eastern Air Force. There has been no Allied air attack upon the Philippines since mid April, 1942, before the fall of Corregidor.

Gen. MacArthur reported a 30-ton mid-day bombing raid on Sunday upon Yap, 800 miles east of Mindanao, and added:

"There was no attempt at interception. The enemy's air base appears to have been neutralized by our continuous attacks."

MacArthur also announced that an American counter-envelopment force east of Aitape had inflicted heavy casualties upon trapped Japanese units, severed the enemy supply line from Wewak, and was advancing westward on Afua Village.

Rumor Says Himmler Dead

Nazi Intelligence Officer Believes Story

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON THE BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE, August 8 — (AP). — A newly captured German intelligence officer asserted to-day that Heinrich Himmler, German Gestapo and S.S. Chief, has been assassinated and that Reichsmarshal Herman Goering was wounded in a new outbreak against the Nazi hierarchy.

(There was no confirmation of this report. The officer's report was based on second-hand information and therefore is subject to reservation. In this connection, the BBC said to-day a German lieutenant taken prisoner in France related he had given a "pep talk" to his troops and "for want of other good news" had told them that Himmler was dead.)

Nine other captives, all Austrians, declared they could corroborate the asertion of the intelligence officer.

"We heard that (Marshal Edwin) Rommel was wounded in the head by bomb fragments on the Normandy front, but was recovering," one of the Austrians said. "The best news came Sunday when we heard that Himmler had been killed and that Goering was wounded in the attack on Himmler."

British officers first heard the story of the alleged assassination from the Austrians I asked a German intelligence officer, who had been kept apart from the Austrians:

"I suppose Himmler is stronger than Hitler these days?"

"No, Himmler is dead," the Nazi intelligence officer asserted. "He as assassinated. I heard it at my headquarters on Sunday. All our officers are talking about it."

Japs Wiped Out On India Front

KANDY, Aug. 8 —(AP) —Allied forces swung into the concluding phases of their rigorous monsoon campaign which has wrecked the Japanese plan of invading North-east India, and pressed deeper into Northern Burma today beyond the captured frontier base of Tamu.

The Japanese offered no organized resistance in the rain-sodden jungle in the Kawab Valley. It was stated officially that only sick and wounded Japanese remain in the area west of the Chindwin River and north of an east-west line through Tamu.

Tamu is about 40 miles airline southeast of Imphal, British supply base, which the Japanese campaign never reached.

Allied headquarters said abler remnants of the beaten enemy had crossed the swollen Chindwin, using many rafts and a few motor boats and suffering casualties. The Japanese apparently are trying to establish a makeshift defense line on the left bank of the river. The British 14th Army estimated it had killed 1,017 Japanese in the last half of July.

Headquarters said captured Japanese were "in a shocking state." Piles of Japanese bodies are being buried in the ruins of Myitkyina, main Japanese base in North Burma, which Allied forces captured last week. In the vincinty of Tamu Allied troops found about 400 Japanese dead or dying from wounds and starvation.

Fifty miles south of Imphal on the road to Tiddim, Japanese remnants were able to muster enough strength for delaying actions.

On the Magaung front in Northern Burma, Allied forces continued their advance, capturing an important hill 12 miles southwest of Mogaung. The enemy offered sharp resistance along the Mandalay railway.

threat to Paris.

On the Breton peninsula, U.S. troops battled against stubborn resistance for the northern port of St. Malo, fought on the outskirts of Brest, and threw a concentrated attack against Lorient.

The Nazi counter-attack in the centre of the Allied line had been halted and thrown back, with planes alone knocking out 163 enemy tanks.

Gathemo, between Mortain and Vire, was among towns taken by the Allies.

Battles still swirled in the middle sector where four German Armored divisions—mounting the fiercest counter-assault since June 7—south to crash through the Allied corridor joining Normandy and Brittany. The town of Mortain, swept up in the assault was recaptured by American infantry.

A front dispatch said advanced units of the U.S. offensive to the south—hitting eastward from Mayenne and Laval—had entered Le Mans, communications network forming a key to Paris.

Fighting was reported continuing to-day in the five-mile quadrangle north of Mortain, where the Germans yesterday launched their largest counter-attack since the Allies stormed ashore on June 6. Mortain, however, was back in American hands.

The American clean-up of the Breton peninsula continued. Tank-infantry teams were within five miles of the big southern naval and submarine base of Lorient. There was no further information about a reported offer of the German garrison there to surrender.

Other U.S. forces were fighting within four miles of the second French port of Brest and its mile of deep-water quays. At the week-end, American troops had been inside the city of 70,000.

The northern St. Malo cape was cut. Remnants of the German garrison were making a final fight behind medieval fortifications and modern minefields.

Smoke from large fires rose from St. Malo and Lorient, indicating the Germans were destroying supplies and preparing to pull out. Guingamp and St. Brieuc, between St. Malo and Brest, were added to the long list of liberated Brittany towns.

The German counter-attack in the Mortain area, made by elements of four tank divisions, was smashed. The strategic picture there had shifted until now the results of counter-blow were considered less a menace to the Allies than to the Germans who finally had decided to throw their armer into a decisive encounter.

Rip 150 Tanks

Ground defences and rocket-firing Typhoons and fighter-bombers ripped up 100 to 150 of the enemy tanks. The objective of the German blow was to split the Allied armies by cutting the Normandy-Brittany coastal corridor.

As the Allied planes which hammered the charging German armored spearheads alighted at their bases last night, 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Halifaxes and Lancasters were warming up for the even more spectacular attack on the enemy's anti-tank "wall" south of Caen.

The aerial bombardment, which brought around 6,700 tons of bombs down on the heavily dug-in positions comprising the enemy's only remaining firm anchor against the Allied onrush, probably was not as large as that which preluded Gen. Montgomery's abortive shove-off from Caen July 18. It was, however, the first such heavy close-support attacks at night.

(The German High Command's broadcast communique said that the German counter-blow was making good progress. It reported violent fighting against the renewed Allied attack south and southeast of Caen.)

Two Hungarian Ministers Leave

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Berlin radio quoted a dispatch from Budapest today as saying that Admiral Nicholas Torthy, Hungarian regent, had dismissed Bela Imredi, minister without portfolio, and two other cabinet members "at their own request."

The others dismissed were identified as Anatal Kunder, minister of commerce and transportation, and Andor Jaross, home secretary.

The significance of the development was not immediately apparent. All three, however, were strongly identified with pro-Nazi elements in Hungary and took office last March 23 when a new government was organized under Premier Domemez Sztojay to intensify the war effort.

Formation of the Sztojay cabinet coincided with a sudden influx of German troops which amounted to virtual military occupation of Hungary.

The German radio said that Dr. Lajos Szasz, minister of industries, had been asked to assume the commerce portfolio, and that Nikolaus Bonczos had been appointed home secretary.

Imredi's post remained vacant.

8 Nazi Officers Face Punishment

LONDON, Aug. 8—(CP)—Trial of eight high officers who were expelled from the German army on a charge of complicity in the attempted assassination of Adolf Hitler has now been concluded, Berlin announced today, and the special court has set a "just punishment."

The broadcast, by the German agency D.N.B., did not disclose immediately what the sentences were. Four other officers, however, were executed July 20 on a charge of taking part in the plot and four additional accused officers commited suicide, the Germans have announced.

D.N.B. said the eight former officers, all out of uniform, went to trial yesterday before the people's court of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler. Berlin previously had announced that a special "court of honor" expelled all eight from the army.

The Moscow communique announced this advance had cut the railway and highway between Madona and Gulbene, 80 miles east of Riga. Capture of Lubana in the same area was announced.

(The National Committee of Free Germany, broadcasting from Moscow last night, urged the German troops trapped in the Northern Baltic area to surrender because "a break out toward East Prussia is impossible.")

Mining News

TORONTO, August 8 — (CP).—Stocks weakened in the early hours particularly the mining groups. The base metals lost 40c in the index and the golds were off only .06 at noon, but the decline was widened in the early afternoon. Turnover was sizable at 400,000 shares for the first three hours.

The Yellowknife issues led the decline in the golds. The decision of the Negus Board to close the mill until labor is more plentiful touched off the selling. Negus weakened 35 cents to 1.30, Giant 50 cents to 7.50, Frobisher 20 cents to 6.15, Bear 30 cents to 1.70, and Conwest 12 to 1.56.

Smelters dropped a point, Noranda ½, and Hudson Bay ⅝. Labrador lost 5 cents.

The utility, food and liquor issues weakened moderately and the steels were stronger.

Premier of the Province," Mr. Duplessis said.

Premier Godbout, in an address to a Liberal rally at Quebec City, said the vote today would be "the most serious and most important ever registered by the population of Quebec."

"It is not the cause of Liberalism we have been defending," he said, "but the cause of the Province and of the country. Our opponents in this election have been appealing not to your reason but to your passions. Reason, good sense and harmony, however, still count more in this Province than hatred and tomorrow the powers of hatred and discord will be swept out."

Car Damaged In Train Crash

John Shearer, Hall's Bridge, had a close call from serious injury on Saturday afternoon when his car was in collision with a C.N.R. engine at the Bethune-Hunter Street crosing. His car was damaged considerably.

Shearer was driving east on Hunter Street and failed to see the approaching train until it was too late. He swung his automobile to the right, but the train was too close and the left side of the car was struck.

The driver escaped unhurt, but the fenders, trunk and frame of Shearer's car suffered from the impact.

Shearer told the police that he did not notice the wig-wag signal at the crossing operating until after the accident.

Income Tax Act Now Amended

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP)—Greater relief will be provided in future for the income taxpayer with heavy medical expenses, members of the Commons were informed yesterday by Douglas Abbott, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley.

Mr. Abbott said that on future income tax returns medical expenses exceeding more than four per cent of gross income may be deducted from the taxable income. Previously, expenses totalling more than five per cent could be deducted.

The maximum deductions for such expenses has been increased from $400 to $600 in the case of a single man and from $800 to $900 in the case of a married man. Maximum deductions for medical expenses on each child has been increased to $150.

Mr. Abbott said the change was decided upon after government had considered representations received from persons both in the Commons and outside of it. The decision was made after the budget was brought down and after the House had adopted a resolution to the bill amending the war income tax act. The bill was given second reading and put partially through committee.

Debate on the income tax bill occupied the afternoon sitting of the House, which at its earlier meeting discussed hospital accommodation for returning war casualties.

Percy Black (PC-Cumberland) urged that a change be made in the method of taxing private power companies. He felt it was unfair for the publicly-owned Ontario and Quebec hydro systems to be exempt from income tax while private companies had to pay such taxes.

Hospital Debate

Talk on the hospital accomodation for war casualties was started by Dr. H. A. Bruce (PC-Toronto Parkdale) who moved a motion that the House adjourn to discuss the matter. He said he would take upon himself anything in a recent statement in which Premier George Drew of Ontario described the hospital situation as "critical."

Pensions Minister Mackenzie, Defence Minister Ralston and Navy Minister Macdonald assured the House that everything possible was being done to make sure there was no shortage of room for the wounded returning from the battle fronts.

Dr. Bruce said that because of the present shortage in hospital accommodation men who had lost arms or legs and still were in need of treatment were being given leave to their homes to provide beds for stretcher cases immediately expected. Because of the lack of adequate accommodation and organization, many serious cases has failed to receive the required prompt and adequate treatment.

Speed Plans

He said when questioned by Col. Ralston that he could not give any specific instance of a man being sent away from hospital while still in need of treatment to make room for someone else.

Col. Ralston said the army was speeding plans for expansion of its hospital accommodation.

"Every possible pressure is put on the situation so that there will be no possible lack of accommodation so far as the army is concerned for any number of casualties which can reasonably be expected to come," he said.

The number of casualties arriving in Canada had increased due to the opening of the front in Normandy, the evacuation of Canadian casualties from areas in England that were within the robot bomb target areas and the increased ship accommodation.

Handle 20,000

Mr. MacKenzie said that on "looking over the number of casualties and looking over the construction program now underway and looking at the bed accommodation we already have—about 20,000 at the present time —I must say on my responsibility that I am assured and I am confident that there will be proper accommodation for those boys requiring it."

There was close co-operation between the Pensions Department and the three defence departments, he said. A war hospital committee composed of some of the best men in the medical profession, advised the government on all hospital construction it projected.

Mr. Macdonald said he wished to deny reports that the defence ministers had lost confidence in Mr MacKenzie and his department. He said confidence in the pensions minister had grown in recent months.

The provision of hospital-accomodation for servicemen was the responsibility of the three armed services until the men were discharged. On discharge the treatment of the men fell on the pensions department.

C.G.E. Whistle Brought Peace Tidings In 1918 Old Timers Wonder When It Will Blow Again

To some of the elders in the works this morning the C.G.E. whistle, blowing an industrial reveille at ten to seven was a reminder that the week's holiday hush throughout the shops was ended. To others who, by reason of long service, had still another week to spend as they willed it gave a drowsily pleasant filip to plans for another seven days wherever their fancy led them with time as their own.

Then there were a few others who wondered perhaps how soon or long it might be until the news came in the midst of work and clanging machines of unconditional surrender of the Germans, and the whistle would blow for the second time in in generation the defeat of an enemy who had planned and come too close to accomplishing the fettering of the free peoples of the world.

A few of those employees or pensioners might have recalled the day in November, 1918 when the premature report of the Huns' request for an armistice was carried over the office wires, and in the absence of the manager at that time, E. G. Patterson, who was attending the funeral of the late James Kendry, some of the staff were wondering and debating whether they should take a chance, and blast precedent and unwritten rules by roaring the grand news to the community and its countryside. And, the late Peter Milloy was standing by, getting up extra steam, if it were to be used, and work was forgotten by those in the knowledge of the historic news which was quickly overtaken by an official denial until a day or so later when the Allied and German military leaders met in the woods of Compiegne. The news is plainly pointing these days to a repetition of that moment of transcendent blasting for the big whistle and its companions around the city.

Kingston Hostel, New Hospital

KINGSTON, Aug. 8 — The women's war workers' residence, Princess St., built by the Department of Munitions and Supply at a cost of $250,000, is to be remodelled immediately, to accommodate 250 soldier patients. Tenders are being called for the alterations which will get under way August 18.

The building, which is a frame structure and which has accommodation for 422 women war workers in single and double rooms, is well furnished. It is understood that the partitions between some of the rooms will betaken down to make the building into a series of wards which are more suitable for hospital purposes.

The large dining-room, lounge, bowling alleys and other recreation facilities will be ideal for wounded soldiers. The building was erected in four sections. At the present time part of it is being used by Queen's summer students and a group of RCAMC nurses. These tenants will vacate the bluiding by August 18.

Her RHEUMATIC PAIN Gradually Went Away

Delay in treating the early signs of rheumatic pains simply means that they may get a tighter grip on the system. That was what happened to the writer of the letter below:—

"I feel I cannot let another day pass without letting you know the definite benefit I have received through persevering with Kruschen Salts. I had very bad rheumatic pains in arms and legs, especially in my knee. Unfortunately I let it go on and on, until it got a firm hold on me. In spite of dieting and taking medicine the pains got no better. Then I saw your advertisement and got a bottle of Kruschen. After taking as directed for a while, the pain gradually went, and although I still take Kruschen, I have not had a sign of rheumatic pain for weeks now." —(Mrs.) L. W.

When you take Kruschen regularly, excess uric acid — the cause of many of those rheumatic aches and pains — is dissolved and expelled from the system. At the same time, the liver, kidneys and bowels are encouraged to do their work thoroughly.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Drug Stores, at 25c and 75c.

Rangers Capture Sports Trophy From Unit At Connaught Camp

A silver cup emblematic of supremacy in sports among all the reserve units in M.D. 3, brigaded and unbrigaded, attending summer camp at Connaught Ranges, was brought home by the 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, who returned from their annual two-weeks camp last Sunday morning. The camp, in the words of staff members of the unit, was "not big, but was about the best we have ever held."

Topping all the units in the camp in such sports as softball, tug-of-war and horseshoe pitching, and excelling equally in the military contests which included races with gas respirators and magazine-loading tests, the Rangers won the coveted cup which had been donated by Col. L. W. W. Slack, camp commandant. Their record showed a point score of 94.40 in the competition of the brigaded units, with the Governor General's Footguards running second with 86.90; and in the contests with unbrigaded units they led the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders by 94.40 to 89.16. All the sports were carried out with the men wearing Army-issue boots and completely equipped even to gas respirator.

A special word of praise was also awarded the Rangers by Col. Slack, who remarked on the unit's efficiency and paid tribute to the advanced state of training it had reached in addressing the officers and men on the last day.

Morale High

"Morale was high among the men throughout the two weeks," Major V. M. Eastwood, M.C., who was unit commander at Connaught Ranges, said. "There was no grousing, everybody was satisfied and the food was excellent. We had hot and cold showers in operation for the first time and the fact that it was always possible to get ice-cold water was a cheering factor in the very hot weather of the second week. The only rain that came was at night and never interfered with our training."

Night Scheme

There were a number of day schemes and one scheme at night, which caught the fancies of the reservists to such an extent that it was difficult to get them to call it a day. The unit saw demonstrations of practically every infantry weapon —a night demonstration put on by National Defence Headquarters of the Oerlikon gun, and demonstrations of six-pound anti-tank guns, various calibre machine guns, parachute flares and star shells shot from mortars. Unit prizes were awarded high-scores in rifle shooting.

Boxing matches held one evening among members of the unit became that evening's feature attraction of the camp, and swarms of spectators from other units in the camp were soon crowded around as the Rangers put on some very spirited pugilistic duels. A number of minor casualties such as broken thumbs were sustained and treated at the scene of action, most of them resulting from over-enthusiasm. On the last night the men took over from their superiors, and officer and N.C.O.s alike and without exception from the commanding officer down were subjected to the time-honored blanket toss, a traditional display of good spirits that characterizes the breaking up of a summer camp for the Rangers.

Farewell Ceremony

A special exhibition of courtesy was shown the departing Peterborough unit as it was pulling out of camp, when the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, in the lines at Connaught Ranges next to the Rangers, turned out in mass drawn up behind their commanding officer and to the music of their pipe band saw the battalion off. Besides the fact that a number officers of the Rangers First Battalion are now serving with the Camerons' active force in France, the send-off was also reminiscent of a similar ceremonious farewell given by the Rangers to the Highlanders when they last camped together, three years ago. It was said that the feeling between all units at the camp was extremely good.

During the summer camp 10 of the young members of the Rangers came of military age for active enlistment, and all of these have already made arrangements to enter into active service.

Until September there will be no training parades for the Rangers, but a pay parade for all those who attended camp is to be held Thursday night, at which time the prizes for the winners of the rifle-shooting matches will be distributed as well.

Men Slug Driver Then Wreck Car

CAMPBELLFORD, August 8. — (ENS). — Evans Jones of R.R. 1, Hilton, and Dean L. Somerville of Brighton were arrested over the week-end, while in Dr. Armstrong's office in Warkworth, by Provincial Constable McKenzie and Chief Constable Hardy of Campbelford. They were charged with assault causing bodily harm and theft of a car, following a smash-up of the automobile on the Hastings Road.

They hired a taxi from the Graham Taxi Company of Trenton, and near Wooler, it is alleged, they slugged the driver, Isaac Cook, of Trenton, over the head with a bottle, roled him out on the side of the road, then drove on with the car. Jones, who was driving, was inexperienced, having driven only twice before, and they ran into the ditch between Orland and Codrington, but were pulled out by a pasing motorist. They then drove to Warkworth, and were proceeding toward Hastings when Jones lost control of the car on the long curve here it was upturned and wrecked. They were taken to Dr. Armstrong's office for treatment and while there were apprehended by the police

These men have been absent with leave for about three months, Jones from the R.C.E. in Halifax and Somerville from the R.C.A. in Petawawa, and have spent about two years in the Army. They were lodged in the Campbellford Police Station, and will be taken to Cobourg for trial.

TITO, YUGOSLAV MAN OF DESTINY, IN INFORMAL POSE AT HIS SECRET HEADQUARTERS—Few people have seen Marshal Tito as relaxed as he is here, caught during a game of chess with his Chief of Staff Stoyan at his secret headquarters. The leader of the famous Yugoslav guerilla army that has been a thorn in the side of the Germans likes chess and plays it after dinner. Note the tiny pipe he uses for a cigarette.

The unknown Josip Broz, who rose to fame and the rank of marshal (now known as Marshal Tito) at the head of Yugoslavia's guerilla army, is shown with his dog, "Tigar," as they enjoyed a dip near the marshal's secret headquarters in Yugoslavia. This dog is probably closer to the legendary marshal than anyone.

Special Service Held For Soldier

BEWDLEY, Aug. 8—(ENS).—A memorial service was held for the late Pte. Ernest Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, who was instantly killed in action in Normandy July 5.

Rev. T. Crosthwaite, rector of St. Anne's, conducted the service, choosing as his lesson the story of David. He likened the freedom bought for Canadians by these brave soldiers who have given their lives, to the water that was brought to David by his soldiers who greatly endangered their lives that he might taste of the water from the wells of home. This water, brought at such a risk, David thought was too sacred to drink, so he poured it out to the Lord.

The best remembrance these fallen heroes would ask is that this freedom they bought would be kept sacred by those at home, he said. We dare not use it to our own selfish ends, but in making our community and country a better place in which to live.

In the prayers of comfort for the bereaved parents and family of Ernest Davis, prayer was also offered for those bereaved in the drowning of Sheldon Falls.

Baskets of gladioli adorned the front of the church and relatives and friends were present.

Decision In Quebec

It seems clear that the provincial election in Quebec today will be decided on national, and not on provincial grounds. When Mr. Godbout began his election campaign he put forward a platform based on matters of provincial finance, aids to agriculture, colonization, farm loans labour organization, civil service reform and increased education. But his opponents, Maurice Duplessis of the Union Nationale, and Andre Laurendeau of the Bloc Populaire, did not choose to meet him on those grounds. They wanted to fight the election on narrow, nationalist issues which spring from what Mr. Godbout has called the "deadly, narrow spirit of the province". But the nationalists have had their way; they have forced Mr. Godbout to deal with national issues, and he has done so.

The isolationists, Mr. Godbout has told the people of Quebec, can only succeed in stultifying the province, forcing it to lose ground socially and economically. He has pointed out that the influence of the Mackenzie King government has prevented conscription in Canada, and has thereby spared Quebec the violence and internecine strife which would certainly come of such a move, and which might involve Canada in a species of civil war, in which the idea of a united Canada would certainly fall a victim to racial hatred. His reward for these warnings was that his opponents called him an imperialist, a betrayer and a conscriptionist.

Mr. Godbout has struck back by accusing his opponents of stirring up racial and religious fanaticism in order to divide Canada—and in making these accusations he spoke truth. He denounced such activity as "vile, low and nefarious", and in a speech which he made on July 16 he put the matter to his people thus:

> "At the present, you are asked to judge a provincial administration and it will change nothing in federal policies whatever may happen in Quebec on August 8. To preach disunion is the most criminal thing at the present time. All Canadians who served their country well are our brothers, no matter what their language or religion. To work towards the division of a country such as Canada, whose future will be found in the union of all Canadians, is a crime".

The issue in Quebec is either Godbout and Canadian unity, or Duplessis and Laurendeau and disunity. The C.C.F. is not particularly interested in the Quebec election and has few candidates. There are few Conservatives in the field and the Union Nationale includes the rump of the Conservative following. Godbout is the only defender of national unity and co-operation in the war running in Quebec today.

Memorial To Stephen Leacock

The town of Orillia is going to set up a memorial to its greatest son, Stephen Leacock, in its public library. The inspiration for this plan came, as we understand the matter, from Mr. C. H. Hale, the editor of the Orillia Packet. The appropriateness of the memorial would have pleased Leacock, we are certain; we can only imagine one spot in which he would rather have a bust of himself set up—in a brewery. Leacock was fond of breweries, and it gave him great satisfaction that his address was 'Old Brewery Bay' for many years. The "unco' guid" never appreciated this aspect of his jollity, but it endeared him to the hearts of less straight-laced folk.

Leacock's fate in his native town was by no means an uncommon one for a man of letters. When he published Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town a portion of Orillia was scandalized, for several prominent citizens were plainly recognizable in its pages; there has never been a case on record of a man who liked being caricatured in a book. But as time wore on, and Leacock became famous, the local attitude changed, and pride supplanted wrath. Now, Leacock is dead and his bust is to be set up in the public library of the town which he endeared to thousands of readers as Mariposa.

Leacock loved Orillia; there can be no doubt of that. But he did not idealize it. He saw Orillia as clearly as Thomas Wolfe, saw Asheville, North Carolina, and he put almost everything into his brief essays that Wolfe crowded into his long novels. Leacock was a master of concision, and that is one reason why it is possible to turn to the Sunshine Sketches again and again, and to find something new in them every time. An early book, it is somewhat clumsy in workmanship, but it is finer than many of the more deft things which Leacock wrote later in life.

And now Mariposa is to honour Leacock. Old quarrels are forgotten, and for generations to come the effigy of the humourist of Old Brewery Bay will look down on the eager children of Orillia who come to read his books, and look at his manuscripts, and remember him with affection and with laughter.

As Others See Us

Not long ago Canada complained that she was not given enough notice in the publications of the United States and Great Britain; the publishers of those countries replied, with some justice, that what happened in Canada was of no particular interest to their readers. The war has changed that situation; the British and the Americans have heard about our price-control policy, our Mutual Aid arrangements, our industrial expansion, and they have read the reports of splendid fighting by our forces; they are interested in us now, and their publications are giving us a measure of attention. But what we read about ourselves is sometimes very puzzling to us.

To read the articles about Canada in the British New Statesman and Nation, for instances, is to be told that Canada is galloping toward socialism and that the C.C.F. is the only party which counts for anything in Canadian affairs. Agreeable as this point of view may be to the New Statesman, we question its value as an objective presentation of the Canadian situation. Nor are we any more impressed with the Canadian Section which appears in the local edition of Time. What appears there is based upon Canadian affairs, but the interpretation is very often fantastic, and is obviously second- or third-hand. Time's attitude toward everything is superficial and patronizing, and in dealing with Canadian affairs it makes no attempt whatever to see them from the Canadian point of view. If Time is as cavalier in its attitude toward the rest of the world as it is toward Canada, the magazine is worthless, except as entertainment.

Recently in Collier's that much-advertised reporter Frank Gervasi writes thus:

> "The experts up north are betting that King will try to join forces with the C.C.F. He hates them less than he hates the Tories. His foreign policy and that of the Socialists are more nearly congruent than those of the Liberals and the P-C's. If King knows he can't beat the C.C.F., he'll try to join it. Whether he would succeed is another matter".

'The experts up north' are not betting anything of the kind. Gervasi is writing drivel. Apparently he has acquainted himself quickly and superficially with the Canadian political situation, and has then drawn a superficial and wrong conclusion. The effect of what he has written is merely to misinform the readers of Collier's hopelessly about Canadian politics.

Canada, having been neglected for many years, is now being widely misinterpreted. But that, of course, is the fate of men and countries which are rising in reputation.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The last laugh: Munich, where the umbrella became a joke, has just had the heaviest single shower of bombs in history.

The Brantford Expositor, which regularly sniffs at our prophets, now suggests that there may be such a thing as a sea-serpent. We are all credulous, but luckily we are not all credulous in the same direction.

It is predicted that the 5 cent cup of coffee will never return. How a cup of coffee can possibly cost a restaurant more than three cents is beyond our reckoning. The 7 cent profit should gladden the hearts of those who minister to a coffee-loving people.

A parliamentary commissioner has called Ottawa's police station "a rat hole". There are many police stations all over Ontario which might be described in that way, and after the war some money might be well spent in cleaning them up, for the benefit of the police forces and local self-esteem. Many people have to go to the police station who are not criminals, and shabby, inadequate quarters reflect unfavourably on the community.

Farming News and Views

By
HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

FARMING is full of surprises. I drove east from Ottawa about three miles with Senator Davies, on July 25, and found a district in which they had only three showers of rain since they seeded their spring crop. I was somewhat familiar with this part, as the farm of the late Ben Rothwell is located in it, and I had been a visitor to see the Clydesdales when he was a prominent importer. We called at the farm of Hopkins Bros., breeders of Holsteins, and found them feeding their cows and young cattle hay. It looked much like having the winter's feed eaten up long before winter was in sight. The pastures were bare and they had to feed what was at hand. Drought can work the very mischief with fodder for cattle.

Their herd is in good shape, however, and these men evidently know how to meet a difficult situation. They have some very tidy breedy-looking heifers coming into profit, and several mature cows of great scale and fine conformation, and their great deep bodies, straight lines and capacious milk vessels make them look like useful beasts, much better than ordinary.

Their herd bull is a three-year-old, Mont Vic Emperor Posh, whose name indicates his aristocratic breeding, and he is a fine type specimen. He is smooth in his shoulders, has fine long straight hind-quarters, and a group of his calves show him to be a high-class sire. The cows, when stabled for milking, made a good show and if they had luscious grass to feed on would be quite an attractive lot.

Fifteen acres of fodder corn looked thrifty and had good colour but W. S. Hopkins said it should be one or two feet higher now. It is well to drop into farms that have to fight such conditions as these, just to learn how resourceful farmers often have to be to overcome these difficulties. That night they had a fair shower of rain and another the following night, which will help. What they need, however, is a steady day's downfall to soak the ground and store some moisture to be going on with.

THE exports of farm products from New Zealand to Britain have taken a substantial drop. The percentages of the decline are about as follows: Butter 15%, cheese 25%, wool 33%, beef 53%, lamb 12%, mutton 35%, pork 96%, and other frozen meats 11%. New Zealand is quite near to Jap activities and so large amounts of food are required close to home. Butter, cheese and lamb have been New Zealand's largest exports of food to Britain. Canterbury lamb from New Zealand has been held in high regard for many years on the Smithfield market in London, and New Zealand butter is one of the highest class imports in the form of food.

THERE are many fine fields of fall wheat in stook at this time, the last day of July, but there have been too many showers around Toronto to get it into the barns. Much of it looks like forty bushels or better to the acre, and it is fine plumb grain. The fixing of a floor price of $1.25 per bushel F.O.B. Montreal will steady the market, but I have no doubt millers will pay more for it. The spring grain has been twisted some with winds and the yield will not be as large as expected. Turnips and other roots east of Toronto are fine. The corn crop is backward in some places but it is a good colour and will likely come on well. A whirlwind near Brockville twisted some heavy crops of green oats to such an extent that there will be a lighter yield of ripe grain than was expected.

ONE of the tragedies in Ontario agriculture is that you frequently find good clay land neglected so that it has grown brush and will require a lot of work to fit it for the production of good crops. If the soldiers' settlement organization only had some men who could bring such land back into a fair state of cultivation, many of these farms would be far superior to much of the land upon which soldiers have been settled. The Ontario government is making a proposition to soldiers to settle upon some of the bush land in northern Ontario. This should not be done. The clearing of a bush farm is filled with grief and can only be accomplished by the strenuous efforts of people who have no other means of owning a farm. The settlement of returned soldiers should be planned so as to give these men a reasonable chance to own a farm home that would be self-sustaining from the outset, and all who know anything about settling on farms covered with somewhat inferior timber, must surely recognize that no such treatment should be meted out to returned men.

IN searching for grasses to offer variety in pastures in England a number of farmers are using alsike clover. They claim that cattle get "fed up" with wild white, and that alsike offers a much desired variety. In Ontario alsike has been used more as a hay crop or has been grown for seed, while other clovers have been used in seeding pasture. Undoubtedly we need clover in pasture mixtures, not only for fodder but for the enriching of the soil with nitrogen.

A LARGE number of Ontario farmers are starting new combines this year and, as the usefulness and adaptability of these machines in harvesting down and twisted spring grain are being realized, they are gaining more in favour. I remember when it took farmers some time to understand why a self-binder would lift tangled grain better than a single reaper. The reason was largely because the canvas in motion carried the cut grain out of the way of the next lot that would fall on the table, while the single reaper piled it up until you got a sheaf. Combines seem to be more easily adjusted to pick up tangled grain and they will cut and handle field peas with great efficiency.

Harvesting and tilling machinery is going to be greatly improved when we get back to the manufacturing of machines for saving food crops instead of making engines of destruction.

THE apple crop in Ontario is showing great promise. Owners of orchards have done a good job of spraying, prompted by the good prices for fruit, and, although help has been scarce, their plan has been "to find a way or make it." Taken on the whole, the weather has played the farmers' game this year with more than usual consideration.

THE fixing of floor and ceiling prices for farm prices is now before Parliament for consideration. The Bill provides for the appointment of a Board to make purchases when the prices threaten to go down through the floor. As a matter of fact, this is a case in which the human equation is all-important. Upon the membership of this Board will depend the success or failure of the project. These men must be men of wide knowledge in prices and values and they must serve the public only. The naming of this Board will be of the very highest importance to farmers.

THE (AXE IS) MASTER

The Hon. Mr. Frost's Proposal

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

WHEN Hon. Leslie M. Frost, provincial treasurer, and also minister in charge of Ontario's Travel and Publicity Bureau, advocates, as he does, that historic sites in this province be suitably marked as a means of interesting tourists, he is promoting a worthy idea. It is regrettable, though, that the commercial aspect seems to be the principal reason which prompts the proposal — use the historical incidents to bring in business! Perfectly legitimate, of course, but if the emphasis had been put instead on the interest we, as Canadians, should have in our own history and in the people who made it, there would have been a more altruistic motive brought to the front. One thing is to mark places that have real significance, because of the life of our forefathers that went into them, or into the events which have given them historical value—mark them for their own sake; the other is to use them primarily to draw tourist trade so that large sums of money will be spent here.

Taking the subject even as it has been presented, however, it is to be strongly commended, and the best way of accomplishing what the Provincial Treasurer would like to see done would be by a zealous co-operation between the Government and local historical societies. Where there are no such bodies they would soon come into being if the Treasury of the Province would bear part of the cost, probably the major part, of putting up cairns, tablets or other evidences of what occurred in former generations. In fact, from a purely realistic standpoint, local interest and pride would be, undoubtedly, a big factor in getting accurate information together and publicizing all that was done about dedication ceremonies. A few earnest men and women here and there over Ontario have raised money now and then in the past to erect some kind of marker to draw attention to what should be kept from obscurity.

As pointed out by the Brockville Recorder and Times, the Historic Sites and Monuments Board —a Federal Government body has accomplished considerable in this field but it is limited in its activities to sites that have a national importance. There are numerous other places with historic value in all the provinces, particularly in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, because of their early settlement, that gradually will be obliterated from public memory unless steps are taken to mark them.

As a means of encouraging people in different localities to do what Hon. Mr. Frost proposes, the provincial department over which he presides could set up a certain objective outlining conditions under which local historical bodies could be financially assisted in delving into the records of our yesterdays and preparing recommendations, with accurate data, for acceptance by a provincially constituted committee. For a government to do everything itself would mean the expenditure of an unnecessarily large sum of money with nothing comparable in results to what would be achieved by stimulating community zeal.

Mae West Again

East and west will meet again—in a Broadway play. After an absence of 10 years, Mae West returns to the New York stage to do her own play, Catherine Was Great. Rehearsals have commenced under the direction of Mike Todd and, according to Miss West herself, the story and production will be "something."

By all rights it should be. Catherine of Russia, if we recall our history correctly, was quite a lady—a hearty but dominating soul whose long and eventful career never smacked of dullness. A lady who could meet any situation and give a command or jest with equal relish. In Mae West's capable hands, Catherine should be "boxoffice," for given the right material she is absolutely in a class by herself.

Diamond Lil was her greatest success and followed this same formula. First it proved a boxoffice smash, then swept on to make cinema history. Catherine, it is hoped, will duplicate the record. As a sort of Diamond Lil of the upperworld, unquestionably Catherine Was Great will be "something."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Beurling's Retirement

On the surface, it appears that Beurling, a commissioned officer with an enviable record gained in the active field, has become "fed up" with non-combat duty and, according to Air Force regulations, can be permitted to resign.

That may be all well, but on the other hand offers the Buck Private John Doe no respite from regulations. He may get fed up with routine jobs, and unquestionably many of those who spent upwards of five years in England waiting for the invasion did get fed up, but did they have the opportunity of tendering their resignation "to facilitate their rehabilitation in civilian life"?

No reflection is intended on Beurling, who is a hero and should be honored as such, but the principle affecting the commissioned ranks should have a parallel in the lower ranks, providing all else is equal. Beurling at 22 years of age is being permitted to resign his commission, while Private John Doe, also aged 22, who has seen equally as much service and filled an equally important job without becoming a hero, has nothing to say about his disposition.—Cornwall Standard-Freeholder.

Word For Worms

It's time someone in parliament dared to speak a word for the thrifty—the man who works hard for his money, is buying a home and, in addition, has been investing in life insurance in order that, if he dies young, his family will not become dependent on state and private charity. If the total of his mortgage and insurance payments equalled his compulsory savings tax, Mr. Ilsley's latest budget didn't benefit him a bit. The people it is benefiting are those who weren't paying anything on a mortgage and who weren't paying for life insurance. There are worthy people in this class, of course. But these worthy people certainly do not deserve more help than the home-buyers and the insured.

Mainly those who benefit by the abolition of compulsory savings are the people who live in rented flats, die with little or no life insurance and who, come a day when fat wages are no longer available, will be the first to appeal to public funds for help. They are, largely, the inflationists—the people who spend today's cash with no thought of the morrow. The new budget has enhanced their spending power. The savers in the same financial group will still have to scrimp and save.

'Tisn't fair. They've been sufferers for many years. When they lost their jobs in the Great Depression, they had to wait until they'd lost the equity in their homes before they could get public relief. Meanwhile, the people who had spent their money in good times while the others were saving, got help with the first whistle of the bad economic wind.

All the political sympathy in the last decade or so has gone to the thriftless as much as to the unlucky. And all the while the theory of government has been to create a nation of home owners and savers. They outnumber the others by a high percentage but nearly every politician one meets has calmly advocated and approved policies which set a premium on impecuniousness. The Lord will provide, and modern Democratic government is His instrument.

But worms have been known to turn. We fancy they're just waiting to know where to.—Printed Word.

The British System

If we had a Parliamentary system, the executive and legislative branches and all appointees would be merged into a single unit and be compelled to accept responsibility overnight for any blunder. This does not necessarily mean in actual practice a series of elections. It means that the mere threat of an election to test power could force a change in policy or in personnel. This has worked in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and it can work successfully for us because it is true democracy to give the people an instantaneous check on their rulers.

The Canadian Parliamentary system is what the United States should adopt. Then we could avoid the necessity of holding elections in the midst of some national crisis where continuity of administration might be imperative. We could acquire also a new sense of responsibility in the relations of the executive and the legislative branches of the government. Woodrow Wilson foresaw this need as far back as the 1880's and advocated it again as president-elect in February, 1913, in a historic letter to Congress on the subject of Presidential tenure.—New York Sun.

A Bible Message

This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornification, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murder, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. (Gal. 5: 16-25.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The conductor punched a two-penny ticket. "There you are, sonny," he said, "I'll pay your fare."

He was turning away when he heard a small indignant voice: "'Ere, conductor, 'ood you fin' yer swindlin'? It was a tanner wot I lorst!"

"Hermann, how much longer have we got food for?"

Goering, with a smile of satisfaction, replied: "Oh! for about ten years."

Beside himself with joy, Hitler exclaimed: "But how wonderful! I'll make a speech tomorrow and tell my people. How glad they will be."

Goering replied: "People? Whoever talked about the people? I mean, of course, for us two."

They had been invited to dinner at the house of a prominent local resident. As there was no one to look after little Tommy, it was necessary to take him too.

The meal started off well enough but while Tommy was trying to cut the meat on his plate it slipped onto the floor, and his mother's face flushed.

"Tommy," she whispered tensely, "you must apologize to Mrs. Ayres at once. Get up and say something quickly."

The child slowly picked the meat from the floor and said: "I'm sorry Mrs. Ayres. It's funny; but tough meat always does do that."

An Untimely Death

Manuel Quezon will be regarded as one of the tragic figures of this war. He had given his life to the cause of Philippnie independence. He had become the acknowledged leader and symbol of that cause. He had come to the very point of achieving his aim. But he had been losing ground before the tuberculosis against which he had struggled for many years. As one fight was almost won, the other was finally lost.

One of the chief facts giving stature to President Quezon was his prompt and unwavering decision in favour of the Allies when his country was attacked by the Japanese in 1941. He did all in his power to rally his countrymen against the invader and in support of the American government and forces. In February 1942, as the Philippines fell, he decided to join other free governments and to continue the fight in exile.

His prestige in Washington was high. He sought to maintain long-distance control of civil government in the Philippines and to encourage the resistance of the people to the bribery attempts of the enemy. Though his period of office ended last November under the terms of the Philippine constitution, the United States, by special act of Congress, continued his term in order that he might become the first president of the Philippines, following the establishment of complete independence after the ejection of the Japanese.

Certainly the hour of liberation had never been nearer. Despite his illness, the fiery little president continued to take part in forming plans for an independent Philippine republic. On the day of his death, General MacArthur made a successful new surprise landing in New Guinea, bringing the Allies nearer the Philippines than at any time since Japan reached the height of her conquests.

Yet in his death under such circumstances there is a certain human poignancy that seems to deepen the value and meaning of his life effort.—Montreal Gazette.

Canadian Dead 919 To July 20

SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 8.—Allied forces in France have lost a total of 116,148 men killed, wounded or missing, from D-Day, June 6, through July 20, Supreme Headquarters announced today.

Canadian casualties were 919 killed, 4,354 wounded and 1,272 missing.

British losses were 5,646 killed; 27,766 wounded and 6,182 missing.

Included in these figures were the casualties sustained by the U.S. Army during pre-invasion exercises last April.

Allied casualties in France to date have been 30 per cent. under the anticipated number, Maj.-Gen. A. W. Kenner, chief of the U.S. Medical Corps for the western front, has revealed.

He attributed the lower figure to the success of the Allied offensives and to what he called the incredibly low mortality rate among the wounded. Only three per cent. of the casualties in Normandy were fatal, he said.

Once the wounded have been moved across the English Channel to hospital bases in England, he added, they have a better than 99-out-of-100 chance of survival.

Deloro Children Have Red Cross Circus

MARMORA, August 8 — (ENS) —Three Deloro children aided by a young visitor from Ottawa staged a Red Cross circus on the front lawn of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Mantle this week, and they handed in the entire proceeds of $6.67 to the Deloro branch of the Red Cross.

Apparently the idea started with George (Bucky) Mantle, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mantle, 7-year-old Shirley Ann, his sister also considered she should help, as well as Walter Weber, the 14-year-old cousin from Ottawa. To make it four-square, Bucky's 10-year-old pal William Brown also took a share in the venture.

Bingo and games and a lemonade booth were patronized by (the young folk of the village, and with juvenile generosity they made the young quartette feel proud of their undertaking.

Canadian Ships In Naval Battle

By LT.-CMDR. WILLIAM SCALTER, R.C.N.V.R.

ABOARD H.M.C.S. HAIDA, Aug. 8.—(CP).—A trail of burning and sinking ships, including minesweepers, armed trawlers and merchantmen, marked the Germans' attempted escape route from the beleagued ports of Lorient and St. Nazaire after a British-Canadian naval force intercepted two German convoys Sunday, sinking seven vessels and damaging two.

The Canadian destroyers Haida and Iroquois took part in the action and the Haida, a veteran of channel engagements, suffered two dead and two wounded as the result of a hit. The Iroquois, taking part in her first engagement in these waters was unscathed.

With the British cruiser Bellona and the destroyers Ashanti and Tartar, the Haida and Iroquois surprised the first convoy shortly after midnight. The enemy appeared to think he had encountered friends for he shot up recognition signals. But the warships sailed right in.

The first targets of the Haida were a trawler and a minesweeper. The trawler was set afire and then the Haida turned her guns on the minesweeper. Within a few minutes she had stopped and also was burning.

Four In a Row Afire

Other members of the naval force were in action and soon four burning ships, one astern of the other, lit up the sky. Great fountains of water shot up from the doomed ships' vicinity and again and again we saw tremendous showers of sparks and flames from direct hits.

The enemy put up a desperate fight and high explosives burst all round the attackers.

Steaming along the line of enemy ships the Haida found as her next target a vessel of 3,000 to 4,000 tons that looked like an oversize trawler. It was pounded with salvo after salvo until it blazed from stem to stern.

Swinging to starboard we then engaged a minesweeper, hitting it with our first salvo. A few more hits and she burst into flame and went down by the head.

"You can scratch off another minesweeper," was the casual comment of Capt. H. G. de Wolf, the Haida's commander.

Got Athlete's Foot? —Use Lysol

Soak feet 15 minutes in a lukewarm Lysol solution (1 teaspoon of Lysol to each quart water) every day for one week. Dry thoroughly without rinsing. Repeat every 2 or 3 days for some weeks afterwards.

To help prevent reinfection, have the good wife soak socks, bath mats, towels for 1 hour in Lysol solution (same strength) before laundering. Also wipe inside of shoes, especially seams, with same Lysol solution on cotton swab.

Don't let it spread! Protect other members of your family from Athlete's Foot by washing bathroom floor regularly with Lysol in cleaning water. (2½ tablespoons to 1 gallon water.) Lysol is soapy in nature, helps clean. Lysol deodorizes, too.

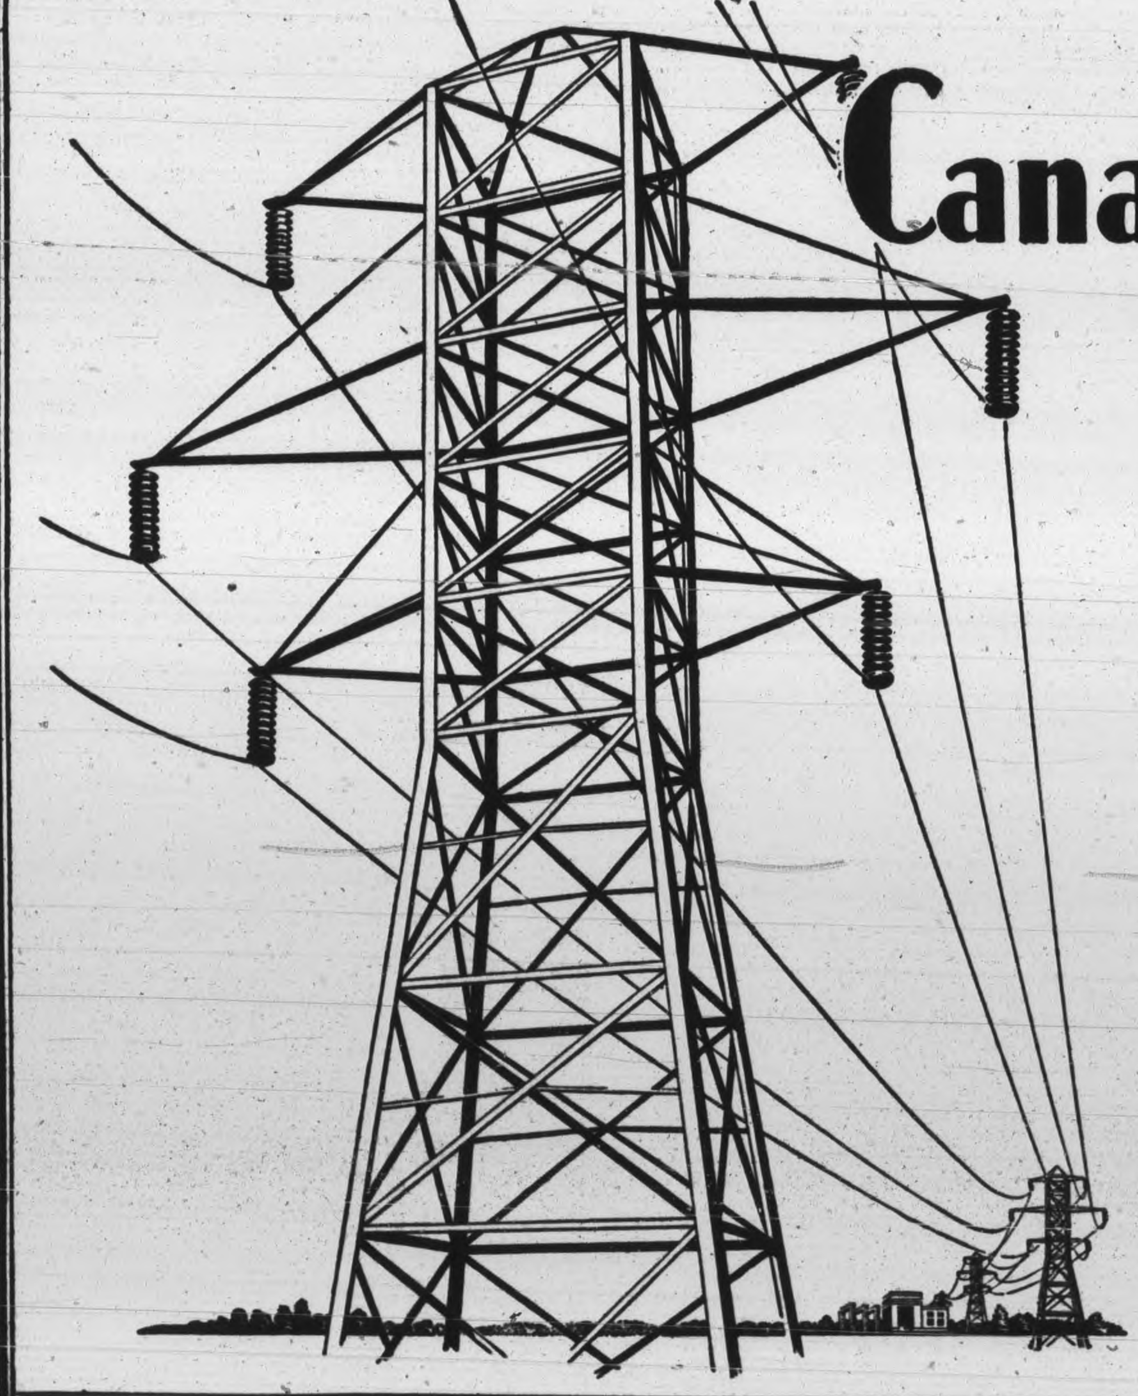
Avoid walking barefoot at all times! Severe or stubborn cases may require a doctor's attention. Lysol costs little because it's so concentrated—you dilute it for use. Get Lysol today, at any drug counter.



Canada Owns a Giant

Electric Power

BUILDER OF A GREAT NATION

In her vast resources of Hydro-Electric Power, Canada owns a giant whose mighty energies have made our nation industrially strong. More electricity is used per capita in the Dominion than in any other country. Already seven times as much electric power is being generated as during the last war. Thanks largely to this great power output Canada has become one of Democracy's largest producers of war supplies.

And yet, for all its widespread application, electricity in Canada is destined for greatly extended development and use. Less than 20% of our nation's potential water-power resources have been harnessed.

Impressive as the achievements of Canadian electrification have been—the future is even more inspiring. Electricity can give us clean, well-lit cities; healthy, easy-to-run homes. It can raise the productivity of our factories and farms, our mills and mines. It can yield us new high standards of living, new opportunities, new leisure.

But Electric Power can do these things only if we "Think Big" and plan big—today. True, some measure of planning is being done—but we must all plan. True, there must be no slackening of our war effort till Victory is won—yet only by planning ahead can we prepare for action ahead, work ahead, markets ahead, which will absorb our fullest productivity, create jobs for all and thus establish a firm and stable foundation upon which Canada's future can be built.

Countless contributions to Canada's remarkable electrical progress have been made by the engineers and craftsmen of Canadian General Electric. For 52 years these skilled workers have been making electricity increasingly useful to Canada's peacetime economy. Today, in the Company's seven great plants they are devoting all their skill, energy and determination to the vital task of producing the war supplies needed so urgently by the fighting forces of the United Nations.

Pitchers Hold The Spotlight As Aces Creep Up On Winning 20 Games

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian

That this is a pitchers' year in the majors has been stressed by baseball writers from the beginning of the season.

That this is a year for 20-game winners is apparent now.

It's a free-for-all, more or less, as both American and National league flingers record victory after victory against opposition which, at best, is none too good.

All the good ball players are in the service, they say. Well, there may be many missing, but there are still plent of good pitchers around, admitting, of course, they have to meet many minor league ball players up there at the plate.

Six Appear In

At the rate the flingers are going, there should be at least a half dozen tossers who will gain the select 20-game circle with ease. And, there are several others, who, with a bit of that thing called luck, could crash the arc in this year of free-wheeling victories.

Not since 1939 have there been so many possible 20-game winners. In that year we had eight, four from each league, with Bob Feller of the Indians, Red Ruffing of the Yanks, Dutch Leonard of the Nats, Buck Newsom of the Browns and Tigers, Bucky Walters of the Reds, Paul Derringer of the Reds, Curt Davis of the Cards and Luke Hamlin of the Dodgers all turning in 20 or more victories.

Heading the current parade of top tossers are the veteran Walter, still the ace of the Cincy staff; Tex Hughson, the handsome Red Sox twirler who hit the select circle two years ago with 22 wins, and Hal Newhouser, the fireball flinger of the Tigers. All three have won 15 games already with some 60 games to play.

Walters Is Leader

While several of the victories piled up by that trio of slabmen have been of the spotty variety, each has shown plenty of class on the mound to merit bona-fide membership in the 20-game club.

Walter, the reformed infielder, continues to prove the shift he made back in 1934 was for the best for he stands at the threshold of his third season as a 20-game winner.

Dizzy Trout, the right-handed ace of the Tigers, appears a sure 20-game winner, having already won 14. He was one of the two A.L. twirlers to hit that figure last year.

Rip Sewell, the "blooper" expert of the Pirates, is matching Trout's record. He won 21 last season and is on his way to another such record.

Rookie Included

One rookie, Bill Voiselle of the Giants, who pitched for Jersey City last year before being brought up late in the season, has won 13 and is expected to become a 20-game winner. Voiselle won 10 and lost 21 for Jersey City but he has become a winner with the Giants.

Hank Borowy, the Fordham product who has been successful with the Yanks; Bob Muncrief of the Browns and Allie Reynolds, the strikeout king of the Indians, are other A.L. tossers who could possibly make the 20-game circle.

In the National league, Mort Cooper, the Cardinals' ace, and Jim Tobin of the Braves may go on to 20-game victories. Cooper has the best chance, already having won 12 games. Cooper won 21 last season.

The Card star has the benefit of a slugging, winning team behind him. The Cards are more than a dozen games in front in the pennant race, but Cooper is expected to take his normal turn on the hill, thus gaining the chance to record the coveted 20-game figure.

TORONTO, August 8 — (CP).— Announced intention of the Saskatchewan Mobilization Board not to grant border crossing permits to Canadian hockey stars wishing to play with U.S. teams, has stirred a considerable froth of comment about the country.

Men in military-eligible categories will have to go into essential war work or else go on a farm and learn ho to extract milk from a bossie, according to the announcement from Regina. This rule can be put in effect in all provinces, since it is a Federal statute, and if that is done some of the N.H.L. teams will be even lighter in big-time talent than they were last winter—if that is possible.

However Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star adopts a properly philosophical attitude toward the whole thing. The youngsters now being developed can step into the breach—at least until the time they also become eligible for military call-up—and things will go on much as before. The fans are used to the war brand of hockey by now, opines Baz, and they won't notice much difference even if a complete High School team is iced for their edification.

Incidentally:

Some people are bears for punishment. Tony Stecher, familiarly known as the Brain, is thinking of reviving the heave-and-huff pastime in Winnipeg. About eight years ago Mr. Stecher financed another attempt to put wrestling on the map in the 'Peg, and reportedly dropped about $2,500.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Notwithstanding the fact that it was a double holiday, and that many of the factories had been closed all week and the employees were away on vacation and also of the many counter tournaments and other attractions, sixteen mixed rinks came out on the holiday and enjoyed 42 ends of real high-class bowling. To say that the committee was surprised is putting it very mildly. They had figured on about anywhere from 8 to 12 rinks, but when the entries kept coming in over the telephone, and it was found that 16 as going to be the number, Bob Hendry, who was in charged, turned around and said, "You're wrong again, Pepper, and I'm richt as usual. I told you there would be 16." And just in passing that makes a total of 46 mixed rinks that came out on Friday night and Saturday night and on Civic Holiday. Don't let anybody tell you that our members don't like to bowl. Give them a chance and see what will happen.

The prizes were bought by the ladies' games committee and they made a real job of it.

We have no reports from the boys who attended tournaments at Belleville and Toronto yesterday. Maybe no news means good news, or does it?

SPORTS - Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Softball warefare will break out again tonight when Plazas and Soldiers meet at Riverside Park at 6.45 o'clock in the third game of their semi-final City League series. Interest in this series was at fever heat when the round was interrupted by a holiday break and the excitement will probably pick up again tonight as the two old rivals tie into each other in a decidedly important battle. The teams are even now with one victory each and the winner tonight will be only one game away from taking the series so this may prove to be the playoff tussle. Plazas won the first tilt 7 to 6 with Soldiers making an uphill fight trying to pull the game out of the bag and the Military Training Centre came back to take the second fixture by scoring two runs in the last of the ninth to win 7 to 6. That means that at the end of two playoff arguments the two teams are even in the matter of games and also of total runs scored which carries its own evidence of how evenly matched they are. Both teams are confident of the outcome of tonight's battle. Soldiers will likely start big Earl Revoir against Plazas while the latter have not intimated whether their choice will be Terry Woods, Frank Stokoe or Dave Wilson. Fans and players are asked to note that the starting hour will be 6.45 and not 7 o'clock. The evenings are shortening and an earlier start is necessary to ensure good light for the later innings.

* * * * * *

Tomorrow night play will be resumed in the other semi-final bracket with U.E.W. and Switchgear clashing in the second game of their round which the Union outfit now lead by one game to nothing. Another win for them in the Wednesday contest would put them two up in the best-of-three series and give them a real grip on the round. Hatty Eakins, the Lindsay fireballer who held Switchgear to three hits the last time he faced them is scheduled to do the hurling for the Unoin and if the team hits behind him as it did in the 19-8 opening night win, Manager Murph Chambers' league leaders are going to have a lot of trouble on their hands. However the Switchgear outfit say that one-sided battle was just one of those things and that they will be back in the form tomorrow night that put them on top of the heap in the regular schedule. They will have Akers, Harrison and Elliott all ready for action and declare that they will even up the series by grabbing off the second game. It should provide plenty of excitement.

Westclox Vs. Aircraft

The City Softball League is not the only loop to offer a star attraction for tonight. In the Girls' League the two leading clubs Westclox and Aircraft will meet in the battle in the Ashburnham Bowl that may settle the question of first place permanently. It is the last scheduled clash between the Big Bens and the Aircrafters and Westclox are leading the series 2 games to 1. By winning tonight the leaders would cop the round; on the other hand Aircraft can tie the race up in a knot by knocking Westclox for a loop. Both teams expect to be at full strength for this crucial clash and both express confidence in the outcome, all of which goes to make up a battle full of excitement from the opening ball to the final out. Neither club has announced its pitching choice. It will be either Joyce Withers or Isobel Bullock for the Big Bens and Norma Strickland or Marg Selkirk for the Aircraft. The game will decide whether Westclox finish at the top of the heap or whether a fifth game may be necessary to decide the leadership.

Soldiers will be minus one valuable player when they clash with Plazas tonight. Lieut. Joe Dunkerley, the Peterborough boy who has been starring in the field and at the plate for the Military Training Centre has been transferred out of Peterborough and his all-round good work will be missed. Lieut. Dunkerley who as a youngster starred in local hockey, rugby and ball circles had been out of action on the sporting front for some time but in mid-season when the Soldiers were short-handed they pressed him into service. He broke in with two of the most sensational catches of the season, hammered out a couple of hits and from then on the Soldiers couldn't keep him out of the lineup. And incidentally the opposition teams had trouble keeping him off the bases for he developed into about the most dangerous Soldier batter. In the last playoff game with Plazas his hitting won the argument for the Camp team for the first three times he came up with runners on the sacks he delivered hits in the clutch, driving in four of his team's runs.

There was no activity in the big leagues Monday but over the week-end indications that the world series next fall may be exclusively a St Louis affair became more pronounced. If they keep out of train wrecks the Cards are as good as in now for they have a lead of 16½ games and apparently haven't the slightest intention of doing any coasting. In spite of the fact that they are so far ahead that the rest of the teams look to be in another league they used three of their ace pichers Mort Cooper, Ted Wilks and Max Lanier to take an overtime decision from the Cincinnati Reds. Incidentally Wilks was hit on the head by a batted ball and may be out of action for some time. The Brownies took a double-header on Sunday and opened up a lead of 6½ games, at the same time running their winning streak to eight straight games. It is tough trying to gain any ground on an outfit that persists in winning most of its battles and the Brownies have been doing exactly that. No wonder some of the experts are already declaring that the American League winners will be none other than the said Brownies and that the pitchers in the opening game of the 1944 world series will be Mort Cooper for the Cards and Bob Muncrief for the Browns.

"Later on this month two Negro teams will clash in Chicago in their annual all-star game," says Billy Westwick in his Ottawa Journal sport column. "The Negro teams have developed that game into a big-time event and last year they drew 51,000 people. This year they stood to better that mark at Chicago Comiskey Park, but there will be one outstanding figure missing —the fabulous "Satchel" Paige. Paige stands alone as the greatest of all Negro pitchers and there are many of the game's most astute observers ready to claim he is the greatest baseball pitcher of all time. Paige's retirement from the coming classic is voluntary and is causing some concern among the thousands of his admirers. It seems that Paige some time ago suggested to the club owners of the two Negro major leagues that the gate receipts this year should be turned over to war relief. When they refused to heed that suggestion Paige told them he wouldn't put on a uniform. In an interview with Lloyd Lewis, managing editor of the Chicago News, Paige tells of how he made up his mind to insist on a war relief game after seenig hundreds of stretcher cases returning from the Pacific. The American and National Leagues annually donate receipts of their all-star classic to that cause and Paige, the greatest drawing card in Negro baseball and almost as potent a gate attraction among white fans, claims the Negro professional game has grown big enough to do the same."

Trouble Ahead When Hall Meets Whip

Nanjo Singh

There should be plenty of action at the Brock Street Arena tonight for the folks who like their wrestling hard. Whipper Billy Watson, irritated by the boasts of Dr. Len Hall that he is going to give the British Empire champ a wrestling lesson declares that the loud-mouthed Texan is due for a surprise. They meet in the main bout and the roughhouse Doctor hopes to make it plenty warm for the Whip. All the rowdyism will not be confined to the Watson-Hall battle either for the Hindoo stormy petrel, Nanjo Singh, meets the fast and hot-headed French grappler, Pierre DeGlane in the semi-final. Two speedsters, Joe Malch and Irish Tom Collins will be the contenders in the opening battle on the card. It looks like a real bill, with everything packed in.

Plan Swim Meet At Inverlea

Peterborough is to have a swimming and diving regatta at Inverlea Park a week from Saturday, thanks to the enterprise of Alfie Pink, Jr. who is making the necessary plans for the big event. During the past week he inaugurated a successful regatta at Mount Julian, Stoney Lake and hopes to put over the Inverlea meet in similar fashion. Swimming has become one of the city's most popular summer recreations and it is felt that there are enough proficient swimmers to make the program decidedly exciting.

There will be events for both boys and girls, and for the youngsters as well as the more mature swimmers. Prizes will be offered in each contest.

A new diving platform is being erected at the Park and it will serve excellently for the diving numbers to be included in the program.

Jatz Poles Out Double Beats Montreal

By The Associated Press

Bob Jatz is doing his part toward relieving the manpower shortage in the International League.

During the course of pitching a six-hitter against Montreal last night for Syracuse, Katz wasn't given the hearty batting support he could have used. Therefore, he stepped up in the seventh inning and proceeded to win his own ball game by blasting a double which knocked in the two winning runs.

It was Bob's eighth victory and his fifth in his last six tries.

Two of the league's ace pitchers clashed in a 2-1 battle at Toronto, and Newark's Johnny Maldovan came out on top in the second game of a twin bill, the first of which the Bears also took, 6-4.

Ken Holcombe salted his 14th victory away in the opener as he minimized six Leaf hits. Luther Knerr started for the Leafs and was saddled with the loss. The nightcap saw Maldovan shave Alec Mustaikis, with Dick Shoff's home run providing the only Leaf tally.

The double triumph puts the charging Bears only 2½ games away from the top.

Baltimore Orioles split two games with Rochester, winning the second, 9-3, after suffering a 1-0 whitewash in the first.

Jersey City laid the wood to four Buffalo pitchers as the Giants pounded the Bisons, 15-6. As Ken Brondell coasted to his 11th victory, Danny Gardella chipped in with a home run in the fifth that scored two ahead of him.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Announcement was made at Winnipeg last night of the appointment of Lt. Melvin (Fritz) Hanson, former star of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, as sports officer of military district No. 10. Hanson enlisted for overseas combat duty but was severely injured in battle exercises on the Pacific coast two years ago.

Britain yesterday celebrated the greatest sporting Bank Holiday of the war, in direct contrast to the situation in Germany where all sports have been cancelled for an indefinte period. Tens of thousands of Britons streamed to two race meetings, a dozen first class cricket matches including an England-Australia Test Match at Lords, and scores of other attractions. There were boxing, swimming, cycling, greyhound races and track and field meets.

The American Hockey League added St. Louis to its playing membership at the annual meeting of the loop held in New York, yesterday. There were six clubs in the circuit last season. The 1944-45 campaign opens October 17.

Lyiamite, owned by E. J. Barker, may not start in the $42,000 Hambletonian at Goshen, N. Y., tomorrow, the favored horse not having been brought to the track. Meanwhile there were indications Ben White, veteran trainer, intended to start Barbara Babcock, filly owned by W. N. Reynolds.

The Sports Round-Up

By FRITZ HOWELL (Pinch-hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP).—The Giants drew 15,299 fans (13,847 paid) for their Sunday doubleheader with the Phillies. The all American boys' game yesterday attracted 17,803, and a lot of people who paid for tickets didn't go....With due allowances for the effects of promotion, that indicates a healthy interest in the old-fashioned game of baseball-for-fun....It was a good show and this dept. hereby votes against the suggestion that future games be staged as preliminaries to the major league all star fiestas. The kids showed they could stand on their own feet.

Short, Short Story:

In one respect, Messrs. Mack and Ott did a perfect job of managing; they got all 28 players into the game....But when one pinch-hitter took three strikes, a scribe from his home town moaned: "That's my story for today."

Scrap Collection:

Overlooked fact about the major league all-star game last month was that Rip Sewell was only the second pitcher in the 12-year history of the game to work a three-inning stint without giving a hit. The first was Ol' Diz Dean in 1936 ....What's this story that Actor Don Ameche, who is miffed because the National Football League tabled his franchise application, has been joining with Christy Walsh, John Keeshin of Chicago, Tony Morabito of San Francisco and Buffalo's Sam Cordofano in secret meetings concerning a new league?

Remember When—

Joe Burke stepped down voluntarily four years ago today from the pedestal he occupied for nearly three years as world amateur sculling champion. Burke said he wanted to give the "other fellows" a chance at the Diamond Sculls, American and Canadian single sculls and the Gold Challenge Cup titles he then held.

Braves Manager Picks Cubs For Second Spot

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Evansville Bob Coleman, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day picked Chicago Cubs to win the second-place scrap in the National League and labelled the Bruins' Bill Nicholson the most valuable player in the circuit.

As the National's Eastern teams headed west for their last long jaunt of the season and St. Louis Browns led the American's western clubs on a final eastern invasion, Coleman left little doubt about his concession of the flag to St. Louis Cardinals whom he called the "only real ball club" in the majors.

With the exception of New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates who are playing off a postponed game in Pittsburgh, all big league clubs today enjoy a second successive open date.

With the Cards enjoying a 16½-game lead and only 55 to go, National League managers couldn't be blamed for following Coleman's train of thought and talking about the second-place scrap.

The portly catcher from Indiana who is completing his first season as a big league manager doesn't hit Chicago for another week but thoughts of Nicholson trouble his sleep.

"When the Cubs were stumbling around the basement, Nicholson was hitting around .230," the Boston skipper said. "He didn't hit a homer until mid-May, like last year, but once he started those Cubs have been plenty rough.

"Marty Marion of the Cards is a close second to Nicholson, as most valuable but I think Nick does more for the Cubs than Marion can do for the St. Louis Cards. That Marion, though, is an octopus at shortstop. With help like that no wonder Billy Southworth's pitching looks good. Johnny Hopp is having a great year and Ray Sanders ...... and Kurowski ......and. Let's talk about something else."

Woman Golfer Sets New Mark

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—(AP)—Sally Sessions conquered the rugged Onwentsia course with a one-under-par 74 Monday, setting a record for the course and equalling the all-time low qualifying score in the 44-year history of the Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

The 21-year-old Muskegon, Mich., girl won medalist honors with a four-stroke margin over the Stanford University junior, 20-year-old Betty Jean Rucker of Spokane, Wash., who shot a 38-40—78.

Sally, who dropped out of the University of Michigan after her freshman year when she decided to seek a career on the links, coupled a two-under-par 36 on the first nine with a one-over-par 38 on the second, blowing a chance to set an all-time medalist record by taking two of her four bogeys on the last two holes.

Competition for the Marion Miley Memorial Trophy, awarded for the lowest combined qualifying score of both the Western Open—which was held in June—and the amateur, resulted in a tie between Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia, the defending champion, and Phyllis Otto of Omaha, Neb. A playoff for the trophy may be held later this week.

Miss Germain, after shooting a 37 on the first nine, soared to 44 on the second for an 81.

Miss Otto, runner-up in the 1942 Western Open, was trapped four times and suffered the ignominy of missing a one-foot putt, but managed to bag a fine 40-39—79.

900 Attend Dinner For Premier King

OTTAWA, Aug. 8.—Prime Minister King, radiating confidence that the European phase of the war will be ended before next June, last night told Liberal party representatives that he does not intend to sound the campaign call until the war is concluded.

At the same time, in speaking before the 25th Liberal leadership anniversary dinner given to him in the Chateau Laurier by party members, Mr. King recalled his pledge that he would not allow Parliament to outrun its prescribed time.

"I have said that I will not allow this Parliament to outrun the time fixed by the Constitution. Also that I will not, if I can avoid it, bring on an election while the war is on, and I intend to stand by both.

"We should put all our thoughts and efforts into bringing the war to a speedy and successful conclusion. When, that is over, if God gives me strength, I will put the best of it into another fight."

Full Vote Theory Fades

The statement was regarded as clear intimation that the election might not be held until next spring, contrary to majority opinion among Liberal Commons members that the campaign would be called this fall. With the time limits required of an election, only an almost immediate collapse of the Hitler forces would permit a 1944 campaign.

Mr. King pledged to his followers that he would lead them into one more general election, and to his statement, with a wry smile, he added: "I don't think I will go beyond that."

At the same time he set to rest rumors that he would not attempt to fight against the admitted rising C.C.F. tide in his Prince Albert riding. He admitted that he had been told that the going would be rough.

"Rough or smooth," he said, "the men and the women who stood by me in Prince Albert for 18 years will be given the opportunity of standing by me again."

More Than 900 Present

More than 900 members of both Houses and representatives of Liberal organizations feted the Prime Minister in the city where 25 years ago he assumed the mantle of Sir Wilfred Laurier.

To the gathering and to the guest of honor came messages in greeting from world and national figures: from Prime Minister Churchill, from President Roosevelt, from Premier Smuts of South Africa, from United States Secretary Hull and United States Ambassador Atherton. Their statements and statements of a number of others from a folio of greetings were read by Pensions Minister Mackenzie.

Mr. King plainly flushed as the message from Prime Minister Churchill was read, extolling him as a champion of freedom and a leader of his country's war effort. Intense personal pleasure was again evidenced when he was advised by the North Waterloo Liberals that they planned to preserve his birthplace in Kitchener.

Celebration Vetoed

The dinner, by design, reflected little in partisan spirit. Defence Minister Ralston at one time stressed that it was an occasion which normally would warrant celebration and a great political demonstration.

"Mr. King has vetoed that," he said. "Time and again he has made it clear that for all of us the war comes first in time and energy. He is anxious that this occasion cause no halt, and so tonight we content ourselves with only a momentary pause to pay him tribute and to gather fresh strength for our task."

There has been no doubt in recent days that some members of his party were critical of his decision. They believed it should have been made a political demonstration, and they believed that the proceedings should have been broadcast over a national network, the bar to broadcasting raised only in Quebec and Alberta, where voters go to the polls tomorrow. The plans had been made, and Mr. King stopped them.

In essence, the meeting was an opportunity for party spokesmen to offer tribute in public expressions, through which ran a hopeful note that Mr. King would again lead them into an election and flat submissions that he would be victorious. Significantly, the strongest statement in this connection came from Senate representatives, Speakers Thomas Vien and Senator Leader J. H. King.

Enthusiasm Mounts

The program was a long one—12 speeches, not counting the opening address of the chairman, Mines Minister Crerar, and long before the Prime Minister rose at 10:30 the flame of enthusiasm kindled at his initial entrance was sputtering under the weight and length of the eulogies.

Mr. King's speech, more of a talk within the family circle than a speech, was intimate and sometimes even shy. The tributes to himself he acknowledged as a record of the party, and he asserted that the honor belonged to his father and his mother, not to him. He referred repeatedly to the fidelity and support of the party and the wartime burdens assumed by his colleagues in the Cabinet. Finance Minister Isley, he cited, in example, carried a heavier burden than he did.

"Throughout the length and breadth of the land, wherever there is a constituency, the Liberal standard is being raised. That is an omen that augurs particularly well for events still to come," he said of general party affairs.

"I am glad to have this opportunity of saying to the men overseas, the men in our armed services and in the merchant navy, and the women in our homes and factories, that the Liberal Party has tried to be faithful to you in the fulfilling of the trust we had.

Support Men Overseas

"Nothing has been left undone that we as a Government felt could be done to make the war effort the most effective it could be. At no time has the Government failed to support the men who were sent overseas.

"The only justification of this meeting is that we may reconsecrate our lives to their service and the service of the world they will come back to. I say to them that we will be behind them to the last man in sustaining the effort to win this war and that we are determined that they shall come back to years that are going to be years of fruitful opportunity for them."

Behind the Prime Minister hung a life-size photograph of himself. In front stood the portrait bust of him, presentation of which was the main event of the evening apart from Mr. King's speech.

Lights Turned Off

Powerful lights were turned on the centre of the headtable to illuminate these for the benefit of a crowd of several hundred members, senators and Liberal Party stalwarts. Mr. King's voice faltered as he started to speak and he asked that the lights be turned off. They were and he explained:

"I couldn't see the audience and I found it a little diffifulty to say what I wished to say."

The Prime Minister expressed special appreciation for the gift of a statuetteof his small dog "Pat," dead for some years.

At only one point did he pause to take credit to himself and that was when he said, with apology for the personal reference, that he felt he had been successfdl in the choice of men for Cabinet positions.

FIRST RED APPLES

Red Astrakan apples, one of the choicest of the Niagara district orchards, arrived this morning in local stores. Tony Anthony quoted them at ten cents a pound.

NO POLICE COURT

There was no session of the police court this morning. The holiday setup is still in force, which means that no magistrate is assigned for duty at police court on Tuesday mornings.

OPERATING AGAIN

After a long layoff the post office clock is again operating. It may be that Selective Service officials got after the postal authorities for having eight idle hands around the place.

OUT OF LUCK

Campers and residents in the Havelock, Belmont Lake and Trent River districts spent a thirsty week-end as the stores were forced into a soft drink and ice cream famine. Water was the popular commodity.

SERVING OVERSEAS.

Pte. James L. Dunstan, formerly employed at Genelco, is serving overseas. His wife and two children are living at 6 Gladstone Avenue, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Dunstan, 27 St. James Street. The young soldier's father is a veteran of the First Great War.

FLOODED WITH VISITORS

Visitors into this district during the week-end were so numerous that applications were being made to the police station for assistance in finding sleeping accomodation. All available cabins in the neighborhood of the city were filled, and police had quite a task Monday night in finding room for five people who had no place to sleep

TWO FIRE ALARMS

Despite a long week-end, only two ordinary alarms brought out the fire trucks between Saturday noon and Tuesday morning. An overheated refrigerator motor at St. Mary's Convent, Hunter street required firemen's attention on Sunday evening; and Monday night at 9:53 p.m. a chimney fire occurred at 13 Maple street. The residence is the home of C. Cockerill.

HOUSES ENTERED

Four houses on St. Mary's street in the North Monaghan division of Wartime Housing were broken into over the week-end and in several places a number of 22 calibre shells were stolen. Other booty was a collection of old coins and several keepsakes including a bracelet, wedding ring and signet ring.

TWO CASUALTIES

Two soldiers from Port Hope serving with an Eastern Ontario regiment appear as casualties in the week-end lists of the Department of National Defence. Rfn. Allan Brown Spicer, whose mother is Mrs. Mary Spicer of Port Hope, has been injured; Pte. Eric Frederick William Burley, the son of Mrs. Bessie Burley, 4 Ellen street, Port Hope, was wounded. The latter's wife lives at 8 Beurnvale Road, Streatham, London, England.

SERVING OVERSEAS

A third son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bloom, Western avenue, is serving overseas in Canada's army. He is Pte. Bert Bloom, who enlisted in June 1940, and trained at Camp Borden and on the east coast, where he married Miss Bernadette Gillis who is now living in Toronto. Before enlisting, Pte. Bloom was employed at the Peterborough Lock Company. One brother, Pte. Bill Bloom, is in France, and the other, Pte. Tom Bloom, was reported killed in March of this year.

SALVAGE COLLECTED

Last week's salvage drive netted 15,810 lbs., it was announced today, with nearly half, or approximately 7,000 lbs. collected in the area including the central business district which was covered on the first day. Contributions from the East City area were said to have been so particularly thin, and the salvage truck completed its rounds there in little over an hour. The total in the four-day drive fell below the volume collected in July, when paper salvage amounted to 21,670 pounds.

TRANSFER FISH

Early next week, Harry Jackson, of the Deer Lake Fish Hatcheries, and in collaboration with the Department of Game and Fisheries and the Peterborough Fish and Game Club, will begin work on a fish transfer project, designed to make for better fishing in this district. Small fish will be netted out of some of the back lakes, and placed in other lakes where there will be much better opportunities to grow, and larger fish will be replaced in the smaller lakes. It is expected that this project will improve the fishing grounds in this district immensely.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Formerly working at the Canadian Vickers plant in Montreal, CSM. Harold Lewis, C.O.M.E.R.U., is now serving overseas. His wife (nee Iris Williams) and son Tommy live at 32 Barnardo street. He enlisted in April, 1943.

R. Hawthorne Killed In France

Enlisting in February, 1943, and going overseas five months later, Pte. Roy Thomas Hawthorne, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy S. Hawthorne, has been officially reported killed in action July 25, probably in the heavy fighting that has surrounded the Caen sector, information reaching his parents revealed Monday.

In a letter from his section commander, written a few days before the young soldier's death, Pte. Hawthorne was spoken of as "one of the best men in our company."

He went overseas in July, 1943, with the 48th Highlanders, but transferred later to the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, with which unit he was fighting when killed.

In a letter to his parents written soon after arriving in France he told of finding a small creek and of enjoying the first wash and shave in five days.

Born and brought up at Kendall, near Port Hope, he came to Peterborough in 1941, and while here worked for the Board of Works. He was an enthusiastic member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Keenly interested in athletics, he was a devoted fan of baseball and hockey, and when in Canada made regular trips to Toronto to see professional sports of all kinds. He received his education in part at Port Briton Public school, near Port Hope.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Ruth and Margaret, at home, and by three brothers, Bill, Jack and Kenneth, also at home.

SERVING OVERSEAS—Sgt. R. J. McCormack, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. McCormack, 298 King street, is now serving overseas. Enlisting over a year ago, he is a pilot on a bomber, and before joining the R.C.A.F., was a teacher in Lakefield.

One CGE Group Totals $593 For War Victims

So many people find employment at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., that it is only natural that they would be divided into various departments or these with whom they become particularly associated with in the performance of their duties.

In this manner both a sentimental and loyalty interest gives each a certain amount of pride in their own particular group achievements, which has of recent years branched out from the region of sports, to that of co-operative efforts in their own department which have a bering on the successul prosecution of the war.

In this, some particular groups have a splendid record of achievement on behalf of the war torn sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain, and latterly the robot bomb, through the local and district fund operating on their behalf, among whom the Maintenance Department under Bert May as foreman has taken a leading place, due to the fact that they were among the very first to institute a system of weekly collections from among the employees numbering around 50 people who work together in this one group.

This naturally involves leadership on the part of some one or more persons, and in this particular group this can be ascribed to Lewis Simpson and Miss Mabel Dulmage, the latter of whom has been most assiduous in this labor of love to carry on the work to help in this very worthy cause, and the men in this department do certainly give her really good support.

The amount of $43.10 credited in their name to-day would have been much larger but for some sneak thief who helped themselves to part of the money in the box used for this purpose, and ninety-nine per cent of the group feel that no punishment is too severe for such a one who would take money given for such a purpose as this, and the best advice that anyone could offer such an individual would be that he return it forthwith.

Group Now Totals $593.59

One of the finest per capita averages in work done on behalf of this fund lies to the credit of this group, their contribution at this time giving them a total credit of $593.59, which is way over the $10.00 for every individual who has been contributory to this one war effort, and that is something that we may be justifiably proud of.

From this it can readily be seen that they have done a full share in the total of $7,249.66 that their gift gives credit to the employees of the C. G. E. Co. Ltd. and the Genelco Ltd. industrial plants, for if the same per capita stood for the total of employees in the two plants, what a huge thing it would have amounted to.

Personal Gifts Thursday

This Thursday next it is hoped to have another day of personal gifts listed, a few of which are already on hand. Any such who would like to do their bit in this most appropriate manner to help along this very worthy cause, may have theirs be it large or small, included at that time, if same is received by the close of business on Wednesday evening at the Examiner office.

Previously acknowledged	$78,716.07
Maintenance Dept., C. G.-E. Co. Ltd. Bert May foreman, per Mabel Dulmage and Lewis Simpson	43.10
Total todate	$78,759.17

All nine of them then entered pleas of guilty.

David Quinlan who pleaded guilty to keeping a common gaming house was fined $50 and $2.50 costs.

Three of the found-ins, Martin McNee, Edward Alberrico and Neil Harrington were fined $15 and $2.50 costs and the other six, William Crowley, Peter Calabrese, M. Weingarten and Cyrenus Sulilvan had to pay a levy of $10 and $2.50 costs.

Warrander Couple Overseas Serve On Different Fronts

The local Salvation Army Corps recently exchanged cabled greetings with their comrades in Peterborough, England, the pleasing effects of which were mentioned in a letter received a few days ago by Sergeant-Major R. C. Braund and Mrs. Braund from Mrs. Ethel Warrander of London, England.

Major Warrander was for five years head of the Salvation Army in this city and is now serving as spiritual leader of a Tank Corps in Italy. Reference to Major Warrander was recently included in a despatch by Major Bert Wemp, D.F.C., Toronto Telegram Correspondent in Italy, as follows: "In an olive grove near the officers' mess tent, Captain Neil Warrander, Salvation Army officer, of Toronto held his fifth service of the morning amongst the tank men."

Mrs. Warrander is one of the supervisors of Salvation Army auxiliary service in London for Canadians overseas. In her letter, dated July 7, to Mr. and Mrs. Braund, Mrs. Warrander wrote, in part,—"We have been going to write you since receiving your lovely letter, but we have had such a lot of excitement here lately that we find it hard to settle down to these personal matters. Three of us went to Peterborough for the week-end with the Air Force supervisor, and we had a splendid time. Thank you so much for the cable which was sent from Major Wood. It was read at the Saturday night meeting, and the comrades were so delighted that they moved that a return cable should be sent to the Peterborough Corps in Canada. Our comrades in Peterborough over here were all exceedingly good to us.

Bombs Hamper Efforts

"As you no doubt know we have been fighting for some time those buzz-bombs. They are very noisy and destructive, and we are sleeping in cellars and shelters, and we do not get our usual amount of rest. I did not have my pyjamas on for three weeks. I slept in my sweater and slacks ready to run if necessary. We have made a shelter now down in the basement of the canteen across the way, and so our Canadian staff, men and women, sleep down there. Formalities are all brushed aside, and our mattresses are touching side by side. We have often to hold our breaths wondering whether "that one" has our name on it.

"However, I am sure we are in God's hands, and His protecting arm will be around us. We have had a narrow escape. All our windows, frames and all, have been blasted out, but there has been only one slight casualty, which was very fortunate when you consider that we have hundreds of windows. They are now all boarded up, and we have to do with electric light. We went to Peterborough for an extra day and night, and stayed in bed to get a little rest we greatly needed... I was wishing you could have been with us for the Army meeting in St. Paul's. You would have enjoyed it.

"Neil has changed his regiment and is now with a front line tank unit, and is kept very busy, as you may guess."

Woman Injured In Car Mishap

One women was slightly injured and a number of motor vehicles damaged in a series of traffic accidents on city streets on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Kidd, a passenger in a car involved in a crash on Water Street suffered injury to her right arm. Edward Allen, 245 Lake Street was driving north on Water street, the two vehicles met in collision. Both were damaged.

Considerable damage was done to two cars involved in an accident at Charlotte and George Streets. George H. Conley of Niagara Falls N.Y., driving north on George Street had stopped at Charlotte Street for the traffic lights to change when another north-bound car driven by Cameron Clark, R. R. 2, Peterborough, collided with the rear of the Niagara Falls vehicle.

Mrs. C. S. Thompson, 50 McDonnel Street reported to the police that as she was driving north on George Street and was passing a Mohan and Hunter Dairy truck, double-parked when the truck pulled out and collided with the rear of her car, damaging a fender.

Find the Cause of Low Back Pain

There are a great many people suffering from pains in the lower part of the back and in the hip, sometimes running down the leg to the ankle.

Pain in this region is not always due to trouble in the joint, although there are many cases that do show a displacement, through injury or strain which is easily corrected by Chiropractic adjustment.

Reports from the leading Health Clinics show that three out of every four of such cases are due to infections from teeth, tonsils, gall bladder, large intestine, sinus or some other focal point.

Radioclast Examination at this office can detect and locate these infections, and can eliminate these toxic poisons by Radionic Treatment. Make your appointment now and know the cause of your ailment.

The woman sustained a broken neck in the crash and although taken to Nicholls Hospital in Comstock's ambulance was pronounced dead by doctors who saw her on her arrival at the hospital.

Constable Beaty investigated the details of the accident and placed Viner under arrest. He was held at the police station over Sunday and arraigned Monday morning. T. J. Carley, K.C., appeared on his behalf.

SERVING IN FRANCE—L.-Cpl. Thomas Maudsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Maudsley, 33 Lafayette street, is now serving overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, according to a letter received by his parents recently, which also stated he was in the thick of the fighting in France. Sacred Heart Scouts At Camp

The fourth troop of Boy Scouts, junior members of the Church of the Sacred Heart, returned to the city Saturday afternoon after a week's outing at the Scout Camp on the Otonabee River north of Nassau, their first holiday experience together. Only nine of the boys of the troop were able to make the trip. Others were working or on vacation out of the city. Ed Johnston was Scoutmaster and Frank Lucano went along to help him.

The nine boys passed their basic tenderfoot tests and three tests in the second class, and L. M. Crowley passed all the second class tests. Daily programs included swimming, observation hikes, games, demonstration work and rest periods. Part of the training included basic cooking.

The boys asked for a night hike, and finally it was arranged to attend the early mass Friday morning. The boys were up at 3 a.m. and were on the road in half an hour, arriving at the Church of the Sacred Heart for the 5.30 a.m. mass and communion. They spent the rest of the morning at home and returned to camp after dinner. Among the visitors were Commissioner Ernie Wolff; Assistant Commissioner A. Hope and Rev. Dr. Grant.

With the aid of the Women's Auxiliary of the Troop the cost of the week's outing was only one dollar for each boy. They reported that they used their three blankets for each boy every night, and down in the city it was the hottest week of the year. Woodcraft, fire lighting, scouts' pace were other diversions on the varied program which kept the boys active and interested all week.

Attend Camp

Those attending were: Jack Kennaley, Gerald Peters, Kevin Allen, Leo Crowley, John Bourie, Michael Crowley, Alphonse Levasseur, Lionel Johnston, Kenneth Cournyea, and Eddie Johnston, Jr., four, who went along too. The boys were especially grateful to Bart Allen for his visit bringing a fine treat for the boys.

The success of the Troop's first summer camp was reflected in the hopes of the boys looking forward to the summer of 1945 for another week or two and with more boys comprising the Troop.

Weekend Traffic Heaviest In City's Record

Canadian Pacific passenger traffic throughout the week-end exceeded all the records of volume for a similar period as far as Bruce Scott, station agent, could remember. The Saturday and Monday trains, east bound at noon and west bound at 5 p.m. were run in two sections, and the entire scheduled service bulged with business. The night train Sunday was reported nearly an hour and a half behind time. Some of those who went to the station to meet friends said it was around three o'clock when the express arrived, and the cool night filled the waiting rooms.

The westbound double sections Monday included twenty-two passenger coaches.

"Extremely heavy," is the way a Canadian National Railways official described the week-end traffic over that network. Saturday, most of the trains operating through Peterborough were behind schedule, but all east-bound trains were in one section only. The 5:30 train out of Toronto, for instance, came in one section...a long section, but one. West-bound passengers went out of Peterborough in one piece, but what would happen when the trains arrived at a crowded Lindsay station, only Lindsay knew. The C.N.R. spokesman stated he didn't know whether additional sections had been tacked on at Lindsay, but if past experience is an indicator, it could have happened.

"I stayed away from trains as much as possible Monday," said E. J. Ryan, of the C.N.R., "and so far, none of us have had time to make any comparisons about the traffic this year. We do know one thing though, it was extremely heavy, not only in Peterborough,, but in Lindsay as well."

In contrast to the crowded railway situation, De Nure Coach Lines reported that their business was not exceptionally heavy and had not been on the whole as difficult to handle as was originally expected. Buses kept to schedules without trouble and it was thought that the moderate traffic was due to the larger exodus of C.G.E. employees during the earlier part of last week.

13 Hun Divisions Are Wiped Out

By ROGER D. GREENE,

ON THE BRITISH FRONT IN NORMANDY, August 8 —(AP) — Thirteen German divisions have been "thoroughly eliminated" in France, a senior British staff officer said last night, and "the next two or three weeks may be the most critical of any time of the war for Germany."

This officer, in a frank talk painting a picture of shattered hopes for Germany, said about 22 Nazi divisions now are facing the British and American armies in France.

"It does look as if Germany is going to be faced with tremendous disasters in many places, and there are terrible times ahead of them," he said.

The officer, one of Gen. Montgomery's senior staff oficers, said: "I cannot seen the Germans holding a Siegried line on the west with the Russians popnding against them on the east. I don't think it possible for Germany to hold out under these circumstances."

He said that if Hitler pulled his armies back inside "Fortress Germany," abandoning the idea of a "Fortress Europe," Allied bombers with fighter protection virtually could flatten Germany.

Commenting on the present phase of the campaign, the general said: "It is very difficult to see how the Germans can stay here and fight with any hope of success. The extremely exhilarating display by the Americans has badly shaken and demoralized the German 7th Army."

Canadians Have Headquarters On French Soil

By ROSS MUNRO

AT 1st CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, NORMANDY, Aug. 8 —(CP).—Canada, for the first time in her history, has a separate army formation in the battlefield—the 1st Canadian Army—and today it is holding the eastern end of this Normandy line against some of the toughest troops of the Wehrmacht.

(In Ottawa members of the House of Commons cheered when Prime Minister King announced that the 1st Canadian Army "has now taken its place in the order of battle, and is participating in the operations in Normandy.")

Presence of the Canadian Army in the line of battle was disclosed today, but it actually has been operating for 10 days in France as a fully organized army, and many of its men have been in the line since D-Day.

It includes powerful units of British troops, formerly of the 2nd Army, fighting under the command of Lt.-Gen. Crerar, just as Canadian soldiers have been under British command previously in this war and in the first Great War. Army headquarters, however, is all Canadian.

Its formation here was one of the best-kept secrets of the war. Never before in the history of warfare has a military organization of such size and scope been so successfully hidden in a deliberate fog.

Close Calls for G.O.C.

Gen. Crerar has been in France since June 18, flying almost daily over the Canadian lines. He has had two close calls.

The first came when a plane next to the tiny observation craft from which he was watching the British-Canadian shelling of enemy lines was shot down by German anti-aircraft fire. Later his plane, piloted by an artillery officer specially trained for this observation job, caught on an overhead wire when taking off and had to make a crash landing. The general was unhurt.

The battle lineup in France now is: the American 1st Army on the right, the British 2nd Army in the centre and the Canadians on the left, all under the direction of Gen. Montgomery, himself under the Supreme Commander, Gen. Eisenhower.

Gen. Crear thus commands a full-scale army, which in military parlance may mean anything from two to five corps, with two or more divisions in each corps. He ranks with Lt.-Gen. Dempsey of the 2nd Army, and Lt.-Gen. Bradley, who commands the American forces.

The 1st Canadian Army has confronted the best the Germans had, such units as the Adolph Hitler and the Hitler Youth armored divisions, and has held as hany as eight German divisions at a time.

The army headquarters staff is made up of young officers, graduates of staff colleges in England and Canada, and a number of them have had combat experience in other theatres. Some veterans of Dieppe hold key posts at headquarters, and one is Gen. Crerar's chief-of-staff.

Moved In in June.

The tactical and planning staffs moved here with Gen. Crerar in June and since then the headquarters has been built up to full strength. From a canvas encampment, camouflaged with nets in a wooded area of Normandy, Canadian battles are directed and orders go out for the employment of the formidable number of troops under Gen. Crerar's command.

Canadian Army Headquarters was first established in England in the spring of 1942, under Lt.-Gen McNaughton, and had one Canadian corps under its command. Later a second Canadian corps was established. One of the corps now is fighting in Italy as part of the British 8th Army.

Gen. Crerar, who commanded the corps in Italy early this year, was appointed army commander when Gen. McNaughton retired, and took over as the final Normandy invasion planning and training was under way.

Canadian Army Headquarters was earmarked for this invasion from the time it was formed. Its staff worked on plans and preparations for the Canadian part in this campaign and the plans reached full stature when the nucleus of the headquarters staff arrived here last month.

Since then the officers have established a complete headquarters become experts on the territory over which the Canadians have fought and still have to fight, and formed close liason with the formations in the field and their commanders. Gen. Crerar has driven all over the front in his jeep and has conferred with many Allied high commanders.

There is a precedent for the composite type of organization Gen. Crerar commands. After Dunkerque the 7th Corps was created, under the command of Gen. McNaughton, as Britain's principal anti-invasion force, and included the Canadian 1st division and a British armored division.

Masonic Order Sets Up Vet. Fund

TORONTO, Aug. 8—Supplementing any Government plan for the civil re-establishment of Canadian servicemen, the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada Knights Templar (Masonic Order) has assembled a "large fund for the assistance of not only veterans but their families," it was announced yesterday by Supreme Grand Master Ross L. Dobbin Peterborough, when he addressed more than 150 preceptory delegates from all parts of Canada in 61st annual assembly at the Royal York Hotel.

In white satin mantles, shoulder-marked by the triple-barred red crosses of the order, the 150 delegates filed into a closed meeting, where they heard that a plan is being worked out and will be completed in detail when the next assembly meets. This will include university training for returned men more expansive than the Federal Government plans, and will not necessarily be confined to members of the order.

Earning Power Grows

With greater earning power of members and the reduction in outlay for orphans' needs, a major activity of the order in the past, members intend to devote a great part of their time to the care of returned men and their families said Supreme Grand Master Dobbin.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation of the Supreme Grand Master's Mantle to Most Eminent Knight Charles Noah Orr, St. Paul, Minn., Supreme Grand Master of the Grand Encampment, Knights Templars of the United States of America, by Most Eminent Supreme Grand Master Sovereign Great Priory of Canada.

In every nation conquered by the dictators, the first effort has been to put Masonry under the axe, said U.S. Supreme Grand Master Orr, guest-speaker at last night's banquet in the Royal York Hotel, heard by some 400 persons. This included the confiscation of Masons' property and the persecution of the Order's members, he said.

He said: "No world order or lasting peace can come that does not give primacy to Gods ordinances." He referred to national rather than individual repentance, believed that the war is meaningless if it is not a lesson to man.

Masonry's Doors Open.

"Masonry includes the religious beliefs of all races of men," he said. "It does not advocate one religious doctrine in preference to another. Masonry opens its doors to all sincere men who believe that it is imposible to explain all the mysteries of the universe without some type of God conception."

Masonry refrains from insisting that its members adhere to any particular creed. Even the man who is not affiliated with any particular sect or religious system may find a home within Masonry, provided his ideals are lofty and he is not an atheist. Templar Masonry requires a belief in the Christian religion.

Revival of Truth Needed.

The speaker believed that the great mission of Templar Masonry was to make plain the path where selfishness, hatred and greed must "die in surrender to God." He said: "What the world suffers to-day is lack of faith, and we must getback to the spiritual life. The supreme need of the world to-day is a revival of that religious faith which is so conspicuous a part of the teachings of the Order."

The Grand Council will be appointed to-day. Senior officers elected yesterday were: Supreme Grand Mastr, Ross L. Dobbin, Peterborough; Deputy Grand Master, J. S. Hoyt, Saint John, N.B.; Grand Chancelor, W. W. Williamson, Montreal; Grand Treasurer, J. M. McCulloch, Peterborough; and Grand Registrar, A. H. Jones, Toronto.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY
If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.
For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.
If you try Hem-roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.—(Advt.)

Must Get Back British Malaya

WHITBY, Ont., —(Special) — August 8 —"As Mr. Churchill has made absolutely clear, not one inch of the British Empire will be given up after the war and this is particularly true with regard to British Malaya, where, solely because of the British administration and enterprise, the standard of living was the highest in Asia with the social and health services the most advanced," stated E. H. Banks, Press Representative, Canadian Pacific Railway, Toronto, in an address here, today, before the Rotary Club.

Mr. Banks, who spent 17 years in the Mid-East stated that at the time of the capture of British Malaya by the Japanese, malaria, the scourge of the countrry only thirty years ago, had been practically eliminated in the cities, and malaria-control measures established throughout the country— an undertaking as big as the splendid yellow fever elimination job done by America in the Panama Canal Zone.

Speaking on the Romance of Rubber, Mr. Banks showed how rubber was brought to British Malaya in the late 1870's from Brazil via Kew Gardens, where the seeds were germinated, due to the forethought of the British govrnment which even at that time realized the importance of rubber and had commissioned Sir Henry Wickman to bring home a consignment of seeds from Brazil. Sir Henry, he said, lived to see that country alone produce almost half a million tons of rubber in one year.

"Over a billion dollars' worth of British investment, and over a billion dollars' worth of annual trade, vital to the standard of living of both Britain and the east, were cut off by the Japanese when our possessions in the East fell." concluded Mr. Banks.

Port Hope Couple Observe Their Diamond Annivesary

PORT HOPE, Aug. 8 — Lifelong residents of Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. George celebrated their diamond anniversary (60 years) on Sunday at their home, 250 Ridout street. Mr. George, a prominent citizen and business man, took over the undertaking and furniture business of his father, the late J. T. George, who died in 1904, and later his son, J. T. George, entered into partnership with him to form the company A. W. George and Son, Funeral Directors.

A life member of the Hope Lodge A.F. and A.M., No. 114, Victoria Chapter, R. A. M., No. 37 Palestine Preceptory, No. 18, and the Rameses Temple, Mr. George is also a Past Grand Master in the I.O.O.F. and a Forester. He has been president of the Port Hope Cemetery Board for many years, and designed the beautiful stone entrance gates and planned the layout of the cemetery. Several beautiful parks in Port Hope were also planned and made possible through his efforts.

Mrs. George, the former Margaret Clegg, was born in Millbrook, but has lived most of her life in Port Hope, where she has taken an active part in the work of the United Church, serving also on the board of the Children's Shelter and on the executive of the hospital.

The Presbyterian minister in Port Hope officiated at the ceremony sixty years ago, when Mr. and Mrs. George were married, with the late Miss Jennie Powe as bridesmaind and the late Mr. Andrew Throop as best man.

SHORT-SKIRTED FORMALITY—Although the formal, full length evening frock is likely to shine when the new season gets under way, there's no chance of that popular fashion, the short-skirted after-dark dress going into retirement. Not when there are New York designs of the type shown here. This exceedingly handsome dress is of supershining black satin and it is designed for all-out formality beneath its tailored bolero. The bosom cuff, shoulder bands and bow are of pale blue slipper satin.—By Alice Alden.

H. Wheeler, 29 Brown street, Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Tindall officiated and the church was decorated with standards of gladioli for the ceremony. Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Lorne Harris of Baillieboro, the bride was gowned in floor-length white figured organza with fitted bodice, buttoned at the neck to waistline, long sleeves coming to a point over either wrist, and a full skirt. Her fingter-tip veil of white net was caught to her head with orange blossom, and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Victor Smith of Peterborough, was matron of honor in floor-length pink facoune, with mauve accessories, a mauve flower cap and matching shoulder-length veil, and a bouquet of Briarcliff roses. Mr. Victor Smith was best man, and ushers were Mr. Willam Adams of London, cousin of groom, and Mr. Edward Fisher of Agincourt, cousin of the bride.

Also receiving was the groom's mother, in orchid silk jersey, with matching hat and bag, and an orchid corsage with roses. About fifty guests were in attendance.

For a wedding trip to Timmins and Cobalt, the bride chose a powder blue ensemble, with navy accessories, and an orchid and roses corsage. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will live at 228 Donland's avenue, Toronto.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Fruit desserts are a solution to the sugar problem, as well as a means of providing the family with vitamins and minerals. One serving of fruit each day, besides the breakfast orange or tomato juice, is the recommended minimum. Serve the fruit in interesting ways, such as hot fruit puddings or cold compotes, depending on the tastes of your family. Give children fruits in season for after school snacks. If you pack lunches include fresh fruit or fresh fruit puddings. Salt, sprinkled on fresh fruit, enhances the flavor and also intensifies its sweetness, thus using less sugar.

Fresh Fruit Compote

Two cups honey, 3 cups water, 6 pears, 3 apples, 3 peaches, 6 plums. Boil honey and water 5 minutes. Pare pears and leave whole. Pare apples, core, and cut in halves. Peel peaches and plums. Cook each fruit in the syrup until tender, removing each cooked fruit before adding another. Use one portion of each kind of fruit with some of the syrup for each serving.

Baked Pineapple Apples.

Six baking apples, 1½ cups unsweetened pineapple juice, 3 cloves, 2 inch sticks cinnamon, ¼ cup honey. Core apples and remove one inch band of peel around centre of apple. Place in baking dish and add pineapple juice, cloves, and cinnamon. Place 2 teaspoons of honey in centre of each apple. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees Fahr.) 45 minutes or until tender, basting ocasionally with syrup in pan.

Stuffed Oranges.

Six large oranges, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons raisins, ½ cup honey, 1 egg white stiffly beaten, 2 tablespoons cocoanut. Cut a thin slice from stem end of the oranges. Cut triangles evenly from top. Remove centres, dice pulp, and combine with nuts, raisins and 3 tablespoons honey. Fill orange shells and bake in casserole, with * inch of water in slow oven (300 degrees Fahr.) 45 minutes. Fold beaten egg white and remaining honey together. Remove oranges from oven, top with egg mixture, sprinkle with cocoanut and return to the oven for 15 minutes. If the cocoanut cannot be had, use grated rind of orange.

Apples Baked With Bread.

Remove the cores from good-sized apples, fill with jam and butter. Place round slices of stale bread in a baking dish and put an apple on each. Pour scalded milk and water over the bread. Bake until the apples are soft. Serve in the baking dish.

"I felt dragged-out all the time

... because I forgot one simple fact!

"THE children were forever getting on my nerves. Housework seemed never to end! And the thought of going out for fun was just too much for me to cope with.

"It was Kellogg's pleasant 30-day test showed me how a simple change of diet could help me keep fit. Now my house runs like a charm—little upsets never bother me—and the youngsters and I have wonderful romps together. All because I feel like a million—right on top of the world from morning to night."

Make this 30-DAY TEST

1. If you're really ill—see your doctor! But if you're all the time feeling dopey and "blue", without real zest for life, chances are you're suffering from incomplete elimination. It's an ever-present danger when you're over 35. Yet there's no need to risk your job, or spoil your fun! Just take this simple precaution:

2. Start now to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning! To keep fit you don't need horrid doses, or harsh cathartics that actually may be harmful. Instead, discover the natural way . . . get plenty of "bulk" in your diet by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help keep food wastes moving promptly . . . supply valuable minerals and proteins too.

3. Just thirty days, and you'll know you have the answer! Thirty days away from the medicine cupboard, eating a big bowlful of these crisp, delicious flakes every morning, and you should have proved the pleasant way to keep fit. Proved, too, how grand it is to feel alert, to have extra energy to do all the extra things you've always wanted to do!

ONE CHARM TRANSCENDS ALL
Girls Should Beautify Disposition Since It Pays Heavy Dividends.

It is a strange thing that girls who are always seeking some lure that will attract men have never found out that there is one charm that transcends all other magic that is within their reach and that it can be acquired by any one of them who is willing to put a little head work and heart work on it. Moreover, it is a charm that time cannot dim nor custom stale and that can make even a homely girl look better to a man than a living picture. And this wonder-working magic is just being pleasant.

Of course, the sophisticated modern maiden, who thinks she knows all the answers, will jeer at the suggestion that such a homely, old-fashioned virtue as being pleasant can attract men, but that is where she is wrong. Men like to look at a pretty woman. They enjoy being entertained and amused by a brilliant one. But the thing that really gets them about a woman is for her to make them feel comfortable. They like being with a woman who doesn't keep them on their tiptoes trying to placate her, who is not always picking a quarrel or getting miffed about something but who is just easy to get along with.

Think this over, girls, and you will find the answer to a lot of mysteries you have never been able to solve. As, for instance, why does plain little Sally have so many dates, and why are her dances always cut into ribbons at parties? It is because Sally is so pleasant that the boys like her and enjoy going with her. When a chap takes her out, he knows he is going to have a good time and come home pleased with himself and the world, instead of being sore at having wasted his money on a girl who made him feel like a piker.

Helps Obtain Jobs.

You often wonder how the women who hold down top flight jobs get them. It is being pleasant more than any other talent that does it. Over-worked, over-strained business men have neither the time nor the inclination to deal with women who have their precious feelings spread all over the place, who burst into tears when their work is criticized and have tantrums if they think someone has infringed on their prerogative. So when an executive finds a girl who doesn't have to be handled with gloves, who is always cheerful and sane and reasonable and who knows how to get along without friction with other people, he grapples her to him with hooks of steel.

And you wonder at the spectacle you often see of husbands who are still desperately in love, after fifty years of marriage, with their ordinary appearing wives. The explanation is that the wives used the enchantment that never fails. They were pleasant to live with. That is the one infallible secret for holding a husband.

So girls, take this tip: Spend as much time on beautifying your disposition as you do on beautifying your face. It will pay better dividends.

Wilbert-Foottit Vows Solemnized

MILLBROOK, Aug. 8 (ENS) — Baskets of gladioli, phlox, golden asters, and asparagras fern, decorating the chancel of St. Andrew's United Church, made a lovely background for a midsummer wedding Saturday afternoon, when Lillian Muriel, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Foottit of Millbrook, became the bride of Harold Wilbert, son of Mr. Wilbert Lunn, and the late Mrs. Lunn, of Carmel, Rev. A. L. Sisco performing the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a floor-length dress of white duchess satin, with silk net overdress, the fitted bodice having tiny self-covered buttons to the waistline, which was marked with a wide shirred girdle o fthe satin. Above this the net was embroidered, with Peter Pan collar, and short, puffed sleeves. The full-gathered skirt had the net opening in front over the satin, and her finger-tip veil of silk illusion was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red Johanna Hill roses and forget-me-nots, with wood fern, and wore the groom's gift, a gold locket and chain.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Foottit, and Mrs. Cecil Paulson, whose floor-length dresses were fashioned alike of taffeta, the former in pink, and the latter in blue, and full gathered skirts. They were trimmed with pink and blue tiny rosebuds, and floral haloes of a matching shade with the dresses were worn. Each carried an old-fashioned nosegay of sweetpeas and bouvardia, with lace frill, and ribbon cascade.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Charles Lunn, and the ushers were Kenneth Foottit, brother of the bride, and a cousin, Lawrence Winslow. Miss E. L. Hetherington played the wedding music.

Following the church ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Theobald's residence, Anne street, the bride's mother receiving in a floral-patterned white silk jersey dress, with white hat and matching accessories, and corsage of pink Talisman roses and gladioli tips. Mrs. Wilbert Lunn, the groom's step-mother, wore a two-piece dress of misty green crepe, with gold trimming, matching hat and accessories, and corsage of yellow roses and gladioli tips.

The bride's table was laid on the lawn, lace-covered, and centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, lanked by tall pink candles in silver holders, and crystal containers of sweet peas. Fluted streamers of pink and white were around the sides. Girl friends of the bride who served the more than seventy guests were: Betty Moncrief, Marian Harkness, Mary Ridge, Ruth Lunn, Pte. Mary Dawson, Jean Fisher, Betty Thornton, Bernice Hubbard, who caught the bride's bouquet and Mrs. Robert Theobald.

Mr. and Mrs. Lunn left by motor for their wedding trip, to Toronto, Niagara, and other points west, the bride travelling in a flowered silk jersey dress, on white ground, white hat and veil, and accessories; she carried her top coat of beige with brown velvet collar. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm, near Fraserville.

The bride's gift to her husband was a gold tie and collar set; the gifts to the bridesmaids were a pearl strand to Miss Jean Foottit, and to Mrs. Paulson a hearthstone ornament; to the groomsman and ushers silk socks. Among the many beautiful gifts received by the young couple, which were shown on the wedding day by Miss Bernice Smith, and Mrs. E. C. Richards, was a cabinet of silver flatware in pieces of eight, Lida design, presented by the Post Office staff, of which the bride had been a member for the past four or five years. Her parents' gift was an oak dining-room suite. Previous to the marriage in Saturday, a cable, conveying congratulations and good wishes, was received from the bride's grandparents in England.

J. J. Voyer Wed In St. Catharines

HAVELOCK, Aug. 8—(ENS).—St. Mary's Church at St. Catharines, decorated with Gladioli, was the scene of a pretty mid-summer wedding of local interest on Saturday morning, when Pauline Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Newman, of St. Catharines, became the bride of John Jerome Voyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Voyer, of Havelock. Rev. Father Ryan officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of slipper satin, with embroidered bodice. Her floor-length veil was of silk net, fashioned in "Mary Queen of Scots" style. She carried pink roses and white gladioli, and wore a silver heart-shaped locket, the gift of the groom.

Miss Edna Newinan attended her sister as maid of honor and Miss Margaret Voyer of Havelock, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, wearing floor-length gowns of pink and blue sheer, respectively, with "Mary Queen of Scots" halos. They carried gladioli and baby's breath. The groomsman was Paul Voyer of Peterborough, brother of the groom. The wedding music was played by J. Morey, and during the signing of the register Fred Stout sang "Ave Maria." Joseph Newman, brother of the bride, was usher.

Following a wedding breakfast at Welland House, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother receiving in a gown of blue crepe with navy accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, attired in a gown of blue lace with grey accessories. Both costumes were completed with corsages of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Northern Ontario the bride wore a green figured dress with brown accessories. On their return they will reside in St. Catharines.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, August 9.

According to the lunar transits this day may find its chief attention centered on social, domestic, artistic or romantic affairs rather than the more sordid, commonplace and materialistic. However, the latter may flourish happily if business concerns affairs of the home, domestic or social, are handled with kindness and diplomacy. Beauty, music, drama, parties, celebrations and affectional matters are stimulated and encouraged but be amiable and gracious under any sort of provocation or emotional stress.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of exceptionally happy and gay social or domestic life, with engagements, weddings, christenings and all forms of personal and cultural vocations and avocations under benign auspices. Business affairs involving these should flourish, with enhanced popularity and good fortune. But in all contacts be kindly in speech and considerate of the feelings of others.

A child born on this day should be blessed with many social and personal graces and talents and should have a happy, romantic and successful life.

Former Peterboro Boy Casualty Overseas

A former Peterborough boy, Lieut. John Robert Kennure, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennure, lived at 798 George street, while Mr. Kennure was employed with the Imperial Life Insurance Company here, was killed in France on July 20 on the eve of his 24th birthday. His parents are now living at 14 Alberta avenue, Toronto.

Lieut. Kennure was born in Toronto and moved to Peterborough with his family at an early age, receiving his public school training at Queen Alexandra and King George Schools. He attended George Street Sunday School.

Returning to Toronto in 1931 he entered Oakwood Collegiate and later graduated in honor arts at Victoria College.

The young soldier received his commission in C.O.T.C. and on completing training left for overseas in January 1943 where he was posted to the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.

His parents and only sister Doris mourn his loss.

VERSATILE FELLOW

If west-bound hitch-hikers along the highway that turns off for Toronto above Port Hope noticed anything besides the heat Saturday, it must have been that the cars were all going the other way. In a steady stream, hundreds of cars packed with holiday-goers poured along the road into the lakelands of this district, and all but a few were piled high with boats, tents, and other equipment fastened to the running-boards. Many people, it appeared, were on the verge of vacations; none, it was certain, were returning from their vacations. One weary Peterborough hiker, after glumly watching the dust from the only west-bound car to pass him within a solid 45-minute span, crossed the highway, and with that "heck with going to Toronto" look on his face, got into a car heading for Peterborough, hitch-hiking being over for him, at least until somebody discovered there is another direction than east!—D. Belmont People Would Open Sanctuary

The annual meeting of the Belmont Lake Cottagers' Association was held recently on the grounds of the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William Prest. The meeting took the form of a combined business and social event and about 100 cottagers were in attendance.

It was the unanimous decision of the members that a letter of appreciation be forwarded to the Dept. of Games and Fisheries of Ontario for their efforts in restocking the lake with small fish. At the same time it was decided to ask the department for more strict supervision of the lake during the spawning season to prevent spearing of pickerel.

A further recommendation will be forwarded to the Dept. of Game and Fisheries, in which the Department will be asked to consider re-opening the large area in which fishing has been restricted for many years. This area has been known as Taylor's and Munn's Bay. In the event that it was felt that a restricted area was still necessary it was decided that Breckenridge's Bay be closed for fishing.

Road Washed Out

A deputation composed of John Rodgers, D. Kennery and H. Vantasle was appointed to interview the township council with a view to repairing certain portions of the road into the lake which are looked upon as danger spots.

Following the business the regular election of officers took place. This resulted in the entire 1943 slate of officers being returned to office for another year. The officers are as follows: President, William Prest; vice president, George Hubbel; secretary treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Prest; road commissioner, D. Kennedy; publicity, Miss Vera Squire.

All present then gathered around a large bonfire by the lake shore and enjoyed a period of community singing led by Clarence Corbett, after which refreshments were served by the ladies. Children and grown-ups alike enjoyed the ice cream so kindly donated by Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers while hot dogs, cake and lemonade comprised the remainder of the refreshments.

Through the kindness of Mr. James Cummings the 1945 meeting of the association will be held on the beautiful grounds of his summer home at the lake.

Snake Aids Lesson

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 8—(AP).—The text from Proverbs said strong drink "biteth like a serpent" but Sunday School Teacher W. C. Colwell hadn't counted on such a graphic illustration. As he reached that point in the lesson to his Jones Memorial Methodist class of youngsters, [illegible] snake slithered through the ground level window into the basement classroom. It was trampled to death in the general exodus.

Theft Involves Two Young Boys

Two wards of the Bowmanville Boys' School were arrested here early this morning in an automobile allegedly stolen at Stirling in the early evening of August 7. The two, one 15 and the other 12, are being held for the provincial police at Belleville.

The car was taken at Stirling, Monday evening, and Provincial Constable Archie Grayling, of Havelock, notified the local police. Shortly after 10 o'clock Wesley Rose reported to the police station that he had seen two young lads abandon an automobile on Morrow street. It turned out to be the missing Stirling vehicle.

A search was made for the boys without result. At the same time the stolen car was checked periodically, and finally at 3 o'clock this morning Constable Leo Murphy, accompanied by C.N.R. Officer Ray Morden, of Lindsay, found the two lads lying down in the car on Morrow street.

One of the boys arrested had been picked up here some time ago on a charge of stealing a bicycle.

The two had been working on farms near Foxboro, and after taking the car Monday night they had driven toward Foxboro for some time and then turned back through Madoc on to Highway 7 and then to Peterborough.

The boys said they had quite a time driving the car for it had no brakes.

Wm. Davern Battles Muskie For Half Hour

"I was tired, and so was the fish," says William Davern, 301 Manitland avenue, when discussing the 16-pound muskie he hooked and landed after pickerel, Mr. Davern caught evening on Crowe Lake. Originally after a half-hour struggle Sunday the big lunge after dark,.....after 9.30 to be exact,.....and there wasn't a more surprised or excited person in Peterborough, than he was, he said.

"Without any nets or landing gaff, it was quite a struggle to bring him in," said Mr. Davern, "but after a [illegible] become disgusted and gave in, so we tilted the boat over, and pulled him in that way." Weighting the fish immediately on landing, the scales tipped to 16¼ pounds; a nice-sized fish when you start out after pickerel!

By JEAN STENTON

One of the Canadian Army papers in Italy recently published an item written by Bdr. William G. Rome, Sherbrooke street, describing the beautiful spot of Piedmonte.

"One of the loveliest spots in Italy is the ravine from which the Torano River flows. It is really a tributary of the Volturno. The little river leaped and cascaded, white water alternating with little stretches of smooth fl-wing current. The cliffs grew higher and steeper, rugged precipices and dark looking caves until only a narrow ribbon of blue sky showed overhead. Suddenly at a point where the walls were highest and the ravine narrowest, the river disappeared. I found it welling out of the foot of the great limestone cliff, from three low caves.

"Piedemonte, 'Foot of the Mountain', is appropriately named. Above it is a limestone chain, the Monte Matese, 6,786 feet high. From the top of one of these peaks the view extends to the Adriatic and Tyrrhenian Seas. Up in the mountains is the Lago del Matese, a lake at the level of 3,304 feet, 2½ miles long and ten feet deep, where a conduit pipe leads to Piedimonte."

Secret Weapon

A young veteran of this war recently wrote the following letter to a paper explaining in his opinion the reason why Canadian troops were proving so superior to the enemy in their staying powers under the most bloody assaults. If the men in the front lines are imbued with such a strong faith in the justice and necessity for victory, civilians on the home front can hardly do less or stop working for a dominion "vistory" in establishing openings for these men when they return.

"Having read several articles on the secret weapons of this war I have often wondered if our loved ones at home realize that we also possess a secret weapon.

"We, of the 1st Canadian Division here in Italy, have a secret weapon which is far greater than any which our enemies might produce. A weapon which is so powerful that Germany's best troops have been beaten by it.

"This weapon made it possible that we could stay in the line longer than any other division in the 8th Army.

"A weapon that when one of our infantry regiments ran out of ammo, they charged the enemy and drove him back at the point of the bayonet.

"This same weapon enabled one of our tank regiments to travel all night over treacherous mountain roads, then engage a German panzer division at Termolie in the morning and thoroughly beat them.

"A padre once told us that he had read a book written by a German general where he had said that a few well disciplined and determined men could hold a town against twice their number. This was partly true in the case of Ortona.

"Partly so, because they didn't hold it. The reason they didn't hold it was because of our secret weapon; a weapon without which we could never have accomplished what we have, both in Sicily and here; a weapon that every man who has been in "it" has.

"The weapon?—Faith. The faith that what we are fighting for is right.

"The faith in ourselves that we can do the job we have undertaken.

"The faith in ourselves that we can do the job we have undertaken.

"The faith in God, knowing that He is beside us always.

"Time upon time many of us have had "close-shaves" and called it luck. But when we begin to think about it seriously could luck alone have gotten us out of that one? I think not."

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN ITALY—Gnr. Archie Bird of Bancroft, has been a dispatch rider in an anti-tank unit of artillery for over two years. Recently he spent leave at a beach near Naples.

Saved The Day

Three bridges were saved and a British Division maintained its steady advance because the reconnaissance troop of the Calgary Armored Regiment, under Lieut. John Whitton of Port Hope was at work with an energy that prompted two British generals to break in on their wireless intercommunications with congratulations.

It was their first chance to do RECCE work in months, and the troop rambled for four days ahead of the infantry and Canadian armored forces in their advance through Foiano Della Chiana, important road Monte San Savino, about 17 air miles.

Their RECCE tanks neared Foiano Della Chiana, important road junction July 2, just in time to see a German rearguard destroy the bridge on the main line of defence, then destroy a self propelled gun. They had not had time to get back across a canal when the Canadians approached.

Whitton swung quickly to the north and forced other Germans to flee before they could demolish three other bridges, then turned to report this new passage and bring engineers to inspect it. Cpl. Lionel Kreger of Winnipeg and Vancouver and his crew continued to cover the bridges under machine gun and sniper fire until they were relieved.

The main body of troops rumbled across the bridges to reach positions the German had not anticipated them getting that day. This was the feat that brought congratulations to Whitton and his troop from commanders of a British division and a corps.

Lieut. Whitton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Whitton of 20 Ward Street. He joined the Fort Garry Horse in Montreal about three years ago and transferred to the Calgary Regiment last December. Lieut. Whitton was given special mention of the C.B.C. news broadcast on Sunday night.

Tpr. F. A. Price of a Tank Regiment, in Italy, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Price, R.R.7 Peterboro, h is constantly amazed at the antiquated farming methods in use in the Mediterranean area. He wrote that most of the cutting of the grain is done by sickle and it is tied by hand.

"Some of the more prosperous farmers sport a binder and a team of oxen, but they are few and far between. There seems to be more threshing machines since we've advanced in this new sector, but I don't know where they will get the power to run them.

"We have just received our 1939-1943 star and it's a ribbon with a light blue, red and dark blue stripe on it. It is given for service either in Africa or Sicily along with Italy. We are just waiting for the next one now, the Victory Medal. A few of our boys are on their way back to Canada, four years overseas—on compassionate grounds. The ones that have left deserve to go back as far as we are concerned."

The young soldier writes that it is so peaceful in appearance that it is hard to believe sometimes that a war is raging there. He mentioned that the meals were pretty good. The men have been having lettuce, radish, fresh potatoes, beans and sometimes eggs. The outfit had killed a baby beef and were all looking forward to steaks for dinner.

"How do all the people back home feel about the fighting in Italy. I noticed in one of the home papers I received, there appeared to be practically no news about the front here. Have the people forgotten us already?"

PTE. GERALD MOLONEY

A visit to the Catacombs in Rome brought back old stories from his history books to Pte. Gerald Moloney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moloney, 148 Park street north, while on a recent leave in Italy. The soldier is serving there with the R.C.O.C.

"The Catacombs are subterranean passages where the early Christians lived and died. It is not like an ordinary graveyard, but built down in the ground. I think the priest told us it was more than 1½ miles deep. You go down steps and through passageways which were made years ago. On each side of these tunnels are places that were dug out, and there are many inscriptions along the walls bearing dates like 1706 and 1725 on them. We went down five floors and saw the tomb of St. Cecelia there. I'd hate to get lost there, for you'd never find your way out.

"We were at the big Allied sports meet in Rome, too. The stadium is really beautiful, and I think it would hold at least 30,000 or 40,000 people. Three military bands were present, and the sports were good. There is a Canada Club in Rome for Canadians only now. It is a swell place with dance floor, recreation room, dining hall, and almost anything a man could wish for. Another impressive sight is that of the King Victor Emmanuel monument, in the centre of Rome. It is here that Mussolini used to make his excuses. The building behind is a dazzling white, while the statue is front is all bronze."

Audience With Pope

This young soldier, along with many others, has visited the Vatican and was granted an audience with the Pope. He said that the latter made a speech and then everyone gathered around him. He spoke to all of them and then they kissed the holy ring he wears. Pte. Moloney writes that he can speak almost any language, and an Irish priest told them that the only language he hadn't heard Pope Pius speak was Gaelic.

The massiveness of St. Peter's Cathedral was not visible from the inside, because of its perfect proportioning, he said. The tomb of St. Peter is right at the front of the cathedral, and right over the tomb stands a monument with a large cross. From the floor to the top of the cross is 94 feet. Directly over the monument is the dome of the church.

Pte. Gerald Moloney has a brother, Jack, 16 years old, who is serving in the Merchant Marine.

Strange Methods

The following excerpt is from a letter written by Sgmn. Lloyd Bigham, who has been on active service in Italy almost a year, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bigham, William street north, Lindsay.

"I just got back from three days of operating a wireless, the first since I left Canada, but I got along O.K. and I was right there when another set broke down and I had him on the air in less than an hour, which is not too bad.

"You should see the way they reap grain in this country, cut it with a crude sickle, pick it up and bind it by hand. Then the girls go over the ground to make sure they haven't lost a single head. To thresh it, they have a concrete basin, 15 feet in diameter and with walls about a foot high and the oxen tramp out the grain while the wind blows away the chaff. That is the system used most in this country and only the most prosperous landowners have binders or threshing machines. A very few have tractors, cultivators, binders and threshers.

"There used to be a lot of cars in the country, but the Germans either took them or destroyed them and anything else that took their fancy."

With his part score of 60 in a rubber contest, South had a game contract with his 4-Diamonds, and made it, plus an extra trick, though he should have been set. West opened his spade K, and East put on the 4, being afraid to use his Q. West thereupon switched to the club 8, which East won with the A. Remembering that his partner had also bid hearts, it seemed obvious to him that a heart return was what West desired. So he led the 7, which South took with the A. That made it easy for the declarer to get the rest of the tricks with diamonds and clubs.

If East had thought a bit, he would have realized that West must have had some special reason for switching to a club on the second trick. It must have been in the desperate hope that he was putting forth a singleton, and therefore striving to ruff a club return. A club lead to the third trick would have given West a trick with the diamond Q, and the spade A would have beaten the contract.

Aristocrats Die In Nazi Purge

LONDON, Aug. 8.—(CP).—Nazi gauleiters and propagandists are off on a wild gallop against German aristocrats and generals who they allege are league with a "blue-blooded international" plot to kill Hitler.

The nervous tone of Hitler's appeal to gauleiters Friday that he could win the war "despite everything" if he could only be sure of "absolute security and blind confidence" of the home front seems to have imparted to his followers something of his unspoken fears as he contemplates the dizzy prospects of collapse of his fantastic regime.

So, taking a cue from Labor Minister Robert Ley's outburst against "blue-blooded swine," they pictured the aristocrats as a menace worse than the Bolshevist international.

The latest to follow in the steps of Iey is the Gauleiter of Carinthia in Southern Austria, who said:

"Aristocracy is an international phenomenon, the representatives of which can be found in America, Britain and elsewhere."

Certain German aristocrats and generals in league with this international, he explained to a mass meeting, planned to kill Kitler and "conclude peace with Stalin after assuming power, and open the gates to a march into Germany of the Soviet divisions."

This was not inconsistent on the part of the aristocrats, he added, because "the criminal generals and officers no longer saw Stalin as a Red hangman, but as a braided marshal."

Nazi commentators, trying to explain the cumulative defeats in the east and west, are jumping at the chance to blame aristocrats for Germany's hard luck.

Jeweler Labors Overseas

WITH THE R.C.A.F. OVERSEAS, Aug. 8.—(CP).—In a little workshop planted among the maze of Nissen huts that comprise the maintenance section of the Nighthawk squadron, a former diamond setter and jewelry designer applies his skill to the instruments and gauges of Mosquito night fighters.

He is Cpl. J. A. Christensen of St. Lambert, Que., 472 Walnut avenue, who has been instrument repairer on the squadron for more than a year. It is his job to keep the delicate and essential instruments on the Mosquito's dashboards in perfect condition.

After nearly five months in a hospital and a convalescent home, it feels pretty good to get back in the air again, even in a training plone, according to FO. George West of Edmonton, 10550 83rd street. West bailed out of his Beaufighter and injured his leg in January. Since then his night fighter squadron, the Nighthawks, have converted to Mosquitos. This means special conversion training for the Edmonton pilot, but in the meantime he's getting the feel of flying again in a twin-engined Oxford training ship.

New arrival with the Nighthawks Mosquito squadron is FO. Tom Kewen of Toronto, 50 Crang avenue. Kewen spent nine months with an Australian squadron.

An all important role in the Teheran conference was played by a Manitoban, Flt. Sgt. Red Grant, signal mechanic of Minnedosa.

Red was selected to head a unit charged with the job of protecting the conferences by warning of the possible approach of hostile aircraft.

Playing tag in mid-air with a pilotless, bomb-loaded Vengeance dive-bomber was the harrowing experience of FO. Eb. Ettinger, Saskatoon, Sask., 537 Avenue K south, 23-year-old pilot with an Indian Air Force squadron. Taking off with a live bomb load Eb's craft burst a tire before it was airborne. The burst crumpled his undercarriage and the hydraulic system for his flares went unserviceable. Unable to crash-land with live bombs aboard, and unable to jettison them because that mechanism was also damaged, Ettinger climbed to 4,000 feet, headed the Vengeance seawards and ordered Flt. Lt. Mike Steel, Stoke-on-Trent, Eng., the gunner to jump. He himself bailed out from 3,000 feet.

As he floated down Ettinger saw the bomber as if a ghost pilot was aboard, turn neatly, lose height and head straight for him. It was a near miss. Then the bomber made one more circuit and dived earthwards.

New commanding officer of the Bluenose Bomber squadron is Wing Cmdr. Frank Watkins of Winnipeg and Edmonton. The 29-year-old former travelling salesman was an instructor at Hagersville Service Flying Training School for 15 months prior to being posted overseas last year and started his operational tour with the Ghost squadron.

HIGH USAGE
A RESULT OF LOW COST

Here in Canada where the telephone idea was born, more telephone calls per capita are made than in almost any other country in the world.

Usage is surely the final test. Telephone users get the greatest possible value for what they pay. Reasonable rates and speedy, dependable, courteous service—all these encourage telephone development. They account for Canada's leadership in the use of the telephone.

Of course, war-time scarcity of vital materials has sharply restricted growth, but telephone service has been maintained at high standard. It has made an outstanding contribution to the Victory to come.

Residents of Canada and the United States make many more telephone calls per capita than any European country.

In Europe, Sweden leads. Latest official figures available (1941) give Sweden 196.5 annual calls per capita as compared with 262 for Canada.

Reds Tighten Noose On 300,000 Hun

German Reserves Unable To Stop Steam Roller

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Red Army tightened a noose today around German Baltic forces once estimated at more than 20 divisions—between 250,000 and 300,000 men—and smashed a deeper wedge through Poland toward German Silesia west of the Vistula.

Three Soviet columns pressed on Riga from the west, south and east for possibly the biggest kill of the summer campaign. Heavily armored enemy units fell back upon the Latvian capital, their offensive thrusts shattered by Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's right wing.

The Soviet high command announced that enemy forces are being "bled white" and "our troops are stubbornly advancing" against German reserve divisions thrown into desperate counter-attacks in nearly every sector of the front to keep the Russian hordes from German soil. A communique supplement said all were repulsed.

The communique also announced a six-mile northward thrust on the Vistula bridgehead, a drive that may be pointed at Warsaw from the south, and an advance to within 33 miles of the Czechoslovakian border.

The Russians said that to support their counter-attacks the Germans are hurling "even road-building, airdrome and other rear detachments" into battle. It was reported 16 new German divisions have reached the front in the past three weeks—some from the Central Germany reserves, others from western Poland, Italy, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Norway.

New Officers.

(The Russians did not disclose where the German counter-attacks have taken place but it could be assumed that at least part were aimed at keeping the Red Army from leaping forward the few miles needed to reach the soil of East Prussia.

(The Germans annouced many new officers "have taken over on the Eastern front at this critical juncture.")

A German southward thrust aimed at breaking out of the Estonia Latvia encirclement was broken up by Soviet forces several days ago in the Birzai area in northern Lithuania near the Latvian border, the daily Russian communique said.

Since then the rolling Russian leg-

French Patriots Cripple Nazi Retreat

By CHARLES S. FOLT,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

IRUN, Spain, August 9—(AP)—German attempts to evacuate men and equipment from positions in southwestern France, outflanked by Allied troops farther north are being seriously disrupted by French patriots sabotaging communication lines and spreading panic among the Nazis still in that area, border reports said to-day.

As the German army of occupation moved northward the Maquis were reported narrowing its way of escape and grimly awaiting the time when those Nazis left behind are too weak to survive the challenge of the Frenchmen of the mountains. The Maquis were declared to be forcing the Germans to destroy much of the material they hoped to rescue from southern France.

Two daughters of the French station-master at Handaye said the French openly talk about the war on the streets and in cafes. They said boys and girls under working and fighting age help annoy the Germans by singing a French equivalent of the song "I'll be Glad When You're Dead, You RascalYou."

Fewer than 1,000 German soldiers remain in Hendaye, St. Jean De Luz and other points south of Bordeaux. These stay close to their barracks and seem ready to move at a moment's notice, French reports said.

Other advices said French Resistance forces had cut the railroads linking the Bay of Biscay with the Mediterreanean but the roads remain as possible scape routes for Germans along the coast from Brittany to the Pyrenees.

Planes Raid Stuttgart And Hungary

1,500 U.S. Craft Co-ordinate Two-Way Blows

LONDON, Aug. 9—(CP)—More than 1,500 American planes attacked the Stuttgart area of southwest Germany and Nazi oil and aircraft facilities in Hungary in co-ordinated blows today from the west and south.

Yugoslav rail yards at Brod also were bombed.

An armada of 1,000 heavy bombers and fighters flew through clouds three miles thick in attacking the war plants of Stuttgart, the "Detroit of Germany." They flew from England.

Up to 500 heavy bombers from Italy struck in Hungary. The Almas Fuzito oil refinery on the Danube 30 miles west of Budapest was left in flames. Other targets were a Messerschmitt assembly plant at Gyor, and airdromes at Veches and Tokol.

Stuttgart, a city of 400,000, and the capital of Wurtemburg, is in southwest Germany 110 miles from the French frontier. It is on rail and highway routes to Paris and Munich and is the site of a ball bearing factory, a magneto works, and airplane engines and assembly plants.

Start Forest Fire

R.A.F. medium bombers in the early afternoon exploded an ammunition dump in the Lyons forest, 10 miles east of Rouen. A forest fire was kindled by the explosion and "this was followed by a gigantic upheaval of the earth which sent a wave over a radius of five miles," a pilot said.

"You could see the whole countryside quivering and trees were bent over by the blast," he said. "Flames and smoke rose to a great height."

Three of these bombers were lost to intense ground fire.

The first fliers returning from Stuttgart reported only moderate flak and no enemy fighters, in contrast to German assertions. Weather was foul, some crews running into three-mile thick cloud banks which made flying hazardous.

The reported thrust into Germany was the first since Sunday for British-based heavy bombers, which had devoted all their efforts to support of Allied armies in France.

Planes filled the channel skies throughout the morning. One bomber fleet took more than an hour to cross the coast.

BAGS TWENTY NAZIS—Pte. Leslie G. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Edwards of Smith township, serving in Italy with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is reported to have captured twenty German prisoners recently.

Peterboro Boy Captures 20 Germans

OTTAWA, August 9—(CP)—Pte. L. C. Edwards, Peterborough, Ont., marched a score of German prisoners into his Battalion Headquarters in Italy the other day, but before anybody could pat him on the back he told what a cinch it had been.

Here briefly is his story, relayed by Army Public Relations. He took four prisoners out of a slit trench in the Hitler Line. They took him to some comrades. But this time he had 20 men and an officer in tow.

He started back to his headquarters and the German officer, in very good English told him he better put the magazine in his tommy gun. Edwards thanked the officer.

He marched along a road looking for headquarters without success, so he stopped a tank and the crew didn't know either. The German officer apologized for interrupting, and volunteered to lead the way. He had been near the headquarters on a previous night's patrol.

"So don't give me any of that hero stuff," said Edwards handing over his prisoners.

ALLIED SUPREME HEAD- TUA

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 9—(CP)—Canadian armored columns smashed through the Germans' second line of defence to a point 16 miles south of Caen today, as American troops captured Le Mans, southwestern gateway to Paris barely 110 beyond.

Le Mans to within 87 miles of

The Canadian plunge carried within four miles of Falaise, itself only 65 miles north of Le Mans, while another spearhead was only 1,500 yards northwest of Potigny, four miles north of Falaise.

Between 80 and 1,000 German prisoners have been taken by the Canadians since their attack started late Monday night.

The Allied wings were curling around the bulk of the German Army, threatening to pocket it, and both the Canadians and the Americans were within little more than 100 miles—and perhaps closer—to Paris in a great pincers drive on the French capital.

Repel Counter

A strong counter-attack against the British bridgehead over the Orne River south of Caen was repelled with a slight loss of ground. The bridgehead still is secure.

South of the drive through Le Mans, other U.S. troops, battering southward neared Angers on the Loire River, 50 miles inland from the river port of Nantes and 50 miles southwest of Le Mans.

This broadened the U. S. front in France to some 80 miles. Enemy resistance in the Loire push was reported light.

On the Greton Peninsula, American troops charged into the outer defences of the great port of Brest after the German garrison refused

Social Credit Party Wins

C.C.F. Candidates Fail To Place

EDMONTON, August 9—(CP)—Alberta's Social Credit Government was back in power to-day with its greatest mojority since it first took office in 1940. All concessions went to Social Crediters, with no other party members elected up to 1:40 e. d. t.

Election of John C. Landeryou, former Social Credit member of parliament, over David Elton, Independent in Lethbridge constituency upped the number of Social Crediters to 41 in the 57-member legislature, with party members leading in eight other seats. Of the remaining seats, Independents led in five, the C. C. F. in two and veterans candidates in one.

The government party, led by 36-year-old Premier C. Manning, son of the Saskatchewan prairies and trained in public speaking by the late Premier William Aberhart, led from the start of vote-counting in yesterday's election.

So fast was the accumulation of first-choice votes by Social Credit candidates that The Canadian Press conceded the government's apparent re-election 26 minutes after the polls closed in urban ridings at 7 p.m., M.D.T. (9 p.m. E.D.T.) By that time, Social Crediters running in the 47 single-member constituencies were far ahead of opposing candidates. Rural polls closed at 6 p.m.

Mr. Manning during the campaign promised the Alberta electorate he would continue the Social Credit fight for money reform. He reiterated faith in Social Credit policies, which include the payment of a national dividend.

The government party and the C.C.F. both had 57 candidates in the field, one for each of the legislature seats. In the last house, Social

British Retake Monte Grillo

By NOLAND NORGAARD,
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, August 9—(AP)—British and Indian forces of the British 8th Army have recaptured blood-soaked Monte Grillo and have beaten off five enemy counter-attacks on its slopes in furious fighting north and northwest Arezzo, Allied headquarters announced to-day as a lull prevailed over most of the Italian front.

A communique described the situation in and around Florence as virtually unchanged, with only patrol activity in the immediate vicinity of the great art centre.

Canadian tank units are operating in the Florence sector in support of an Indian division, Canadian Press War Correspondent Bill Boss reported last night. Hitherto it had only been permitted to mention that Canadian armor was engaged "in an undisclosed sector."

Reports Conflict.

There was no further reports of the Germans shelling the southern part of the city. Associated Press War Correspondent Lynn Heinzerling, who has been with the 8th Army inside the city in recent days, said the German batteries had been directing their fire at targets outside the southern limits and there was nothing to indicate damage to the city itself.

There were conflicting reports, however, on conditions within the heart of Florence on the north bank of the Arno.

The British troop paper "Union Jack" said that life was going on normally inside Florence but that the water supply was short and black marketeers were selling water at 20 lire per bottle. (The lire had a pre-war value of about five cents).

On the other hand the Canadian troopsheet, "Maple Leaf," said an Italian who had forded the Arno and reached Allied lines declared that "central Florence is being systematically looted by the Germans" and that the citizens are confined indoors. He also asserted that fighting between Fascists and anti-Fascists had broken out in one district.

Robots Still Fall

LONDON, August 9—(CP).—The Germans resumed their flying-bomb attacks upon Britain to-day after a night of sporadic assaults which an official announcement said had "caused damage and casualties in residential areas" in London and the southern counties.

M. Duplessis Needs 1 Seat

Quebec Election Still In Doubt

QUEBEC, August 9—(CP).—Maurice Duplessis and his Union Nationale lacked a single seat today to show an over-all majority in yesterdays Quebec general elections with one seat still in doubt and voting in a deferred riding scheduled for August 24.

In the doubtful seat, the rural constituency of Rouville, unofficial returns on 24 out of 40 polls gave the Union Nationale candidate a lead of 220 votes. The returning officer, however, could not be found by either party to-day and with him was the secret of what the remaining 16 polls might show.

Standing in the other seats follows;

Union Nationale	45	15
Liberals	38	69
Bloc Populaire	4	—
C.C.F.	1	—
Nationalist	1	—
Independent	11	2
Total	89	86

The closest election result in Quebec's long political history followed a hectic campaign, climaxed yesterday with two riots in one Montreal riding.

Provincial Police arrested 71 persons on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

Many Wounded

It was reported originally that 19 had suffered gunshot wounds but police said later that three persons were known to have been injured as the result of shots, in addition to any carried away by friends. Others received wounds from knives blackjacks, brass knuckles, broken bottles and a variety of other weapons.

Premier Godbout, who could remain in power only by a constitutional near-miracle, was non-committal. With his Liberal following

10,000 Japanese Killed On Guam

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 9 (AP)—Extermination of the enemy was under way in the northeast corner of Guam today. The counted enemy dead already exceeds 10,000.

American warships, planes, marines and soldiers herded a last-ditch group of defenders into a 15-square-mile area of the 225-square-mile island. They drove a wedge within a mile of the northeast coast, seeking to split up the doomed Japanese and speed their destruction.

While this clincher blow was falling on the eastern approach to the Philippines, it was announced today at Allied Southwest Pacific headquarters that Halmahera on the southern approach, was hit by a 48-ton bombing raid.

Battles Raging Behind Lines

BY WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 9—(CP Cable)—Confused battles raged all day Tuesday behind the line which the 1st Canadian Army drove forward last night as by-passed Germans were cleaned from the stubbornly-defended positions.

At May-Sur-Orne the Germans were able to take shelter in an abandoned coal mine, the tunnels of which were supposed to have an underground connection with other villages all over the area south of Caen. They held out against French-speaking battalions from Quebec until the Canadians went in with flame throwers and blasted them out.

Ontario troops riding forward in armored vehicles had a stiff time taking Gaillouet and the high ground running toward Gaumesnil, but gained their objectives. They encountered 88-millimetre gun positions in this area, and enemy tanks were seen moving around to the east as French Canadian troops headed down the Caen-Falaise Highway behind a tank column to the Gaumesnil area.

Meanwhile a western infantry force mopped up Rocquancourt and another western battalion cleared Fontenay-Le-Marmion where the Germans had been making one of their last-ditch stands.

The General forward progress was delaped in some area by enemy minefields through which a path had to be cleared for tanks, but the Germans were unable to make a stand of any duration in their prepared positions.

Godbout May Retain Leadership Despite Union Nationale Gains

OTTAWA, August 9—(CP)—A prominent constitutional lawyer and parliamentarian to-day said that the future of the Quebec Liberal Government now depends on the advice Premier Adelard Godbout gives the Lieutenant Governor, Sir Eugene Fiset.

The Union Nationale Party, led by Maurice Duplessis, has 45 candidates elected and the Liberals 38 in a house of 91. If the party gathered two more it would be able to carry on with a majority of one after appointing a speaker.

The constitutional lawyer said that this would be so doubtful a majority that Premier Godbout, who holds 38 seats, might decide not to relinquish power.

"Of course," he added, "if the four members of the Bloc Populaire definitely announce that they are prepared to co-operate with the Union Nationale Party that will end the matter and it is probable that Mr. Godbout would advise the Lieutenant Governor to call on Mr. Duplessis to form a government.

"But if the Bloc Populaire decides to support Mr. Godbout then I imagine he will stay in office until the legislature meets and if he is defeated in the legislature he will advise a new election."

The case is somewhat different from the 1925 Dominion Election when 101 Liberals were elected against 116 Conservatives, 24 Progressives and four of other parties.

The Liberals under Prime Minister Mackenzie King remained in office with the Progressive supporting the Liberals. The combined parties had an overall majority.

In Quebec if the Liberals obtained all the support of the minor parties they still would not have a clear majority after naming a speaker.

"The point is," the authority said, "The Lieutenant Governor must accept the advice of the premier in such a case, of course, if a premier or prime minister had been decisively defeated he would advise the crown to call on the successful leader to form a government. There is no precedent to the contrary."

Mail Carriers Get Increases

OTTAWA, August 9—(CP).—About 8,800 of Canada's operational post office employees will get annual wage increases ranging between $60 and $180, retroactive to July 1, under an Order-in-Council tabled to-day in the Commons by Postmaster-General Mulock.

The increases were forecast yesterday for 4,000 letter carriers, 750 mail porters, 3,100 postal clerks, 1,100 mail clerks, 25 chauffeurs, and 200 senior carriers and supervisors. These employees had recently petitioned a Cabinet Committee for annual increases of $300.

Matters pertaining to riding organization also were discussed at the caucus, it was understood.

Brigadier Merill Given New Post

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 9—(CP)—Brig.-Gen. Frank D. Merrill, who recently surrenderd command of his famous "Marauder" detachment in Burma, has been named head of the liaison group for the China-Burma-India theatre at Allied headquarters here.

The nature of Merrill's assignment was disclosed by Gen. Stilwell in a message from his headquarters in India commending Merrill for his services in the field and declaring he had been relieved of his command solely because of ill health.

The statement supplemented an earlier announcement from Stilwell's headquarters emphasizing that Merrill's transfer to Kandy, was in no way connected with an inquiry into a reported break-down in the morale of the "Marauders" during the battle of Myitkyina. The break-down had been attributed to premature return of convalescent raiders to active duty.

Coldwell Says Not Discouraged

OTTAWA, Aug. 9—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said in a results of yesterday's elections in prepared statement today that the Quebec and Alberta "are not discouraging."

"We made a start in Quebec, won one seat, and found some support for future activity," he said. "The contest was obviously between Liberals and provincially-minded opposition parties."

"In Alberta we were faced with an unusual situation: The Daily Press, which four years ago united the Liberals and Conservatives into the so-called independent party, the Social Credit Party, and the old Communist party, under its new name, Labor-Progressive party, all combined to stop the C.C.F.

"Obviously our popular vote shows a substantial increase. The final results are not known yet. In 1940 we won no seats, but the new legislation will contain C.C.F. representation.

"In congratulating the Alberta victors, I also express the hope that they will give the province progressive legislation."

Arrested For Old Murder

44-Year-Old Farmer Nabbed After 7 Years

OSHAWA, Ont., Aug. 9—(CP).—Sam Michael, 44-year-old Pickering township farmer, was arrested by Provincial Police last night and charged with the murder seven years ago of Mike Sheveluk. Michael was arraigned in police court this morning and was remanded until August 16, when he will appear in Whitby.

Sheveluk, caretaker-superintendent of Yungvelt Camp, a Jewish boys' centre, was killed November 24, 1937. His body was found on a Pickering township road near the camp. He had been shot through the heart and his head and body were badly mutilated.

Michael was a witness at the inquest January 7, 1937, into Sheveluk's death when a coroner's jury found he died from the bullet wound. Medical evidence was that Sheveluk's head was almost severed from his body in what police described as ritual mutilation. Under his head when the body was found was a copy of a magazine which bore the caption "Behind the Sex Crime." Police said they believed it had been placed there by the killer.

The arrest was made by Inspector W. J. Franks and Constable Fred Clarke of the Provincial Police. Michael was not asked to plead or elect when he made his court appearance before Magistrate R. P. Locke of Toronto, who ordered the case transferred to Whitby.

Canadian Pipers In France

Essex Scottish Band In Front Line

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Aug. 9—(CP).—The pipe band of the Essex Scottish from Windsor, Ont., is with the regiment in France and frequently pipers play for the companies right in the front-line.

There are two men with the band who served with the band of the original battalion which fought at Dieppe—Cpl. Tommy Burns, a piper, and Drummer Bob Copeland, both of Windsor.

The pipe major is Robert Stoker of Edmonton, and others are Bob Mackie of Vernon, B.C.; Ken Kenney and Alex. Wood, both of Windsor; Tom Coulson and Archie Beaton, both of Detroit; Bill Gardner of Saulte Ste. Marie, Ont.; Lawrence Leonard of Kitchener, Ont.; Jim Kemlo of Port Hope, Ont.; Bob Moorhouse and Bill Turkington, both of Chatham, Ont.

They were with the regiment when it went into the Odon River line on its arrival in France where it endured heavy mortar and shellfire. It was in the village of Eteiville, just southwest of Caen, where the band suffered its first casualty—one set of pipes. The pipes were Gardner's and they were destroyed by enemy fire when he was with one of the companies in that hot spot.

The band went over the Orne River with the regiment when it shared in the Canadian attack south of Caen.

Violent Death Looms For Nazi Leaders

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Whether there's truth in the report that Nazi Gestapo Chief Himmler the hangman has been assassinated and Reichsmarshal Goering wounded, the fact remains that all the leaders of hte Hitler regime are increasingly in danger of violent death.

The dictator has put the already war-weary and gloomy German people under a terrific strain of regimentation in his program for total war. He has chained them to their galley seats and is using the lash to make them pull their oars. His armies are under the even greater stress of continual defeats and retreats.

Thus while Hitler may be able to keep the lid on for a time by terrorism and force, morale inevitably will deteriorate to the point where more and more individuals will seek the lives of the leaders responsible for Germany's catastrophe. The gallows which yesterday claimed eight more army officers has only begun its grim work.

Faces Great Test

The greatest test of Hitler's ability to hold his people in line is still to be made. He's about to undergo a trial by fire in the great retreats which the German armies must achieve in the western and eastern theatres to reach the inner defences of the Reich for their last stand.

The greatest single menace hanging over Hitler as he tries to extricate his armies probably is the mighty Allied air force.

The fine and going Canadian offensive in the Caen sector provides an excellent illustration of the use of air power in battle. This vastly important and difficult attack was preceded by an unprecedented bombardment by some 1,600 planes, after which the Canadians slammed into the powerful German defences and hurled the enemy back several miles.

That battle, by the way, is worth watching. The Caen sector is the hinge on which Hitlerites are swinging back their loose left flank in retreat. If that hinge is broken it will place the Nazis in a precarious position.

out from 59 at dissolution to 37 or 38 seats despite a higher popular vote than the Union Nationale, he said he would "await the election result."

That result appeared to rest in the Ballot boxes of two ridings, and possibly in the deferred election in Charlevoix-Saguenay where voting is set for Aug. 24, but the edge seems to rest with the Union Nationale.

Mr. Duplessis indicated he felt his margin would be maintained when he said at Three Rivers—the riding that gave him the first personal concession of the election—that the result was "a punishment for those who relinquished our provincial rights."

Would Recover Rights

He added that the Union Nationale would "carry on a policy which will help Quebec to recover all the rights our province relinquished during the pre-election campaign.

Meanwhile, the immediate interest centred on two doubtful ridings, Montreal's east-end Maisonneuve and largely-rural Rouville. In Maisonneuve, with three polls to come out of 221, Liberal Edmond Hamelin had an unofficial 12-vote margin on Dr. J. F. A. Gatien of the Union Nationale. In Rouville, with unofficial returns recording 24 of 40 polls, Union Nationale Laurent Barre claimed election by 25 votes while Liberal Fernand Samson claimed the honors by two votes.

Preliminary and incomplete tabulation of the Populare vote gave about 448,000 votes to the Liberals, 45,000 higher than the total polled by the Union Nationale. Heavy Liberal majorites in a number of Montreal seats accounted in part for the difference.

The Bloc Populaire, with 80 candidates entered, was never in the running as far as electing any great number of candidates was concerned although the four Bloc Populaire representatives, elected could still conceivably hold the balance of power in the next legislature.

The C.C.F. ran 24 candidates and elected one—the first C.C.F. representative in the Quebec provincial house. He was David Cote who won the nine-way fight in the newly-created northern riding of Rouyn-Noranda. Rene Chaloult will again be the lone Nationalist member in the House following his election in Quebec (county).

Godbout Returned

Premier Godbout won handily in his home riding of L'Islet, and seven out of 10 of his cabinet ministers were re-elected with him. They were Provincial Treasurer J. A. Mathewson; Health Minister Groulx; Fisheries Minister Valmore Bienvenue; Attorney-General Leon Casgrain; Georges Dansereau, minister of Public Works; Wilfred Hamel, minister of Lands and Forests and Acting Labor Minister; and Joseph Francoeur, minister without portfolio.

Defeated were Henri Renault, minister of Municipal Affairs, and Perrault Casgrain and Maurice Gingues, ministers without portfolio.

Men who resigned their Federal seats to run in the provincial elections were only moderately successful. Edouard Lacroix took Beauce for the Bloc Populaire and L. P. Lizotte took Kamuraska for the Liberals. Liberals Lionel Bertrand and Maurice Gingues lost out in Terrebonne and Sherbrooke respectively, and Dr. Paul Gauthier failed to take Portneu for the Bloc.

McGeer Continues Crusade For Some Monetary Reform

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, August 9 — (CP). — Money reformers and those in favor of maintaining Canada's present banking system held the spotlight in the Commons yesterday as arguments heard for the last few months in the Banking and Commerce Committee meetings were repeated on the floor of the House.

With the Government seeking passage of the Bill extending the charters of banks for 10 years, G. G. McGeer (L-Vancouver Burrard) and Arthur Slaght (L-Parry Sound) continued to urge that money reforms be made, but other Liberal members argued that the present banking system should be allowed to continue on its record of service.

Mr. McGeer said that continuance of some aspects in the present system was just what he was oposing. He spoke after the House had defeated an amendment in which J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit House Leader, asked that the Federal Government grant the bank charters to Provincial Governments who, with consent of their Legislatures, sought such charters.

In another amendment, Mr. McGeer asked that the banks be prevented from creating or issuing bank deposit credit in place of or as a substitute for the lawful currency and coinage of Canada unless authorized to do so by a board made up of the Prime Minister, the Minister of Finance and the Governor of the Bank of Canada.

He said the banks were definitely responsible for the stock market crash in 1929, and his amendment was aimed at preventing them from doing what they did prior to the crash.

Caused Stock Boom

The inflation of bank deposits withdrawn from circulation caused the stock boom and the collapse which swept over the country, he said.

The amendment, which was not acted upon before adjournment of the House, would prevent private banks from creating new money unless authorized to do so by the board of three.

The Government had given away the greatest power it possessed, the power to issue money when the law permitted chartered banks to enlarge their deposits and lend the money to the Government.

The power had been given to a group of men whose business was lending money for profit. The result was a natural tendency to keep money scarce so that it would always be in demand.

"It is a monetary system that has neither sense, nor reason, nor logic to sustain it," he said.

Finance Minister Ilsley argued there was little difference between the methods proposed by Mr. McGeer and those followed by the Government.

It had been proposed that the Government should not borrow from the chartered banks, Mr. Ilsley said. The net increase in chartered bank holdings of Government bonds since the start of war was $1,400,000,000. The amount represented the difference between the proposed borrowing plan and the one followed by the Government. Mr. McGeer would have borrowed that from the Bank of Canada or the public, instead of from the chartered banks, or would have issued currency.

"What is there in figures like these to justify these alarmist utterances (by Mr. McGeer), this talk about a Niagara of bankruptcy, the fear of repudiation and so on?" Mr. Ilsley asked.

"This country will not repudiate. It is nowhere near the place where there is any cause for alarm."

Ilsley Confident

He expressed complete confidence in Canada's ability to carry its debt. Net annual-debt charges on March last were $183,509,355, compared with $149,651,990 on March 31, 1939, and $164,349,572 on March 31, 1920.

Mr. Slaght said the public debt stood at $16,000,000,000, with the annua linterest charges totalling more than $280,000,000.

He said he wished to propose a system which would prevent a piling up of the debt. Under his system all money for public financing or government needs would be borrowed interest-free from the Bank of Canada.

Hughes Cleaver (L-Halton) said that at the committee meetings Mr. Slaght had claimed the banks could have millions of dollars tucked away in their inner reserves. This was not correct, every bank in its annual statement gave a full summary of all its possessions.

a surrender ultimatum. Lt.-Gen. Karl Spang, commanding the German 226th Infantry, was captured near Brest.

Split Tank Units.

The Allies apparently had split German armored forces—heretofore so carefully husbanded— into three great blocks. The enemy threw tanks into vain attempts to halt the surge into Le Mans ,four armored divisions had been committed to a futile counter-attack at the Allied centre near Mortain, and other steel machines were thrown against the Canadian army tide advancing south of Caen.

A front dispatch said Americans had sealed off the German penetration near Mortan ,aimed at splitting the Allied corridor, and had knocked the enemy from Cherence Roussel in that area and captured three more towns. fighting continued, however, near Juvingy, northwest of Mortain.

Canadians, ripping through a Great German anti-tank wall, had cut more than 10 miles forward, carrying 16 of the 20 miles from Caen to the road hub of Falaise. The key town of Bretteville-Sur-Laiz, nine miles south of Caen, was seized on the Canadian left, the British wedge across the Orne held secure, and threatens to trap Germans between the Orne and Laize rivers by joining with the Canadian push from Caen.

U S. forces were closing also on the ports of St Malo, on the north Breton coast, St. Nazaire, and Nantes. Reconnaissance patrols were reported at the Loire's river mouth.

Headquarters said that the bulk of approximately 100 submarines which the Nazis were reported to have in Brittany were believed to have escaped.

American 1st Army columns fought in the outskirts of St. Malo on the north coast, where the siege was into its fourth day. Headquarters reported the Americans four miles from Brest and five from Lorient.

The British 2nd Army punched into central German defences between Vire and Thury-Harcourt, capturing Le Plessis-Grimoult, 19 miles southwest of Caen.

Just north of Thury-Harcourt, tank-supported British infantry beat off strong German counter-attacks seeking to wipe out the Grimbosq bridgehead. With reinforcements, the Tommies strengthened their hold along the east bank of the Orne River and the fringes of the Grimbosq forest in the sector 11 miles southwest of Caen.

The forward line of the 1st Canadian Army still was rolling toward Falaise, birthplace of William the Conqueror, and the level land leading toward Paris.

Hundreds of German prisoners were captured but the Canadians had no time to count them.

Says 30 Men Control Papers

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 9—(AP). — Morris L. Ernst, New York attorney, declared at the American Newspaper Guild convention today that newspaper practices "have induced a terrible cynicism" among the reading public that "30 men control the pipelines to the minds of the nation."

"Names are unimportant," Ernst said in an address to the delegates, "but remember that there are five big movie companies, four radio networks, the syndicate and press association group, and the fact that 360 out of 900 radio stations are owned by newspapers.

"Newspapers now are probably as good as we can get or deserve, but they have lost the confidence of the public and the confidence of their own employees."

Ernst said that there were 1,103 towns and cities in the United States which are serviced by only one newspaper, and that such "press monopolies" have caused the public to lose confidence in what they read.

"I see no hope for new leadership from within the profession," he said.

Crediters held 35 seats, the Independents 15, C.C.F. one, Liberals three; Labor one, and Independent Social Credit one. There was one vacancy.

Conceded 38 Seats

At 1 a.m., M.D.T. today the victory of Social Credit candidates had been conceded in 38 seats and no entry by another party had been successful.

The Independents suffered the loss of their leader, James H. Walker of Raymond, who was defeated in Warner constituency by Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer and national Social Credit leader. Mr. Lowe was one of the nine provincial cabinet ministers returned to office.

The legislature representation of the two major Alberta cities, Salary and Edmonton, remained in doubt. The count in these five-member constituencies was delayed.

Because of slow arrival at a central distribution station in Edmonton of boxes containing the ballots marked Aug. 7 by Alberta service voters on duty within the province.

The cities elect their members by the proportional representation system and returning officers could not set the quotas necessary for election until the service ballots had been delivered to them, possibly later today.

The C.C.F. entered the Alberta campaign fresh from victory in Saskatchewan where its candidates defeated a Liberal Government in June.

Soldiers To Vote

Elmer Roper, provincial C.C.F. leader, was a candidate in Edmonton constituency. Also a candidate in Edmonton was James A. MacPherson, provincial Labor-Progressive leader, whose party had 30 candidates in the contest, running next to the Independents in number of entries with 36.

Mr. Manning has announced a session of the Legislature will be held later this year when arrangements will be made to take a vote among Alberta service men and women outside the province to elect three members-at-large.

Incomplete vote returns indicated that more than 20 of the 184 candidates had lost their election deposits.

Mrs. C. R. Wood, the sole woman member of the last Legislature, was re-elected as a Social Credit candidate in Stony Plain constituency.

Mr. Manning's major vote surpius piling up in Edmonton was expected to assist in the election of one or more of the other Social Credit candidates in the constituency.

In the one-member constituencies the single-transferable-vote system is used and most of the successful Social Credit candidates had a sufficiently large majority that the distribution of the second choices of the trailing candidate was unnecessary.

Army Mechanics Win High Praise

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 9 — (CP Cable) — Tradesmen in army workshops who toil laboriously and with little praise to keep front-line soldiers supplied with vehicles and guns gained a share of the credit for the success of the new and novel Canadian attack south of Caen.

At Canadian Army headquarters a Brigadier giving correspondents background on the preparations for the attack, devised principally by an unnamed Canadian Commander said a remarkable job was done by the tradesmen who converted a certain type of tracked vehicle into infantry-carrying armored vehicles.

"They did the job within a few days," he said. "Six-hundred vehicles travelled 50,000 vehicle miles in 36 hours ending at 7 a.m. yesterday to carry out the dumping program for the operation."

Canadian and British drivers shared this task and there has not been a single road accident despite all the pressure and necessity for speed.

For this huge attack thousands of tons of additional ammunition were dumped fairly well forward and hundreds of tons of additional gasoline. Hundreds of tons of ammunition and gasoline also were in reserve in trucks awaiting an emergency. One-thousand tons of signals equipment also had to be laid down before the attack.

Apart from Canadian general hospitals and other medican installations in Normandy, two casualty clearing-stations and two field dressing stations were placed well forward with six surgical teams and special blood banks were established for casualties in this action.

Three-hundred ambulances were ready and another medical centre was ready five miles from the casualty clearing and field dressing stations.

the Foret de Lucheux to the south and in the Foret de Chantilly just north of Paris—were left in flames.

More than 3,200 sorties were flown yesterday against German front positions in support of ground troops driving toward Paris, but Allied appraisal of the results was marred again by a report that some explosives fell short, bombing Canadian positions.

Many Air Battles

The weather was unfavorable over the battle area today, but prospects were for improvement.

Of the stabs into Germany and Hungary today, German broadcasts said heavy U.S. bombers with strong fighter escort struck into the southern Reich from the west and suffered losses in air battles over Budapest and Lake Balaton.

R.A.F. Mosquitos again ranged over France from the battle zone to 200 miles beyond last night in search of transport targets, but the crews noted a marked lack of activity on previously busy roads and railways.

Mosquitoes bombed and strafed some trains, however, and started fires among a number of oil tanks north of Fountainbleu. Others dumped two-ton blockbusters on Cologne for the second time in three nights.

London Plans Post-War Reconstruction

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, August 9 — (CP). — London city fathers have made public their long-in-preparation plan for the post-war reconstruction of the square mile of "city" in the heart of the Metropolis and raised the interesting possibility that the fate of St. Paul's Cathedray may rest with the Empire as a whole and not just with the Capital.

In a list of proposals designed to enhance the city's architectural dignity and to preserve its character as the commercial core of London, the Town Planning Committee of the City Corporation set down these major suggestions:

1—Construction of a ring road, 80 feet wide, around the north of the city to relieve traffic congestion.

2—Higher buildings, up to 100 feet or from 8 to 10 storeys, to accommodate more people.

3—Multi-storey garages and garage space in the new buildings.

4—Widening of some streets and extension of the Embankment from Blackfriars to London Bridge.

5—Alocation of definite areas for residential development.

The committee, with the historical and architectural interests of the city at heart, left untouched many of the famous sites. Smithfield, Leanedhall, and Billingsgate Markets would remain, as would the Wren churches, Guildhall, Mansion House and headquarters of the Livery Companies. No proposals wer made concerning Inner and Middle Temples which a special Government order covers.

The committee estimated it might take from 20 to 25 years to complete its plans and the cost was estimated at about $675,000,000.

Duffus Lauds Family Allowance Bill

"As to this Family Allowances Bill which is before us," said Senator J. J. Duffus in the Upper House debate Friday, August 4. "I have this to say: I feel that if during the years I have spent in Parliament I have done nothing but support this measure and cast my vote for it, by that alone I will have justified my presence here.

"I have been twenty-five years in public life, and it has always been my practice to champion the cause of the poor and the oppressed. During that period I have whole-heartedly supported all types of social legislation, for I am firmly convinced that such legislation is wholly in the national interest.

"For many years I have assisted persons who were justly entitled to pensions of various kinds—returned soldiers, burnt-out veterans, soldiers' widows, the blind, and others. In fact, in my first speech in another place I pleaded with the Government to establish pensions for the blind, and urged that they be as genefous as finances would permit. I am proud to say that in this effort, I, with others, was successful. Recognizing the economic handicap of parents with large families, I have often pondered over what could be done to remove that embarrassing disadvantage, and when I listened to the Speech from the Throne at the opening of this session, I was delighted beyond measure to hear that at last this long-neglected problem was to receive consideration.

"It has been said, and quite correctly, that the youth of our country is its most precious asset. Indeed, if there were some means by which we could adequately assess such values, I am sure it would indicate that nothing else was nearly as precious and valuable. If, as a result of the passage of this measure, our children are healthier, happier, better educated, better clothed and better housed, any reasonable expenditure we make to meet our obligation in this respect will be justified.

"It cannot be denied, I think, that the first charge on the finances of a nation is the health and education of its people. Many other nations have loyally met the challenge in this regard. Is there any justifiable reason why we should be guilty of depriving our children of their birthright, especially when we pride ourselves on being one of the richest nations in the world? I have no intention of enumerating the many assets which this country possesses. Honourable members are quite as familiar with them as I am. I am simply maintaining that the provisions embodied in this bill will assist greatly in putting us on a par with other nations. Honourable members wil agree that two of the things which Canada has neglected most are education and health. That the passing of this bill will assist education immeasurably no one can deny.

Terrible Results

"Ill health causes suffering, pain, deprivation and unhappiness. This bill will do much to overcome these evils by providing the mothers with proper medical attention, delicacies and the other supplies so essential to their welfare both before and after childbirth. Indeed, I think I am wholly correct when I say that these grants will reduce the deaths from childbirth to a minimum, and will hasten the recovery of the mothers. Subsequently the children, by reason of having healthy bodies and keener minds, will make greater progress in acquiring education. Hence, the two problems of education and health, will have been solved in a general way to the satisfaction of all concerned and this will be of inestimable advantage not only to the families directly concerned, but to the country in general.

"Now, I have a question to put to honourable members. Let us suppose that I am a mechanic with a large family and the man next to me in the factory has no family. We are both receiving the same rate of pay. What chance in life have I as compared with the man who has no family? Will anyone suggest that it would be possible for me to convince my employer that because I have done my duty as a citizen I am entitled to more pay? Honourable senators know that it would be absolutely impossible for my employer to increase my pay without creating disruption and dissension within his industry.

"God's command, as contained in scripture, is to be fruitful and multiply, and one of the duties of all couples joined in matrimony is the propagation of the human race. Unquestionably God was sincere. If proof of this were necessary it is to be found in the fact that he elevated matrimony to a place among the seven sacraments of the church, and thereby set it amongst the holiest of holy things.

"Speaking of population, is it not better that it should be increased as far as possible in the natural way, rather than by the expenditure of large sums of money to bring in from other countries people of objectionable character, who by causing dissatisfaction make it necessary for us to deport them?

Help Mothers

"Honourable senators, I can think of nothing more heartbreaking than to see a delicate mother trying to take care of a sickly child of tender years when her meagre means render her helpless in the matter of providing necessary medical care and nutritious food. When I think of what will be accomplished by this bill, in ensuring to every Canadian mother and child medical care, sufficient and proper food, clothing, proper housing conditions and education, I find it impossible to estimate the wealth of happiness that will accrue. Permit me to cite the experience of a young couple who lived on a farm in the country. They had a family of 21 children, 18 of whom are living. They lost the farm because it was economically impossible for them to survive. I challenge any honourable member to say that they should not have received assistance. Honourable members may laugh; but this young couple did their duty in accordance with the will of God. Furthermore, about half a dozen of the boys in the family left their home, their parents and their little brothers and sisters, and with a vision of democracy before them went forth with dauntless courage, ready to lay down their lives for the liberty of mankind. I conclude with these words: Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."

Soldier Finds Mother After 29 Years

HALIFAX, Aug. 9 — (CP) — After 29 years' wondering about the mother he had never remembered seeing, Arthur Stanley Redder, veteran of United States Army Air Force duty in the South Pacific, was reunited with her by a story in a Halifax newspaper.

Redden had gone to Lynn, Mass., with his father when only a few months old, following an estrangement between his parents. He always believed his mother was alive and when he received an honorable discharge from the American Army some weeks ago, after being seriously wounded in the South Pacific, he determined to find her.

He came to Halifax, and a local paper printed the story of his search. Sixty miles away, in Truro, Mrs. W. J. Stockman, once Mrs. Ralph Redden of Windsor, N.S., read the story and immediately contacted the son she had believed dead.

As a footnote to the story, the former air force machine-gunner had met an aunt, Mrs. Byron Barnes, in Halifax. Mrs. Barnes believed her sister-in-law had died in the Halifax explosion of 1917, her name having been erroneously listed among those killed.

Explosives—
the "accelerator" of Canada's Metal Production

Drilling holes for explosives charges and loading, in base metal mining operations.
THROUGH four centuries of national history, Canada's mineral production has steadily grown. Today, in the fifth year of the war, the magnitude of this industry has assumed world-wide importance. Canada is the world's largest exporter of base metals.
Night and day, since the beginning of war, these essential metals have poured forth in ever increasing quantities. Production in Nickel is up 17.2%, Iron ore 94%, Zinc 43.5% and Magnesium 65,000%.
Canada has played an important role in providing these metals for war. The Dominion supplies the United Nations with 15% of their copper, 16% of their lead, 18% of their zinc, 95% of their nickel and 40% of their aluminum. These figures are impressive because they indicate that for the first time in our national history, Canada has become a world power in base metal production.
Explosives to speed the production of base metals is another product of Industrial Chemistry which serves Canada in war and peace.

The Underground In Brittany

General Charles de Gaulle has spoken in the highest terms of the bravery and the adroit strategy of the underground patriot forces in Brittany. Since June 6 the underground has carried on a guerilla fight which kept two German divisions busy in the Breton peninsula, and now those two divisions have been trapped by the advancing Allied forces. That is a remarkable feat for a comparatively small and lightly equipped force. But the French patriots have been doing wonders everywhere; it is estimated that they have killed 10,000 Germans during the past two months.

The Allied troops have been given a most effusive welcome by the people of Brittany. When they landed in Normandy the Normans seemed cautious, reticent and almost apathetic toward the men who had come to set their country free. This was not altogether surprising; the Normans have been a suspicious, guarded people all through their history. Quite the contrary is the case with the Breton folk. They are Celts, very near to the Welsh people in race and language, and they express their feelings freely and unmistakeably. Apparently they have signalized their delight at the approach of the Allies with an unparalleled series of guerilla attacks on the enemy.

The vigour of the underground resistance in France probably comes as a surprise to the Germans, and adds another burden to the weight which they now carry. Affairs in the Reich itself are desperately unsettled: Hitler is trying to set matters right by a gory purge of the army, but one of his most distinguished Generals on the Russian front has deserted to the enemy, and his ambassador to the Vatican has repudiated the government of the Third Reich. The pressure in the East continues to be more than German forces can resist, and in the West the German outlook grows bleaker every day. Too late the German leader and his nation will discover that the human spirit is unfailingly resilient, and that mere force of arms cannot quell that spirit for very long.

Dumbarton Oaks

On August 14 representatives of the United States, Russia, China and Great Britain will begin a series of informal discussions at Dumbarton Oaks, a fine old estate in the District of Columbia; the purpose of the discussions is to clarify the ambitions and intentions of the great powers on the matter of the peace which will follow this war. What do they want? What are they prepared to do? To what extent are they ready to modify their individual ambitions for the general good? These are the matters which will be discussed at Dumbarton Oaks.

These discussions are merely a beginning of great deliberations. It is not expected that anything final or irrevocable will be decided. It does not lie in the power of Russia, China, the U.S. and Britain to decide the form which peace will take while the war is still being fought, and without giving the other United Nations a chance to say their say. But the representatives of the great nations can explore one another's minds, and learn what is possible and what is not. And thus a great deal of time may be saved at the great peace conference which will follow the war.

Obviously that conference will be a very prolonged, weighty and formal affair. It is also possible that weeks and months of time may be wasted in discussions which serve only to clarify the situation, without in the least helping toward a decision. That is why the meeting at Dumbarton Oaks is useful; it will save time later.

For the last couple of centuries the British idea of diplomacy has been to bring the parties to any dispute into the closest possible contact; the "round table discussion" has been Britain's particular contribution to international arbitration. In a pleasantly informal atmosphere many things can be discussed which do not fit naturally into the pattern of full-dress debate. The atmosphere of Dumbarton Oaks is ideal for such a discussion to clarify the aims of the four great warring nations. Let us hope that the conference will be fruitful of ideas for co-operation in maintaining the peace.

That Imported Prejudice Again

In two recent editorials we have commented upon the fact that the American troops in Britain appear to be communicating their prejudice against negroes to a certain class of British people—a very foolish class, we should say. The Americans have a lively race problem in their homeland, and the way in which they deal with it is not the direct concern of anyone else; but it would be unfortunate if they spread their prejudice to a country where there is no similar problem, and where negroes have always been treated on terms of equality.

The matter cropped up again a few days ago when a West Indian negro appeared in a Liverpool court on a charge of missing Home Guard parades; his defence was that when he went to a dance-hall dressed in his Home Guard uniform, he was refused admittance, and he resigned from that body because of the slight. The judge fined him one farthing, and delivered a judgement which we think deserves wide publicity. Here it is:

"I am told that the position of coloured people in this country has somewhat changed since the nationals of another of our allies joined us in this country.

"If anything that I may say may offend citizens of some other Allied countries, let me say that the Allied nations make up a democratic world, and if they have colour prejudice they must occasionally come into collision with people who have not. I happen to be one who has not.

"When people come here to risk their lives I think they are entitled to think that they are coming to conditions of decency and order. If they find that a noisy and intolerant minority are not prepared to give them equal rights, I think they have a right to be angry.

"It is impertinence for any country to accept the aid of coloured people from any part of the world and then say 'Our laws don't enable us to deal with you on terms of complete equality'."

This is a vigorous and democratic statement. Prejudice against negroes is one aspect of the vicious and fallacious doctrine of racism, which has too strong a hold in Canada. Wherever racism appears it must be stamped on, and the strong condemnation of this English judge has done a service to the cause of liberty everywhere.

"Into Each Life..."

It was Henry Wadsworth Longfellow who wrote:

Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.

From these lines we deduce that at some time Longfellow must have worked on a daily newspaper. Some rain fell into the lives of the Examiner editorial staff last Wednesday. That was the day we printed Little Benny's Notebook under the heading Bible Message.

There is no excuse for our seeming attempt to palm off a passage beginning "We were starting to eat breakfast and pop said, I feel bersting with energy and good will this morning..." as Holy Writ. It was particularly inexcusable that this should appear on a day when we tore into the modernizers of the Bible in a long editorial. The incident could hardly have been more ill-omened.

There was a reason for it, which we shall not explain. There are secrets in all trades, and a man who betrays a trade secret in order to avoid just blame and contumely is a poor craftsman. We prefer to forget the whole matter and face the future bravely.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is estimated that there are 70,000,000 dogs in the world. If that's all there are, some of them must be visiting our garbage can twice a night.

It is estimated that 97.44 people in this Province can read and write. The next job is to get them to read and write more critically.

The America Firsters have nominated the Rev. Gerald K. Smith for the presidency of the United States. We understand that Mr. Dewey is not seriously worried that this will split the anti-Roosevelt vote.

When a lion escaped from a zoo in Denver and chased a boy, a hastily improvised safari captured the beast. For the boy, says the Kingston Whig-Standard, it was safari exciting experience. Personally, we take a very high lion with punsters.

There is a rumour that General Sir Bernard Montgomery may seek a career in politics after the war. If he does, we wonder what he will do about his curious trick of repeating everything he says two or three times? That is not unknown in Parliament, of course, but it is not usually carried quite so far.

Canada's Chief of State

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT was Edmund Burke (who should have known) who said: "A disposition to preserve, and an ability to improve, taken together, would be my standard of a statesman." Beyond any question the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King has these qualities of statesmanship in the greatest degree, and at the end of his quarter century as leader of the Liberal Party in this country, Canada should recognize the fact. Nevertheless, at this particular time I approach with trepidation the task of reviewing "Mackenzie King" by Emil Ludwig (Macmillan) which reached my desk last week. There are a great many people in Canada who can see no good in Mr. King at all, and a great many who can see no bad in him, and a great many people in Canada who know nothing about him, but who incline to the opinion that all politicians are doubtful characters, and grow in dubiety with the years. Nor is it possible to review Ludwig's book simply as a piece of writing, for it is not sufficiently large in its scope to be so treated. My own wish is that the book were 300 pages long, instead of 62 pages, and that it approached its subject in a less reverential manner; the time has not yet come to write a full biography of Mr. King, but Emil Ludgwig might have told us a few things which we did not know already.

MR. King's life can only be made interesting reading if we are to be given a detailed account of his career. There is nothing in the lives of most statesmen, authors, musicians or scientists which is immediately interesting to the public; these people all do their most important work in their heads, and unless we are told about their development in some detail they seem dull. There is no love story, no buccaneering, no obvious drama, nothing that Hollywood would call "box-office" in Mr. King's life; there is, however, the story of one of the shrewest, best-informed, most far-sighted, most successful and most brilliant political minds of the British Commonwealth, and unless we are shown something of that mind we see nothing of the man. Mr. King is uncompromisingly reticent about his private affairs; there are no stories about his private life of the kind which have gathered around the careers of Churchill and Roosevelt. Mr. King is a statesman, and a statesman only; he does not wish to be known as anything else. And a statesman is a mind. Leave out the mind and you have no biography.

LUDWIG has not attempted to give us the mind of Mackenzie King. He presents the Prime Minister to us as a man of sentiment, and some sentimentality; as a particularly gracious host; as a scholar fond of books and retirement; as a man with a strong regard for the memory of his mother; as a man with a deep consciousness that his grandfather was a rebel, desperately ill-treated by the Tories; as a man who knows that many unjust and contemptible charges are made against him, and who does not care; but these men, interesting as they are, are not the essential King. The man who has led a political party for twenty-five years, and who has been in power for seventeen of those years is something more than the reticent gentleman drawn by Emil Ludwig.

MACKENZIE King is an admirable subject for a biographer, and Mr. Ludwig, who has written so many good biographies, surely knows it. Mr. King is paradoxical in so many of the vital aspects of his character that a biographer could present him with the most elaborate and arresting chiaroscuro, without falsifying his portrait in the least. Mr. King's speeches are often long, prosy and pedestrian in language, and his voice and delivery are not impressive, but he can move an audience as the well-graced Meighen was never able to do: Mr. King seems to delay, to go roundabout, and to falter in his pursuit of an object, but he reaches his goal quicker than any other statesman Canada has ever had: he makes no attempt to ingratiate himself with the electorate, and he shuns personal publicity, yet he is trusted and returned to power while opponents with brazen trumpets sink into obscurity. The explanation of this paradoxical personality is that Mackenzie King is a man of great and compelling intellect, which dwarfs his opponents and his other personal handicaps. He has outsoared his master, Laurier, without a tithe of Laurier's personal magnificence, because he is, in the realm of thought, a greater man than his master.

ONE complete volume in the admirable "Makers of Canada" series is devoted to the life of Laurier; nothing less could give an adequate account of Mackenzie King's long stewardship. As Ludwig says, what King has done makes a great record of achievement, but equal importance must be attached to the disasters which he has prevented, the scope and terror of which are still unknown. The great problem of his career has been national unity — the problem which was also of chief concern to Laurier; in his efforts to preserve national unity he has done many things which his opponents hold against him, and this is one of the prices of his great success. For it has fallen to Mackenzie King, and not to any of his opponents, to do most of the work for preserving national unity during the past twenty-five years, and the protestations of his opponents as to what they would do if they were in power would undoubtedly undergo quick revision if by any chance they ever did get into power. The parallel between French and English Canada, and the North and South of the U.S.A. has never, to my knowledge, been fully discussed in this country, but who doubts that Mackenzie King is fully aware of it; who doubts that he seeks to preserve our union by peaceful means?

EMIL Ludwig calls his little book 'a portrait sketch,' and that is the best description of it; it is a charming essay—a note for a full biography. When that biography is written Canada will recognize that for seventeen years, if no more, its fate lay in the hands of a man who was the equal, at least, of Laurier. The perspective of time, which lessens the stature of so many men, will add to the figure of Mackenzie King.

NO SUCKER!

Stopping a passerby-by outside a police station, a constable said: "Could you spare a minute to come inside, sir?"

"What for?" was the suspicious answer.

"To take part in an identity parade," the constable explained. "You won't be kept five minutes."

"May-be!" snorted the passer-by. "They told me that yarn last time and I was kept three months."

Phooey On Fitness!

(By J. H. GRAY)

WE have no objection to physical fitness as such, or even to physical jerks, or good health, or playing games, but if the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie and his Major Eisenhardt would ask us, we'd tell them that their whole physical fitness campagin is a lot of malarky.

We have been reading Major Eisenhardt's panegyrics on physical fitness. What the Major seems to have in mind is to turn the country into one gigantic athletic field. All the kids will be rounded up and put to playing games which will build their bodies and character. Or, as he puts it:

"It is on the playing fields, during leisure time, that society can be shaped. To the child, physical training and games will give the incentive to strive for perfection, to fight fairly, and in the fortunes of sport, the winning and the losing can, when properly used, instil modesty, gentleness and strength. Games and sport will teach the child obedience without reticence. They can bring out individuality and at the same time make the individuality disappear when the team spirit demands it."

All this sounds pretty high-falutin' but it is still malarky. Unfortunately, in Major Eisenhardt's scheme of things, there is no place for the boys and girls who find games a monumental bore, who would rather sneak off and read a book, climb a tree, lie in the sun or go fishing. And they, incidentally, constitute the vast majority.

WHAT the evangelists of sport have their eye on is organizing everything for everybody. They will spend millions of dollars, eventually, laying out fields which they will use to regiment everybody into engaging in games, whether they like it or not.

It is true, of course, that the war has shown us that we are not all potential physical instructors when it comes to the state of our bodies. All kinds of queer defects show up when army physicals are taken. Yet one fact which the sporting cult never mentions is the extremely high proportion of athletes who are rejected for military service because of physical defects—defects often traced directly to athletics. Literally scores of star ball players have been rejected in the United States. Yet these young fellows can hit baseballs, catch, throw and run with superb skill. Nor are those who are accepted exactly what the country needs as fighting men. They won't do as front line soldiers so they are sent to the training grounds as physical instructors.

THERE has, moreover, been altogether too much loose talk about the superlative merit of athletics as an agency for character building. If there was anything at all to the theory, the German herrenvolk would have the loveliest characters on earth for regimented sport has been a prominent feature of German nation. It was used not to build character but to build strong bodies for the army; not to obtain "obedience without reticence" but to obtain blind obedience and fanatical faith in an unspeakable despotism.

The peculiar quality in individuals which we call character comes not from the development of muscles but from the development of personality. It is the final product of a person's inheritance, his environment, his actions and reactions, his susceptability to influence from without and to reason from within. The stronger the character of the individual, the less will he be amenable to the regimentation and pushing around that is involved in any national physical fitness campaign.

If there was anything in the theory of character-building through the muscles, we would expect to find athletes moving quickly from leadership in national affairs. Yet when an athlete rises above the common herd it is so unusual as to give the sports writers the dithers. Indeed, no matter what eminence he achieves in business, professional life or politics, his record as a hockey player or baseballer is dragged into everything he does.

By all means, let us build more neighbourhood parks, playgrounds and swimming pools for the kids. But having done that, let's retire from the picture. Those who want to use them will use them, and with great joy and benefit. Those who do not, will not, and will probably be the better for it in the end. There is something far more valuable to a civilization than a race of strong-backed men and women. That something is a race of people who can think with soundness and clarity.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHILD BONUS

Sir,—In the press and on the radio a great deal has been said about child bonus, which is to assist the low wage man to raise and educate his family; something must be done to balance off the high cost of living for the family who earn less than it costs to live. What does it cost a man with three or four children to live today. I am just such a man and we pay cash for everything we buy and listed is the way we plan our money: rent $25, fuel $11, light, water and gas $5, clothes $15, groceries, meat, milk, fruit and vegetables $15 weekly or $60 a month, note 3 quarts milk daily costs $9.90 a month, church, Sunday School collection and school fees $4. I am allowed $3 per week for tobacco, bus fare and balance for other items, am non-drinker. Wife takes $3 per week for her and children, this covers their recreation along with such things as presents, parties, show, ball game, bus fare, pop, ice cream and a donation to the 15 tag days each year. Five dollars per month for doctor and dentist, $8 per month for 2 weeks holidays and Christmas money, insurance for family mostly myself costs $8 per month, $5 per month to replace household goods that wear out and as a savings $2 per week this to take care of unforseen expenses such as death in family, relatives, accident, sickness, medicine, some of this will be used to send parcel to boy overseas who is 19½ and flying over Europe now. Total living expenses are $180 a month. I earn 60c an hour, 55 hours week, equals $33 and out of this I have to pay taxes, unemployment insurance, factory fees, union fees, so I am $12 a week in the red or I earn $12 less than it costs me to live.

There are hundreds of men in this fair city earning 40c to 50c an hour working 48 hours a week, how do we make ends meet. Well, we rent a room, and I earn some money on the side after hours and I put in ¼ acre garden. How does some of these families live on $18 to $25 a week is a mystery; they don't live in fact, they hardly exist. Mr. Gordon K. Fraser addressed a club a few days ago and said we have the highest standard of living of any country in the world; no doubt we have, it's so high that we can't keep up with it. It was stated in the press some while ago that 62 per cent of the working men in Canada made less than $1,200 a year. (Government figures from income tax returns.) Many homes in Peterborough have 3 families living in them, in a home of 9 rooms, 17 were living in it, 7 adults. Every family should have a separate home, living by yourself gives a great deal of peace of mind to mother and children.

No doubt the Government has wakened up to the fact that some thing must be done, and in a canvass of 50 men at factory found only 13 against this bonus plan and they agreed living costs were too high for money earned. Let the Government cut out the waste in spending taxpayers' money and this child bonus bill could be doubled twice over. Waste of public funds can be seen quite easily today and in war time or peace waste should not be tolerated.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space to print this letter and if you would or any one else outline a budget where I could cut my living costs down I would certainly appreciate it.

Yours truly,
WORKING MAN.

SOCIAL BETTERMENT

Sir,—Thanks for your editorials, last week, against the Pillory—I read them both.

Your Editorial Comment on that subject is interesting to me because, my observation and interest regards Social activities has convinced me that the idea of punishment (and reward) is among the greatest, and most insidious, of human follies.

When I am reminded of the pillory, I can visualize, among others, an outstanding writer, Daniel Defoe (author of Robinson Crusoe) fixed in the pillory on three successive days in the eighteenth century, simply because an article that he wrote displeased, or disagreed with the ideas of some powerful organizations, and I recall that the pillory was a potential means of punishment in the U.S.A. until as recent a time as the last presidential administration of Theodore Roosevelt, in this the 20th century. Knowledge of this sort inclines me to think that hope for social betterment is merely a form of hysteria.

There is innate to man, a love of justice whether he is of a tribe of noble savages, or belongs to a gang of organized terrorists—if the desire could be guided by knowledge founded on fact, and leads to wisdom I think it reasonable to suppose that our psychology (behaviour) would be good, but if our teaching generates ignorance only a bad psychology can be expected.

When we learn the principles of mechanics or the timetable we get information that tends to give us an intelligent viewpoint on those subjects, and we can all agree, but our economic teaching tends to destroy any logical sense of values—in all classes—and we disagree, and argue, not only on that precept, but on most of curriculum pertaining to social activities.

A Bible Message

Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else. I have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear.

Surely, shall one say, in the Lord have I righteousness and strength: even to him shall men come; and all that are incensed against him shall be ashamed. In the Lord shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory. (Isa. 45: 22-25.)

For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many,) but to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him. (I Cor. 8: 5, 6.)

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. (Col. 2: 8.)

Unconsidered Trifles

He went to the grocer's, and the grocer, looking at the franc, said: "Why, that's a franc," and handed it back.

He then went to the chemist, and the chemist said that the coin was of foreign extraction, and useless to him.

"Good heavens, so it is!" exclaimed Mr. Smith. "I wonder where I got that?"

"Don't you know, daddy?" said little John. "That's the one you showed the grocer!"

British View of Peace Measures

The Prime Minister (Mr. Churchill):...I have repeatedly said that unconditional surrender gives the enemy no rights but relieves us from no duties. Justice will have to be done and retribution will fall upon the wicked and the cruel. The miscreants who set out to subjugate first Europe and then the world must be punished and so must their agents who, in so many countries, have perpetrated horrible crimes, and who must be brought back to face the judgment of the population, very likely in the very scenes of their atrocities. There is no question of Germany enjoying any guarantee that she will not undergo territorial changes if it should seem that the making of such changes renders more secure and more lasting the peace of Europe.

Scarred and armed with experience we intend to take better measures this time than could ever previously have been conceived in order to prevent a renewal in the lifetime of our children or our grandchildren at least of the horrible destruction of human values which has marked the last and the present world wars. We intend to set up a world order and organization equipped with all the necessary attributes of power, in order to prevent the breaking out of future wars, or the long planning of them in advance, by restless and ambitious nations.—Hansard Report, House of Commons, Wesminster.

Gradual Retreat To Germany For Final Fight

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

With Hitler bent on a finish fight —if he can force his armies and home front to support him—the question naturally arises as to where he intends to make his stands against the Allied drives in the western and eastern theatres.

First we must note that his general strategy provides for delaying action while he retires as gradually as possible to the borders of Germany itself. This strategy will persist, although there will be tactical innovations to meet emergencies.

For instance, the Germans predict an invasion of Southern France through the Rhone valley. Should that take place it would create a fresh crisis for Hitler, but it wouldn't alter his broad program of retirement for a last-ditch fight on his own borders.

Delaying Action

In France the Fuehrer is swinging his front in the invasion zone back to the northeast, using the bloody Caen sector as his pivot. A dispatch from Spain says he even has abandoned his Atlantic defences in Southwest France, except for a light guard, and is withdrawing his troops northward because of the Allied successes in Normandy and Brittany.

Yesterday's unsuccessful German counter-attack against the Americans in the Avranches sector fits into this picture perfectly. It was purely defensive and was calculated to delay the Allied advance towards Paris, thereby safeguarding the Nazi retreat.

The main German retirement will be northeastward covering both Paris and the vital English Channel coast. Hitler will defend Paris if he can, but he likely will find it a hot potato to hold. He must protect the coast during his retreat in order to prevent the Allies from pouring troops and equipment into France across the narrow part of the channel and cutting his line of withdrawal. This area also is the nesting ground for the robot bombs which he hopes will crack British morale.

26 Years Ago Germans Beaten

By The Canadian Press

Tuesday was 26th anniversary of the "black day of the German Army" in the First Great War—the day the German high command decided the war was lost.

On Aug. 8, 1918, Marshal Foch launched his great offensive into the Albert-Montdidier salient in the Somme sector. Led by 450 tanks, British and French infantry swarmed through the enemy's lines — penetrating up to 7¼ miles on a front of 20 miles and taking so many prisoners that war dispatches at the time said counting was a "difficult task."

The gains that first day of the Allied onslaught were the greatest on the western front since trench warfrae began.

It was the beginning of the end.

Field Marshal Eric von Ludendorff said in later years: "August 8 was the black day of the German Army in the history of the war.... it put the decline of our fighting power beyond all doubt."

Senate Passes Radio Bill

OTTAWA, August 9—(CP)—The Senate Banking and Commerce Committee to-day passed without amendment the bill providing for a full-time chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Board of Governors.

The bill for the incorporation of an Export Credit Insurance Corporation, discussed by the committee previously, also passed was with some minor amendments.

Senator John T .Haig (PC-Manitoba), speaking on the CBC Bill, said with the increase in advertising revenue the corporation enjoyed he did not see the necessity for continuing the licence fee of $2.50 a year. He also suggested more effective mans o collection should be instituted.

War Services Minister LaFleche said money collected in licence fees was turned back to the public in the form of programs. The CBC did not go out to take money from other bodies. In the advertising field, but broadcasting had become a necessity in the eyes of many advertisers.

Senator Rupert Davies (L-Ontario), who said he spoke as the owner of both a newspaper and radio station, said he had found radio advertising in general came from different sources to newspaper advertising.

Senator Edward Michener (PC-Alberta) suggested commercial radio advertising be eliminated on Sundays.

General LaFlache said he was sympathetic to this view but doubted whether any actio ncould be taken by the CBC.

They Can't Sleep

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—(AP).—Nearby residents declare that when the "world's finest doghouse," a marble-floored former public bath, was converted into an A.S.P.C.A. shelter an important item was overlooked—soundproofing. Yesterday 150 wrathful women complained in Bronx magistrate's court that the neighborhood hasn't had a good night's sleep since the dogs began to bark after the shelter was opened last July 19.

Defence Minister J. L. Ralston Says New Service Hospital At St. Thomas

OTTAWA, Aug. 9—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston said yesterday in the Commons that an air force officer went to St. Thomas, Ont., recently to see what the possibilities were for the R.C.A.F. providing the pensions department with the use of a part of the building now used as No. 1 Technical Training Centre for a hospital.

Speaking during discussion of hospital facilities for service casualties, Col. Ralston said that when the R.C.A.F. officer returned he made a report "which I presume was in due course reported to the premier of Ontario and lead to the letter which he sent to the prime minister of Canada."

(In a letter written to Prime Minister King, Premier Drew said Mr. King was aware that the pressure on hospital accommodation for military cases is to be increased enormously in the next few weeks," but did not explain his statement.

(In a statement to the press Premier Drew said he had offered the use of the St. Thomas hospital as a temporary measure.)

Col. Ralston said he had been informed that the St. Thomas hospital will be a "very useful, convenient and suitable institution for this purpose," and added: "It is ready made and the army are taking steps in connection with the air force camp at London to provide additional hospital facilities there."

"I remember a complaint which was made to me—I am not going to say by whom but it was by a very distinguished gentleman, who complained bitterly to me that the air force was closing down in London in order to make it into a hospital for army purposes when St. Thomas was right there beside them and they could just as well use that," said Col. Ralston.

"He did not understand the situation, that St. Thomas was being provided for pensions and national health because it is a very much more permanent structure."

Plazas Capture 3rd Game Of Play-offs

Plazas came from behind to win the third game of their City League semi-final series with the Soldiers at Riverside Park Tuesday evening 6 to 4 and they now lead the best-of-five round 2 games to 1 with the fourth battle coming up Thursday night.

Soldier inability to hit with ducks on the pond cost them the ball game. Terry Woods who was the Plaza pitching choice passed ten of the Military players but they had trouble in hitting him in the clutches with the result that fourteen Soldier baserunners were left on the sacks.

Although running into two or three wild spells Woods was not hit hard and was brilliantly supported. The Halifax lad was not in there at the finish however for after he had passed three men to fill the bases in the eighth he was relieved by Frank Stokoe who with the assistance of a fine catch by Mike Conroy in left field retired the side and then shot the Soldiers down in order in the final frame. Plazas were trailing 4 to 2 when they went to bat in the sixth but they bunched three hits with a pass in that inning to go out in front 5 to 4 and Jim Ellis polished off the win with a long homer to deep left centre in the eighth. There was no one on.

It was a costly game for the Soldiers for they lost the services of Pete Procyk, pitcher and centre fielder, for the rest of the season. He stumbled over first base in the fifth inning and fell heavily, fracturing his shoulder. He was carried off the field and then taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Earl Revoir went the route for the losers and pitched a steady game, yielding only one base on balls.

Smart Fielding

There was a lot of smart fielding. Murphy, a new shortstop for the Soldiers who hails from Brockville turned in a fine card and Tony McIlveen pulled down a drive from Blewett that saved a couple of runs. For Plazas Pryde and Conroy had fine catches in left field, Joe Blewett made a beautiful throw from centre field to third to cut of a runner and Ellis had a difficult catch of a high one back of first.

Plazas started the scoring in the first. Heal beat out a bunt and went to second on a wild pitch. Pryde fanned. Burton rolled out, Heal going to third. He scored when Blewett was safe on a slow tap to Anderson, the play going for a hit.

Soldiers came back with three in the second to go out in front. Murphy walked to open the frame, went to second on Herrick's sacrifice and to third on a wild pitch. Thomlinson singled on a line into right scoring Murphy. Paris walked. Revoir reached for a high ball and got a pop single into centre, filling the bases. Anderson walked, forcing in Thomlinson. Morgan singled to centre, scoring Thomlinson. McIlveen was called out on strikes and Procyk forced Revoir at the plate.

Plazas cut the gap in two in the third when Woods doubled to left, went to third on Heal's sacrifice and ran in on Pryde's single which nearly took the wirst off Paris. Burton was tossed out by Paris and McIlveen pulled down Joe Blewett's good bid for a homer.

There was no more scoring until the first of the sixth when the Soldiers added another. With two out Anderson and Morgan walked and McIlveen singled down the first base line. Woods passed Mortimer, forcing in Anderson and Murphy raised a high fly back of first on which Ellis made a fine catch.

Plazas won out in their half. Blewett laced a single between short and third. Starr flied to Mortimer in centre. Ellis walked. Tucker's roller to third forced Blewett at the base but George Hawks crashed a double into left to send Ellis in and then Woods helped win his own game with a single to short left, scoring Tucker and Hawks. Heal popped to Anderson for the third out.

With the exception of Jim Ellis' long homer with one out in the eighth that was the final scoring. Soldiers had a chance in the seventh when Paris walked with two out and Revoir laced a single to left. Paris tried to go to third on the play and Blewett cut him down with a fine throw to Hawks.

Again in the eighth Soldiers lost another golden opportunity. Anderson walked and although Morgan and McIlveen were easy outs Mortimer and Murphy drew passes to fill the bases. Stokoe relieved Woods on the hilltop and got out of the hole when Herrick flied deeply to left centre and Mike Conroy went back to snare the drive.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Switchgear, first place team in the City Softball League and U.E.W who finished fourth will tie into each other tonight at Riverside Park in the second game of their semi-final series The battle will start at 6.45 o'clock and should produce one of the most exciting tussles of the season. U.E.W. knocked the dope for a loop in the opening game of the round when they smothered the leaders 19 to 8 with Mac McPherson doing the throwing for the winners. The Union stepped into two of Manager Murph Chambers' good pitchers. Ronnie Akers and Freddy Elliott as if they were just a couple of fellows named Joe and handed Switchgear much the worst beating they had taken all season. Now the leaders have to try to square the argument with a win tongiht and as the chances are they will find themselves facing the speedy Hatty Eakins of Lindsay the task of beating Union becomes increasingly difficult. Both clubs expect to be at full strength Manager Chambers has not yet intimated which of his pitchers he will start tonight. The same two clubs meet Friday night in the third game of the semi-final series which is a best-three-of-five arrangement.

Plazas and Soldiers battle again tomorrow night in the fourth game of their series and Soldiers are now fighting with their backs to the wall. Plazas took the third fixture Tuesday night and now need only one more win to grab off the round. On the other hand Military Training Centre can tie up the series with two wins each by heading off their opposition in tomorrow night's argument. These two teams always supply plenty of fireworks. There is intense rivalry between the two outfits and the Military Training Centre would like nothing better than to eliminate Plazas, the members of which team have knocked out the Soldiers in the playoffs for the past two seasons but only after a tough argument on both occasions. The present series is living up to the traditions of the past and furnishing the fans with gobs of excitement in every game. Tomorrow night's struggle with Soldiers facing elimination should prove one of the best of the season. Revoir will pitch for the Soldiers while Plazas will start either Frank Stokoe or Dave Wilson. The game is billed to get under way at 6.45 sharp and will likely attract the biggest crowd of the whole campaign.

Sunday Morning Class

One of the biggest events of the softball season will be the visit here on Saturday August 19 of the famous Toronto Sunday Morning Class one of the best-known and best-dressed girls' teams in the country. Featuring Thelma Golden Fidler, one of Canada's greatest girl pitchers, the Sunday Morning Class will bring all their regulars here for a battle with a Peterborough team selected from Westclox and Aircraft. The proceeds will be turned over to the Kinsmen's charities and the Toronto team, anxious to make a worthwhile contribution to such a worthy cause are coming down at their own expense, a generous gesture that should be appreciated by local fans. The Sunday Morning Class draws record crowds where ever it plays because of the quality of ball dished up by the team and the striking swing skirt costumes worn by the players. The coming to Peterborough of such a colorful attraction makes the game one of the events of the summer. The Kinsmen who have sponsored two appearances of the famous Toronto Tip Tops in Peterborough have put the sporting community deeper in their debt by arranging for the visit of this celebrated girls' team.

* * * * * *

Westclox seniors will be seen in action again tonight at the Ashburnham Bowl when they hook up with Brintons in what should prove an interesting game all the way. The Brinton team which won the intermediate championship of the league for the past two seasons while the Big Bens were grabbing off the senior honors have always been successful in gviing the leaders plenty of opposition and in this second last clash of the season with Westclockers they will do their utmost to wind up with a victory over the champs. The latter, anxious to keep in shape for the playoffs, are taking the game with due seriousness and will have a strong lineup in action against the team from the big carpet plant. There has been no announcement from either camp as to the pitching selections for tonight Westclox are having a busy week. They clash with Johnson Motors on Thursday night and then finish their regular schedule with another game with Brintons billed for Friday night.

* * * * * *

The Peterborough City League, according to the playoff schedule announced by the O.A.S.A. must have a representative team ready to enter the provincial intermediate A series by Monday August 21, which means that there will have to be games at every opportunity to get a winner in time. The Peterborough representatives are billed to meet the Trenton winners at Trenton on August 21 and the return game is scheduled for here on Wednesday, August 23, with the third game if necessary on Friday, August 25. The Oshawa winners get a bye in the first round while Belleville and Kingston clash. The winners of this latter bracket on the other hand get the benefit of the bye in the second round which sees Oshawa play on the home diamond of the Trenton-Peterborough winners on August 28, the second game staged at Oshawa on August 30 and the third fixture if necessary on September 2. The winner of that series will meet the Belleville-Kingston winners in the zone final on September 5, 9 and 11, if a third fixture is reqired. The opening playoff date leaves the local league less than two weeks to get the semi-finals completed and the final series run off.

Oshawa's playoffs to decide the intermediate A representative in the provincial playdowns are billed to get under way tonight. The Colts who are a senior B entry playing in the Big Four with the other three intermediate clubs finished at the top of the heap with ten wins and one defeat and behind them came the O.K. Billiards team and General Motors Main Office each of which won four games during the regular schedule and will meet in the playoffs tonight, leaving Robson Leather as the only team eliminated. From the Oshawa dope O.K. Billiards are favored as likely winners, although the Main Office has played some fine ball and had the satisfaction of being the only team in the loop to win a game from the Colts. Incidentally there are two intermediate A groups in Oshawa, the second one a Union affair and the winners of the two loops will play off to see which will represent the Motor City in the provincial playdowns. It is not considered probable that the Union champs will have much chance against the Big Four winners. In other words the likely Oshawa contenders will be either O.K. Billards or General Motors Main Office. Either one looks capable of proving tough opposition in the provincial competition.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: City League headquarters announces that playoff teams may expect to be ordered to play Saturday if necessary to get the semi-finals wound up this week.... Soldiers got 18 runners on the bases last night and were only able to drive two home; the other two runs were walked in. Plazas on the other hand put only 11 on the runways but they batted in six runs.... That was the difference between the two teams in the third battle.... Two of the Plaza alumni home on furlough from active service were on the winners' bench last night in the persons of Don Crowe, R.C.A.F. and Julian Wade, R.C.N.V.R..... Don Coughlin also sat in with his old hockey buddies for the battle.... Soldiers have a find in Murphy, the new shortstop who hails from Brockville and has just arrived at the Military Training Centre.... The injury to Pete Procyk will be regretted by everybody.... The Winnipeg boy is one of the most popular members of the Soldier team and has played good ball for them.... Plazas had a full roster last night for the first time in the playoffs.... Loss of Procyk will force Soldiers to send Earl Revoir back at the Plazas again tomorrow night. The big fellow has been beaten twice in the series, although it was close both times.... The rival pitchers in last night's game blazed the trail for the hitters.... Terry Woods had three hits for Plazas and Earl Revoir was the only Soldier batter to get more than one.

Robson, Spittal Compete In Invitation Open

TORONTO, Aug. 9—Thirty-eight professional and 26 amateur golfers are scheduled to tee off in the $5,000 added Maple Leaf Invitation Open golf championship tournament at Scarboro course Thursday morning.

Canada's Biggest Pot

The field, which will include most of Canada's outstanding shotmakers and three invited moneyed artists from across the border, will be asked to go a 72-hole route march for the imposing pot of gold and merchandise prizes. To the winners will go $3,000, according to plans of the sponsors, the biggest purse ever set up for a golf tournament in the Dominion.

To Distribute $5,000

Plans of the tournament call for distribution of a guaranteed $5,000 in purses as well as all receipts taken in at the box office. The tournament committee is headed by Dick Borthwick, Bob Burns and Bob Gray, well-known local pros.

The field will go 18 holes Thursday, the same distance Friday and finish with 36 holes Saturday over one of the toughest golfing tests in the country. It was here Slammin' Sam Snead lifted the Canadian Open title in 1940 after an 18-hole playoff with Jug McSpaden.

All Open Champions

The Maple Leaf Open was designed as a family affair for Canada's leading professional linksmen.' The committee decided to invite half a dozen of America's outstanding golf figures. The draw reveals that three have accepted, Leo Diegel, Al Watrous and Joe Kirkwood, all former Canadian Open titleholders. Popular Al Watrous of Detroit's Oakland Hills course won in 1922, Diegel lifted the prize four times. He hit first in 1924, repeated in 1925 and came back to win again in 1928 and 1929. Joe Kirkwood topped the parsmashers in 1933, with an eight-stroke margin over Harry Cooper and Peterborough's Lex Robson. Kirkwood had 282 and his pursuers 290.

Diegel defeated one of the Open's classiest international fields in 1928, including Archie Compston, Walter Hagen and Mac Smith, who tied for second place, two strokes behind him. In 1930 Diegel tied Tommy Armour for first place. Armour won a 36-hole playoff.

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

GOSHEN, N. Y., August 9 —(AP) —It is customery on Hambletonian day to refer to the scene of Harness racing's greatest classic as a "sleepy Little Orange County town." .... At 1 p.m. in Park Square yesterday there was only one person sleeping on a bench. Probably he was just resting up for to-day's job of raking in the city folk's money ...... There's plenty of rural atmosphere around Goshen, but the Hambletonian is mainly a big-town show .... Its the city dwellers who like an outing in the country who make up most of the crowd .... They also provide most of the winners.

Hambletonian handouts:

Yankee Maid, the favorite, didn't suffer a setback until she invaded real Yankee territory to race at Old Orchard, Maine. That was where she broke from her trotting stride for the one-and-only time, too .... Good Time Park, Bill Cane's triangular mile track, is one of two race course in the United States where the grandstand faces the afternoon sun ...... The other is Keeneland, which holds meetings only in the spring and fall as a result.

Former Outfielder Now Pitcher Makes Comeback In Majors At 35

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Editor.

Whether Ben Chapman has successfuly breached the gap between outfielder and pitcher soon will be decided for Ben, an outfielder in the major leagues for 10 years prior to his appointment as manager of Richmond in the Piedmont League is back in the majors as a pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

BEN CHAPMAN

Ben will be working under a handicap, for the Dodgers are anything but a championship ball club this year, and the former speed boy of the majors may have to rely on his ability to hold the foe scoreless and not just hold the score down.

When Ben was in the majors he was one of the better outfielders, winding up 12 years' service with a .302 batting average. Besides his ability at hitting the horsehide he accounted for many runs by his speed on the bases.

"Blazing Ben" also was a "headline" ball player in other ways. He frequently sounded off and frequently got into trouble with umpires and other players.

It was after he became manager of the Richmond team that Ben began pitching. He has shown plenty of class this season, topping the league with 13 victories against five defeats. In one of his most recent efforts he struck out 10 men.

A Nashvile, Tenn., product, Ben broke into baseball as a 19-year-old shortstop for Asheville in the Sally League. He moved up to St. Paul in his second season and was bought by the Yanks in 1930.

Ben played second and third base for Yanks in his first season with the champions, but in 1931 he was shifted to the outfield. As an outfielder he remained during the rest of his major league career, which saw him wear the uniforms of Washington, Boston, Cleveland, and Chicago before being given his unconditional release.

Ben's best year at the plate was 1936, when he hit .340 for Boston.

He was one of the stars of the 1932 World Series and also took part in four Al-Star games.

Most noteworthy of his accomplishments in the majors were his base-stealing feats. Four times he led the league and in one year, 1931, he stole 61 bases.

Off the baseball diamond Ben likes to play golf and to hunt.

Women Produce Golf Upsets

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(AP).—Upsets marked the first round play Tuesday in the Women's Western Amateur golf championship, but three of the highly favored stars — defending titlist, Dorothy Germain; medalist, Sally Sessions, and veteran, Phyllis Otto—came through with crushing victories as the field was reduced to 16 contestants.

Last year's co-medalists, Catharine Fox of Bloomfield, N.J., and Kay Byrne of Rye, N.Y., and veteran Ann Casey of Mason City, Iowa, were defeated in a series of surprises.

Jean Hopkins, 28-year-old Cleveland, Ohio, district champion, was one under par in knocking out Miss Casey, 5 and 4.

Marjorie Lindsay, of Decatur, Ill., the 1943 Illinois State champion, was only two over the standard in ousting Miss Byrne, 4 and 3. Mrs. H. M. Sims, of Evanston, Ill., former Minnesota State titlist while residing in St. Paul, defeated Miss Fox, 2 and 1.

DeGlane Gives Referee Rough Passage

Frank Tunney's wrestling entourage must be feeding on raw meat these days for there was more fireworks packed in Tuesday night's card at the Brock Street Arena than for many a moon. It was action plus all the way.

Whipper Billy Watson and the hard-hitting and capable Dr. Len Hall fought a gruelling battle to a draw in the main bout after an hour's exciting milling. Pierre DeGlane went berserk in his semi-final match with John Katan and finally was disqualifed for slamming Referee Maxwell all over the ring and Joe Maich and Joe Christie, usually two amicalbe young fellows, mixed it so strenuously that they were both counted out while battling on the arena floor after going through the ropes.

The DeGlane-Katan argument came close to stealing the show and while the fiery Frenchman lost the official verdict he had the satisfaction of giving both Katan and Referee Maxwell a real man-handling before he was disqualified.

This big and experienced grappler Doc. Hall proved worthy opposition for Champion Billy Watson in the main item on the card. A master craftsman in the mat game with a knowledge of all the legitimate and most of the illegal stuff favored by the top notchers, the burly Doc. gave the British Empire title holder one of the toughest matches he has had here.

Each Takes Fall.

Each took a fall with his favorite hold. Watson threw Hall in 14 minutes with the deadly unconscious commando hold which by the way the Doc claimed to be nothing but a strangle. Hall evened it up in 19 minutes with his version of the pile drive hold ,featured by World Champion Bill Longson. Then the two battled for the rest of the hour without another fall and it was a deadlock.

There was plenty of action all the way. Hall did not back up any and in the early stages he made it plenty tough for the Whipper. He got away with a lot of hair-pulling, finger stamping and other outside-the-code tactics. In fact, it was his eagerness to toss Watson off the platform that finally cost him the first all. He had thrown the champ out and hammered him back again when Watson was climbing back in. When he tried it the second time, however, the Whip came through the ropes with a battering ram flying tackle that spilled the big Doc and Watson siftened him up with a few elbow punches and a couple of flying mares and then applied the commando with the usual result.

Piledriver Does It.

Hall came back strong in the second round. Watson tried a lot of stuff on him, including the whip, arm stretches and twists and about everything in his repertoire but the Doc rode out the storm. Finally he got his chance to tame the Whip with a series of punches to the head and then came the pile driver. Watson managed to slip out of the first one but Hall promptly slammed it on again and the second application of the Longson killer did the trick.

The Whip had the edge in the short time left before the final bell and Hall was in bad shape when the hour ended. In fact, the gong saved him.

DeGlane Goes Berserk.

Pierre DeGlane, the French-Canadian stylist who met John Katan, subbing for Nanjo Singh in the semi-final, after the Hindoo had been suspended for assaulting a referee at Niagara Falls, is a stout supporter of Premier Godbout and some one must have whispered to him last night that the Quebec Government wasn't doing so well in yesterday's election. Anyway, he suddenly went wild in his struggle with Katan and the bout wound up in one of the stormiest passages in months. It had been rough, tough and nasty from the beginning with

Lisenbee Hurls No-Hitter Over Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

Hod Lisenbee waited until he had 20 years of baseball behind him, and then he pitched his way into the International League Hall of Fame with a no-hitter.

The 42-year-old Syracuse pitcher turned the trick last night against Montreal in the first game of two, 8-0. Only one man reached base, Moe Aderholt spoiling a perfect game when he got a life at first through Charlie Fitzgerald's wild throw in the second.

Only six balls were hit to the outfield, and a neat catch by Dutch Mele took care of the only threatening blow.

After going without one hit in the seven-inning opener, the Royals clouted George Woodened around the lot to gain a split, 10-3. Wayne Collins breezed through to win his 11th.

Blasting out a double win for the third straight day, the Newark Bears pulled up to within half a game of first place as they levelled Toronto, 5-0 and 6-3. The night's work brought their string to 16 triumphs in 19 starts.

Joe Page, sent down by the Yankees, threw a four-hit shutout in the first game and uncorked a two-run home run to boot. Young Don Johnson accounted for his third win without a loss as he set the Leafs down with three runs and five hits.

The slipping Baltimore Orioles were pasted twice by Rochester, 5-2 and 6-5. Kemp Wicker went the route in the first game and scattered eight hits. Lou Sakas, who pitched fine relief ball, got credit for the nightcap.

It was a big night for former big leaguers, as Joe Orrell, formerly with the Detroit Tigers, pitched Buffalo to a 9-6 victory over Jersey City. Andy Seminick's seventh-inning single drove in the winning runs.

15,000 Expected To Attend Race

GOSHEN, N.Y., Aug. 9—(AP)—Yankee Maid, a filly from Kansas, seeks to break Metropolitan New York's two-year hold on the richest stake of the sport long associated with county fairs when she opposes 10 other three-year-old trotters in the Hambletonian today. The $35,000 stake is expected to attract around 15,000.

Yankee Maid will carry the hopes of A. L. Derby, an oil man from Wichita, Kansas, champion two-year-old trotter of 1943 and beaten only by a non-eligible for the Hambletonian in four races this season, the daughters of Volomite is the odds-on-choice to take the $18,467.42 winner's share.

No filly has won the Hambletonian since Shirley Hanover copped the big prize in 1937.

Driven by Henry Thomas, winner with Shirley and also with McLin Hanover in 1938, the Derby filly has been a model for good behavior. She has broken stride only once in two seasons.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, August 9 — (CP). — The current muddle in the British Columbia inter-city lacrosse loop has brought the entire service sport situation back in the limelight again, and has started up more controversy. The Army entry was barred from playing by military authorities part-way through the schedule, but the decision was reversed to allow the squad back in the league, much to the displeasure of the civilian entries.

The three civvy teams, New Westminster, Burrards and Richmond, refused to play the Soldiers after they were reinstated, holding that they had their schedule revised and didn't want to bother changing it again. So they were suspended while league officials pondered the problem.

Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell, viewing the scene with disapproval, suggested some hard and fast policy should be devised, so a military team would know it would be able to play an entire season without interruption and disruption of the schedule, as happened in lacrosse, and last winter in different hockey loops.

The boys in the services want to play, and the fans want to see them. And with thousands of men in the Army camps in Canada it should be possible to obtain replacements even though overseas drafts do cut down their strength.

No one would condone, or wants to see, key men kept at any camp just so they can take part in the sports, but some other plan could be worked out so a team wouldn't be forcibly withdrawn right in the thick of the fight. If that isn't possible, then authorities once and for all should end the mingling of civilian and service teams—an action that none of the fans want to see taken.

Incidentally:

Dave Castilloux, the comebacking ex-R.C.A.F. fighter, has been signed to meet Saint John's Johnny Liford in Halifax next month. The Canadian welted and lightweight titleholder is said to have been offered a hefty purse for the event....Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott says Max Bentley, former high-scoring forward with Chicago Black Hawks, is as good at baseball as he is at hockey. He's playing in the foothills ball loop in Alberta now, and Harry says if the war ends before next summer there's a good chance Max will get a chance in organized pro ball.

Army Planning Big Track Meet

KINGSTON, Aug. 9—The cream of Canadian Army athletes in Military District No. 3 will compete in the district track and field championships to be held at the Cornwall Athletic Grounds on Wednesday, August 23. The meet was previously scheduled for August 16, but has been postponed for one week.

Already several of the camps have picked their 20-men teams through a series of elimination events, and M.D. 3 sports officials are expecting some Canadian Army records may fall when these well-trained soldier-sportsmen go into action.

Teams will compete from Peterborough, Kingston, Ottawa, Cornwall and Brockville. Entries must reach Capt. K. J. Preston, district sports officer and secretary of the M.D. 3 track and field championships, before August 20. After August 16 entries should be mailed to Capt. Preston, care of track and field officer, No. 31, C.I. (B) T.C., Cornwall, and prior to M.D. 3, headquarters, Kingston.

List of Events

The list of events will include: track, 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, 1 mile and 3 miles; field, high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, discuss throw, 16 lb. shot put; relays with batons 4 x 100 yards, shuttle relay, 4 x 220 yards, and track relay.

C.W.A.C. events include the 60 and 100 yards dashes, high and broad jumps, 4 x 60 yard, and shuttle relays, and a tire changing contest.

St. Louis Browns Look To Pennant

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Luke Sewell's St. Louis Browns open their final decisive eastern tour today and even the boss is surprised to find a 6½-game mattress to fall back on if the going gets too tough.

"I didn't realize we had that much of a lead until I read the newspapers," said Sewell, "we just concentrate on trying to win every day. Sure, I'm worried about the Yankees and Red Sox. I'm worried about every club in the league, including Washington. They're all tough and the league is pretty well balanced up."

The big "if" to the Brownies' chances continues to be the current road trip. If the club can play .500 ball or close to it without developing any serious slump tickets can be printed for an all-Sportsman's Park world series. After visiting all eastern cities, St. Louis must stop off at Detroit and Cleveland before going home. After the long jaunt, only five road games in Chicago will remain.

Both leagues resume with a full schedule today after New York's 8-4 nod over Pittsburgh held the Tuesday spotlight. Bill Voiselle kept the giants in fourth place by scattering eight hits and coming through with a double to touch off a 3-run winning spurt in the sixth for his 14th victory.

Aircraft Beats Westclox By 9-8 Count

Breaking an 8-8 deadlock in the first half of the eighth inning, Aircraft chased a run across in their section of the frame, took a decision against the Big Bens with a final count of 9-8 in a Girls' Softball League game on Tuesday evening at Ashburnham Bowl.

Left-handed Pat Wilson pitched for the Aircrafters, sending down only two batters by the swinging route, walking none, and allowing 12 hits. Fourteen-year-old Joyce Withers, hurling for Westclox club, faned three, walked eight and allowed 11 blows. Three homers made an appearance during the game, with Mona Whetung batting one for Westclox and Eleanor Craig hitting two for the Aircraft.

Featuring a close score from the start to finish, the game was a duel of pitchers. At the end of the first three frames Aircraft had batted out a lead of two runs and were in front at 5 to 3. There was no more scoring until the sixth inning, when Westclox' Aggie Anderson scored on a long hit into centre by Viola McLean. Aircraft also ran in one run in the sixth, netted for them when Margaret Batley came down the home stretch to score on a fly by Eleaonor Craig to right field.

The two rival clubs knocked off two runs each in the seventh. Aircraft's runs came when Audrey Patterson walked, Rose Redpath popped to first base, and Helen Hunt drove one to centre and scored Miss Patterson. Miss Hunt's turn to score came when Pat Wilson rolled an easy one to pitcher, who threw it to first.

For Westclox, Marjorie Hawthorne whizzed one through third base, Nona Whetung was safe on an error by Norma Strickland, and Miss Hawthorne scored. Beryl Dobbin flied to centre field, Barbara Rome was out at first, and Verna Patterson shot one through short to score Miss Whetung.

The Big Bens, up to bat in the first of the eighth, tied the game 8 to 8. Isobel Bulock was safe on an easy ball rolled to pitcher, but carelessly dropped at first base by Eleanor Craig. Stealing second and third, she scored when Marjorie Hawthorne batted a hot one into centre field. Miss Hawthorne ran in when Verna Patterson whipped a ball past third.

Aircraft broke the tie with a single run, turned in during their half of the eighth. This concerned a homer, smacked out into a field crowded with people from the City League game at Riverside Park, by Eleanor Craig.

Westclox started things in the ninth with Aggie Anderson smacking a double into centre. Viola McLean flied to first base, and Isobel Bullock flied to second base, manned by Aircrafters' Audrey Patterson. The game was over when Marjorie Hawthorne also popped to Miss Patterson.

ONE-ARMED STAR SOUGHT BY MAJORS — Shown in action here at Memphis, Tenn., is Pete Gray, famed one-armed outfielder of the Memphis Chicks, who is reported being wooed by major league teams, including the Detroit Tigers. Here and There in Sport

In one of the season's most pronounced upsets, Warren Wright's Twilight Tear, held at odds of 1 to 20 and carrying top load of 126 pounds, was beaten by William Woodward's Vienna in the 65th running of the $23,700 Alabama Stakes at Belmont yesterday. It was the first loss for the Tear in 15 starts and the first victory of the year for Vienna, whose first prize money was $18,225. Woodward's filly paid $18.20 straight and there was no place or show wagering.

The death in action on July 29 was reported last night of FO. George Gordon Bradshaw, 31, of Toronto, prominent sculler of the Argonaut Rowing Club. Prior to his enlistment he was coach of the University of Toronto Rowing Club.

Undaunted Britishers Watch Destruction Of 11 Robot Bombs

GORE'S LANDING, August 9 — (ENS). — A letter from the South of England dated July 13 from Mrs. Bulteel was received by her sister in the village this week. Mrs. Bulteel is a granddaughter of the founder of Gore's Landing. Her home is in a section hammered by robot bombs and she writes:

"I am sure you are wondering how we are getting on with the devil's own invention. We are so far safe and well but very weany. Have not undressed and gone properly to bed for a month. They are not quite so plentiful as they were. We did not get any last night, but they have been hard at it to-day. Since I started this, two have come down not very far away and given the house a good shaking. We carry on as much as we can during the day, but if you hear the enginet cut out when it is close, you dive for shelter, under a bed or table, or anything handy and hope for the best. My dear, what a life. I never thought I should have to crawl under my bed to get away from Hitler's toys.

"At night the Wolsley's (noted gold and silver smiths) live or sleep in a hole in the ground like rabbits. They are right in one of the direct lines the things use, and have suffered badly— windows blown out and some of the house blown away. She told me to-day when she came in, that yesterday the saw 11 brought down near to them in half on hour. As you look out of the window you wonder how on earth any of them get through the defences, and yet I see them sail on to London as if there was nothing there at all.

Children Leave.

Most of the children have gone from here anw manyothers to safe places, but I am going to stick to my house as long as it sticks to me. So far we have no real summer at all; very dull and cold. Most days I have enjoyed a good fire, perhaps we shall get a nice, warm autumn. I hope so, and that will help to shorten the winter. Though things are going well on all the war fronts, I cannot see much hope of an end soon. Sometimes we feel dreadfully war weany and what must our boys at the front be feeling...."

Mrs. Bulteel has six sons, five in uniform, fighting all over the world.

Camborne Man Guest Preacher

MILLBROOK, Aug. 9—(ENS)—Rev. Preston Brown, of Camborne, son of former local residents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, of Pefferlaw, was guest speaker in St. Andrew's United church Sunday morning, preaching an impressive sermon and being introduced by Rev. A. L. Sisco, Mr. Brown and his wife, are week end guests of his uncle, Mr. Albert Brown and Mrs. Brown Tupper street.

The male quartette M. McDowell, H. Oullette, W. H. Coombe and G. Might, sang, during the offertory, "Nearer My God To Thee", and the minister took the prayers and the lesson. Rev. Mr. Brown mentioned the fact that, up to the age of twelve years, he had been brought to the Millbrook church for worship, and also referred in congratulatory terms to the beautiful interior since the complete renovation had been carried out three years ago.

He spoke from the words: "My steps had well night slipped until I went into the sanctuary of God", emphasizing the theme of Reverence under three heads: "A reverence for those with whom we are living—each one created in God's image, with the possibility of becoming a great soul: "A reverence for God who is above all."

'In these war days, this will enable those who are torn with anxiety about their loved ones to say, as did Christ on Calvary: Father, into Thy hands, knowing that they are safe for time and eternity in His unfailing power, and love."

The flowers, the previous Sunday, had been placed in the church by Mrs. James Bingham, of Peterborough, in memory of her only son, F.O. Jack Arnndel, R.C.A.F., who two years ago died on active service.

Stocks of wheat in Canadian positions totalled 279,746,212 bushels and 18,185,751 bushels in United States positions.

Civil Aviation To Use Airports

OTTAWA, Aug. 9 — (CP) — The Hudson Bay chain of wartime air bases may provide a route for a slow and inexpensive airline to Europe after the war, Munitions Minister Howe said Tuesday in the Commons.

Questioned about future use of the airports which were built by the United States and are being acquired by Canada, the Minister said: "It is intended to use all war airports for civil aviation as far as possible."

It was possible transatlantic aviation might fall into two classes, a high speed luxury type of traffic such as that now being carried, and a slower, less expensive type of traffic which would require a number of stops. The latter type might well use the chain of air bases extending through The Pas, Man.; Churchill, Southampton Island, Frobisher Bay, Greenland and Iceland.

Answering questions from John G. Diefenbaker (P.C. Lake Centre) during consideration of civil aviation estimates, Mr. Howe said arrangements are being made to have War Assets Corporation act for the United States Government in the disposal of movable assets at the airports. A representative of the corporation now is in the area co-operating with Maj.-Gen. W. W. Foster, the Government's chief administrative officer.

Gen. Foster had reported the amount of supplies destroyed by the United States authorities on the Alaska highway was "trivial." He was unable to table Gen. Foster's report as it related to property of another Government.

TAKING IT EASY IN FRANCE—Basking in the sun on a Sunday afternoon always was a favorite pastime at a Canadian seaside resort. These airmen of a fighter bomber squadron in Normandy are fashionable too. Their backs are propped against one of the west wall's "Impregnable" fortresses; the beach is the famous one on which Canadian assault troops showed so much courage D-Day, and the background is the always-present but ever-changing armada of supply ships bringing troops and materials into the bridgehead. There is a decided shortage of bathing beauties on this beach. The airmen are, Left to Right: LAC. Gordon Ritchings, 2117-W 38th avenue, Vancouver, B.C.; LAC. Bruce Long, 64 Oriole Gardens, Toronto, and Sgt. Jack Dale, 77 Lees, Ottawa. It was a Sunday afternoon too, although every day is like the next in theatres of war.

AIR MAIL FOR PRISONERS

A number of inquiries received at the Post Office reveals that there is some doubt in people's minds concerning the recently announced reduction in postal rates on airmail directed to prisoners of war. Both air mail letter forms to Canadian prisoners and special airmail postcards for prisoners and civilian internees in the Far East may now be sent for 5 cents instead of 10 cents as before. The necessary forms are obtainable at the Post Office. Turkey's break with Germany now makes it possible to mail airgraphs to that county, but as yet only to civilian addressees.

Penicillin Aids Skin Grafting

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—(AP). — Four Detroit doctors say that use of penicillin apparently solves one of the principal problems in early skin grafting on burned areas.

Reporting today in the journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. John Winslow Hirshfield, Matthews A. Pilling, Charles Wesley Buggs and William E. Abbott said experience with 17 patients convinced them that use of penicillin not only permits early grafting but also apparently prevents loss of skin from infection that ordinarily occurs.

Former Cow Puncher Tries Sailoring Job Lt. Laderach Only Swiss Officer In Navy

A NEWFOUNDLAND PORT, Aug. 9. — Believed to be the only Swiss officer in the Royal Canadian Navy, a former Alberta cowboy, now is doing an important wartime job in the installation of mechanical equipment used in training warship crews for the battle of the Atlantic.

Lieut. (E) Otto W. Laderach, R. C. N. V. R., of Peterborough, who came to this base several months ago after serving in Halifax and other centres, was born 38 years ago at Sargans on Switzerland's Austrian border. He travelled throughout Europe with his father, a railway executive, and was graduated as a mechanical engineer before wanderlust hit him and he went to Canada in 1927. He has never returned home.

The young Swiss engineer wanted to see the country and gain experience, so he harvested grain crops in Manitoba and Saskatchewan and punched cattle on a ranch near Lethbridge in Southern Alberta before settling in Ontario in his original line of work. Within the next decade he worked on some of the major power-plant and hydro developments in Eastern Canada. He was chief tool engineer at a big war plant in Peterborough before he joined the navy as an engineer officer in April, 1943. By that time he already had been a British subject for 10 years.

Lieut. Laderach has met only one other Swiss in the R.C.N.—Chief Engine Room Artificer Werner Moser, R.C.N.V.R., at Halifax—but no officers. He and Moser enjoyed many a heart-warming chat about Swiss cheese, wines and ski-slopes.

The officer's English-born wife lives in Peterborough at 62 Lansdowne avenue with their 14-year-old daughter, Germaine, and five-year-old son Frederick.

Peterboro Men Rewarded For Long Service

A reserve soldier who goes on active service, is credited with two years spent in Reserve to each year he serves with an active force.

Visitor Discovers Perfect Way Of Fishing Doesn't Need Hook, Helgramite Does Work

Harry Glenhall of Detroit caught a fish at Chemong Lake the other day in an utterly unapproved and unorthodox manner. He went along with his brother-in-law, Adam Sands and Vern Selkirk, who had a nice wide tempting variety of bait, including helgramites, or as they used to say in less sophicticated fishing days, galnippers.

In about fifteen minutes, Sands and Selkirk had five black bass in the boat, ranging from four to two pounds, but the visiting Chenhall was batting .000. At length Vern Selkirk recommended to him the helgramite line of bait with which they were fortified against possibility that the bass might stick up their noses at the rest of the offering.

So, Mr. Selkirk put a "nipper" on the Chenhall hook, and it wasn't long until something was stirring down at the end of the line. About that time the reel of the Chenhall pole worked loose, and he began drawing in the line. And sure enough he had caught a fish, a big sunfish but without benefit of the hook. The galnipper had reached out and grabbed him by the snout. And to free the unwanted sunfish, Chenhall had to bang him against the side of the boat to loose the helgramite's tight hold.

With The Tourists

By DON McGIBBON

Their fourth trip here in as many years, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Trevor, and daughter Geraldine, arrived in Peterborough this morning from Cleveland, Ohio, en route to Buckhorn where they will spend a two-week vacation. This is the first trip to Canada for Geraldine.

Mrs. Trevor said she thinks the Canadian system of rationing foods to be much superior to that in use in the States, and added that Canadians get off much lighter when it comes to rationing, too! "Is there any notable difference between Peterborough and an American city of the same size?" she was asked. "Not much," she said. "Here in Canada, you see the same movies we do, read the same magazines, listen to the same music, and eat the same foods, so there's certainly not much difference.... at least I haven't noticed any." Mrs. Trevor thinks Canadian women may dress a trifle more conservatively than most women in the States, but in the younger set, both American and Canadians could be put into one class, as far as clothes are concerned, she said.

From Buffalo

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lumley, Buffalo, N.Y., were in Peterborough this morning, doing a little shopping before heading for a friend's cottage on Jack's Lake, where they will spend a week or so.

Mr. Lumley doesn't think much of Canadian cigarettes, as evidenced by the large quantity of American brand he brought with him! He didn't say that, though, explaining with "I guess you just get used to one brand."

"If all these stories about fish that are caught up here are true," he said, "I won't be satisfied with less than a carload."

Mr. and Mrs. Lumley are quite satisfied with the Canadian system of liquor rationing, pointing out it tends to restrain people from being too free and easy about it, often the case in the States.

"And another thing," added Mrs. Lumley, "is that you people don't seem to realize how lucky you are not to be rationed on shoes. We didn't think it would be so bad at first, but now we're just longing for the day when more shoes will come our way."

"In the States, we have our own war correspondents, who concentrate on what the Americans are doing in the various battle theatres, and you have your Canadian correspondents who write mostly of what Canadian troops are doing, and the fact that one tends to ignore the other new and again definitely doesn't indicate anyone is trying to steal any glory," said J. S. Patterson, Detroit, Mich., who was in Peterborough this morning. The 9th trip here, Mr. Patterson said he doesn't think there's a nicer spot to holiday anywhere, and promised he would be back every year it was possible.

Mr Patterson said some American papers distinguished much to closely when it came to reporting the war, and many, he said, seem to forget the fact we are all allies, and what one gains, is everyone's gain. "The average American doesn't care about who gets mentioned and who doesn't," he said, "and as far as I can see, this problem is a very minor one."

Yes, Mr. Patterson is out after some fish, and promised that before the afternoon was out, he'd have some.

C. R. Banks Brought First Motorcycle And One Of Earliest Autos To Canada

The report of the death on Tuesday of John Moodie, 84, the man who brought the first automobile to Canada and who was a pioneer in the electric power industry, brings to mind the fact that Peterborough has a hardly less significant claim to fame in the same field as Port Nelson, near Hamilton, where Mr. Moodie was born and died. It lies in the person of Charles R. Banks, 338 Rubidge street, who operates the bicycle shop on Charlotte street and who, besides being beaten out by Moodie by only a very short margin of time in the automobile business, was beyond dispute the first person to introduce the motorcycle to Canada.

Mr. Banks' car, as he himself expresses it, was one of the first ten Fords brought into the country. This was in 1905, but four years earlier he had appeared with his motorcycle, bringing it over from Buffalo the very day of the assassination of President McKinley. It was, naturally an experimental creation in the field of modern transportation, and operated with an engine of French design.

"I hope this winter," Mr. Banks said, "that I can go down to Detroit and find out just what number my Ford was in coming out of the Ford shop. And I am also going to find out how many automobile licenses were issued in the Province of Ontario before I got mine. The first year I had the car licences were not required, but in 1906 that was changed and licences made of rubber fully an inch thick were issued for car owners for the first time in the province's history."

Col. J. A. Dewart Praises Major J. Morley

Advancement from Private with the Prince of Wales Rangers to the rank of Major with the 6th Duke of Wellington Battalion, a Yorkshire regiment, was striking evidence of the success of Major Henry James Morley as cited this morning by Colonel John A. Dewart, who spoke affectionately of his former associate in the Rangers as "an exceptionally capable young officer."

Major Morley was recently reported injured in action in Normandy with the Duke of Wellington's, the unit with which Captain Gordon Monkman served in the last war, and is listed today in the casualties published from Ottawa.

Started In 1929

"Jim Morley joined the 4th Machine Gun Battalion as a Private about 1929," Colonel Dewart recalled. "I can remember him as a young lad at that time, and subsequently as a non-commissioned officer until he qualified for a commission with the Battalion about 1933 or '34. When the Peterborough unit was reorganized as the Prince of Wales Rangers he was assigned as Commanding Officer of Headquarters Company in 1940. The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders took most of our officers in their mobilization. Young Morley volunteered for active service and went to Three Rivers, Quebec.

"When the first Battalion of the Rangers was mobilized in 1942 on active service, Major Morley was the acting Adjutant during that period, and was later promoted to the rank of Major and company commander. Last spring he reverted to the rank of Captain to go overseas as a reinforcement officer to the British Army.

Rapid Promotion

"In England he was posted to the First Battalion of the Leicestershire Regiment, and then transferred to the Sixth Duke of Wellington Battalion," Colonel Dewart said. "He was given command of 'C' Company of that unit, and was promoted to Acting Major. He was with them only a few weeks as Captain. He must have made a fine impression during that short time, because he quickly received the promotion, and took his company into action as Major in its first engagement in France. Hew was wounded apparently twice, in a lung and hip and is at present in the Bradford Royal Infirmary Hospital in Yorkshire.

"I don't know any more eloquent tribute I could pay to Major Morley as one of our former young officers of the Rangers, than simply to point to the distinction he attained in going to France as a Major with the Duke of Wellington Battalion. He has always been a splendid officer, keenly interested in his work, obviously adapted for it. All his Peterborough friends will join in hoping for his early recovery, and personally I can only add that I am very proud of him."

Ammunition To Be Eased

OTTAWA, Aug. 9 (CP)—Sportsmen—with the right type of gun—no longer need mooch around home dreaming of the good old days when they could go hunting.

The government has recognized their plight and come to their rescue providing they have a registered rim rifle or shotgun.

The prices board, explaining an announcement regarding distribution of shells to sportsmen, said ammunition would be confined to rim-fire cartridges and shot shells. No centre-fire shells will be released because of the great demand from essential users.

The board said supplies were limited. Essential users, such as farmers, trappers and prospectors have first call on supplies.

No matter how many guns a person may own he is entitled to only 100 rim-fire cartridges and 50 shot shells.

DOROTHY DIX

HUSBAND FALLS FOR FLIRT
Wife Wonders If She Should Leave Her Mate, Break Up Her Home

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a marrried woman with two children. Have a good home and a good husband and was very happy until a short time ago when I found out that my husband was paying attention to a little flirt in our town. She is married and has a good husband. She has broken up several homes for the men all seem to fall for her. She neglects her little children who run the streets.

I taxed my husband with going out with her and he said he took her out riding sometimes because her husband was too busy to take her out. He said he thought that she was very cute. What must I do? Shall I leave my husband?

Musn't Leave Husband

ANSWER: Of course, you mustn't leave your husband merely because he has become entangled in a silly flirtation. It is just a brain storm that will pass if you will give it time. Many men, along toward middle-life are afflicted with a temporary metal eclipse. They have the hallucination that they are tired of their wives and children, of domesticity and decent living and that they have fallen in love with some siren.

But it doesn't last. After a bit a man comes to his senses and he is ashamed and repentant, and glad enough to come back home to his wife and thereafter be as domestic as the house cat. The whole episode may be written down in the comic annals of the family history, unless the wife has been as foolish as he has and has broken up her home and made a tragedy of it.

It is pretty hard to see anything humorous in your husband making a fool of himself and falling for the wiles of a cheap vamp, who flatters him and makes eyes at him while she digs her predatory little hands in his pocketbook. But it is one of the occasions upon which a woman must either laugh or cry and the wise wife is the one who doesn't cry or nag or reproach her husband or point out his duty to her.

Don't give up your husband and your home and your living because your husband makes a few sweet eyes at another woman.

DEAR MISS DIX: What do children owe their parents besides the conventional love, honor and obedience? Also what feeling should exist between brothers and sisters?

EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY

ANSWER: The amount of love and honor you owe your parents is a debt that automatically settles itself. You love and honor them if they are kind and tender and reverence in you, but nobody can expect children to love parents who are cruel and hard to thum, or parents who live degraded lives.

Also, the amount of obedience children owe their parents depends upon the justice of the parent's demands. After a child has reached the age of reason he must use his own judgment in obeying his parents. A mother for instance, has no right to force her daughter to obey her and marry a man she doesn't love nor has a father a right to expect his son to obey him and go into an occupation fo: which he has no taste.

So far as money is concerned, it is the children's duty to support their parents if they are old or sick and in want.

The relationship between brothers and sisters should be that of affection and comradeship, a sort of superfriendship, because they have not only the tie of association and congeniality but also of blood and a common interest. When this love exists between brothers and sisters, it is one of the most beautiful and satisfying of all human relationships.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young man, very handsome and popular. I am 22 and have been divorced and married again, and I am much more in love with an ther young lady than I am with ny wife. This young lady is married but doesn't care for her husband. Would you advi · us to get divorces and marry each other or stay discontented the way we are.

ANSWER: A man as fickle as you are should get divorced and stay that way. No woman could hold your fancy for long so it is folly to tie yourself up with any particular lady. You are not husband material so fight shy of matrimony and thereby save some unfortunate woman from trouble. These part-time husbands are no good.

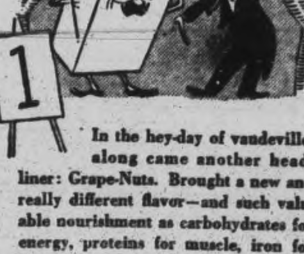
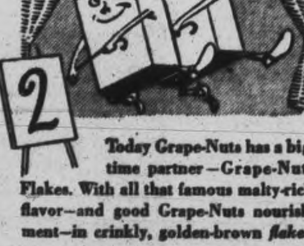
"I see you had your Grape-Nuts nourishment today!"
(WHISPERED TUMBLER JOE AS THE AUDIENCE GASPED)



1 In the hey-day of vaudeville, along came another headliner: Grape-Nuts. Brought a new and really different flavor—and such valuable nourishment as carbohydrates for energy, proteins for muscle, iron for blood, phosphorus for teeth and bones.



2 Today Grape-Nuts has a big-time partner—Grape-Nuts Flakes. With all that famous malty-rich flavor—and good Grape-Nuts nourishment—in crinkly, golden-brown flakes.

3 Grape-Nuts Flakes "bring down the house"—in a hurry to breakfast! All credit to two grains—golden wheat and malted barley. Blended, baked and toasted for glorious flavor and easy digestion.

Two Elections Discouraging To The C.C.F.

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Aug. 9 (CP)—Political strategists today studied the results of yesterday's provincial elections in Quebec and Alberta with a view to gaining a little light on how the voters will line up at the Federal general election which is due within a year.

Coming on the heels of the C.C.F. victory in Saskatchewan in June and their own defeat in Ontario a year ago the Quebec result was discouraging to the Liberals in that it indicated a deterioration in the hitherto solid block of support they have received from the French-speaking province.

From the point of view of the Progressive Conservatives, who had no candidates in the election, the result was chiefly interesting as indicating a division in the ranks of their opponents. It gives them no assurance of any support from Quebec but weakens their opponents.

The C.C.F., making their first serious bid in Quebec with a number of candidates and offering the major opposition to Social Credit in Alberta, gained little assurance of important Federal support.

The small group of Bloc Populaire members in the Federal Parliament were away in their constituencies for Quebec's election, but observers regarded the result as sealing the finish of that new movement as a distinctive political party. They look for a fusion of the Bloc Populaire and Union Nationale following in Quebec into a movement which may produce considerable anti-Liberal voting power at the next Federal election.

The Federal Social Credit party found assurance of continued support in Alberta in the contest there, but Quebec provided them with no indication of a basis for broadening out into a national party. None of the Social Credit candidates in Quebec was elected.

On the whole, the Quebec result was greeted with gloom in government circles and the Alberta result with indifference. There was a feeling the Bloc Populaire movement captured many former Liberal votes influenced by anti-conscriptionist sentiment and that but for its presence in the field Union Nationale's victory might have been more convincing.

The more hopeful cherished the thought that these voters would come back to the Liberal fold in a Federal election fought after the war.

RENNES CITIZENS HAPPY OVER LIBERATION—In Rennes, France, where citizens have been liberated from Nazi domination by the Allies, a group of angry residents of the city, top photo, wreak vengeance on this German collaborator who, instead of being loyal to the Free French, decided to cast his lot with the Nazis. He is forced to kneel and shout his praise for De Gaulle, Churchill and the Allies. In the lower photo Rennes residents jubilantly greet the conquering American forces as they roll into the city. THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Our attention will be turned today to various kinds of ketchups and pickles as so many people do such a lot of these to use with cold meats or various hot casserole dishes in the winter.

Cold Tomato Ketchup

1 peck ripe tomatoes, 1 pint vinegar, salt, cloves, pepper, garlic, allspice. This is a recipe used in the kitchen of General Washington years ago. Wash the tomatoes and force them through a wire sieve, then strain through a jelly bag. The liquid is not used in the ketchup. Thin the pulp with the vinegar. Season with salt, pepper, garlic, allspice and cloves. Bottle in sterilized containers and seal. This ketchup retains the taste of the fresh tomatoes and is an excellent flavoring for soups and sauces.

Old Virginia Ketchup

1 peck green tomatoes, ½ peck white onions, 3 oz. white mustard seed, 1 oz. allspice, 1 lb. brown sugar, 1 oz. cloves, ½ cup dry mustard, ¼ cup water, 1 oz. black pepper, 1 oz. celery seed, vinegar. Chop the tomatoes and onions, sprinkle with salt and let stand three hours. Drain well and put the pulp in a preserving kettle with the other ingredients. Cover with vinegar and boil slowly for 1 hour. Seal in hot jars. Less mustard may be used if a less hot ketchup is desired.

Tomato Chutney

4 lbs. ripe tomatoes, 1 lb. pared, chopped apples, 3 onions chopped fine, 1 pt. strong vinegar, a tablesoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon mustard, ½ teaspoon cayenne. Chop the vegetables, then the apples. Combine the ingredients and cook until the chutney is thick and clear. Seal in hot jars. If a hotter, more highly flavored chutney is desired add to the above recipe, ½ teaspoon cayenne, ½ teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cloves, 2 tablespoons mustard, 12 cloves of garlic.

Quck Christmas Relish

2 cups chopped pickled beets, 8 tablespoons horseradish, 1 cup chopped red cabbage, salt and pepper, mustard, and vinegar from pickled beets. Mix beets, horseradish and cabbage. Moisten with vinegar left from the pickled beets and season with salt and pepper and a little dry mustard. This can be made and put in jars, or made each time you wish to serve it.

Money Plentiful After The War Jackman Says

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—(CP). — The Commons Banking Committee, studying the Government's industrial development bank bill, bogged down Tuesday in far-flung argument over whether private investment houses in Canada already provided adequate facilities for lending capital to Canadian industries.

H. R. Jackman (P.C., Toronto-Rosedale) said that after the war there would be such a volume of money held by private investors seeking investment as to almost "stagger the imagination." Any worthwhile industry would have no difficulty in getting the capital it deserved from the investment houses, so there would be no need for the Industrial Development Bank.

Pressed for a statement as to what rate of interest the proposed bank would charge borrowers, W. C. Clark, Deputy Finance Minister, said he expected it would be 5 per cent. on the average, with some loans above that rate and some below, according to the risk.

The underlying principle is for the development bank to operate at cost, including losses.

"If the bank operates at cost it will take over the whole field of private finance," Mr. Jackman said. If he was sure the bank was not to be a competitor of private lending institutions, but only complementary to them, he would not object, but he said he was sure it would not work out that way.

Mr. Jackman said he knew men who were searching for opportunities at present to invest money in going, well-managed concerns, and could not find any needing capital.

Dr. Clark said he knew of small plants which were efficiently run whose owners had come to him with their problem of getting more capital. He had sent them to investment houses and they had been unable to get the required capital. It was to help such small industries that the bank was being set up. It would help out well-managed concerns the investment houses would not consider.

For Thursday, Auguest 10

Although there may be conflicts and oppositon from influential quarters this day should be an extremely lively, ambitious and gratifying one, with all the affairs and objectives under excellent promise of ultimate success and accomplishment, against significant odds. There may be promotion, preferment, expansive business conditions, and a most desirable move toward solidifying economic stability and enduring security. Some danger from mistakes, pressure or emotions is seen unless restraint is used with prudence and amiability. Increased personal prestige and popularity as well as social and romantic attachments, with good luck also are promised.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of good luck, business and credit increase, popularity and prestige enhanced, with tokens of love and esteem, favors and preferment, from those in influential places as well as in sentimental relations. Some opposition may be born of aggressive action, impetuosity, indulgences in speculation or long chances. But proper restraints should promote cherished ambitions and bring personal happiness, possibly gifts and economic security.

A child born on this day should have splendid talents, fine ambitions and sound character.

Judge Survives

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP).—"We are still on our honeymoon and I still wipe the dishes every night," Divorce Judge Joseph Sabath, 74, said as he and his wife, Regina, prepared to celebrate their 56th wedding anniversary. With 21 years in the divorce court, Judge Sabath has granted 65,000 divorces, but has helped effect reconciliations of more than 2,000 estranged couples.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9—(AP)—After 45 years of married life, 80-year-old Vito d'Acquisto's affection cooled. Mrs. Maia d'Acquisto complained yesterday in a separate maintenance suit. The 72-year-old also said her husband refused her kisses and two years ago he ran away.

Memorial Service Is Held For L.-Cpl. F. Drew

HAVELOCK, Aug. 9 — (ENS) — Mrs. W. Drew has returned from Tweed where she attended a memorial service in St. James Church of England for her son L.-Cpl. Frederick (Ted) Drew who was killed in action in Italy. Prior to coming to Havelock Mr. and Mrs. Drew and family resided in Tweed, where L.-Cpl. Drew spent most of his boyhood.

Another son, Pte. Douglas M Drew, is on active service with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy, and in a letter received by his parents last week stated that he had received burns, the only particulars he gave was that they were not as serious as previously suffered, and on the first occasion he wrote that his arm was badly burned by the explosion of a petrol tank.

A Tiresome Trip

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9—(AP)—Henry Strickland, an Oklahoma rancher who would like to get a job in a western movie, has rolled into Los Angeles from Okahoma City with his wife and three chidren—after 105 days in a horse drawn prairie schoner.

Sighed Strickand: "I'd never be crazy enough to do it again."

Former Editor's Son Back After 19 Years

A brief visitor in town after an absence of 19 years, R. K. McGregor son of the late Alec. McGregor, at one time editor of the Peterborough Review, has found the city just as fine a city as when he left it and the only great change in its appearance the alteration in the store fronts along George street.

His father was editor of the Review for some years under the late A. H. Stratton, and following that was connected with the Examiner. The son, whose stay in the city coincided with the holiday week-end, has made his home in Niagara since he moved away, and is a senior operator, transformer, with the Canadian Niagara Power Co.

Visiting with his wife and two children, Mr. McGregor took the time to stop at the journalistic offices connected with his father's newspaper career, and to renew acquaintance with a few old friends still living here. Though born in the States he came to Peterborough when he was six years old and worked for the C.G.E. here for two years before moving to his present home.

Bombs Fall Short Canadians Hurt

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 8 (delayed)—(AP)—A senior Canadian staff officer told war correspondents today that in this afternoon's heavy raid by U.S. four-engined bombers in support of the Canadian offensive south of Caen, from six to 30 bombs fell short, resulting in casualties to Canadian personnel.

A high Canadian officer was one of the wounded.

Six hundred American heaviest participated in the raid which was directed against German positions before the Canadian line.

The staff officer who disclosed these accidents said he did not know to what they were attributed, but strongly emphasized they had no ill effect on the course of the offensive.

Court Tells Italian To Fight In Army

LINDSAY, Aug. 9—(ENS)—"Don't you know there is a war on over in Italy?" asked Magistrate E. A. Gee of James Miscio, an Italian, who was charged in Haliburton court with assaulting his wife Rose Miscio. "Why don't you do your fighting over there?"

Miscio said he knew the war was on. He admitted that a magistrate in Hamilton had warned him on a previous occasion when he beat up his wife.

Miscio was fined $50 and costs of $34, the latter having mounted up because it took three constables to chase down Miscio in the woods.

DeGlane Gives

no quarter asked or given. Katan was fighting at his roughest and the Montrealer met him at his own game with the result that the crowd was in an uproar all the way. The climax came after 28 minutes of near-murder when DeGlane managed to get Katan tangled up in the ropes and while he hung there helpless the Montrealer started using the Panther as a punching bag and a football.

Referee Maxwell repeatedly tried to interfere but was pushed away each time. When the referee persisted in trying to rescue Katan, the infuriated DeGlane slammed him to the mat with a flying mare and followed up by tossing the official out through the ropes. Maxwell painfully climbed back in and raised Katan's arm to designate him as the winner. Then the fun really started. DeGlane felled Katan and then Maxwell with solid punches to the jaw and when they tried to move in again he cut loose a couple of mulekicks that spilled them like nine pins.

Finally Katan and Referee Maxwell managed to leave the ring and DeGlane with a bellow of rage followed them toward the dressing-room. Phil Lawson, Joe Christie and other members of the cast finally stopped him and then DeGlane, wildly cheered by the crowd, strode back to the ring and defied Katan to come back and finish the argument. The Panther wasn't having any, however. He remained in the dressing-room and DeGlane finally gave it up as a bad job.

Both Counted Out.

The slippery Joe Maich and long Joe Chirstie put plenty of pep and fireworks in the opening bout. Maich was the favorite and the crowd repeatedly cheered the speedy moves he used to get out of trouble. Flying talckles, mule kicks and all kinds of aerial stuff kept the fans on their toes and the climax came when the two boys went out through the ropes and continued the battle outside the ring. Referee Maxwell counted them both out and the fans didn't like that decision. They claimed that Maich had climbed back into the ring before the 10-count was complete. However, the verdict stood.

Bert Maxwell refereed all three bouts and took more falls than the wrestlers while Fred C. Scates held the stop watch on the battlers and introduced them to the crowd.

Westclox Beats Woollens 17 to 3

Beating out 8 runs in a single inning, Westclox polished off the Dominion Woollens 17 to 3 behind 6-hit pitching by Hopcroft in an Industrial Softball League game, played Tuesday evening at the Bonner field.

In an effort to hold the hard-hitting Westclox team, Woollens shuffled no less than three different pitchers into the box, including Hillier, Coughlin and Caccavella, but the Westclox still were able to strike 15 blows. Westclox's Spencer was the hitting star, socking three doubles in four times at bat. Currie replaced Hopcroft, who was injured, and played the last three innings on the mound, striking out four during that time.

The teams:

Westclox—Watson ss, Jacquith c, Hopcroft p, Currie 1b, Millen cf, Spencer lf, Pearson rf, Rowatt 2b, Nicholls 3b, Legrow 1b, Gannon rf.

Woollens—D. Hillier ss, McCarroll 3b, Armstrong c, Hillier lf, Batten 2b, Doxie 1b, Coughlin cf, Shield rf, Caccavella p.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Up to last night we had received only one pair for the men's Globe doubles playoffs. The entry closes on Aug. 15.

It will be men's rinks for the Friday night tournament.

Next Monday night has been set aside for the men's club singles. Play is scheduled to start at 7 p.m., and as many rounds will be played as time will allow. The players are all from groups 1 and 2 of the schedule. The draw is posted up inside the club-house. Look it over and see if you play and who. It's a case of play or else.

The ladies have sent out notices for their annual trebles open tournament. It is set down for Wednesday, Aug. 16.

Since we commenced bowling on Wednesday, May 31 and up to and including last Saturday night, there have been 4,500 bowlers played on our greens.

J. D. Fitzpatrick, H. Freeman, H. Coleman and R. Hopkins are leaving this afternoon for Ottawa to play in the annual tournament sponsored by the Ottawa Lawn Bowling Club.

Many of our members will wonder why we have not the complete list of games of last night in our column today. Well, we slipped away last night and went to the wrestling match. No comments, please. We are now of the opinon that the Lawn Bowling Club is a much cooler place to spend the evening. We are still sticking to lawn bowling.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

GET TWO FOR ONE

Bridge is full of situations in which a good player finds chances to give up one trick in order to get two or more later. Many of these are not obvious, but must be figured out by means of keen foresight. That rare quality marks one of the greatest differences between the average player and the star, and is well worth an effort to develop.

West took the opening trick with his heart Q, and switched to the club 4, which was a bit helpful to South, who took it with the J. Three spades scuttled the outstanding trumps, and South then cashed the club A and K.

Now came the unusual and brilliant move by the declarer, who was a canny Scotchman. He led his club 2, and West played the Q. You would now expect to see the declarer ruff that trick with the dummy's last trump, but he did no such thing. Instead he discarded the diamond 2. This placed West in the lead, with nothing left but diamonds. So no matter what he did, South's diamond K was good, and he was in position to ruff the third diamond in the dummy. Thus the declarer lost only one trick each in hearts, clubs and diamonds.

If South had ruffed his fourth club, he would have had to lead diamonds himself, and could not have avoided losing three tricks in the suit. This, together with the heart Q, would have beaten his contract.

Maquis Forces In Breton Well Organized

By MAURICE DESJARDINS

AT A MAQUIS HEADQUARTERS IN BRITANNY, Aug. 9—(CP)—From stories heard at this Maquis headquarters and from men of the Maquis one meets here it is easy to tell that armed resistance of the underground in Brittany was formidable and well organized.

There is, for example, 19-year-old Ernest, whose prize possession is a German Mauser rifle with which he has killed several Germans ambushed in the forests.

He doesn't put notches on the rifle because it would mar its appearance, and besides there's not enough room.

I met Ernest, who is called "Nenesse" by his fellow Maquis, in a little wood on the outskirts of Pontorson, a pleasant little town near the sea on the imaginary borderline between Normandy and Brittany. It was left intact by the American push which has long since passed it.

The young Preton with the tousled blond hair belongs to a group, led by a 35-year-old Breton, which is said to have killed 300 Germans and handed nearly 400 prisoners over to American troops.

The leader, father of five children he hasn't seen since he took to the Maquis two years ago, told me how Ernest got his Mauser.

"Nenesse had an old French rifle which stuck at every second shot, and a toy revolver of the kind ladies carry in their purses," he said. "One evening he was walking along the road when he saw a German paratrooper riding a bicycle.

"Nenesse hid in a ditch and fired his little pistol twice as the German went past. The German fell but wasn't dead, so Nenesse ran to him and finished him off by banging him on the head with a big stick.

"He came back with the Mauser rifle and also a Mauser revolver. This happened June 9, three days after your landings."

I also met Roger, 24; Francois, 22, and Raymond, 18. They were a fierce-looking lot, all armed with Schmeizer tommy-guns and most of them had one or more Luger pistols slung in their belts.

Roger and Francois were coming back from a patrol in a small German volkswagon, the radiator of which was covered with flowers given by liberated Bretons who met them.

"There still are German snipers in the woods around Mont Roualt and Don," said Roger, "and the Americans said it's all right for us to clear them out. Only half an hour ago two young girls cycling to the abbey at Mt. St. Michail heard the whistle of bullets."

The partisans now are well-armed but when the Maquis first were formed there wasn't a single rifle in the crowd. But with every Gergrew and now the men even have man soldier ambushed the arsenal vehicles.

They have become friendly with American troops and it's not uncommon to see them chewing gum and smoking nickel cigars.

Ardent Patriot Foils Nazis To Help Allies

MONT ROUALT, Brittany, Aug. 9—(CP Cable)—In France todav there are thousands of patriots who in their humble way have kept alive the flame of resistance and typical of these is 54-year-old Georges Roulet.

In the life of this obscure worker for victory there has been an exceptionally sad day and an exceptionally happy one.

The sad day was when he saw the first Germans strutting into the little town of Mont Roualt four years ago last June.

The happy day was Aug. 1 when he saw a small group of American soldiers entering the town.

Roulet is a tall, red-faced retired school teacher who walks with the help of a cane, since he lost his right leg on the Marne in 1914. He is known as a great patriot in this part of France, for his faith in the Allies never faltered during four years of occupation.

Underground News

I asked him what he'd done to bolster the morale of the population to earn such a reputation as a patriot.

He considered his most important piece of work was going around to neighboring villages handing out copies of Clandestine newspaper or resistances, "Liberation."

"It came to me mysteriously," he said. "Sometimes the envelope bore a Paris postmark. Sometimes it came from Rennes or Tour. Once or twice the envelope bore marks of having been opened, but it must have been by friends, for I never was bothered by the military or Gestapo.

"I had plenty of time on my hands, and I went from house to house asking my compatriots not to lose hope and to place their faith in the coming invasion.

"I also encouraged young men to try their luck and reach England to join the De Gaulle forces."

Stabbing Kills One, Wounds One

MONTREAL, Aug. 9 — (CP) — One person was stabbed to death and another was taken to hospital with critical wounds today, following an attack by a knife-wielding man in a Wilder building restaurant at the busy St. Catherine-Bleury intersection.

Shea Taflar, 50, was fatally wounded in the stabbing, and police said he had been stabbed 10 times. His sister, Mrs. Sam Miemadowski, was stabbed five times and medical authorities held out little hope for her recovery.

Police said the two had been attacked with an eight-inch bread knife, and that Sam Miemadowski, owner of the restaurant and husband of the woman, had later given himself up at police district headquarters a few blocks away.

The stabbings occurred at the height of the morning rush hour, while heavy pedestrian and motor traffic was passing outside the restaurant. Police said the woman had been attacked first and that her brother was stabbed as he went to her assistance.

Canadians In Fight For Florence

Vatican Moves To Send Food To Besieged City

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 10 (AP)—The Vatican took steps today to help the Allies relieve the plight of the population of Florence, while Canadian troops, aided by 250 Italian Patriots, mopped up hostil Fascist elements in the Allied-held southern portion of the city.

(This was the first report in several weeks of Canadian troops active in infantry actions in Italy. Norgaard's dispatch did not make clear how many Canadian troops were involved nor what their unit designations were, although they presumably are part of the British 8th Army.

(Canadian tank units have recently been reported fighting in support of Indian infantry in the 8th Army's trust on Florence.)

Transportation facilities to send flour and other necessities to the archbishop of Florence, Elia Della Costa, for distribution to a population suffering from food and water shortages was asked by the Vatican.

At the same time Italian and Polish troops in the Adriatic sector launched a new drive across the Misa River line. The Poles attained the first objectives of the thrust and captured Franca-Villa, only a mile south of the Cesano River, which is less than 40 miles below Rimini.

The Allied Command said 150 men and women found in possession of small arms and grenades were arrested in the roundup of hostile elements, who occupied the area between the Via Del Serragli and the Via Romana, the working men's quarter.

Snipers have been giving the 8th Army trouble from the moment the first patrols entered the city.

Move Into Country

Only minor operations were reported along most of the 8th and 5th Army fronts as the main body of German forces, which has been resisting strongly in the bend of the Arno river east of Florence, withdrew to the northern banks. Infantry moved up to that area, occupy-

No Improvement

BOLTON, Eng., Aug. 10 — (CP).—Miss Ethel Jeeps, retiring after 27 years as a policewoman, says the 'good-time girl' of 1944 has more money to spend, drinks more, is younger and 'more cheeky,' and less under parental control than her predecessor of 1918.

Allied Forces Sink 500 German U-Boats

LONDON, August 10 — (CP). — More than 500 German submarines have been sunk by the Allies since the start of the war, it was reported last night in a joint Anglo-American statement.

Isued under authority of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, the statement added that Nazi U-boats were "inefective during July, a month which has been so important for the success of the Continental operations."

The report said that the number of German submarines destroyed in July was "substantially greater than the number of merchant ships sunk."

The joint statement follows:

"The number of German U-boats sunk during the war now exceeds 500. It is therefore understandable that the U-boats still operating are extremely cautious. Their efforts have been ineffective during July, a month which has been so important for the success of Continental operations.

"The number of U-boats destroyed has been substantially greater than the number of merchant ships sunk. Seventeen U-boats have been sunk while attempting to interfere with our cross-Channel traffic since the first landing of the Army of Liberation.

"The U-boat fleet is still of impressive size. Nevertheless, the U-boats remain the hunted rather than the hunters. They have been attacked from the Arctic to the Indian Ocean, aircraft playing a great part with the surface forces. This pressure will be maintained until all chances of revival of the U-boat campaign are killed, whatever may be the new devices and methods developed by the enemy.

"The Nazi claims of sinkings continue to be grossly exaggerated. For instance, their claim for June, the latest month for which complete figures are available, was an exaggeration of 1,000 per cent."

Great Battle For Paris Is Underway

Canadians Locked In Battle With Elite Troops

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Canadian armor and infantry were locked in battle with madly-resisting veteran S. S. troops and tank forces today as the Germans threw in furious counter-blows to block the 1st Canadian Army thrust on Falaise and fighting flared all around the city.

Meanwhile, American armored columns were believed to be driving into the last 50-mile zone of defence for Paris and the Germans themselves, confronted with a powerful 175-mile British-Canadian-American Arc, called the fight a "battle for Paris."

At the northern end of the arc, the Germans were rushing troops southward across the Seine and had succeeded in erecting a large, new, but makeshift anti-tank screen around the Canadian wedge driven 16 miles south of Caen to within five miles of Falaise.

Going Is Tough

Lt. Gen. Crerar's 1st Canadian Army was finding the going harder, but a British force was sent lunging out to the east toward Vimont and the road to Paris where Gen Montgomery's original push stalled three weeks ago.

Headquarters wrapped in official mystery the actual whereabouts of the American columns which last were reported by the Germans to be proving points 87 miles from Paris, but one qualified observer declared, "you can be pretty sure they are not just camping outside Le Mans."

South of the Canadians, Gen. Dempsey's 2nd British Army enlarged the bridgehead across the Orne due east of Amaye and began to crack down on German forces pocketed in a sharp fork between the Orne and Lazie Rivers seven miles southwst of Caen. Advances up to 4,000 yards were made and there were indications that the Germans were pulling out of the salient which is threatened by the bridgehead and the Canadian drive.

British forces captured Percouville here, and farther south hammered forward more than a mile and took Croisilles, 1,500 yards north of the Thury-Harcourt stronghold, 14 miles south of Caen on the Orne. To the southwest of Thury-Harcourt they began an encircling manoeuvre pressing through the Motte wood near the outskirts of St. Martin-de- Sallen.

Meanwhile it was learned here that American troops have reached Nantes, at the mouth of the Loire River and surrounded Angers, 60 miles up the Loire valley on the way to Paris and the port of Lorient.

There was not much active resistance to Lt.-Gen. Bradley's columns at Nantes, eighth largest French city with a population of 195,000, but the Germans had planted many minefields.

(The BBC said in a broadcast recorded by NBC that American troops were inside Nantes.)

The communique announced that "we are now in St. Malo (a port on the north side of the Brittany pen-

An Egg Story

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., Aug. 10—(AP).—Here is the hen and egg story that should put an end to all hen and egg stories: A chicken owned by Mrs. Grover Truax laid an egg with a "V" on one side; a large "A" similar to the insignia of the American 1st Army on one end, and a three-pointed star, insignia of the American 3rd Army Corps, on the other end. When newspapermen doubted the story, Mrs. Truax showed them the egg.

Roosevelt Holds War Parley At Honolulu

HONOLULU, July 29 —(Delayed) —(AP)— President Roosevelt to-day concluded three days of military conferences and inspections on this fortress island where 2½ years ago Japanese bombs blasted the United States into the war.

The President arrived at Pearl Harbor, July 26 from the marine base at San Diego, Calif., where he boarded a cruiser shortly after his July 20 speech accepting renomination for a fourth term.

Here he held his first wartime across-the-table conference with the top strategists of the Pacific—Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur— and talked with other commanders representing the full scope of the Pacific war.

Later Mr. Roosevelt told reporters the meetings planned new offensives against the Japanese, and he reiterated the United States' Pacific war goals; to retake and free the Philippines and to drive Japan to unconditional surrender.

The President coupled with his conferences detailed visits to Pearl Harbor, converted from the Japanese-wrought havoc of December 7, 1941, into an island bristling with land, sea and air power. He termed the conversion the "most amazing change" he had ever seen.

Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur went aboard the President's ship to greet him when he arrived at Pearl Harbor.

"It's good to see you, Doug," the President said to MacArthur as the two men came down the gangplank into a navy yard teeming with sailors and workers. The crowd applauded.

With them and Nimitz in later conferences were Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the 3rd fleet, Lt.-Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Central Pacific Army commander and war chiefs representing the north, south and southwest Pacific theatres.

Soviet Tanks Nearing Latvian Port

Russian Army Stalled In Warsaw Suburbs

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 10—(AP)—Soviet tanks, supported by bombers, rumbled forward toward the Latvian Port of Liepaja today in a new drive that carved additional chunks out of the Nazis' Baltic flank.

At the same time Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovky's forces, despite the bitterest German resistance of the entire summer campaign, extended slowly but inexorably their Vistula River bridgehead south of Warsaw, and exploded a troublesome Nazi salient northeast of the Polish capital.

Rokossovsky, held at bay within artillery shot of Warsaw, shoved the Germans back northwest of Siedlce, seemingly in preparation for an offensive to by-pass Warsaw and head for East Prussia.

In the drive toward Leipaja, the Russians seized communications lines around Auce, 70 miles east of the Baltic port. Riga, an even greater prize, was the goal of another Russian column battling farther north.

Seize 700 Places

The Red Army seized more than 700 settlements yesterday, a Russian war bulletin said, killing more than 3,800 Nazis and knocking out or destroying more than 120 enemy tanks. It was the ninth straight day the Russians had recorded loss of more than 100 tanks by the Germans.

The Germans were reported counter-attacking savagely as the prospects of Red Army invasion of East Prussia mounted hourly. The most frequent German thrusts were made at the advancing Soviet forces coming east of the border town of Schirwindt and northwest of Mariampole, nad along the flank of the widening Latvian corridor.

German broadcasts said every able-bodied man and woman from 15 to 65 was drafted to big trenches against the imminent entry of the Red Army onto the "holy" soil of East Prussia.

Of all the sectors on the eastern front, however, the bulge beyond the Vistula apparently held the greatest terror for the Nazis. It has been eating like acid into the German defences, and it extends painfully against German lateral roads and

Hun Oil Targets Battered Across Europe

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 10 —(AP)—Allied bombers striking from Britain and Italy cut further into Hitler's dwindling oil supplies last night with assaults on storage depots and production centres, and today the German radio said the Reich again was under attack.

While home-based R.A.F. Lancasters smashed at two fuel dumps in France, Mediterranean air force night bombers struck the vast Ploesti oil fields in Romania in swift followup to a daylight blow at a refinery in Hungary.

The Nazi radio said American bombers from Italy were over Romania this forenoon, and the Paris radio asserted air attacks were made on the French capital.

Waves of Allied planes crossed the English Channel throughout the morning in a continuation of the non-stop air offensive against the Nazi-held portions of Europe. Flying weather was unfavorable over much of Normandy and Brittany.

Planes Over France

American Marauders, returning to night operations they initiated before D-Day, pounded a number of enemy installations without loss including an ammunition dump at Caudebec, 25 miles east of Le Havre on the north bank of the Seine.

British Mosquitos ranged far beyond the French battle area and attacked enemy transport. They bombed and strafed a dozen trains, most between Paris and towns to the east and southeast — Chalons, Moulins and Dijon. They bombed 20 barges on the Seine between Rouen and Paris, and many concentrations of rolling stock. They also hit unannounced objectives in western Germany. These operations, with afternoon and evening attacks, cost three bombers.

In the nine days and nights this month Allied bombers based in Britain have battered 14 refineries and synthetic oil plants and 19 oil storage depots in a far-flung campaign to dry up the Nazis' fuel supply. Several Balkan refineries have been hit by the Mediterranean Allied air forces.

So many depots in the battlefield area have been destroyed the Nazis have to go farther afield for vital fuel supplies needed to keep tanks and other vehicles moving. The Germans are known to be drawing fuel supplies from as far as 200 miles from the front.

R.A.F. Halifaxes bombed flying-bomb launching-sites in Northern France during the night in a follow-up to a dusk attack on the robot lairs, and R.A.F. heavy bombers hit the Foret de Nieppe in the Pas de Calais area the second time in four nights.

In a final operation just before dark Mosquitos sped 500 miles and wrecked a building believed to be the German headquarters at Tonneins on the Garonne River, about 50 miles southeast of Bordeaux.

Boost Clothing Allowance From $65 to $100; Draftees Get Bonus Also

Gratuity To Soldiers Being Discharged To Be Free Of All Taxes Clothing Allowance Is Not Retroactive

OTTAWA, Aug. 10—(CP).—Mustering out benefits for servicemen estimated at $750,000,000 and an increase in clothing allowances from $65 to $100 were announced in the Commons today. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, introducing war service gratuity legislation, said the benefits would go to volunteers, drafted men obligated to serve without territorial limitation or in the Aleutians and to members of the women's services.

Mr. King said the $750,000,000 figure was arrived at on the assumption the present strength of the armed forces would be retained until March 31, 1945. By this he emphasized, he did not mean to imply the war would be over by the date, neither did he want to imply that it might extend after that date.

He broke down the total sum to an estimated $400,000,000 for gratuities and an additional $350,000,000 for other benefits. He said these amounts were outside various other benefits under legislation such as the Veterans' Land Act, educational grants and vocational training.

What Men Deserved

General support for the legislation was given by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, who said it was not a matter of what the national could afford but what servicemen deserved; and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, who asked that merchant seamen and ferry command crews be included.

T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) called the gratuities "pin money" and said the legislation didn't go far enough.

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South) asked that members of the special services, such as the Y.M.C.A. and Knights of Columbus, be included in the bill.

It was in answer to his further questioning that Col. Ralston announced increase in the clothing allowance from $65 to $100.

This allowance will go a long way toward meeting criticism, but falls short of the $120 suggested by various members in the Commons.

(Under present day prices, the new allowance for all ranks would provide a complete set of civilian clothing for a discharged serviceman—suit, overcoat, shirts, sox, underwear, hat, shoes and other accessories. There might be a bit left over for other purposes.)

Not Retroactive

Col. Ralston said the allowance would not be retroactive. He did not give the date when the new allowance rate would go into effect.

The allowance would be paid on discharge and the men could spend it as they saw fit.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie, answering a question, said that for purposes of the bill the western hemisphere would include North America, South America, Bermuda and the West Indies and Newfoundland. Overseas would include Greenland, Iceland and the Aleutians.

Navy Minister Macdonald disclosed that the gratuities would be paid in unspecified installments, but the clothing allowance, and certain other remunerations would be paid in a lump sum on discharge.

The mustering out pay will de distributed on the following basis:

1. For every 30 days service in the Western Hemisphere, excluding the Aleutian Islands $7.50.
2. For every 30 days of service overseas or in the Aleutian Islands, $15.
3. For each six months of service overseas or in the Aleutian Islands, an additional seven days pay and allowances.

Tanks Clean Out Hot Spot For Eastern Unit

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Warr Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 10—(CP Cable)—Canadian armored and motorized units have been playing an important part in the advance of Dominion and British troops along the Falaise Road south of Caen.

The extent of their success cannot yet be accurately reported because of the confused type of fighting in which they have been engaged in the forward areas; but they captured one town and have accounted for at least three enemy tanks and a battery of 88 m.m. guns.

One group of tanks from an eastern Canadian regiment, working with a motorized unit from Ontario, had advanced easily as far as Cintheaux in the wooded hills south of Caen, when it ran into its first bit of trouble.

Eighty-eights were firing at the tanks from the area of Cintheaux while Tiger tanks plastered them from point 103 on the left flank.

Tanks Did Job

It was an infantry task to clean out Cintheaux, but the tanks were in advance of the foot-sloggers, and the tank commander decided the only way to pass the block was to clean it out with his own armor. This was done, and after the tanks had gone through, the infantry followed and cleaned out the town.

One group of tanks went right into the town while others covered them from east of the road. The tanks' bag inside the town included a battery of six 88 mm. guns and a couple of self-propelled guns. The tanks passed back about 30 prisoners and left another 50 Germans

Guam Island Falls To U.S.A.

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 10 (AP)—The virtual reconquest of Guam after 19 days' fighting was announced last night.

An Allied communique said a final thrust Tuesday brought all of Guam into American hands again, except for a small area inland from Pati Point, the island's northeastern extremity.

In the mopping up on Guam the final pocket of ill-fed, ragged and battered Japanese was under continual aerial, naval and artillery fire. Patrolling warships and vigilant troops guarded against escape either by sea or land.

Al Dopking, Associated Press war correspondent, reported jungle trails were strewn with enemy dead, in addition to 10,000 already buried by the Americans and an unknown total by the Japanese themselves.

On the Aitape battlefront of British New Guinea, it was announced, the enemy toll reached 7,007 known killed, with reports of an additional 1,072 slain during the developing American push east of the Drinfumor River.

American Subs Bag 16 Jap Ships

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—(AP).—American submarines, operating in Japanese waters, have destroyed another 16 enemy vessels, including one warship, the Navy announced today.

The latest bag of the far-ranging submersibles, which may have operated in coastal waters of the Japanese homeland, brings to 839 the numbers of Japanese ships of all types sunk, probably sunk or damaged by submarines alone.

Included in that total are 54 warships definitely sent to the bottom, 11 probably sunk and 14 damaged.

Goebbels Digs For Soldiers

LONDON, Aug. 10—(CP)—Propaganda Minister Goebbels banned all public meetings and entertainments in Germany not directly connected with the war today in a series of sweeping decrees seeking troops for the Reich's depleted armies.

Acting in his new capacity as Reichsplenipotentiary for total war effort, Goebbels dug deeper into the thinly spread home front manpower of Germany for reserves.

All domestic servants of foreign extraction were directed immediately into war industry. German servants will go into army uniforms, into war factories or into families with children where servants may be deemed essential.

The decrees reduced the number of employees in railways, postal and cultural services. The Berlin radio said they would soon be published formally.

Women up to 50 were order to work and all "sham work" was abolished. A series of age classes of men reserved for industrial jobs was withdrawn and then men were ordered into the armed forces.

Canadians Told To Go Forward Keep Going, By-pass Strongpoints

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 10 —(CP Cable)—Three infantry battalions which won their first battle honors of this war in the landing at Dieppe two years ago are taking part in the Canadian Army offensive south of Caen and broke through the first Geman line of defences on the first night of battle.

The Essex Scottish of Windsor, Ont., the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Hamilton, Ont., and the Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto, went into action with the Sherbrooke Fusiliers of Sherbrooke, Que., in an overwhelming night assault that smashed the line manned by the 89th German Infantry Division.

Also identified as being in battle were the Fusiliers Mont-Royal, which fought a bitter engagement to take May-Sur-Orne, left-wing anchor of the enemy defence line in another phase of the operation.

The sudden lunge forward of the Canadians Monday night and early Tuesday after an overwhelming aerial attack was the first night attack on its scale undertaken in France in this war, and designed to smash through the enemy front line at a moment least expected.

Four columns of tanks and caterpillar-tracked vehicles in which the infantry rode had orders to go forward and to keep going. Any places in which the enemy held out were to be by-passed, and would be taken care of by forces of mechanized infantry which followed these "hock columns."

The operation was accomplished as planned and where previous attempts to overcome the German positions had been held by the enemy, this advanced from one objective to the second and third right on schedule.

Troops mounted in armor had practically no time to rehearse for the operation, so quickly was it organized, but they had gone through three weeks of training in England in night fighting, which the Germans, when on the attack, seem to avoid.

The Essex Scottish, R.H.L.I., Royals and Sherbrookes moved into their attack formations during the heat of day on Monday. They assembled on a long reverse slope near the village of Ifs about a mile from the southern outskirts of Vaucelles, Caen suburb east of the Orne River. They were within a short distance

Polish Premier Is Optimistic

MOSCOW, Aug. 10 (AP)—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in London radiated optimism today after a second conference with Premier Stalin last night.

He said the two rival Polish regimes probably would meet in Warsaw again after it is captured to seek the reconciliation agreement they failed to reach here.

He expressed belief members of the Polish underground should lead Poland and remarked that this is the common front of every Pole.

Mikolajczyk saw Mr. Stalin for an hour last night and reported the Russian premier had given assurance of "his desire for a strong, independent, democratic Poland."

Negotiations between the rival regimes—the London government and the Soviet-sponsored national committee of liberation—broke up yesterday with both sides indicating a desire that they be resumed soon.

Indian Troops Take Taungni

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 10—(CP)—The Allies on the road to Mandalay in Northern Burma have captured Taungni, 10 miles southwest of Mogaung, after overrunning Sahmaw, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Sahmaw, about midway between Taungni and Mogaung on the railroad, fell to troops of the 3rd Indian Division, who found many Japanese dead and much abandoned equipment in the village, Headquarters declared.

In Northern India, meanwhile, Indian infantry, supported by tanks and artillery, was reported attacking the rearguard of retreating Japanese forces 12 miles north of the Burma border on the Imphal-Tiddim road.

General Lauds Canadians For Fine Job

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 10—(CP Cable).—The Canadian general commanding a Canadian infantry division whose troops were in the vanguard of the drive toward Falaise in a special order last night told his men: "We've fought a most successful battle and smitten the enemy a mighty blow."

The order said the battle fought by the division had cost the enemy more than 1,000 prisoners, as yet uncounted dead and "destruction of the fighting potential of the 89th German Division."

"The hinge or pivot of his whole defence line was broken into and we have afforded our armor an opportunity for exploitation in depth," the general added. "The operation was a difficult one, the tactics novel and we employed equipment and devices to which we were unaccustomed and we had not time for elaborate rehearsal. Yet in spite of this and the inevitable confusion of battle, the Hun was roundly beaten on his own ground."

The general concluded: "I offer my heartiest congratulations and look forward with you to an early opportunity once more of bringing the enemy to battle and destroying him."

Storm Batters Winnipeg

Near Hurricane Brings Destruction

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10—(CP). — A violent thunderstorm accompanied by winds of near-hurricane proportions, which swept through Mid-Western Canada yesterday and last night, struck Winnipeg early today, leaving a trail of destruction throughout the city and surrounding districts.

During the height of the storm the Government meteorological station at Stevenson airfield clocked the wind at 71 miles per hour, and Trans-Canada airlines planes from both east and west were as much as 17 hours late.

The storm moved east from Regina in a 200-mile belt disrupting communications and causing extensive damage. Reports it had reached cyclone proportions at Kamsack, Sask., and Dauphin, Man., were not confirmed but telephone communications with both places was still out early today.

The R.C.A.F. at Rivers, Man., reported a 41 miles per hour wind and some damage to the airport from rain and hail.

Early yesterday a heavy rain and wind storm swept northwestern Ontario and the Lakehead, flooding roads, washing out bridges and flattening crops.

No casualties have been reported from either storm.

Banking Bill Passes House

3 Members Give Up Money Reform Fight

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 10. — (CP). — Members of the Commons, speeding up work before them in an effort to end the present session by Saturday, yesterday disposed of four Government bills, gave second reading to another and put it partially through committee stage.

Among the bills adopted was the much-debated measure extending the charters of Canadian banks for another 10 years. The bill was given third reading by a vote of 84 to 6 after G. G. McGeer (L.-Vancouver Burrard), Arthur Slaght (L.-Parry Sound) and John Blackmore, Social Credit House leader, called a halt to their attempts to convince the Government of the need for money reforms in Canada.

Also given third reading were bills amending the War Income Tax Act and the Excess Profits Tax Act, and a measure aimed at encouraging banks to make intermediate and short term loans to farmers for the improvement and development of farms. Given second reading was the bill aimed at encouraging the building of new homes and the clearance of slums.

A recorded vote on passage of the Bank Bill was requested by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, whose party urged nationalization of the banks, and Mr. Blackmore, who argued the feasibility of creating debt-free money and the advisability of introducing other money reforms.

The Progressive Conservative party supported the Government bill, and earlier helped defeat an amendment in which Mr. McGeer urged that the banks be prohibited from issuing banks credits as a substitute for currency, unless authorized to do so by a board composed of the Prime Minister, the Minister of Finance and the Governor of the Bank of Canada.

Would Curb Banks

Mr. McGeer said he wished to take from the banks the power to set off booms and cause depressions. The inflation of bank deposits between 1926-1929 had set off the business boom in those years and the withdrawal of the deposits from circulation between 1929 and 1932 had been one of the primary causes of the depression.

Mr. Slaght urged that all money needed for public financing and Government needs be borrowed interest free from the Bank of Canada. He suggested that the banks be permitted to loan amounts not exceeding their holdings and securities.

Mr. Blackmore said it had been agreed that it was "thoroughly feasible" to create debt-free money, but Finance Minister Ilsley had argued that it was just about as expensive for the Government to finance that debt-free money as it was to finance money borrowed from the banks. He disagreed with the Minister, because it was possible to carry on Government financing more economically on money on which no interest had to be paid.

W. H. Moore (L-Ontario), chairman of the Commons Banking and Commerce Committee which studied the banking bill for more than two months, said he looked forward to the future with some apprehension, but his worries were not about money. He believed all marketable production could be financed. Money would follow naturally, but the trouble was production.

The disagreement on the banking bill was not carried into the discussion on the housing legislation. From all parties in the House came support for the principle of the legislation which would provide $275,000,000 for loans to prespective home owners, to present owners who wished to repair their homes, to builders of low rental houses and to those aiding in slum clearance.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said the C.C.F. would vote for the bill although members of the party were bitterly disappointed in it because they felt it wholly inadequate.

Private Interests

The rebuilding of towns and cities was to be left to private interests which also would have a say as to where the houses were to be built. The only way to provide houses was to set up public authorities to do the job and not proceed by way of loans and guarantees. It was unfortunate that no provision was made for assistance to municipalities in the development of municipally-owned housing schemes.

Among others who supported the bill were T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview), J. R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport), Hughes Cleaver (L-Halton), Dr. H. A. Bruce (PC-Toronto Parkdale), Norman Lockhart (PC-Lincoln), Gordon Isnor (L-Halifax), Rodney Adamson (PC-York West) and D. G. Ross (PC-Toronto St. Paul's).

Mr. Cleaver and Mr. Adamson urged that special care be taken to prevent the building of homes that eventually would decline into slums.

Dr. Bruce said he felt the amount to be loaned for the clearance of slums should have been set at $50,000,000 instead of $20,000,000 and the amount to be provided to the building of low rental houses should have been $100,000,000 and not $50,000,000.

Mr. Lockhart said he believed the legislation would be inoperative unless government controls on building materials were lifted.

Mr. Ilsley said that as long as the war continued and there was a shortage of materials the controls could not be lifted. The legislation was aimed at encouraging the building of homes in the post war, but it could be taken advantage of during the war too according to the availability of materials.

British Troops Widen Gains

ON THE ORNE RIVER FRONT, Aug. 10 — (AP) — British troops have widened their strategically important bridgehead across the River Orne in a 4,000-yard thrust that has poised a sharp new flanking threat to the German river bastion at Thury-Harcourt.

Keeping pace with the 1st Canadian Army offensive farther east the Tommies striking south along the Orne from the Grimoosq sector recaptured Brieux, La Bagotiere and La Moissoniere and seized the crossroads town of Forge A Cambro southwest of the De Ginglais forest

Simultaneously another British column, tightening a pincers sweep around Thury Harcourt, captured Tremblay, about six miles north of Conde Sur Noireau.

Farther to the southwest, Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's tanks and infantry burst through German defences barring the Vire-Vassy road and captured Roulours, 3,500 yards southeast of Vire.

Field Marshal Von Kluge still was hanging on like grim death to Estray as the Germans fought with fanatical fury in the ruins of that rubbled village on the Auny-Vire road.

"German movement behind the lines west of the Orne is confused," a British staff officer said. "Enemy transport is shuttling back and forth with no clear indication of what is going on."

LONDON — (CP) — Hundreds of General Post Office telephonists from dozens of towns in areas beyond present range of Hitler's flying bombs have volunteered to relieve opposite numbers in London so the latter can have a stretch of uninterrupted and safe rest somewhere else.

Drew Declares War On Allowance Bill

TORONTO, Aug. 10—(CP)—Premier Drew, terming the family allowance bill passed by Parliament an "obvious bribe" brought down on the eve of a "very important election" in Quebec, said last night his government plans to do all it can to make sure the bill does not go into effect.

In an address over a provincial network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Mr. Drew said implementation of family allowances would mean that money from the pockets of the people of Ontario would go "for the special advantage of the province of Quebec.

"We must decide," he said, "whether this is going to be a country where equality of advantage and obligation go hand in hand. This is the issue which cannot be separated from any discussion of any measure which offers special advantages to the province of Quebec.

"No other issue is of comparable importance. Social security, national prosperity, our very survival as a united nation, all depend upon its solution.

"The one real issue in that election (the Quebec provincial election of Aug. 8) was which party would assure the province or Quebec the least participation in the struggle upon which their survival and ours depend.

Preferred?

"The time has come for the people of this and every other province in Canada to say that Quebec is not going to receive preferred treatment while it refuses to bear its full share of the burden of war."

Ontario faces "the most alarming constitutional crisis which has developed in this country since confederation," the premier stated.

He said provincial taxing powers had been handed over to the federal government under explicit terms—so the government and parliament of Canada could wage total war against the Axis powers.

Stressing that he had repeatedly urged the Dominion government to convene a Dominion-Provincial conference to discuss and solve postwar problems before endorsing any measures which would burden the provinces, the Premier said it would be impossible for the federal government to pay "the baby bonus and other obligations they have assumed without continuing to occupy the field of taxation vacated by the provinces."

And, he continued, he had been advised by the Provincial Atterney-General that family allowances "are entirely within provincial jurisdiction."

For Total War

"If our money is to be used under the agreement (Dominion-Provincial Taxation Agreement) then it is to be used for total war."

Apart from the fact the family allowance bill "was such an obvious bribe," said Mr. Drew, "the people of Ontario would be called upon to pay half of the initial $200,000,000 involved.

The $100,000,000 in taxes, if handled by the Ontario government could provide $45,000,000 for "more generous" family allowances, $20,000,000 on the Northern Ontario highway system, $10,000,000 to expand Ontario Health and Hospital Services and another $10,000,000 to apply on the annual reduction of the province's debt.

"That, in terms of simple arithmetic, is why the Government of Ontario will not concur in any such high-handed procedure.

"If the Ontario Government submitted to this arrogant usurption of power which the Dominion Government has attempted in passing the baby bonus bill and other similar measures, then we would be handing over the rights of this province to a government, which has shown only too clearly that it submits to the will of Quebec.

"That is the simple issue. Are we going to permit one isolationist province to dominate the destiny of a divided Canada? I hope that each of you will answer with a resounding 'no,' which will be heard in every part of the province of Quebec.

"I hope that the people of every other province will give the same answer to this question which must be answered one way or the other very soon. And I go so far as to hope that the same answer will be given by many people in Quebec who must have felt heartsick and ashamed that their province has been made to appear before the world in such a shameful role.

"No truthful person can deny that it is sheer hypocrisy to pretend that there is real national unity in Canada today....

"There can be no basis of real unity while one province claims every advantage and denies an equal obligation to share in the protection of their country in its hour of peril."

The Premier said the Ontario Government was anxious to meet representatives of the Government of Quebec and of other governments in Canada "to lay a firm foundation for the great future which opens before us."

"But," he added, "we intend to insist that the basic principles of Confederation be recognized. We intend to take the position that we should handle our own social services and that we should not be called upon to make payments which are out of all proportion to the benefits we receive."

MYSTERIOUS PLACE.

Two young women surveying the latest war news as presented on the Examiner's window bulletin service were looking at a despatch from SHAEF, when one queried, "I've seen that place mentioned so often, and still I can't find it on any map, can you?" To which the other young war news paruser returned, in just as anxious a tone, "No, me either! And I've looked and looked too!" Girls...SHAEF is not a place, it's an abbreviation! Actually, it denotes, Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force.

insula), but the enemy at Dinard is resisting stubbornly." Pockets of resistance remained in St. Malo.

On the Canadian right the British 2nd Army widened its strategic bridgehead across the River Orne in a 4,000-yard advance.

The southern flank of the American drive eastward from Brittany surrounded the city of Angers (population, 84,525), 60 miles up the Loire River, extending the front to around 175 miles.

Foil Escape

At Brittany's tip, the Americans were pressing against elements of three German divisions within the great port of Brest. Lorient (50,000) on Brittany's south coast, was surrounded by land.

Unofficial reports said German ships had steamed into both Brest and Lorient harbors — apparently attempting a sea-borne evacuation —but an Allied naval net was believed ready to pounce. The Allies already have smashed three "Dunkerque" efforts there. A German convoy was intercepted while moving south of the channel island of Jersey, and two Nazi ships were damaged before the vessels escaped in the fog.

The Germans persisted in counter-attacks attempting to cut Allied forces into two segments from east of Avranches.

The Allied communique said that the enemy again had recaptured Mortain and "heavy fighting has been going on north and west of the town." A German counter-attack at Gathemo to the northwest was checked.

Headquarters confirmed the capture of the major rail centre of Le Mans (population 84,525), but did not disclose the whereabouts of a swift American armored column which swept through that city, 110 miles from Paris. There seemed little doubt this spearhead was driving down the last 100 miles to the French capital. A German broadcast reported U.S. tanks only 87 miles away.

At captured St. Malo, Brittany's sea fortress, only one holdout strongpoint remained. The Americans took 3,000 prisoners there in last few days. The Germans are putting up a hard fight at Dinard a few miles across the bay from St. Malo, but it appeared doomed.

Cross Highway.

The British attack west of the Orne overan Le Quesnee and the 2nd Army drive reached close to, if not across —the main Caen-Thury highway.

Tommies striking south from the Grimbosq sector captured Brieux, La Bagotiere, and La Moissoniere, and seized the crossroads town of Forge a Cambro, south-west of the De Ginglais Forest. Another British column captured Tremolay, six miles north of Conde-Sur-Noireau.

Farther south-west, British tanks burst through German defences and captured Doulours, 3,500 yards south-east of Vire. The Germans stil clung desperately to Estry.

The German announcement the Americans were within 87 miles of Paris—some 20 miles further than officially reported—may have been an attempt to get information, a move to prepare the homeland for loss of the French capital, on an effort to give the impression the intervening ground would not be defended.

A New Line.

The surrender of Le Mans indicated abandonment of any idea of an Alencon-LeMans-Tours defence line—an arc about 100 miles from Paris. Available information indicated the enemy's next potential line with comparable lateral communications was one running from Orleans northward through Chartres—a line that ould be only 50 miles from Paris.

The scanty German forces in Southern France for several days have been reported hurrying toward the Loire, presumably to assail this southern flank.

The Germans are believed to have a few more than 10 divisions to hold all of Southern France. Concentration of enough force to dent the Allied southern flank would mean opening up the way for a southern invasion from the Mediterranean.

of forward enemy positions just over the long hill and in an area which had been the target for enemy bombing attempts at night as well as being within range of German long-range artillery. There wasn't a bush to conceal the big battle group.

Got Close Support

Behind them was an array of artillery whose hundreds of gun-pits were being piled high with shells for the tremendous bombardment which helped the attack on its way.

The staff of the 1st Canadian Army was in communication with the R.A.F. bomber command in England regarding the targets selected for the first close support bombing on the greatest scale ever attempted at night and awaiting final weather reports which would determine whether or not the planes would come.

It was the first battle operation under the 1st Canadian Army command as well as the most important since D-day involving Canadians, and a big moment for all the forces involved.

The infantry moved off at 11:30 p.m. four column moved through the wheat-fields just west of the long, straight road that leads to Falaise.

When the artillery bombardment died away, German machine-guns opened fire and some of the enemy's 88s also opened up, but despite a bright moon, the armored force apparently was almost impossible to spot and the German fire was largely haphazard.

The right-hand column, carrying the Essex, passed through a minefield near Fontenay Le Marmion, and the next two columns swept around the battered village of Verrieres—which the R.H.L.I. had captured a few days before—and the little town of Rocquancourt.

From time to time groups of German soldiers with their hands held high passed by the tanks, infantry-carriers and the rest of the special armored vehicles that made up the force.

About 3:30 a.m. the Royals with their accompanying tank squadron were pushing towards the woods intersected by the Falaise highway near its crossing of the road running from Bretteville Sur Laize.

The R.H.L.I. went for an airfield short of the Bretteville road a few minutes later while the Essex advanced toward Caillouet where the Germans put up some strong resistance.

The troops consolidated upon their objectives, and east of the highway British forces which had advanced simultaneously also reached theirs.

Fresh Canadian infantry forces were brought up, and the Sherbrookes continued forward with them towards Bretteville Sur Laize.

Nazis Despoil French Village

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 — (CP) — The Swiss Gazette De Lausanne, in a dispatch reported to the office of war information today said the Nazis had added still another "Lidice" to the growing number of villages they have razed in occupied Europe, shooting 43 persons and burning down 80 houses in the French village of Bauges in Haute-Savoie.

The village was put to the torch, according to the newspaper, after German troops had conducted a "shot clash" with the French Forces of the Interior near Buages.

The Swiss newspaper also reported that German General Volpert, staff commander in Valence in the southeastern drome department, had issued an "order of the day" to his troops instructing them "to burn and pillage all villages in the territory at present held by the F.F.I."

All Robot Bombs Are Incendiaries

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(CP).—German robot bombs now are carrying incendiaries, the Ministry of Home Security announced today.

Examination of the new weapons showed that each of the flying bombs which fell recently in South England carried about 20 incendiaries. The fire missiles are scattered by the force of the flying bomb explosion after the robot touches earth.

The Ministry said present methods of fighting bomb-set fires would be continued.

The Home Security Ministry repeated today a grim warning that those evacuating London should take their gas masks with them.

After a lull of 24 hours—one of the longest since the Germans began the robot attacks—a few droned over London and the southern counties shortly after dawn.

An official announcement said "a number of people were injured."

dead.

Then they pushed through the valley immediately to the southeast of Cintheaux, advancing to a point just north of Haut Mesnil. It was real tank-killing country through which they pushed, but the sorties was made without difficulty. Few mines were encountered—probably because the Germans had not much time in which to lay them.

4. Subject to certain conditions a re-establishment credit—to be available for specified rehabilitative purposes—equal to the total amount of the gratuities payable on the 30 days basis.

Similar gratuities will go to Canadian residents who serve in any of the Empire forces and who resume residence in the Dominion within a year of the date of their discharge. A provision is added however that the amount of any benefit of similar nature received from any other Empire country will be deducted from the Canadian gratuities.

Is Tax-Free.

In other words, Canadians in the R.A.F. would have the amount of any mustering-out benefit from the British Government deducted from the Canadian gratuity.

The gratuity, which is tax-free, will not be payable to members of the forces discharged for misconduct. Gratuity payments will be made, under certain conditions, to dependents of armed force members who have died before or after discharge and without receiving their gratuity.

The motion, sponsored by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, says the gratuities are designed "to recognise the service of members of His Majesty's forces who have served on active service during the present war and to assist them in their re-establishment having regard to the length, sphere and terms of their service...."

Last War Plan

Mustering out pay in the First Great War was on this basis:—

Any part of three years or more service overseas, six months pay and allowances;

Any part of two years and less than three years service overseas, five months pay and allowances;

Any part of one year and less than two years service overseas, four months pay and allowances;

Any part of less than one year service, three months pay and allowances;

Three years or more home service, three months pay and allowances;

Two years home service, two month pay and allowances;

One year home service one month pay and allowances;

Less than a year of home service no gratuity.

An arbitrary minimum of $70 for a single man and $100 for a married man was placed on the gratuities which cost the Canadian government a total of $164,000,000.

Mr. King said in the Commons that the government's war services gratuities bill was one of the most important pieces of legislation ever to come before parliament.

He spoke before the House agreed to waive parliamentary procedure so that the resolution to the bill could be dealt with today.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said it was regrettable that legislation, which had been forecast in the speech from the throne, was brought down so late in the session.

Heavy Session

Mr. Graydon said he knew many hoped the session would end Saturday. If this could be done after the gratuities bill had been given the fullest consideration so much the better. He felt, however, that the legislation should not be rushed.

The inconvenience members might suffer was little to the inconveniences being suffered by the men the bill was aimed to help.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, also said the legislation should have been introduced earlier.

Mr. King said the session had been a great deal of legislation to review.

Much work has to be done in drafting the gratuities bill, which affected the three defence departments and the departments of finance and pensions.

He agreed that the legislation should not be rushed. However, the bill was so commendable that he did not see how there could be any lengthy opposition to it.

Chinese Fight To The Last

CHUNGKING, August 10—(AP). Die-hard Chinese forces headed by five generals apparently were making good yesterday their vow to fight to the death in battered Hengyang, oposing a Japanese assault to the last.

The Chinese High Command said broken radio contact made the situation obscure inside the city, where street fighting last was reported. Tuesday night five generals headed by Fang Hsien-chueh, 39-year-old Commander of the 10th Chinese Army, sent a farewell message to Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, declaring they would stick with their troops and die fighting.

Japanese troops broke into the suburbs of Yiyang, 60 miles northwest of Changsha, the Chinese High Command said. The enemy was trying to take this town to guard his communications and ward off flank attacks.

P. H. Chang, a Government spokesman, said the strategic importance of Hengyang nearly had been destroyed by the protracted and dogged defence of the city in which occurred some of the bitterest fighting since the battle for Shanghai in 1937. He reiterated China's determination to wreck the plan of the Japanese to seize the whole Hankow-Canton railway and split the nation in two.

The High Command said their units had made further progress in the siege of Tengchung, principal enemy stronghold in Western Yunnan.

IS THAT PALE YOUNG GIRL YOUR DAUGHTER?

Parents should not ignore the depressed moods, the listless, tired air, the pallor, headaches, fickle appetite—the crying spells—so many daughters exhibit during those years when they are passing into womanhood.

Gas And Stomach Disorders Made Her Nervous, Rundown

"Often Got So Bad I Felt Like Screaming," Says This Woman. Always Tired . . . Couldn't Sleep. Says Syntona Helped Her.

"For several years I suffered from awful spells of nervous indigestion with gas and pains after my meals," said Mrs. Bella Eastman, 67 Price Street, London, Ontario.

"It caused me terrible distress every time I tried to eat. First my food would sour and rise in my throat. Then the gas would form bringing with it a distressed feeling that made me so nervous I often felt like screaming. My entire system became affected by this sour, gassy condition of my stomach, and I began to have nagging pains in my back, limbs and joints. I was always tired, but when I'd lie down at night I was so nervous and upset, I couldn't sleep.

"I was badly discouraged about myself because I had taken so many things without getting relief. Then one day I read about Syntona helping other people, so I got some and began taking it. After a while I noticed my food wasn't giving me the trouble it did and then I kept improving until now I am like a different person. I am able to eat my meals and enjoy them without any gas, or sour acid risings. Since I am free from this distress my nerves do not trouble me. The aches and pains have gone away and I am enjoying sound, restful sleep at night. As a result I do not feel tired and rundown as I used to and I am so grateful to Syntona that I gladly tell my experience for the benefit of others who suffer as I did."

Britain Gets 2 Billions Worth Of Food

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—(AP).—The United States has furnished Great Britain with about $2,000,000,000 worth of foodstuffs in the 3¼ years that lend-lease has been in operation—most important element of civilian supply that will require adjustment when only the war with Japan remains—it was learned today.

A steady curtailment in lend-lease aid to the British Isles, paralleled by a return to normal commercial trade, is expected after Germany is defeated.

It is impossible at this time, one authority said, to estimate just what lend-lease help Britain will need to concentrate their efforts in the final campaigns to crush Japan. Here, however, is the background against which decisions must be made when the time comes:

In the first three years of lend-lease, March, 1941, through March, 1944, lend-lease shipments to all nations totalled $17,195,000,000. Of that amount $7,306,000,000 went to the United Kingdom.

The United Kingdom total consisted of $3,169,000,000 of munitions such as guns and tanks, $1,853,000,000 of industrial materials and products such as machinery and processed petroleum, and $2,284,000,000 of agricultural supplies, including both food and farm machinery.

Foodstuffs alone totalled $1,825,000,000 which means that food shipments to the British Isles have averaged about $50,000,000 a month. The volume of food lend-leased is described officially as representing about 10 per cent. of Britain's total supply.

Meanwhile reverse lend lease, most of it given in the British Isles, amounted to $1,526,170,000 up to last January, the latest period for which figures are currently available.

British reverse lend-lease has been chiefly in grounds, facilities and services for air and military bases.

Amputation Cases Need Employment

COBOURG, August 10 —(ENS) — Ralph Hodgson, placement officer, War Amputations of Canada, was the guest speaker at the meeting Tuesday night of Cobourg Kiwanis Club. W. H. McGuire was chairman. Mr. Hodgson pointed out that so far in the present conflict there had been 600 amputation cases and this would be greatly increased before the war is over. In the last war there were 3,500 amputations in the three branches of the service.

It was essential, he said, that everything possible be done to help these men get established after they returned home. While they would be in receipt of pensions it would do much for their morale if they had employment which they felt enabled them to do a useful service in the community in which they lived. The maximum pension payable was only $75 a month.

Walter Lippmann And Power Politics

For many years Mr. Walter Lippmann has been looked upon as the most able of American political columnists. His academic training has been balanced by practical experience and observation, and what he says carries great weight. Therefore it gives us pause when he writes a book (called U.S. War Aims) in which he declares his lack of faith in the re-organized League of Nations toward which his country and the other United Nations are now moving.

Mr. Lippmann rejects all the beliefs of President Wilson and the theory of collective security, and puts forward in its stead something which looks like a revival of the old 'balance of power' theory on a grand scale. He suggests that the world be cut up into a number of power blocs; the most important of these would be the Atlantic Community, which would include the whole of the western hemisphere, including Australia and New Zealand; it will be observed that this division puts Mr. Lippmann's country right in the middle of the most important bloc, and forces Britain and Europe out toward the fringe. The second bloc would include Russia' and Europe east of Germany. The third bloc would consist of China and Japan. The fourth would cluster around India, and the fifth would consist of the Arab world.

The first thing that strikes us as we consider this scheme is that it pushes Russia away from Europe, just at the time when Russia has shown herself anxious to make friends with Europe and enter into a system of give-and-take with Europe. We could not expect Russia to take a rebuff of that sort lying down, and she would probably want to gain some domination over Germany and part of the Orient in order to protect herself. In fact Mr. Lippmann's system looks as though it would arouse the suspicion of all the blocs except the immensely powerful Atlantic bloc, dominated by the U.S.A. Does Mr. Lippmann really think that his country is capable of leaping from isolationism to a position in which it would dominate half the world? If he does, he is an optimist.

And Mr. Lippmann is not an optimist, as his whole book shows, for it is founded on the notion that no great nation will ever use its power except to further its own ends. That is why he thinks that a League of Nations will not work. Now it is true that the history of nations shows a long record of selfishness and ignorant self-interest, but it also shows enough goodwill to provide hope for better things in the future. If it is possible in the future to combine the self-interest of individual states with the good of the world as a whole, in a reasonable measure, we might really achieve a working arrangement for peace. It is folly to expect that nations will suddenly become altruistic, but it is quite reasonable to suppose that they will be content to stop grabbing for everything in sight if they are assured of a square deal.

Mr. Lippmann is widely read in history, and therefore it is surprising to find him putting forward the old power-bloc scheme, without even a new construction placed upon it. Schemes of power blocs carefully balanced against each other have always failed the minute that the balance was disturbed by a nation which was moved by greed or injustice. There is no reason to suppose that what has proved itself unworkable so often in the past would work in the future. Great as Mr. Lippmann's reputation is as a political writer, we cannot feel that U.S. War Aims will enhance or sustain it.

"Nightshirt Is On The Way Back", is the heading of an article by J. H. Cranston in the Midland Free Press. From the laundry?

Stronger Universities In Canada

A brief has been presented to the Hon. S. S. Garson, the Premier of Manitoba, and to J. C. Dryden, the Minister of Education in that province, protesting against racial discrimination which is alleged to exist in the Medical Faculty of the provincial university. A part of the brief reads thus: "The standards which have been set do not eliminate the possibility of racial bigotry. Standards of admission still permit the Selection Committee to inquire into family background and income ... and other matters, mostly irrelevant".

If this is true, it is regrettable. Unfortunately such charges are not infrequently made against Canadian universities, and we feel that they point to a weakness in those institutions. It is not a weakness which is confined to the universities, however; it is a weakness of Canadian intellectual life as a whole. The universities of Canada are still young, and some of them have not learned the tolerance which is absolutely necessary to a centre of intellectual activity. The universities of the Old World have seen good days and bad, and they have learned that although a university may suffer every sort of ignominy from repressive and unenlightened governments, and recover, it can never recover from stultification which it imposes upon itself. Our Canadian universities, in some of their actions, show a tendency to stultify themselves and to forget that universal knowledge and universal humanism should be the aims of the best institutes of higher learning.

To be great, a university needs great teachers and freedom—nothing else is essential. Old buildings, and inadequate accommodation of all kinds are unimportant, but great teaching and freedom for all who want to learn are indispensable. Our universities, founded in a material age, and without a tradition of fighting for freedom behind them, are apt to concentrate on non-essential things, and to forget the things which make a university important and valuable to a nation. Family background and income, ethnic and religious differences—so long as the latter do not hamper real learning—should not concern university authorities, and probably would not do so if they felt certain of their ability to give the true bread of knowledge to anyone who wanted it. For in the atmosphere of truly great education people of base aims and deficient mental endowment feel uncomfortable and soon drift away. It is thus that real universities do their weeding.

The Emperor Of Japan

Many writers who have expressed themselves about the war with Japan have written in an intemperate vein about the Emperor Hirohito, the head of the Japanese state. Only the abdication of Hirohito will satisfy these excitable gentlemen. They lay much of the blame for Japan's treacherous conduct to his account.

The Emperor of Japan is probably as near to being an absolute ruler as any monarch living, though his power is not unlimited in fact. He acts upon the advice of his government, and the secret of Japanese government is to procure the goodwill of the Emperor, and represent whatever policy the government may advocate as the Imperial will. That is to say, the institution of the monarchy is looked upon as divine and incapable of error, though the actual living monarch may be a man of ordinary capacity without much talent for rule.

People who know Japanese life and thought intimately are of the opinion that the defeat of Japan, and the ultimate peace of Japan, will be better served if the Emperor is treated with respect. He is the most important single factor in Japanese national life and politics; if we convince the Emperor that a policy of Japanese aggression does not pay, much has been done to stifle that policy. But a direct affront to the person of the Emperor would be an insult which Japan would feel obliged to revenge, however long it might take to do so.

In dealing with the Japanese it may be advisable for us to consider the peculiar psychology of that race. If we achieve a psychological victory over the Emperor, and an unmistakeable military victory over his forces, we shall really have conquered the Japanese. But not otherwise.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An alienist says that in 25 years everybody will be crazy. Well, for years common sense has been so uncommon as to look like dangerous eccentricity.

A London theatre has just laid the largest carpet ever made in England; it is 100 by 43 feet, and weighs over a ton. This would make very nice chewing for Adolf on the day of unconditional surrender.

The Government's Bill

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: The family allowances bill is now before the House of Commons in the name of the prime minister. It is a brief Bill, running only to five pages of letter press.

Allowances, beginning July 1, 1945, are to be paid out of the general revenues of the Dominion, as follows:

For a child less than six years of age, five dollars per month.

For a child six or more years of age but less than ten years, six dollars per month.

For a child ten or more years of age, but less than thirteen, seven dollars per month.

For a child thirteen or more years of age but less than sixteen, eight dollars per month.

From these rates there are deductions, depending on the size of the family.

The allowance for the fifth child is reduced by one dollar per month; for the sixth and seventh, two dollars, and for the eighth and each additional child, three dollars.

If the child is of school age, he must be going to school or be receiving equivalent training in order to qualify for the allowance. The allowance, under the act, "shall be applied by the person receiving the same exclusively towards the maintenance, care, training, education and advancement of the child." If administration officials are not satisfied on this score, the payment shall be discontinued.

In case of dispute as to qualification for the allowance, an appeal tribunal is provided. The decisions of this tribunal will be final.

The allowance is not subject to taxation or to any law relating to bankruptcy or insolvency. Allowances cannot be assigned, charged, attached, anticipated or given as security for loans.

Allowances will be paid to one or other of the parents except where other arrangements are deemed necessary, when the money will go to "another suitable person or agency." The allowances due to Indians and Eskimaux shall be paid to persons authorized by the government to receive and apply them.

Penalties are provided for violation of the act or the regulations.

The allowances are to be administered by the new department of National Health and Welfare. Considerable administrative machinery is contemplated. Provision is made for boards and officials. Power is taken also to enlist the aid of the provinces in carrying out the act.

The minister must make a full report on expenditures and administration each year. That covers the bill.

BEFORE summarizing the main arguments against allowances, it may be useful to note points of criticism which, apart from immediate political considerations, are inconsequential.

There is the racial and the minority argument. The policy, it is said, is chiefly for the benefit of Quebec or of other minority groups. The statistics have already been given but, in any event, this argument, if accepted, would mean that Canada is not a national entity and that Dominion policies must be calculated on a provincial or racial rather than a national basis: that children are not equal but are to be valued in terms of racial origin. The birth-rate argument is only a variation of the racial argument. If Canada is to be a nation, then it must surely be conceded that a French Canadian, a German, a Ukrainian or a child of any other racial origin is just as valuable as any other child.

Then there is the contention that the wrong people have the largest families: that the parents in these cases are poor white trash, shiftless, thriftless, and not worth helping. This attitude, which takes a defeatist view of human nature, may also be ignored.

The traditional labour viewpoint has been mentioned and the relationship of family allowances to wages will be discussed later. It is true, however, that labour is tending to change its mind on family allowances. The Trades Union Congress of the United Kingdom reversed its position in 1942. Labour in Australia and New Zealand for some years has been in favour of allowances. The C.C.F. in Canada approved of allowances.

IT is argued that family allowances would lead to inflation. Undoubtedly allowances are costly and there might be something in this argument if it was a case of allowances or nothing. But if the alternatives are high wages and prices, or huge public works, the case on inflation is largely destroyed. In these alternatives, the allowances offer the least inflationary course.

Much, too, is being made of the administrative difficulties. Miss Whitton has attacked the policy savagely on this ground in a series of letters captioned "We're Calling the Baby Einstein." Miss Whitton's letters were written before the bill was made public and some of her criticism, therefore, falls to the ground. But she points to the difficulties of distributing millions of cheques per month, filling out millions of forms, the hordes of civil servants, stacks of calculating machines, and so on.

Miss Whitton resents grading babies like turkeys, pricing them in job lots. In the main, however, she points to the administrative difficulties in harnessing the income tax to the allowances. If babies would all come on January 1, or some other convenient date, and therefore all advance in age on this date, the problem would be simpler. But babies cannot be systematized and the resultant problems are great. It would do much to simply them if a flat allowance was paid to all children within the given age group. The changes in rate at various ages undoubtedly complicates the administration.

Miss Whitton suggests that the costs of administration may run as high as 20 per cent. Proponents of the policy disagree and place the cost at around 3 per cent.

Canada's Best Book City

An editor of Quill and Quire, the trade magazine of Canadian book publishers, in a published interview here the other day, said that Victoria was known in the trade as "the best book city in Canada." That is, on a per capita basis more books were bought and presumably read here than elsewhere. A somewhat surprising statement was added by the editor referred to. This was that Victoria with one-tenth the population has as many book shops as Toronto, which prides itself on being the centre of English-speaking culture—the Athens of Canada.

Although Vancouver has four times the population of Victoria, the total number of books taken out by cardholders at the Vancouver Public Library during the last year was only twice the number borrowed from the Victoria Public Library. The year's circulation totals are: Vancouver 713,259 volumes, Victoria 361,333.—Victoria Times.

Public Men And Their Rewards

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

IN his interview with I.N.S. of The Journal, an interview already widely quoted, Prime Minister King stressed the point that personal satisfaction is one of the greatest rewards of public service, but added:

"We do not need to induce good men into public life because most of them are eager to enter it. But we do need to make it possible for them to enter public life. And right now it is not very easy to say that Members of Parliament, for example, are being properly treated. The long sessions, the high taxes and the low income make it very difficult for many men to participate. I think this is a misfortune that should be remedied right after the war. The nation should have its best men in service, particularly now with the changing times that will call for the utmost in skill and character and experience".

Already The Journal has strongly supported this view, questioned the justice of a tax on indemnities of M.P.'s; and it hopes that as early as possible in the new Parliament steps will be taken to see to it that legislators are not penalized for their part in public service. For while it is right to keep our public life as much as possible on a plane of service, of patriotic duty, there is the need, if we are to make our democracy work, to take all practical steps to that end, and certainly to avoid anything which may place obstacles in the way of its working. We should not want to make the business of being a member of Parliament merely a "job". We should try to see to it that those willing to accept such responsibility are not made to suffer unnecessarily for their services.

And what applies to Members of Parliament applies also to our public officials. Mr. King said:

"I refer of course, not only to Members of Parliament but to our Civil Service. We have a splendid body of people in government service and it is a continuing source of pleasure to me to hear them complimented by people of other countries. At the recent meeting at Bretton Woods, the Quebec conferences, indeed at nearly every conference, I hear of compliments paid to our government service men and women. We cannot be too grateful to them now, and in the future we should see always that they are well cared for even though we cannot match the salary attractions of outside life".

There is no need to try to match the salaries of private life, where standards of values are too often lopsided. But what should be possible is a scale of material rewards for public offices that will attract the best men to them; this all the more so at a time when government and public administration become far more vital to the national life than private activities, no matter how imposing. As it is, we notoriously underpay our best officials, including the members of our judiciary.

Gravy Conservation

(NEW YORK TIMES)

OF gravy conservation very little has been written in the books on etiquette and very little has been said in the colums of advice to those who are searching for correct methods and techniques. It would seem that the time has arrived for a constructive policy. To be sure, certain groups more interested in the fundamentals than the trimmings have never been puzzled. Those who admit no problems face no alternatives.

History records that a former President ate dinner at a bunk-house on a Western ranch and used half of a baking soda biscuit to conserve the gravy on his plate. Farm hands and lumbermen have long known this efficient method. It has much to commend it. A brown-crusted half biscuit, piping hot and with a generous amount of butter dissolved in the soft, white interior, is an efficient, neat tool. A good-sized half will function for two or three moppings if one is careful to eat only the well-gravied part.

The urban family faces a more difficult problem. One doesn't have so many biscuits; johnnycake is pat to be too crumbly to be a satisfactory gravy absorber. Often there isn't enough mashed potato to utilize all the gravy. Therefore, in general, it comes down to two choices. First, one can use a piece of bread. This may be used in the fingers or on a fork. Either way, one pushes the bread about, getting gravy on a part of it. This is efficient, and if the operation is performed slowly and with a graceful movement is entirely aceptable to most authorities.

The other method is to use a teaspoon and take the gravy straight. It has the advantage of permitting one to taste the full flavour, but if the gravy is on the thin side one may have to tip the plate. However, if one tips the plate away from him, as with soup, the amenities are observed. The point is, conservation is the order of the day, and gravy conservation would help redeem the daily food wastage on millions of generously laden plates.

Wartime Service

Frustration of perfectly normal needs is part of the lot of every civilian in wartime. He gets some unsuitable flattery twice a year, when his money is needed for Victory Loans, and he is regularly told that his co-operation is essential in supporting the price ceiling; but in general, the civilian and his needs are matters to be shelved for the duration.

The attitude of officialdom towards the unessential civilian is understandable. It is even excusable, when civilians complain about not being able to secure such things as gasoline, tires and railway reservations for pleasure travelling. What is not so easy to bear is the attitude of some civilians towards others, particularly in matters of service.

If one sends a suit to a cleaning establishment, the chances are that it returns still bearing the grime and gray that made the cleaning desirable. If one complains, every intonation of the young lady at the other end of the telephone line suggests that one is utterly unreasonably to expect to receive the service that one has bought and paid for.

Business executives are worried about the loss of goodwill accruing from the attitude of their employees. A hotel manager, to whom a friend complained about some gratuitous rudeness from a servant, frankly said: "What can I do? If I scold her, she'll quit, and National Selective Service will send me someone worse, if they send me anyone at all."

Occasionally, inefficient service reaches the est Pullman porter was the worst in his long experience. He was slow in answering the bell, made up the berths sloppily, left shoes unshined. At the terminal, the traveller deposited half his customary tip in the outstretched palm and said: "If you had given me half decent servcie on this trip, I'd have given you a good tip."

The porter looked at the coins and said: "Well, boss, thank you for this much anyway." — Printed Word.

Letter To The Editor

GUTS

Sir,—We all know that 'Guts' is a indelicate name for part of our anatomy; we all know that 'Guts' is a vulgar expression used sometimes to denote moral courage; we all know that our Government uses 'Guts' as an advertisement to induce the English-speaking Canadians to look themselves straight in the eye in order to answer the question of whether they are men or mice, but when a great political party becomes sick after swallowing its published and pledged criticism of the Baby Bonus Bill against the medical advice of a man like Dr. Bruce, the word 'Guts' becomes a classic.

All loyal Canadians are thankful that we have in public life, men like Dr. Bruce and Senator Bouchard who are not afraid.—Yours truly,

R. J. ALLAN.

HUMILIATING

A Toronto man has brought a newspaper to task for presuming he was dead, which recalls the experience of a citizen who revisited his native town after an absence of five years. The first three men he met didn't recognize him and the next five didn't know he had been away.—Renfrew Mercury.

TRAFFIC COUNTER

The Ontario Department of Highways is experimenting with an automatic traffic counter, developed by its staff from salvage parts of other equipment. A thin rubber hose across the pavement when subjected to the pressure of wheels operates an electric relay and registers the number of passing vehicles. One such device has been put to work on the Queen Elizabeth Way, and others are to be used at traffic census points elsewhere.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

REDUCED TO 100,000

Considering all the more pressing matters that make demands on their time, German propagandists are unlikely to try to draw some comfort from the fact that the United States will reduce its military airplane output by three per cent this year. Production for the year will stand at 100,000 planes, which are a lot of aircraft anywhere, and something more than that to any enemy country which can expect unfriendly visits from them a couple of times a day.—Windsor Star.

SQUARE MILK BOTTLES

An American glass company is experimenting with square milk bottles. They are reported in use in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and to be meeting with general favour. The square containers mean that householders can now put a couple of quarts of milk in the ice box without crowding out everything else but the ice.

Great galleries of rosy pictures have been painted of the push-button world of the future. We will glady trade the whole plastic-fringed prospect for a few practical improvements such as this square bottle idea plus a sure-fire way of opening a shoe-polish can without dumping the goo on the floor.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A Bible Message

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, I am the Lord your God.... Ye shall therefore keep my statutes, and my judgment, which if a man do, he shall live in them: I am the Lord. (Lev. 18: 1, 2, 5.)

Let us choose to us judgment: let us know among ourselves what is good....

Therefore hearken unto me, ye men of understanding, far be it from God, that he should do wickedness; and from the Almighty, that he should commit iniquity. For the work of a man shall he render unto him, and cause every man to find according to his ways. Yea, surely God will not do wickedly, neither will the Almighty pervert judgment. (Job 34: 10-12.)

Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord my God, mine Holy One? we shall not die.... Thou are of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity. (Hab. 1: 12, 13.)

John King's House

An anonymous donor has ensured the preservation of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's boyhood home at Kitchener by presenting it to the Waterloo North Liberal Association to be held in trust. It is intended by the association to develop the property, consisting of the house set in 11 acres of wooded ground, as a national historic site.

Mr. King will undoubtedly appreciate the spirit of the gift. He has a strong historic sense and a deep reverence for the stones of the past which would naturally include such family sites as his old boyhood home.

Thus within Western Ontario there are now two historic sites connected with Mr. King's family. A year before the war, the fine old stone house which had been the printing office of William Lyon Mackenzie, had been restored as a national monument. It stands on the bank of the Niagara River in a part of Ontario charged with stirring deeds in the progress toward Canadian nationhood.

John King's house at Kitchener stands on quieter ground. But it offers opportunities for notable use as an historic site, and with the eleven acres surrounding it, for the benefit and pleasure of the community.—Ottawa Citizen.

Social Credit Victory Dooms C.C.F.

EDMONTON, August 10—(CP)—Premier E. C. Manning, in a statement on his Social Credit Party's victory at the polls on Tuesday, said yesterday it marked the "beginning of the end of the state Socialism of the C.C.F. as an alternative to the old order of the past."

The C.C.F., which like the Government Party contested all the 57 Legislature seats in the election, had failed to elect a single candidate as the count proceeded early yesterday.

Mr. Manning's statement said in part:

Once more the most enlightened electorate in Canada has spoken with a clear and unmistakable voice. The sweeping verdict which they have rendered at the polls may be regarded as four-fold.

1—An emphatic endorsation of their Government's record of achievement during the past nine years.

2—An expresion of confidence in the Government's determination to continue its all-out fight to remove the root causes of our social and economic ills and to help Alberta in the proud position of leadership she now enjoys as the most progressive, the farthest advanced and the best administered province in the Dominion.

3—An emphatic repudiation of the deceptive political practices employed by those whose desire was to defeat the Government at all costs—and,

4—A definite rejection of the impracticable and anti-democratic philosophy of State Socialism. By their democratic choice the enlightened people of Alberta have declared to the rest of Canada that the true practical Christian democracy for which Socital Crediters are fighting is a far better and much more to be desired alternative to the old order of financial orthodoxy, than State Socialism ever has been or ever can be.

Too Much Hurry Says Iva Fallis Of Health Bill

Fear that the family allowances bill may have the effect of curtailing the extension of social services was expressed by Senator Iva Campbell Fallis of Peterborough in the Senate debate of this Government measure last week.

Senator Fallis said she was in accord with the objectives of the bill "to bring about a greater measure of well-being for the children of Canada in the fields of nutrition health and education, especially those whose parents were in the lower income group. On the other hand she had received communications from groups of women in that category who were studying the subject.

"They tell me that while they are not opposed to the Bill, and like myself are in full accord with the object aimed at, they are uneasy on two scores: first, they fear these cash payments may take place of higher wages for their husbands; and, secondly, they have been looking forward to a great expansion of social services throughout the country, especially the yearly medical check-up, the twice yearly dental check on all children under sixteen, with free medical attention as needed, the extension of health clinics to rural centres, the electrification of rural homes and the extension of educational facilities in rural areas, which of course includes better salaries for teachers."

Urges More Consultation

Senator Fallis said she could not see how the cash allowance would be an aid if a community was unable to pay good salaries to the best of teachers. "In every community there are great numbers of parents who are not at all convinced that their children need any great amount of education." Senator Fallis argued that the provinces should have been consulted before the Bill was introduced. "I do not oppose its principle, but I do object to the undue haste with which it is being adopted. It was not introduced in time to send to the social security committees, as was the health measure brought before Parliament a couple of sessions ago.

Members of the Government side in both Houses have spoken of this Bill as being just one part of a great program of social security; yet the health bill, which also forms part of that program, was before the House of Commons committee on social security for a long time, and is now being sent to the Dominion-Provincial Conference for further consideration before it becomes law. I submit the same course should have been pursued with regard to this Bill....But when this line of reasoning is submitted we are met with the argument that there is no time now to do these things; that, even though the Bill will not come into force until July 1, 1945, it must be rushed through now, because the intervening time is required for setting up the necessary machinery.

Too Much Haste

Frankly I have not been much impressed with this argument.

The present Government has been in power for nine years, some of them years of very bad depression when the children were really suffering and badly needed assistance. But nothing was done. Now we are in a period of high wages; work for everybody is the order of the day. This being so I cannot see why, after waiting nine years, it should suddenly become imperative to rush this Bill through without submission to the Dominion-Provincial Conference. If an emergency really exists, then I submit that the Government should have introduced the Bill early in the session so that it could have been considered by the proper committees.

It seems to me that the Senate has a duty to perform. As honorable members of this House have repeatedly stated, the Senate is an independent body, that it is in no way a rubber stamp for the House of Commons, and one of its chief duties is to prevent legislation being rushed through without full consideration by the proper authorities. I submit that we now have an opportunity to show the people of Canada whether or not we have meant what we said, and still mean it. We owe a duty to the people of this country, who will be heavily taxed to meet the financial requirements of this legislation, and that duty is to satisfy ourselves that the Bill before us will give the maximum benefit to the children of Canada, a benefit proportionate to the amount of money which will be spent.

In order to satisfy ourselves, only one method was possible—consultation between the Dominion and the provincial authorities. This is my own personal opinion upon it. I submit that the Senate should not give this Bill second reading, but should ask that it be referred to the coming Dominion-Provincial Conference for consideration along with the national health bill. If that were done there would be no delay; the Bill could still be brought before Parliament at the beginning of next session and could become effective by the 1st of July, 1945. I believe that if we took such action, all Canadians—certainly the majority in many provinces—would feel satisfied that an honest endeavour was being made to spend the money of the taxpayers to the very best possible advantage."

TWO SONS KILLED—Pilot Officer Joseph Allen and Lieut. Edmond Bernard Allen, both of whom have been killed on active service, are pictured with their father, J. J. Allen (Top), night clerk at the Empress Hotel. From 1906 until 1913 Mr. Allen was township clerk in Douro and then moved to Edmonton. In 1941-1942 he worked as a guard at the C.G.E. PO. Joseph Allen (Centre) was born in Douro and enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1942. He was reported missing in August, 1943, following a plane crash in the Bay of Fundy, and on July 5, the R.C.A.F. listed him as presumed dead. Prior to enlisting he was a barrister in Edmonton, where his wife and two children live. Lieut. Edmond Bernard Allen (Bottom) was one of many soldiers who were killed at Ortona December 27. He and his men were engaged in street fighting when a bomb struck the house they were in and the entire group was killed. Four days after war was declared, Lieut. Allen enlisted in the R.C.A.M.C., later transferring to the Artillery and going overseas in December, 1939. He took part in the Spitzbergen Commando raid, and in May, 1942, came back for an officer's course. He returned overseas in April, 1943. Lieut. Allen was also born in Douro, and at the time of his enlistment he was manager of an Edmonton undertaking firm.

Soldiers will be fighting in the last slit trench tonight when they meet Plazas in the fourth game of their City League semi-final series. The Ellis-Starr combination are leading the round two games to one and need only one more victory to cinch the series and go into the finals against the Switchgear-U.E.W. winners. That means that the Military Training Centre team must knock off the second-placers tonight or hang up their unies for the season. It should, therefore, be one of the tightest battles of the whole campaign, with both outfits going all out for a win. Soldiers who lost the services of Pitcher Pete Procyk Tuesday through an accidental injury will have no other choice than to send big Earl Revoir in against the Plazas. The latter are expected to use either Frank Stokoe or Dave Wilson. Both outfits are confident and with so much at stake the game should prove about the most exciting of the entire series. The battle will get under way at 6.45 o'clock and all games this week will start at that hour.

Tomorrow night Switchgear and U.E.W. will clash in the third game of their semi-final round and it should be a different contest to the loose affair of last night. Both teams will be out to get the jump on the opposition for the winner of this battle will be in he driver's seat and only a game away from cleaning up the round. Union are trying to make sure of the presence of Hatty Eakins for this important assignment but if he should not be available tomorrow night they will probably have him lined up for the fourth game which will have to be staged on Saturday. The U.E.W. point out that they scored seven runs last night and declare that would have been ample margin for the kind of ball the Lindsay heaver usually tosses. Mac McPherson is also expected to be in readiness to take over the mound duties tomorrow. Switchgear will start either Ronnie Akers or Freddy Elliott against the fourth-placers. With the series all tied up tomorrow night's game should produce plenty of action. The loser will be behind the eight ball so that both outfits will be in there trying all the way. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock and players should make it a point to be there on time.

Those little individuals who take a delight in mixing things up, known to the British and Canadian airmen as Gremlins, have their counter part in the printing industry and they were so active in scrambling a paragraph concerning the visit to Peterborough of the famous Toronto Sunday Morning Class on August 19 that most readers who tried to read some sense into the item as it appeared in this column yesterday probably gave up in despair. What the paragraph originally said was that the celebrated swing-skirted Sunday Morning Class, one of the strongest and most nattily attired girls' softball teams in the country, will be here a week from Saturday to meet a picked team from Westclox and Aircraft in a game in aid of the Kinsmen's charities. The Toronto girls who feature the famous Thelma Golden Fidler, ace pitcher, draw huge crowds wherever they play and they are coming down here at their own expense to help boost the worthy cause for which the game is being staged. That generous co-operation will make it possible to turn over the whole gate to the Kinsmen's Club. The visit of the celebrated Sunday Morning Class should be one of the biggest sporting events of the season.

With August 21 set as the dead line for opening the zone O.A.S.A. playoffs the City Softball League has a big job on their hands to get the local championship decided in time. The playoffs here are still in the semi-final stage. One bracket could be ended tonight and will be of course if Plazas win but at least two more games will be necessary in the Switchgear-U.E.W. series. The fourth game in that round is to be played on Saturday and if Soldiers should tie up the round with Plazas they too will be ordered to play Saturday. The setup for the final round as decided early in the season calls for a four-of-seven series but that would seem almost an impossibility with the opening O.A.S.A. game coming up a week from Monday. As a result it is proposed to cut the final round down to a best-of-five affair and this matter will be decided at a meeting of the City League executive to be held at Riverside Park, following Friday night's Switchgear-U.E.W. game. This is a very important matter and every team is asked to be sure and have a representative present at the meeting.

Colts Meet Trenton

Writes George Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette: "Oshawa Colts, meanwhile, have an idle week or two ahead of them but plan to work in a few exhibition games in order to keep in shape for their approaching playoffs. They have been drawn against Trenton in the first round of the Senior "B" playoffs and the prospect of meeting Bennie Chorner, Eddie Geraldi, and Co., looms as a real threat to championship ambitions. Chorner is quite one of the best softball chuckers in the province and supported by the strong team of reliable fielders and heavy hitters that Trenton is reported to have lined up, it seems quite evident that Oshawa Colts will meet their toughest opposition in the very first round of the Senior "B" playoffs. Toronto, of course, always has an outstanding Senior "B" champion and St. Catharines' Thompson-Products, the 1943 champions, are very much in the picture too. Thompson-Products defeated Oshawa Colts 8-5 on Saturday afternoon in the return exhibition game played in St. Kitts. Colts took things too easily after grabbing an early 3-0 lead on "Dib" Little's homer. They were also guilty fo some weak infield work which enabled the "Tee-Pees" to get some soft runs on scratchy hits that didn't roll as far as the outfielders. Colts expect to have a game here this Saturday afternoon, against some worthy Toronto opponents."

Tex Hughson, pitching ace of the Boston Red Sox wound up his big league craeer for the duration yesterday by winning his 18th victory of the season and now leaves to join Uuncle Sam's Navy. The call of his country has deprived Hughson of a chance to pile up a win record of at least 30 games this season because he has been going along like a well-oiled machine and allowed only four hits in his final appearance. With Hughson goes any chance the Red Sox had of winning the American League pennant. Incidentally the St. Louis Browns are playing as if they do not intend to give anybody a chance to head them off. They beat Hank Borowy and the Yanks 3 to 2 yesterday and are steaming right ahead. In the National League the Cards are rolling along with no sign of a letdown. When they defeated the Phillies yesterday for their 73rd win in 100 starts they equalled a big league record that has stood for 37 years. Away back in 1907 Frank Chance's great Cub machine also won 73 out of 100. Yesterday's victory put the Cards in front 17½ games and they have only to break even from now in to cop another pennant.

Al Marshall Wins In Egypt

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN THE MIDDLE EAST, Aug. 10—(Delayed) —Many a rural Canadian in peacetime has rolled up to the local Dominion Day celebration in a rickety old Model T Ford, or the family horse-drawn buggy. But it is doubtful if any have ever appeared astride a camel or a donkey.

Nevertheless, that's what Canadians in the Middle East did on July 1st, when they celebrated Dominion Day with a special program in Cairo.

Lads in the R.C.A.F. converged by camel, donkey, car, train, plane, and by other devious means, from all over the desert and from as far away as Palestine and South Africa. It was voted the best "First of July" ever observed away from home.

At Cairo's famed Alamein Club track and field events were held during the day, while special swimming races were staged in the evening, followed by a dance.

Cpl. Carson Gregg, Winnipeg, pitched the winning softball club to a close victory over the Cairo Headquarters team, which had Sgt. Don O'Brien, also of Winnipeg, on the mound.

Star individual performer of the day was FO. Al Marshall, Peterborough, Ont., Canadian breast stroke swimming champion for 1940, '41 and '42. He entered six events and was first in each of them.

Switchgear Team Evens Up City League Playoffs

Switchgear evened up their semi-final City League playoff round with U. E. W. at Riverside Park, Wednesday night by taking the second game of the series, an abbreviated and loosely-played affair by 13 to 7. Play was called for darkness at the end of the seventh inning.

The teams will meet in the third game of the series tomorrow night and the fourth fixture will have to be staged on Saturday.

Until the seventh and final frame last night's tilt was a ball game. The lead had changed hands several times and Switchgear had only a 6 to 5 lead at the close of the sixth. Manager Murph. Chambers' club however cut loose with a seven-run rally in the seventh, climaxed by Earl McNabb's triple with the bases loaded and turned a close battle into a rout.

Union found themselves without either of their imported pitchers, Hatty Eakins and Mac McPherson and that left the pitching chore up to Don Isaac who has not had much mound work this season. The youngster toiled courageously in the face of some costly defensive slips for the first six frames but he tired badly and Switchgear teed off in the seventh to break the game wide open.

Bert Harrison did the tossing for Switchgear and was steady, allowing only one base on balls and nine hits. He too was the victim of some lose fielding.

Vic Griffin in centre field for the losers had the feature catch of the game, a running grab of what looked like an extra base hit from the bat of Holly Mowry.

Drives In Five Runs.

Earl McNabb was the batting hero of the engagement. He came up in the fourth with two out and a runner on the paths and slammed a homer to deep left centre and in the seventh with the cushions densely populated he walked a triple to the same spot, driving in three runs. That would have been a circuit clout, too but McNabb fell in rounding first and had to pull up at third.

Switchgear started the scoring in the first when Carpenter bunted safely, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Ashmore's single to left.

It took a couple of errors to give the winners their second run in the first of the third. With one away Tompkins ran to second, when Isaac tossed wide to first after fielding an easy roller, Carpenter popped to Girard for the second out. Ashmmore got a life when Harding dropped Patterson's throw on a play that should have retired the side and Playford walked to fill the bases. Mowry singled past third scoring Carpenter but Ashmore was caught between third and home on the play and tagged out.

Union Take Lead.

Union roared back with a three run rally to take the lead. There were two out when Platt bunted safely down the first base line. Quigley got a life when Nicholls threw wide to first after fielding his roller. Girard ripped a single over first and Platt scored when the throw to the plate got away from Mowry. Griffin smashed a clothes' line double into centre scoring Quigley and Girard. Harding fanned to end the frame.

That left it 3 to 2 for Union but Earl McNabb's homer to left in the first of fourth with Brockley, who had singled, on the runway sent Switchgear in front again 4 to 3.

U. E. W. took the lead again in their half. With one away Patterson was safe when Tompkins threw wide to first. Jackson flied to centre. Isaac singled to centre, sending Patterson to third. Platt singled on a fast roller that bounced off McNabb's chest and Patterson scored.

Isaac carried the second run over when Platt pulled a delayed steal and Mowry threw to second. Platt finally scrambled back to first safe-

TORONTO, August 10—(CP). — War and sports have much in common, and the tactics employed in football, lacrosse and hockey in many cases have their counterparts in the grimmer game of war. That is the opinion of Maj. H. C. Beaumont, Canadian Army sports officer, whose job is to get the troops in good physical trim by judicious use of sports and gymnastics.

Expounding his theory to Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning, the Major explained it thus: "In football, one man takes the ball and 11 others probe and thrust and plunge to find an opening for him. In many cases these attempts are parried by the opposition, but ultimately the attacking side discovers a weak point, throws its entire weight in this sector and achieves a breakthrough."

You can follow the comparison through in hockey and other competitive games, which all have their place in helping a prospective soldier achieve physical fitness and an alert mind.

That's probably part of the season the Army is thinking of relaxing somewhat the ban on inter-district hockey play by military teams.

Incidentally:

Dave Castilloux is the best bet Canada has had in the boxing game since the hey-day of Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin, says Bill Gagnon in the Niagara Falls Evening Review. He hazards the opinion that Dave should have no difficulty stopping the best going in his weight class once he gets back in fighting trim......Baseball experts who looked at aging Vince Ferguson, perennial baseball wonderman around Halifax, said he would have gone far in pro ball if he had taken the plunge when he was at himself ....Neil Colville, former New York Rangers star of the ice lanes, turned out for his Winnipeg baseball debut the other day. He turned in a smart second-base game for No. 5 Air Observers School....Les Lear of Winipeg's football Blue Bombers, is leaving for Cleveland to join the Rams of the professional National Footbal League. He's the first Western Canada developed rugby star to leave the amateur ranks.

Jack Arnott Scores 8-End

By HERB. MARTIN.

A baseball player's dream is to knock out a home run with the bases loaded.

A golfer's ambition is to play a hole-in-one.

A lawn bowler's prayer is that he may some day score a possible eight end.

And this prayer was answered for Jock Arnott on Tuesday evening when, pinch-hitting as skip for Stan Lowe, he scored the possible eight end against his opponent at the very first of the game. And they tell us it was no fluke at all, it was really an earned end. To score a possible in lawn bowling, falls to the lot of very few bowlers—maybe one or to a season—and anyone who has accomplished this feat has every reason to feel proud But you should hear Jack tell about it—fals right in line with his fish stories, and Jack is some fisherman, and everybody knows how they can lay it on when they land a real trout. It would be worth ten minutes of anyone's time just to hear him tell all about it.

Seabiscuit
So uncompromising as a two-year old that he was sold for $8,000, Seabiscuit, grandson of Man o'War, beat his sire's best son, War Admiral, at Pimlico and despite knee trouble, has earned a total of well over $300,000.

Breeding Will Tell

Seabiscuit comes of a noble strain — and was raised in the famous Bluegrass Country near Winchester, Kentucky. Fine tobaccos also are pedigreed and the country of racing champions is famous also for its tobacco. Winchester Cigarettes are blended from three famous strains of world-champion tobaccos — Virginia, Turkish, Burley — each contributing its special quality. For a champion smoke, try Winchesters. They'll be your lifetime favourites.

Leafs Defeat Speeding Bears By 2-1 Score

By The Associated Press

When the final story of the 1944 International League pennant race is written, Toronto Maple Leafs may have played a larger part than their standing might indicate.

Last night the Leafs defeated the onrushing Newark Bears 2-1 and threw them back from the very gates of the league lead. Newark had gone into the night's play only half a game behind Baltimore. Today they are 1½ out, the Orioles having won.

Luther Knerr pitched the Leafs to the victory and was instrumental in the scornig of the winning run, singling Tony Ordenanna to third, from where he scored on a hit by Tony Castano.

The Orioles made good use of their opportunity, whipping the Red Wings 7-5. Sam Lowry started for the first-placers, but was relieved by Hal Kleine, who was the winner.

Danny Gardella, making a strong bid to beat his way back to the major leagues, clouted his third home run in three days to help Jersey City Giants to a 9-7 decision over Buffalo.

Syracuse closed their season's series happily with Montreal, heaping a 7-6 defeat on the slipping Royals. Bob Malloy emerged the winning pitcher of three for the Chiefs, while John Gabbard suffered the defeat. High spot of the game from Montreal's point of view was Eddie Basinski's 430-foot inside-the-park homer.

NO-HITTER — Walter Brown, former major leaguer, hurled a no-hitter for Toledo in the A.A. game against Milwaukee.

By HYE BOSSIN

The British Win Another Battle

The other day United Artists, one of the USA's leading film distributors, signed a deal to place before American theatre audiences all the best British films. This is something new in the motion picture world, for until now only the occasional British film was placed before the American public as a whole, few receiving the same nation-wide distribution accorded every Hollywood film, regardless of quality. The situation was so bad that one British newspaper correspondent wrote from New York that the USA was "the graveyard of British films." At least 25, he reported, were waiting in vain in New York for someone to distribute them.

Behind this new deal for British films is J. Arthur Rank, who in eight years became the leading figure in the motion picture world. Rank, whose family controls the flour milling industry of Great Britain, is a staunch church-goer and was drawn to the film industry when he supported the Religious Film Society. An examination of the commercial film industry of Great Britain, which stopped developing when Britain busied itself with the first World War, made plain its possibilities.

Rank set out to lead the British film industry to the front ranks. Today he controls most of Britain's film studios, as well as 1,000 of its 4,500 theatres. His companies are capitalized at $65,000,000—and that's just the beginning.

How He Did It

When Rank first announced his intentions Hollywood, accustomed to its own way, ignored him. His demand for more showings in the USA of British films went unheeded.

"If a fight is forced on me," he said, "I am ready and willing to fight back."

Then he organized the Eagle-Lion Distributors and staffed it with Americans and Britons. He would spent $30,000,000 to open offices in the USA and the rest of the world. British films, he said, would hereafter be made with international appeal, though reflecting the British character. It was said that he had prefabricated theatres ready for immediate erection in Europe at the conclusion of the war.

All this made Hollywood realize that this man was a fighter. The overseas market, before the war, yielded Hollywood from 40 to 60 per cent of its return. To this Britain, where American film companies have powerful holdings, was a great contributor. Rank was in a position to reduce the British yield and was strategically located for seizure of the European market.

British films, it was pointed out by motion picture authorities, had made great technical progress in spite of the war. If Rank won the race into Europe and established the popularity of his stars, American films would never enjoy the same prominence again. Not only that, but Rank intended to acquire theatres everywhere and American films would face the same problem of playing time that British films ran into in the United States.

So now British films will be competing with American films everywhere within the next few years. Britain has regained its place in the motion picture world.

All because one man made Hollywood see the light—a man named Joseph Arthur Rank. If, in the future, we see screen dramas based on the part Canadian and British played in the war, instead of the unchanging presentation of American glory, it is him we have to thank.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

GOSHEN, N.Y., Aug. 10—(AP)—Yesterday's Hambletonian drew the biggest crowd in several years—just over 13,000 by the final count—but the purse was one of the smallest in the 19 years the trotting classic has been raced.

Hambletonian Hayseed

Here's the kind of thing that makes the Buggy Whip Derby something to remember: the weather-beaten faces and keen, unwavering eyes of the horsemen . . . The stores in Goshen with their signs: "closed Hambletonian afternoon." . . . The chatter of Starter Steve Phillips as he gets the horses lined up, and his casual remark between races that he once heard of a heat that took an hour and three quarters to get off under the old starting system . . . the sharp turns on the triangular track that would have running horses cutting a few new gates in the fence . . . The preponderance of soft, drawling voices around the stables and the obvious contentment of the stable hands, sitting in the shade of awnings cleaning harness while the crowd swirls around and the sleek trotters peer out from their stalls . . . The pungent barn odors and the sweet smell of hay . . . The dumb speeches during the presentation of the Hambletonian Trophy—mostly that the winner is a "real nice hoss."

Tack Room Topic

Kentucky's Walnut Hall Farm, which boasts of having had the sire or dam of the winner of every Hambletonian, has the sires of four of yesterday's six money winners and the dam of another.

Open-Air Theatre Gives Beginners Chance At Fame

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, Aug. 10.—(CP). — Tourists who have travelled in British Columbia know Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars. In the darkness of a mid-summer night, surrounded by all the natural beauty of Stanley Park, they have laughed at Vincent Youman's nautical comedy, "Hit the Deck," rollicked aross the outdoor stage, or swaped to the rhythmic tunes of Noel Coward's "Bittersweet."

There are no vacant seats in this open-air theatre, the only one of its kind in Canada. Music-hungry persons jam the exits, they sit on the grass—anywhere—just to see and hear. And beyond the barricaded area, where they cannot see the sparkling costumes of the actors, nor hear the witty dialogue, they lie under the giant fur trees and listen to the music.

To this popular stage flock would-be dancers, singers, actors and actresses from all corners of B.C., and even from the Prairie Provinces and the United States. Who knows, the next stop for them may be the bright lights of New York or the glamor of Hollywood.

Nor is the Theatre Under the Stars any amateur's paradise. Every individual who would see himself on the famous Malkin Bowl stage must work and work hard.

Work For Chance

"This is no 'let's get together and have a play' idea," said Gordon Hilker, production manager. "Anyone who wants a part in our theatre has work to do."

"We train our people for the commercial theatre, we want them to make their living this way," Mr. Hilker continued. "What's more we don't encourage them to stick in Vancouver—we want them to get out and make a name for themselves."

Linked with the Theatre Under the Stars and yet not a part of it is the British Columbia Musical and Dramatic Education Society. The society's job is to provide talent for the theatre. During the winter it gives a three-month free course of the whys and wherefores of stage performances. This young association hopes one day to make B.C. the centre of dramatic training in Canada.

Throughout the winter 85 young people have attended an intensive series of lectures and practical classes in dancing, rhythm and balance exercise, stage movement, speech, makeup, singing, etc. The Vancouver teachers giving the instruction have all had practical experience in the commercial theatre.

The B.C.M.D.E.S. is finaned through surpluses arising from operations of the Theatre Under the Stars and through the donations of scholarships from B.C. firms. By means of these donations young people with talent are picked from centres throughout the province and sent to Vancouver for a workout with the society. If they are successful they will end up eventually starring in Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars.

Boston Loses Tex Hughson To U.S. Navy

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Boston's hopes for its first pennant since 1918 faded today as Tex Hughson prepared to report for Navy duty and the St. Louis Browns showed no signs of cracking in the stretch.

Hughson, due to report to the Navy Aug. 28, was scheduled to start home today with the satisfaction of hurling a four-hit job against Chicago for his 18th victory.

Although Hughson chipped in with two hits and Jim Tabor and Bob Johnson rapped homers, the Red Sox failed to gain on the front-running Brownies by their 9-1 slaughter of Chicago.

Al Zarilla protected St. Louis' 6½-game margin over Boston by cracking a game-winning homer in the ninth inning to stop the New York Yankees, 3-2, as the Brownies grabbed their ninth straight win to equal their early-season string.

Hal Newhouser matched Hughson with his 18th win as Detroit topped Washington, 4-2, and Early Wynn suffered his 10th successive loss. It was the Tigers' sixth straight victory and the Senators' 19th loss in their last 22.

Al Smith slugged home two runs in the first inning and then settled back to pitch Cleveland to a 4-3 edge over Philadelphia, sprinkling eight hits.

The St. Louis Cardinals upped their margin to 17½ in the National by trimming the Phils, 4-2, with Reliefer Max Lanier getting the nod over Ken Raffensoerger. It was the 73rd win in 100 starts for the Cards, tying a league record.

Brooklyn pulled out of the cellar as Curt Davis scattered 10 Chicago blows for a 5-2 edge over Chicago's Hank Wyse. Fritz Ostermueller picked up Win No. 10 for Pittsburgh at New York's expense, 4-3, although he gave 10 safeties and the Boston Braves outslugged Cincinnati, 9-6, to give Al Javery the nod over Arnie Carter.

Tourist City Escapes Damage

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

MONT ST. MICHEL, France, August 10 — (CP Cable). — Not long ago the cobbled streets of this architectural marvel of Western France resounded with the step of German officers who crowded the world-famous Restaurant De La Mere Pouland here renowned giant-sized omelets are served.

To-day the tiny island on which the town is situated is liberated. The abbey and its adjoining buildings are intact and from the mainland Mont St. Michel looks like a scene from fairyland with its forest of pinnacles and flying buttresses.

The Germans are gone and the marvel stands untouched. One wonders if they left in too great a hurry to do any damage, or if they had enough entered in their book of atrocities.

When a French Colonel of Civil Affairs visited the scene he was feted by four hostelry keepers of this French "Isle of Capri" who formed a parade along with refugees from obliterated St. Lo who sought shelter within the abbey's formidable ramparts.

The tears and champagne flowed freely as they marked the liberation of their little tourist sanctuary, which is two miles out to sea from the point on the mainland where an imaginary line separates Normandy from Brittany.

British Paper Praises Canada

LONDON, Aug. 10—(CP Cable)—"The Dominion of Canada has reached full stature among the great nations of the world," said an Evening Standard editorial today, devoted to the part the Canadians are playing in the war and noting that the creation of the 1st Canadian Army "tells the climax of an historic process."

"It is difficult to recount our debt to Canada; harder still to express our gratitude," the Standard said. "The heroism of her troops in the last war is legendary: her present sons are their worthy successors."

"In the days of our darkness there came to us from Canada not only men but goods—a free and unconditional gift. In this noble generosity lay the germ of lease-lend...the R.C.A.F. proved it has all the skill and audacity the world expected of it.

"But it is of her sons in Caen we are thinking...how on the anniversary of a decisive onslaught launched by their fathers at Amiens against the Kaiser's armies, they are entering into their heritage."

"V-5 is a large, white flag on a very large and very long pole," his ingenious friend answered.

TORONTO, Aug. 10 — (CP) — A judgement of Mr. Justice W. D. Roach at Osgoode Hall sets aside a deed signed by an 83-year-old man who died last Nov. 1 in hospital at Kingston and directs an accounting. The judgement was in a case brought by Alzina Cornwall, 73, housekeeper for the aged man, Albert E. Read. The defendant was Thomas B. Turnbull to whom Read signed over the deed of his place during his last illness. Read's will dated March 19, 1931, named Mrs. Cornwall sole beneficiary and sole executrix.

Mr. Justice Roach found that Read "had not the mental capacity to understand the nature and effect of the deed when he signed it."

"Anything attracting 75,000 people into town must be a benefit to the business men," said B. L. McLean, manager of Lindsay Fair, in asking the municipal council for a grant toward this year's Fair. The Board had bought additional property, and had spent money in "making it presentable", hence had to appeal to the council for a grant.

PROWLERS SCARED OFF

Sergt. Clifford Chapman, 54 Hunter street east, heard prowlers on the roof of Thompson's pool-room next to his place early this morning and on going outside to investigate found two youths of around 16 years on the street. Chest Clinic Says T.B. Lower Here Than In Other Ontario Cities

"I think everybody will be quite happy in knowing that the industrial chest clinic which was held here indicates that Peterborough has about half the percentage of tubercular cases that are usually found in this work," Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., remarked this morning to the Examiner.

"We are winding up the reports, and will have a general statement one of these days, but the men who were in charge of these examinations in the factories and elsewhere told me that, in so far as the clinic was an index, the health of Peterborough was good. They found about half the usual number of cases that were revealed in other places in the course of these surveys."

The last stage of the survey was an arrangement to set up the apparatus at the welfare office for small groups of persons, such as all the city employées, including police, firemen and street employees; the staffs of three dairies, one grocery, one small factory.

Many other similar groups could have availed themselves of this opportunity to obtain at no cost a chest examination as part of the community's effort to reduce and prevent the spread of tuberculosis. However, Dr. Kelly said he considered the response highly satisfactory, especially by the employees of the larger factories.

"They certainly showed a fine spirit of cooperation, and the results must be as satisfactory to them as they are to us," Dr. Kelly said.

Tomato Crops Ripening Early

August's continuing heat and sunshine is ripening the Central Ontario tomato crop in advance of expectations and canning schedules, Ernie Ford of Canada Packers told the Examiner today.

"In the lake shore counties some of the canning plants may start on the tomato pack next week, August 15, but we don't expect C.P.C. to get under way before Monday the 21st." Mr. Ford said. "That is a little earlier than we had been anticipating. In fact we may be getting some deliveries by the end of next week, but there is nothing certain about that yet."

Canada Packers will need 50 to 60 women and 20 men for the tomato pack.

"Women have been a big help to us, this year and last," Mr. Ford said. "I don't know what we would have done without them when the heavy pea crop came on us this season. We are hoping they will all be back with us. We are depending on them, and we are applying for men, because the prospects are bright for a heavy yield of tomatoes and this is an important food supply for the winter months."

Lance Corp. Suwala fell on July 25th. He was 23 years of age.

The father is anxious to get into touch with a Peterborough girl who was a friend of the dead soldier. "She has been very good to him", said Mr. Suwala. "She wrote to him steadily and sent him parcels and we are hoping to be able to reach her through the medium of your paper."

Mr. Suwala can be reached at the above address, 42 Delaware street, Toronto.

Fire Destroys Barn During Noon Hour

A barn in the backyard of the residence of Frank Adams, 50 Robinson street, went up in flames during the noon hour today, bringing firemen out to extenguish a serious blaze for the second time in 18 hours. Set back from the residence about 50 yards and equally distant from neighboring dwellings, the flaming wooden structure was brought under control, however, without endangering other property. The barn itself was torn and charred and some storm windows, screens, two trunks and a number of books stored in it were destroyed.

The alarm was phoned in by Miss Florence Adams, who was the first to spot the rising flames as she drove home across Hunter Street bridge at 12.30 p.m. She reached the house before the rest of the family, sitting at dinner, became aware of what had taken place. The cause of the fire was not immediately made known.

SOLDIERS AID FIREMEN AT BIG BLAZE—The burning structure that was once the main building at Exhibition Park and which was being used as an army storehouse by Basic Training Centre No. 32, is shown (Top) not many minutes after savage flames swept it from end to end, eventually burning it to the ground in a spectacular fire Wednesday evening. Servicemen stationed at the camp are pictured Below, as they pitched in energetically to aid hard-pressed city firemen put out the flames and avert the spread of the conflagration to other nearby buildings. Damage was over $5,000. (Parks' Studio Photo.)

Fire Destroys Large Building At Training Centre

A spectacular blaze of undetermined origin destroyed in a matter of littl over 30 minutes the two-story frame building south of the Drill Hall and just inside of George street gate at the Training Centre early Wednesday evening, levelling the building to the ground, demolishing a quantity of Government equipment and threatening to take other nearby structures with it in a fire that called for the utmost exertions of city firemen and volunteer trainees of the camp to prevent further destruction of property Loss was estimated by the Fire Department this morning at somewhere between $5,000 and $10,000.

The building had been used as a storehouse by the Army and contained lumber and other materiials and equipment. Before the war it was an integral part of the Exhibition Park set-up with merchants' wares displayed on the first floor and exhibitions of sewing, pictures an art housed on the first floor Lieut. Col. James Turnbull, office commanding Basic Training Centre No. 32, stated that the value of Government property in the building at the time was not significant and that the dollar loss in this respect would not run to a very large figure.

It is not known in just what manner the fire got its start, but when first discovered by a passing soldier it had already broken out in a rush and burst of savage flame. The quick-minded serviceman immediately set off the camp siren, thus sounding a general alarm, and Col. Turnbull, in the officers hut at the time, turned to phone the alarm to the Fire Department. This was at 7.33 p.m.

Soldiers Fight Blaze.

The story of the next few minutes is a tribute to the instantaneous response and absolutely automatic reaction of the city's firemen when called to the scene of any disaster; and equally to the willing efforts of the many soldiers who pitched in to help in what could easily have turned into a serious, if not critical situation.

The ladder truck and No. 1 pumper were despatched to the Training Centre, a mile distant from the fire hall, and firemen laid two lines and had the first streams of water going on the crackling flames in exactly three minutes from the time the first alarm was phoned in. By that time the building was a sea of flame, fanned by a steady southwest wind, and there was no hope left of saving the structure itself. Fire Chief Gimblett, who arrived a minute before the firemen, found the blaze already fierce in its intensity and shortly after ordere out the No. 2 pumper to give further assistance.

Chief Praises Soldiers

Chief Gimblett this morning was enthusiastic in his picture of the contribution made by the men stationed at the Training Centre in helping firemen to battle the blaze. He gave the impression that their all-out effort was decisive in controlling flames and sparks that kept or were carried by the breeze to nearby buildings, including the Drill Hall, the former Manufacturers' Building across the road, the Ordnance storehouse and the isolation hospital. The Drill Hall was scorched on its south wall and the roof of the Manufacturers' Building was damaged by sparks. The soldiers, Chief Gimblett said, operated two water lines which they themselves laid, and the streams of water they poured on threatened structures warded off danger of new fires getting underway. "Those boys took a lot of punishment," Chief Gimblett stated.

The marvel of the fire from the public point of view was the spectacular nature of the blaze, since the building went up all at once and consumed itself like a veritable tinder-box. News of what was happening spread quickly around town and a very large crowd assembled outside the camp gate at the foot of George street. A city constable was down at the scene on the sounding of the double alarm to direct a large volume of traffic and keep the crowds back off the streets and away from the entrance gate, which was patrolled by a squad of military policemen. Lansdowne street for a block east of George was closed to automobiles.

It was some time after the fire-ridden building had been reduced to a mass of charred, water-logged ruins that the spectators began to disperse. Apparently they had entertained the same thought that aggravated the situation for the fire-fighters, the belief that the fire might easily catch on somewhere else. They were loathe to leave while the possibility of further xcitement remained; and watched while the workers squelched small outbreaks of flame at the top of telephone poles and on the roof of the Manuacturers' Building.

With The Tourists

By DON McGIBBON

Th annual Vacation Edition of the Peterborough Examiner, picked up at random from a Toronto news-stand was the incentive that brought Roy P. Chadsey, Rochester, N. Y., to Peterborough to spend his vacation this year. Mrs. Charsey, daughter Lois, and Mrs. Chadsey's sister, Miss Mattie Attridge are also here, and this morning were having a royal time out shopping about town.

"Whoever writes the Vacation Edition deserves the warmest praise," said Mr. Chadsey, at his hotel this morning, "because without a doubt, it is bringing more and more people this way, and I was completely interested in the various fish stories, and excellent pictures in the magazine.... in fact, if it wasn't for the Examiner, we might have never thought of coming here."

He arrived in Peterborough Saturday evening, after a trip across the lake on the ferry from Rochester to Cobourg. Since then, with the hotel his headquarters, he has been making frequent trips out into the lakelands districts hereabouts, including a trip up through the Kawarthas. "That trip", he said, "furnished us with plans for next year's holiday, and although this year we would have liked to stay at Buckhorn or other places in the district, they are all filled up, and so we have to be content with just scooting about."

Popular Choice.

In the winter, Mr. Chadsey plans all his vacations, and he said his most enjoyable winter nights were taken up with the entire family together, pouring over vacation literature, maps, pictures, and other booklets. 'I bought out the Examiner one evening" he said, "and asked my daughter what she thought of the Peterborough district, as viewed from the magazine, and it wasn't two or three minutes after looking over the Examiner, that Peterborough was our destination come summer."

Mr. Chadsey is most impressed with the courteous manner and friendliness that characterizes most places in Canada. He said although Peterborough is much larger than he expected, it hasn't lost that small city atmosphere, and told of many friends being made even during his short visit up to now.

"The other evening, we met a gentleman here, had dinner together, talked about Peterborough, and ended up by taking a ride with him u pto Norwood, where he was going on business. Since then, whenever thaa gentleman has to go somewhere on business, he phonse us and tells us to come along. And if those trips are business, you must have a nice time doing business, because some of the country I've covered since I've been here, is the most beautiful I've ever seen," he said. When he leaves on the 31st of August, the Chadsey family will go first to Toronto, a city they like immensely, and then to Orillia, where they will stay with some friends they met while holidaying there several years ago." Yes, people are nice over here, and every Christmas we remember that, on account of the large amount of cards we receive from people we met over here."

What are Mr. Chadsey's immediate plans? Oh, maybe a trip up to Burleigh Falls to see the place, maybe some fishing down on Rice Lake, where he caught the best mess of black bass in his life, or as he himself puts it "just bumming around and having a grand time." A most unorthorodx method of holidaying, but fun!

He said he appreciated the Chamber of Commerce here very much, for their cooperation, and on the more worldly side, said he wondered where all the food comes from. "With so much food here, it's like paradise compared to the States," he said. Summing things up with "I haven't met a discord since I've been in Canada," Mr. Chadsey was off for lunch, and a hint dropped just before leaving led us to believe he might go fishing after.

Personal Gifts Aid Victims Of Robot Bombs

People who act spontaneously to do a good work for others never think of it in terms of the thanks they expect to receive, but rather of the good their acts will do on behalf of those who are the recipients in each particular instance.

The parable of the cleansing of the ten lepers as told by the Great Master, where only one returned to give thanks has of course been found to be true to human nature on many an occasion, but such does not find any reflection in regard to the good work done by the residents of this city and district, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, which operates solely on behalf of those who have been stricken in enemy air raid or robot bomb attacks on the British Isles.

In each and every instance, the Lord Mayor of London has cabled his thanks when a donation has been cabled to him, and then followed this up with a personal letter to add to their gratefulness fo the assistance rendered in this manner to the people of Britain.

Just how warm are their feelings for the help thus given was further accentuated on Tuesday night, when the present Lord Mayor Sir Frank Newson-Smith, made a special broadcast to this continent from London to express their deep gratitude to all who had contributed and among the few places mentioned, this city and district had quite an honored place, for the splendid part they had played in this great humanitarian work.

This personal touch is all the more warmly welcomed at the present time, when a number of people for some time now have been contribut ing to the fund in a purely personal manner, another instance of which is in evidence to-day, marking the 6th list of personal gifts to appear in the past four weeks.

Among these may be found a large proportion who have given on a number of occasions, and includes a personal gift from a young lady school teacher, who has on a number of occasions led her pupils in the doing of similar good deeds for the cause, while another lady of very moderate means repeats a gift of $5.00 given only as recently as June 3 under the acknowledgement of "I.H.N. per W.K.L."

The latest type of attacks on the people of Britain by the robot bombs of almost daily and nightly occurrance, far supersede the blitz of some three or more years ago, and therefore creates a further enlarged need on the part of those afflicted, so it is most gratiying to see the honored name attained by the people hereabouts upheld by those who are thus giving and taking such an interest in a personal way.

Gladiolus Sale Helps

Beautiful Gladiolus are ever a delight to the human heart that has any regard for the beauty displayed in the works of a Great Creator, so it would seem most appropriate that they should be made the means of carrying gladness to the hearts of those afflicted in Britain.

Last Saturday quite a number of these lovely lowers were donated by Mrs. V. R. Sweeting of R.R. 5, Peterborough, and Annie Blackburn responded to a hurry call for someone to act in a sales capacity, from which the nice sum of $5.25 is also listed in to-days receipts.

Man Gets 10 Days For Non-Support

Convicted in police court this morning of failing to provide for his wife and two small children, Alfred Anderson, a Swedish-born carpenter living at 248 Simcoe street, was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee to ten days in the county jail.

Mrs. Anderson, who is now living in Lakefield, gave evidence of not having received support from her husband over a period of months.

"What do you intend to do for your wife and the two children as well as the other one that is on the way," asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"I'll do the best I can," replied Anderson.

"It seems impossible to get anything definite out of this man," complained the Crown Attorney, adding that a jail term might help to convince the accused of his responsibility toward his family.

In police court yesterday W. Sangster of Evanston, Ill., was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate Gee when he pleaded guilty to a violation of the loitering section of the vagrancy act. The charge was laid by Constable Carman English of Chemong Park, and no evidence was given.

RECEIVES PROMOTION—Lt.-Col. Alex. DeMaio, son of Ferdinando DeMaio, 149 Rubidge street, has been promoted to the rank of Colonel overseas. He has been serving in Italy with the R.C.O.C. His wife lives in Toronto.

Bruce Fairfield Listed Missing

Enlisting in June 1941, and going overseas in October 1942 after training on the West coast and in Quebec, Pte. Bruce Fairfield, son of Walter Fairfield and the late Mrs. Fairfield, Omemee, has been officially reported missing in action July 28, according to word received here by his sister, Mrs. E. Berry, 285 Romaine street.

The first word that her brother was in action was the telegram stating he is missing, according to Mrs. Berry, and she said she will not give up hope that Pte. Fairfield is safe.

Formerly a farm worker on his father's farm at Omemee, the 27-year-old soldier was born in Minden, but moved to Omemee soon after. He was serving with the Royal Highland and Light Infantry in France.

Indecent Act Brings 30 Days

Harold John Coulson, 37 of 306 Louis street, was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to 30 days imprisonment in the county jail after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent exposure.

In giving evidence in the case Officer C. J. McGillen stated that Coulson on Tuesday afternoon had picked up three young children, two small boys and a girl, in his canoe at the Lions' bathing beach at Riverside Park and had paddled up the river to the island on the west side above the old dam.

There the party had landed and the indecent exposure complained of had taken place. Later that evening Coulson had again taken the children out in his canoe and paddled down to Little Lake.

He made an appointment to meet them again Wednesday afternoon but in the meantime a complaint had been made to police and when Coulson arrived at Riverside Park in his canoe Wednesday afternoon Officer McGillen was hiding in the long grass and placed the man under arrest.

"There was another incident of the same kind at Jackson Park in September last," said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. "At that time the accused pleaded guilty and was fined $25."

"Apparently the fine did not do any good," commented Magistrate Gee. "We'll see what a jail term will do."

$1,500 Plant Killed In City Clean-up

LINDSAY, Aug. 10 — (ENS). — Members of the Town Council were upset at a meeting this week when they learned that in the process of cutting down weeds on vacant lots, the town employees had eradicated, not only the weeds, but a valuable plant known as Valeriana, on a lot owned by the Allen and Hanbury Company's on Adelaide street North, near Colborne street.

Following the cutting of the weeds on the lot, the town clerk sent the usual cost of $5 to the firm.

The reply received by the council was to the effect that the firm should be looking to the town for recompense.

Reeve Butler stated that the company had suffered a loss of $1,500. The plant Valeriana is employed in the manufacture of certain chemicals, used by the Allenbury firm.

The council instructed Clerk Alleiy to write a letter of regret to the firm.

Board Of Works Men Going On Holiday

Nearly half the street maintenance employees of the Board of Works are going to vacate their place in the sun next week and retire to the shade and rest on a holiday they have well earned, City Engineer Parsons said this morning.

"We had thirty-three men on our last payroll, and this vacation will take about fifteen men from us for the week," Mr. Parsons explained. "Instead of having these men leave us in twos or threes, we decided it was preferable that they should lay off together. That means we will have to get along with about half our present staff."

Business Men Plan Victory Celebrations

Tentative plans for "Victory Day" were discussed by members of the Peterborough Business Men's Association, Wednesday night, with Vern Selkirk presiding.

As allied armies are daily drawing closer the circle of doom surrounding the Huns, the business men are hoping and expecting the collapse of Germany before the end of October. In that assumption and anticipation it was suggested Wednesday night, and developed almost to decision, that all Peterborough's stores, except groceries and drug stores, would lock up for two days.

The proposal was to the effect that the merchants would suspend business as soon as news is flashed around the world that Germany has capitulated, and the observance presumably the celebration of this historic event and escape from domination by the Huns, will be carried into a second day of closed shops. That is the general idea, but in the meantime people have to eat and some of them may need headache powders and that sort of relief or first aid, and the grocers and apothecaries will likely have to stay on the job, at least for the second day.

Believe Autumnal Victory

Portents, headlines and opinion are all pointing to the approaching end of Hitlerism, the business men have noted, and they are inclined to subscribe to the estimate of an autumnal victory, conceivably before the first of November.

It was thought last night by the business men that their forelooking might be followed by other groups in the city, probably including leadership from the city council.

The association decided to cooperate with the three Women's War Auxiliaries in the sports day program they are arranging for Labor Day. Announcement cards will be published and distributed around the city and in neighboring towns.

Gladiolus Society To Help BWVF

The Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society will combine again with the Peterborough Aquarium Society this year, to hold a two-day event, Aug. 16-17, at the Market Hall, with the entire proceeds going to the district British War Victims Fund.

The first annual show, held last year, proved such a success that it was decided to hold another this year, and this year's event will have the added feature of a display of pet birds such as budgies, canaries and cockatees, and door prizes will include a completely inhabited and planted aquarium of tropical fish. Other prizes have been donated by W. E. Franks Furniture store, Canada Packers, Ladies of the E.O.G.S., Howard Hall, Nesbitt Funeral Company, H. S. Routley, N. T. Routley, William German Nurseries, R. C. Braund and Fred Cripps.

In cooperation with the parks committee of the city council, the Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society are planting a demonstration garden at the corner of Cross and McDonnell streets, to help beautify the city.

No entry fee will charged for entering displays in the show, and the possession of a draw ticket will ensure free entry.

The efforts of the two societies to help the bomb victims of war ravaged England are expected to be supported by everyone, and the entire show, along with draws and prizes, should be a big success. Anyone interested can obtain full details by H. B. Ball, president of the Gladiolus Society, dial 9102, or H. Bacon, president of the Aquarium Society, dial 9021.

Girl Fire Fighters Replace Men

BY ROBERT E. GAIGER
Associated Press Writer

HUGHES GULCH, Colo., Aug. 10 — (CP) — Bankers and ribbon clerks—and red-headed stenographers, too—make good forest fire fighters.

The United States Forest Service is recruiting thousands of them for one of the toughest home-front jobs going.

They will take the places of the seasoned forest rangers and paid fire fighters now with the armed services. They work under forest and civilian defence officials and sheriffs.

They are a fast-action, front-line fire organization. Employed mostly in small towns at civilian jobs, they are willing to drop whatever they are doing and speed to a forest fire at a moment's notice.

"If it wasn't for these volunteers a fire might get started and burn a forest to the ground," says C. K. Collins, acting supervisor of Roosevelt National Forest.

Forest fire danger was multiplied by war. Officials realized the enemy might send incendiary bombers against woodlands. West coast fires were particularly vulnerable. Quickly new methods were developed for fighting fires with inexperienced crews.

Fire fighters may number from six or seven to 2,000 or more, depending upon the size of the blaze.

Formerly they were linked in one vast team. Now the system has been broken down so that the individual is the important unit, although he still is part of a team but only for his own protection.

Under the old method, if one man or one crew dropped out from a firefighting team, because of exhaustion or injury, it left a gap. In addition the entire crew had to be paced by its slowest, or weakest, member.

Fighters Are "Buddies"

Now the forest service uses the "buddy system" in which two men work as a team. If one fire fighter becomes lost, ill or exhausted, his buddy reports it immediately.

If one man drops out, it does not slow the entire crew. Another two-man team moves in and fills the gap in the line.

The volunteer fire fighters, who soon grow to love the smell of smoke, are given an intensive schooling. First they study fire fighting principles and then the tools.

In a "graduation" exercise, Collins aimed a flame thrower at a clump of dry, diseased pines. Under them was the usual floor of dry grass, pine needles and dead branches. A stiff breeze was blowing. The flames shot upward. The crew of stenographers, housewives, judges, clerks and bankers went to work.

Almost as fast as they could walk they grubbed out a "line" a foot wide through the floor of pine needles and grass, leaving solid earth. It extended in a quarter-mile circle around the blaze. Backfires were set around the circle, burning back all grass, within the flaming circle, toward the main blaze. When the flames reached this line they burned out.

Actually, officials say, girls would be used to man the emergency communication lines, cook and perform other light jobs around a big fire. They're not expected to turn into full-fledged smoke craters. But the girls are willing.

Prepare Plans For Model Town In Transvaal

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 10 — (CP) — The South African National Housing and Planning Commission has been taken over from the Central Housing Board which functioned for the last 25 years.

Chairman W. Brinton, former mayor of Cape Town, and Vice-Chairman Dr. E. J. Hamlin, one-time Johannesburg city engineer, are attached permanently to the commission while other commissioners are part time members, meeting at intervals to decide its policy. Technical matters will come under the division of the Housing Assisting Commission which has extensive powers, including the purchase of supplies in bulk and the right to construct buildings when action is required in the national interest.

Meanwhile, the town council of Vereeniging in the Transvaal has approved a planning scheme to create "an ideal town." Each building will have its own parking space while flats will not be permitted to house more than 120 people to the acre compared with Johannesburg's 400. Vereeniging plans for a population of 100,000. The town will be surrounded by a green belt with future development by satellite towns.

Within the next five to 10 years it is planned to construct 10,000 steel and concrete houses for natives. Built largely by unskilled labor the houses will cost about £280 ($1,260) by mass production, the minimum being 100 for any one design. The houses will be erected 16 to the acre to form townships with schools, hospitals, recreation halls and open spaces.

Larger houses on similar lines costing £400 ($1,800) have also been designed for European occupation. It is claimed that the houses built by the ordinary method would cost £800 ($3,600).

Housing Boom

Investigation by the Johannesburg Star shows a minor boom in houses ranging from £3,000 ($13,500) upwards but few are being built for the man of average means. Greater use of semi-skilled labor is advocated to bring down costs while it is suggested that natives should be trained to build their own requirements.

One builder suggested a joint council for the building industry with representatives of government departments and all others concerned.

The Johannesburg Star comments editorially that the country presently lacks enough skilled man-power to cope with grandiose projects of the government and local authorities who are still disputing the question who is to carry the loss on any national housing scheme.

Frigates For Navy

Transport Minister F. C. Sturrock announced the gift of three frigates to South African Naval Forces which will for the nucleus of a post-war navy.

"In future," said Mr. Sturrock, "our defence scheme must always be the protection of our sea lanes, otherwise if an enemy controls our seas he need not send a soldier ashore for he will reduce South Africa to surrender by starvation."

Captain J. Dalgleich, director of the South African Naval Forces, broadcasting on the second anniversary of the service, said 7,000 men are now serving of whom 3,000 are attached to the Royal Navy. The South African Naval Force now has 60 ships serving in South African waters and the Mediterranean. Seventy per cent. of the officers have been promoted from the lower decks and the majority of personnel was recruited from inland areas.

Famous Vaudevillians Dodged Vegetables Effie Cherry, Last Of Noted Duo Passes

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Aug. 10. — (AP).—Effie Cherry, last of the famous Cherry sisters, died in a nursing home this week.

Effie was left a lonely woman when her sister and stage partner, Addie, died Oct. 25, 1942, at the age of 83. Shortly after making their stage debut in an amateur show at Marion, Ida., late in the last century, the Cherry sisters were taken to New York by Oscar Hammerstein because he heard they were so terrible they attracted huge crowds.

He was right, and the sisters commanded a price in excess of $1,000 a week, although they had to dodge bushels of fruits and vegetables hurled by their audiences.

Soon they became known as "the vegetable twins of the stage" and once New York fruit dealers complained they couldn't get enough fruit and vegetables for their trade because truck gardeners and commission houses were selling direct to patrons of Hammerstein's old Olympic theatre.

They played before the footlights for nearly two decades and then, appropriately enough, went into truck farming near here. Effie twice ran for mayor of Cedar Rapids on reform platforms, but was defeated both times. The sisters tried comebacks several times, as recently as 1938 at the Strand Theatre here, but never clicked.

To the end, they wore the old-fashioned clothes popular at the time of their fame. Modern dress, they asserted, was "immoral."

England Conscious Of Plasma Need

MARMORA, Aug. 10—(ENS)—Relatization of the importance of blood donations in carrying on the war and keeping casualties down to a minimum is contained in an article appearing in the weekly paper of Weston-Super-Mare, England, which was received by W. J. Cottrell this week. Mr. Cottrell has been assistant to Walter Hilton in supervising the semi-monthly trips to the Belleville Clinic, which have resulted in 245 different persons going to make donations in 18 months, in an area with a population of only about 1,500.

The Borough of Weston inaugurated a "Blood Transfusion Week" recently and thousands witnessed a parade and drumhead service, and listened to addresses by the mayor, several prominent military figures and words of testimonial to the value of donated blood in saving their lives from a number of soldiers.

So thoroughly conscious of its responsibility in providing the life-saving plasma is the town of Weston that appeals for more donors are carried out continuously by means fo public meetings, parades and even house-to-house canvassing. Everyone who is fit and healthy is asked to make his or her contribution, to give an hour of their time and the blood they can easily spare.

Allied Bombs Fall Too Soon Scare Reporter

By LOUIS HUNTER

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 10. — (CP).—A small hail of bombs dropped short of their target by a few American Flying Fortresses in Tuesday's daylight smash at German positions south of Caen provided a startling example of the destruction and terror caused by Allied saturation raids.

(Front despatches said some of the U. S. aircraft, including the lead plane which controlled the bombing of one formation, dropped their bombs prematurely, causing an undisclosed number of casualties among Allied troops.)

Three lots of bombs were off the mark. The first bunch fell in a wood 1,000 yards from where I was watching. The second lot landed in fields and villages across the road from our observation post, and the others several thousand yards away.

The little taste of this raid that I experienced was much worse than anything we went through in the London blitzes, when there was never more than one bomb in the immediate vicinity at one time.

Thought It Was Shelling

When the first stick of bombs landed, the soldiers with whom I was sharing the observation post thought it was the enemy shelling one of our positions. A few minutes later I heard the swishing whine of what I still thought was a shell. Then there was a terrific explosion that shook the building from top to bottom and blew out the remaining windows.

I finally realized that it wasn't shells, but bombs, hitting around us, and they were creeping progressively nearer, or so it seemed. In a split second I plunged head first under the stairs and pressed closer to the wall with half a dozen soldiers following me.

I began praying like I've never prayed in my life.

The building literally danced during those few minutes while bombs thundered down, and when it was all over it was hard to believe that one was still alive and unharmed.

Lieut. Wes Theakston, Halifax, who was with me, crouched in the shelter of a wall during the bombing, while Pte. Vic Sartin of Toronto, a driver, was under his jeep listening to the shrapnel clattering down.

Guns Fired At Planes

Theakston pointed to some long columns of black smoke just across the road. Almost together we said: "We're getting out of here—and fast." We drove through clouds of smoke and kept our heads down.

At the first crossroads we saw ambulances and other vehicles in flames. We were concentrating so much on the road ahead we didn't notice if there were any bodies or wounded lying around. We passed a lorry burning fiercely at the side of the road.

Throughout it all our guns continued to fire away, but we didn't see whether any of them had been knocked out by the bombing because about this time a third stick of bombs landed some distance to our right, sending up a gigantic cloud of brown smoke and dirt. It spread eventually into a huge umbrella and the troops around simply dropped everything and stared at the fantastic sight above them.

Beef-Poisoned Fatheads Rapped By Shaw

DUBLIN, Aug. 10.—(CP).—George Bernard Shaw today denied that he is planning to stand for the Dail.

In a two-column letter published in Dublin newspapers, the 88-year-old playwright said: "I am far past the age at which political ambitions have any interest for me."

The letter arose over the gift of Mr. Shaw's property in Eire to the Towns of Carlow and Wexford, and taunts about his "political ambitions" which appeared in Irish newspapers.

"I am at present trying to give .y Irish property to the nation," he wrote, "and I am described as a crank for doing so. I am only acting as a good citizen after many years as an absentee landlord. I shall feel like Bunyan's Pilgrim when the burden fell from his shoulders."

Mr. Shaw also said he did not like being taunted for being a vegetarian.

"This can hardly be called an eccentricity," he said. "I'm a native of a country where the brawn of a six-foot stalwart from Tipperary has been achieved on potatoes and buttermilk. They—the Irish—are the envy of every beef-poisoned fathead."

Duplessis Needs Victory August 24 When Deferred Election Is Held

QUEBEC, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Election interest in Quebec province today switched to Charlevoix-Saguenay constituency where nominations will be held for the deferred election there Aug. 24. The contest in this northern Quebec riding may settle the question of a working majority for the Union Nationale party of Maurice Duplessis which elected 46 members in the general election Tuesday.

With 46 representatives in the 91-seat Legislative Assembly, the Union Nationale holds a numerical majority over the opposition, Liberals 38, Bloc Populaire, four, C.C.F. one, and Nationalist, one. However, with Maj. Paul Sauve, member in Two Mountains, serving overseas wtih the Canadian Army, and the appointment of a speaker from government ranks, the Union Nationale voting strength would be cut to 44, equal to that of the opposition at present.

Three candidates already have been nominated for Charlevoix-Saguenay, Dr. Arthur LeClerc, Union Nationale; Ernest Trottier, Bloc Populaire, and Charles Rochette, Independent. The Liberal party has not yet selected a standard bearer for the riding.

Meanwhile, political ciscles awaited a move by Premier Godbout to see if he would resign or attempt to form a government from his own ranks, although there was considerable talk that a new election was possible.

Soldiers In Normandy Cheer At Dogfight Like Hockey Game

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 10. — (CP).—A rare but spectacular sight over the battlefields of Normandy is a dog-fight between our aircraft and German fighter-bombers which seldom put in appearance unless there is a cloud cover.

Enemy planes make most of their ventures over the bridgehead at night when they are opposed mostly by a tremendous flak barrage, but in the daytime they don't get far over British and Canadian-held territory.

When the Spitfires show up the Germans usually high-tail it for home with anti-aircraft fire bursting all around them and the Spits hot behind, often flying right through the puffs of exploding shells.

About once a month you can see the Spitfires and perhaps a Typhoon on its way back from a rocket raid of an enemy position out beyond the front to catch a Focke-Wulf 190 or a Messerschmitt 109 out of the clouds and from then on it's like something from the movies.

Because the drone of airplanes is so commonplace, you scarcely bother about it, but your attention is drawn to a dog-fight most of the time by the thudding of cannon and machine-gun fire in the air and the rasping of engines getting their greatest tests.

Probably you'll see only the clouds with patches of blue sky between them for two or three minutes before you can spot one of the darting aircraft.

Then one comes diving into the open, its engine growling, but you can't identify it for a second. A Spitfire with its familiar silhouette dives right after it and you glance back to the first recognizing then the blunt front nose and squarish wing-tips of an F.W.

It's a trim plane and seems to be able to turn almost in its own length as it twists right and then left, climbs sharply, tries to shake off the Spitfire and get back into the clouds.

Exciting "Game"

People come running out all around you on the ground to watch with the excitement of hockey fans who see a home-team player break through the opposing defence.

The F.W. does make cloud cover and everybody drifts away from you talking about the close one that so-and-so had. But in about five minutes the sky is full of the same sound and you run out into the open again and this time the battle is in full view.

Two Focke-Wulfs are up there twisting and turning and a third is streaking straight for home. Four of five Spitfires are on top of the two caught behind.

One of them gets on the trail of a Spit and white smoke trails back from the German's wings. Soon you hear the dull rattle of cannon fire and know the enemy pilot got in a burst.

End Comes Quickly

A second Spitfire pops up behind him and it's all over in about five seconds. The two aircraft come around in tight circles and you can hardly tell which is following which.

The F.W. makes a sort of U-shaped manoeuvre. The Spitfire seems only about 50 feet behind. The Spitfire's wings sparkle for a moment and smoke breaks out of the German plane.

The fight is finished before the sound of cannon fire reaches you. The F.W. appears to have gone limp. It climbs a bit, one wing droops and then it starts to fall, end over end.

During the few seconds that combat has taken, the other German and a second Spitfire have been trying to out-manoeuvre each other. Your eyes turn to them and their background of white clouds. The smaller enemy aircraft does a sort of figure-eight and the turning Spitfire at one moment has its nose turned in the opposite direction to the enemy's.

Then, just for a second, the Spitfire's nose comes around and sweeps across the path of the Focke-Wulf and you see a red explosion right on the enemy's fuselage. That fight is over too.

The Focke-Wulf rolls half over, starts falling sideways and soon is spinning down like a slowly turning wheel without a rim.

In a minute or two the Spitfires are in strung-out formation heading back for their field and you become aware of shouts and hand-clapping from the spectators around you.

New W.P.T.B. Regulations Safeguard Tenants In Winter

TORONTO, Aug. 10—Are you worried about that roof over your head? Do you shudder at the thought of a "notice to vacate" turning up in your letter box?

Because if you're a well-behaved roomer or tenant and if you pay your rent on the dot, you can tuck your head around a pillow, curl up a for a night's sleep and say "boo" to bad dreams about being put out on the street with no place to lay your head....until Spring at least.

How come? Because a new rental regulation applying to "shared" housing accommodation flats, rooms or parts of houses and now requiring six months' notice is announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The new regulation means that all well-behaved tenants of houses, apartments, flats, rooms or parts of houses can be sure they will not have to move before May 1, 1945. This security is brought about by a W.P.T.B. order now in effect, which extends to tenants of shared accommodation the same protection of six months' notice as is enjoyed by occupants of houses, duplexes and apartments.

Though six months' notice is now necessary, no tenant or roomer may be ordered to vacate between Sept. 30 and the following April 30. Reason for this according to rental officers is to prevent needless shifting of thousands of families during the winter months when weather conditions are far from conductive to moving. All of which means you have a roof over your head until May 1, 1945, at least.

Boarder Rules Different

The new order requiring six months' notice with May 1st as the soonest possible "move-out" date, does not apply if you are a boarder. Now a "boarder" is interpreted by rental officers as "one who has his food or food and lodging at the house of another or lives with a family as one of its members."

Nor does the six months' notice apply if you fall down on paying your rent, break agreements or misbehave, so that your conduct is obnoxious to other occupants of the same building. It also does not apply if you received your notice to vacate before the new regulation, that is, before July 29. Nor does it apply to shared accommodation in certain congested areas in Eastern Canada such as Halifax, Montreal Kingston.

After examining the present housing situation, Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials are convinced that to a serious extent, landlords of shared housing accommodation have increased rents or are trying to, often evicting their present tenants in an attempt to secure a higher rent from the new occupants.

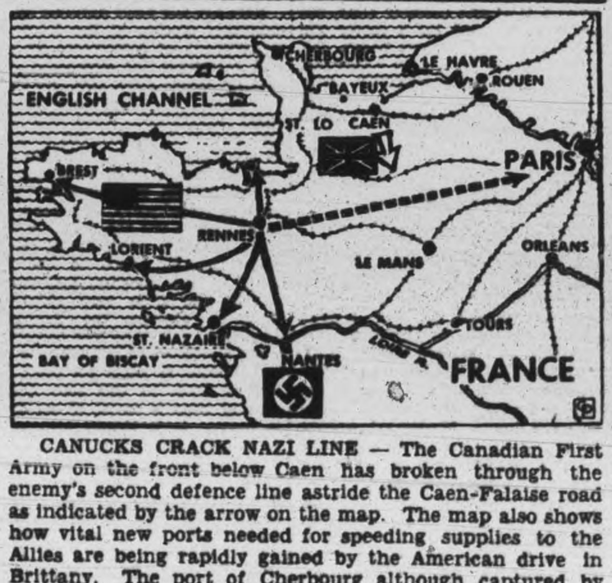
Tenants are tending to accept rental increases without any protest for fear of being left homeless. Housing congestion where it occurs, is due to an influx of war workers and military personnel and their families who usually find shelter in rooms and parts of houses, Board spokesmen point out. They expect this new order which brings all types of housing accomodation (except boarding) under a required six months' notice will provide a real remedy for the situation.

Through its courts of Rental Appeal, the Board has provided special safeguards to permit ousting of tenants whose personal conduct is obnoxious to other occupants of the same building. Landlords who have such complaints should get in touch with their nearest rental office for advice and action.

Send Board Notice First

Landlords wishing to give the required six months' notice to their tenants of flats, rooms, parts of houses or any shared accommodation should send a copy of the notice to the Board'es rental office before giving any notice to the tenant. Rentals appraisers will record on the copy which is to be given to the tenant and on the copy to be received by the landlord that the notice is in accord with wartime rental regulations. Such notice to vacate forms will be available shortly at the various local Board offices and must be used for the purpose.

Landlords of any "shared" accommodation may give a six months' notice to vacate under the regulations if the landlord (a) desires the accommodation as an enlargement of his personal residence. (b) has made an agreement with his father mother, son, daughter or daughter-in-law that the accommodation will be occupied as a personal residence by them. (c) as personal representative of the deceased landlord has made an agreement with the father mother, son, daughter, daughter-in-law, widower or widow, of the deceased landlord that the accommodation will be occupied as a personal residence by them.



CANUCKS CRACK NAZI LINE — The Canadian First Army on the front below Caen has broken through the enemy's second defence line astride the Caen-Falaise road as indicated by the arrow on the map. The map also shows how vital new ports needed for speeding supplies to the Allies are being rapidly gained by the American drive in Brittany. The port of Cherbourg although captured by the Allies is not yet open so that Brest is the closest supply port to the American continent as the map shows. St. Nazaire, former U-boat base, Lorient, St. Malo and Nantes are fast being added.

PHILADELPHIA STRIKE—An armed guard, carbine in hand, rides a Philadelphia trolley car, operating under government auspices. Transportation is said to be back to 50 per cent. of normal with strikers going back to their jobs after the government's "work or else" order.

Farmers Pleased With Men Provided By G. A. Gillespie

"The work G. A. Gillespie is doing getting help out to farmers this season is well worth mentioning," said Clayton Murphy of the 4th line of Smith to an Examiner reporter in Art McIntyre's office on Queen street.

"In my own case he did me a mighty good turn, and I called him up afterwards and told him so. My man left me just as a field of hay was ready to cut. I went ahead with it myself thinking I'd likely get a man somewhere. The next day I scoured around, and couldn't get anybody. A neighbor asked me why I didn't telephone Mr. Gillespie. I knew him when I ran the Meadowbrook Dairy and farm back at Bobcaygeon before we came down to Smith.

I telephoned that night to Mr. Gillespie, and the first thing he asked me was how many men I'd need.

I told him I had a lot of hay to take in, and he said he would probably be out the next morning. Sure enough I had the chores done and the horses harnessed when Mr. Gillespie drove in with four men around eight. To make a long story short we took off the twenty-one big loads by evening. They were four extra good men, and they certainly earned their money. I paid them five dollars each, fifty cents an hour, and I was mighty glad to do it. Mr. Gillespie even asked me whether I needed any help the next day, but I didn't need it. The point is that I was anxious about getting the hay in at once so it wouldn't spoil . I know that other farmers are geting this same kind of help, and I don't think the public knows just what Mr. Gillespie is doing."

Three of the four men volunteered that day from the local Army Training Camp.

Doing Same Job

Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, has been engaged in this same emergency service almost every day since the need of farm help was first felt. This morning he took three men from the Training Camp to Joe Sullivan's farm, one from British Columbia, one fom Quebec and the third man from New Brunswick. This afternoon he has three more going out to Carman Seymour's in Cavan.

"We have been getting fine co-operation especially from employees of the C.G.E.-Geneloo who go out after five o'clock, and from the Commanding Officer at the Military Training Centre. When we ask for help, the message is relayed to men who are given the chance to volunteer for this work if they wish to do so."

Mr. Paterson added the information that Mr. Gillespie, on a holiday this week, receives no remuneration for his service, "not even for his gasoline."

Children Must Attend School To Get Subsidy

OTTAWA, Aug. 10. — (CP). — Broad interpretation of the regulations requiring children to attend school to qualify for benefits under the proposed family allowance scheme was urged by several members of the Senate Banking Committee Wednesday during a detailed study of the Family Allowances Bill.

Members who spoke on the subject included Senator N. M. Paterson (L.-Ontario), Senator L. M. Gouin (L.-Quebec) and Senator J. J. Duffus (L.-Ontario). They said that children might be prevented by conditions beyond the control of their families from attending school and the regulations should be clearly defined to cover such cases.

Brooke Clayton, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister King, who appeared before the committee to explain the bill, said it was the intention that such cases should be covered.

Mr. Clayton said final decision would not be made on several points until the Dominion has consulted with the provinces. Among these were whether children who worked during the day and attended night school should qualify and what types of institutions should be entitled to collect for children in their care.

There are some 35,000 children in Canadian institutions.

Administration costs would be largely determined by the extent to which the provinces co-operate, but they were estimated at between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000 a year.

St. Peter's Cathedral was decorated with gladioli on Tuesday morning, when the marriage of Theresa Mary Elizabeth Corkery, daughter of Mr. John F. Corkery, Park street, to John Joseph Grisdale, son of Mrs. Alex Grisdale, Water street, was solemnized. Rev. J. T. Finn performed the ceremony. Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., played the wedding music, and Mrs. D. Campanero sang during the Nuptial Mass.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white embossed satin, with Sweetheart neckline, buttoned at the neck to waist-line, long sleeves coming to a point at the [illegible] Her floor-length [illegible] veil, was caught with tiny white blossoms and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses and bouvardia. Her only ornament was a tiny gold Cross and Chain, the gift of the groom.

The wedding attendants were Miss Loretta Fitzgerald as bridesmaid and Miss Margaret Grisdale as maid of honor. They were frocked alike in floor-length blue sheer mist, shirred at the waist and long full sleeves. They wore tiny matching net caps, and shoulder length veils of matching material, and carried nosegays of pink roses with blue cornflower.

The best man was Mr. Fred Whaley, and the ushers were Cpl. Vince Corkery, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gerry O'Toole.

Following a reception at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, the young couple left for a motor trip to Toronto and Crystal Beach. For travelling the bride wore a flowered taffeta two-piece ensemble, with navy accessories, and a corsage of red roses. On their return they will live on Aylmer Street.

Friends Honor Recent Bride

Mrs. Hymie Smith, nee Beatrice Neiman, whose marriage took place recently in Toronto, was honored on several occasions by her friends. Mrs. J. M. Katz, Aylmer street, entertained at a kitchen shower in her honor, and Mrs. M. Florence and Mrs. B. Green were joint hostesses for a cup and saucer shower held at the former's home, Homewood avenue. Mrs. A. Fine, King street, entertained at a dinner where the bride and groom were guests of honor.

Fellow employees of the bride, from the J. C. Poolman Company, gathered recently at the home of Mr. A. Poolman, Sherbrooke street, to present her with a wedding gift. Fellow members of the Junior Hadassah also gave the bride a wedding gift. The groom was also the recipient of several lovely presents. The production department of the C.G.E. and the punch press employees gave him wedding gifts, and the B'nai Brith lodge also made a presentation.

Mrs. A. Neiman, 209 Rutherford avenue, entertained at a tea in honor of her daughter. Receiving the guests were the bride, her mother, and the groom's mother. Tea was poured from silver services on a table set with a lace cloth, with a centerpiece of summer flowers flanked with blue and white tapers in silver holders. The rooms were decorated with blue and white streamers. Pouring tea were: Mrs. P. Black, Mrs. A. Fine, Mrs. G. Green, Mrs. M. Florence, Mrs. L. Florence and Mrs. H. Florence.

Navy Auxiliary Makes Plans For Ditty Bags

A tenative list of contents for the ditty bags to be sent out this Christmas, was submitted to the regular meeting of the Navy Auxiliary in the Y. W. C. A Wednesday evening, by Mrs. Fred Craig, convener of the ditty bag commitee.

The revised list now stands as razor blades, a comb, chocolate bars, gum, chocolate powders, cheese, cookies, cigarettes, and candies. The Auxiliary is still trying to arrange to put one pair of knitted sox in each ditty bag going overseas, and members were asked to keep up their knitting.

An appeal is soon to be launched for printed matter to put in the Christmas bags. Small pocket editions are topping the request list, since they take up very little room, and are less expensive if interested persons wish to contribute a book. However, all are most acceptable and the sailors enjoy reading them so much that the members decided it would certainly be worthwhile to gather as many as possible Mrs. Craig said that the new list of names was being compiled, and asked members to mail the addresses of their Navy sons to her, or to write them out and give them to her at the next meeting. All Peterborough mothers with boys in the Navy or merchant marine will be asked to contact Mrs. F. D. Craig by mail, enclosing name and latest address of the boys.

Considerable discussion was spent on the proposed Labor Day Field Day scheme, and the names of several volunteers who offered to help in the Navy Auxiliary's booth, were recorded. Until a public meeting is held later in August, definite plan cannot be made, but the Auxiliary has a general idea of the scope of the activities. Each Auxiliary, Navy. Air Force and Army, is to have a booth, selling different articles. Proceeds from the whole day will be divided equally among the three auxiliaries.

Mention was made of the Navy Auxiliary tag day, set for September 16, and members were asked to keep this date open to help with the tagging. Mrs. A. Chartren reported on the two dates available for the proposed rummage sale, and members decided to hold the sale on October 12 in the vacant store opposite Hood and Cumming Motors. On display were the two Scottish dolls, made for the Auxiliary by Mrs. Elizabeth Hurry, and members voted that a card of thanks be sent to Mrs. Hurry. Tickets are now on sale on these dolls, and they will be drawn for at a proposed pazaar, to be held later in the fall. The Scottish boy will go as first prize, and the girl as second, so that each ticket has two chances to win. Members were asked to keep the bazaar in mind, to donate articles, such as baby's underwear, dresses, aprons, and costume jewellery, for sale at that time.

Mrs. F. D. Craig presided, in the absence of Mrs. Frank Merrett. Mrs. A Chartren, reporting for the sick and visiting, said that eight calls had been made during the month, and five cards had been sent out. Also, a box was sent to Wren Gwyneth Flowers, in hospital in England. A new member, Mrs. Muriel [illegible]

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON
(Society Editor of The Examiner)

Most housewives are busy preserving and canning and making jams, jellies and pickles to last through the long winter months. The knack of making jams and jellies used to be considered an art, but it has been shown now that only careful, scrupulous, accurate work can assure good pure food.

Here are the steps outlined by the consumer section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture as general directions for successful jam-making. Select firm, ripe, but never over-ripe fruit. Measure fruit and sugar accurately. Wash the fruit and peel if necessary, cut or mash to start the flow of juice. To prevent sticking a little water may be added at first, but since this must later be boiled away, care should be taken not to use too much. A little cider vinegar, rhubarb or lemon juice may be added to less acid fruits such as peaches and pears.

Heat the fruit very slowly at first to extract the maximum amount of juice and stir frequently, using a wooden spoon. Add the correct amount of sugar for the quantity of fruit. In this step a good deal of time is saved if the sugar is heated first. Fruits with tough skins make better jam if cooked for a short time before the sugar is added. Peeled fruits are usually mixed with sugar before cooking, to save time. Boil the jam, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking, until it remains heaped up, or sheets from the spoon. For those lucky enough to have cooking thermometers the temperature is 220 degrees Fahrenheit.

Final Steps

The final steps are the pouring of the jam into hot, sterilized jars and sealing with melted paraffin when cool. To keep jars dust-free and clean, add the double protection of a paper or metal lid. Some housewives prefer to cover the tops of the jars with cloth, but any suitable covering is acceptable.

Here's a tested recipe for black currant, blueberry and apple conserve which will make use of fruits available at the present. Quantities: one quart of black currants, one quart of blueberries, three medium apples and four and one-half cups of sugar. Method: Crush currants and blueberries; add peeled, diced apples; and simmer 15 minutes. Add sugar and cook until thick—about 20 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. These quantities yield about three and one-half pints of delicious jam.

Jelly For Junior

There's nothing quite so tasty or appetising for an afternoon snack for the kiddies coming home hungry from school than a piece of bread and butter spread with some good home-made jelly, clear and tempting. Father likes it too and it's surprising how quickly a jar of jelly can disappear, especially if the man of the house likes jelly with a flavoring of bread or toast. So don't be lacking this winter and make as much jelly as the sugar ration will allow.

These are the general directions for making jelly. Select clean, sound fruit, including some slightly under-ripe fruit. Over-ripe fruit does not make good jelly. Apples, currants, crabapples, grapes, quinces and sour plums make best jelly without adding pectin. Apples may, and often are, combined with other fruits to make jellies, since they add to the flavor without spoiling it, and generally help the fruit to "jell." In preparing the fruit, apples, crabapples and quinces should be cut into pieces, not cored or peeled however. Grapes and currants should be stemmed; plums, cut up; and soft fruits should be crushed.

Use an ample container for cooking, and add water to come just below the top of the fruit. Cook slowly until the fruit is soft and mushy and the juice is drawn out, and then drain through a moist jelly bag. If the bag is not squeezed the jelly will be clearer, but gentle squeezing of the pulp will increase the quantity of juice and gives a more pronounced flavor.

Quantities Used

After the bag has been given sufficient time to drain, measure the juice, and for each cup of juice three-quarters of a cup of sugar will be needed, and again, heated sugar is better. Boil the juice gently for three minutes and test for pectin. If a clot does not form, continue boiling for a few minutes longer until the pectin test is satisfactory. Add the heated sugar and boil the mixture from three to 10 minutes, or until the jelly sheets from the spoon. (The temperature is 220 degrees Fahrenheit, the same as for jams.) After removing the scum which forms when the jelly is boiling, pour into hot sterilized glasses; let stand until set; then seal, cover and store.

The pectin test mentioned above is as follows: For a test with alcohol—and rubbing alcohol may be used—measure one tablespoon of the fruit juice and one tablespoon of the alcohol into a cup or small dish, and blend quickly together. After the mixture has stood a minute, if a jelly-like mass is formed the juice contains sufficient pectin and sugar may be added. If test is not satisfactory, continue boiling as the directions stated, until the alcohol-juice mixture thickens.

Perky Pickles

Pickles offer a variety of flavors and forms and colors which add a great deal to colorless winter meals and aid immeasurably in brightening and sprucing up various dishes. Pickling is not quite as ticklish a business as making jams or jellies, either, and even the novice can embark upon a pickling spree with confidence that the vinegar and spices will drown out the taste if anything wrong is added. However, leaving such dour thoughts behind, let's check the general steps for pickles and relishes.

First of all use fresh vegetables for pickling, and much better re- [illegible] Use the best vinegar. Cider vinegar has the best flavor, but white (spirit) vinegar gives better color. Consequently, a blend of these vinegars combines their best qualities. To make pickles firmer, soak them in brine to draw out the water and to check spoilage. For brine, the best proportion is one cup of salt to two quarts of boiling water. Just slightly scald the pickles for best results; never cook them. It is wiser to keep pickles in sterilized jars, but if they are kept in crocks they should be well covered with vinegar solution, to keep them from moulding. A plate or wooden board, cut to the shape of the crock, should be placed on top of the pickles and weighed down with a clean stone or weight.

Auxiliary Holds Supper Meeting

Mrs. W. K. Sloane was hostess for the August meeting of the St. James' Auxiliary of the W.M.S., held on the lawn at her home on Crescent Street. Group leader Mrs. Sloane presided for the meeting, and Mrs. A. Cripps led in prayer, and Miss Bowers read the Scripture lesson from Psalm 42. With it she gave a brief explanatory talk. A report of the 31st national convention of the W.C.T.U. was given by Mrs. E. Beavis, the temperance superintendent, while Mrs. Thomas Meredith reported for Christian Stewardship. She stressed the need for budgeting time as well as money.

A short business period included plans for the annual self-denial meeting to be held in September. "Let us Learn" was the title of an apt reading given by Mrs. Sloane. Everyone enjoyed the Scripture contest "First Things of the Bible." A pot-luck supper was enjoyed by the members and guests, who were served by the midsummer group.

Smith-Neiman Nuptials Solemnized In Toronto

A wedding of wide interest took place recently in Toronto, when Beatrice Neiman, daughter of Mrs. A. Neiman, 209 Rutherford avenue, and the late Abraham Neiman, and Hymie Smith, son of Mrs. R. Smith, 392 Aylmer street and the late Joseph Smith, were united in marriage by Rabbi Kirshenblatt. An orchestra played soft music throughout the ceremony.

In accordance with Jewish tradition, the bride was given in marriage by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Katz of Peterborough, her brother-in-law and sister, and the groom was given in marriage by his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith of Toronto. For the ceremony, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white chiffon over satin, with fitted waist, long sleeves, and full skirt. She wore a mauve sash with floor-length ties, and a corsage of roses. Her veil and train of white net fell from a mauve flower cap and halo, and she carried a white Bible with long streamers tied with roses.

She was attended by her sisters, Miss Jeannette Neiman as maid of honor, and Miss Lillian Neiman as bridesmaid. They were similarly frocked in floor-length white chiffon, with embroidered bodices, long, embroidered sleeves, and fitted waistlines and full skirts. The maid of honor wore a pink sash with floor-length ties, pink halo hat trimmed with rosebuds, and carried a nosegay of roses. The bridesmaid wore a blue sash, blue halo hat trimmed with rosebuds and carried a nosegay of roses.

Mr. Aaron Neiman, brother of the bride, was best man, and Mr. Isaac Clipin, of Glace Bay, N.S., was usher.

At the reception held at the Mints restaurant, the bride's mother received the guests in a black two-piece ensemble, with black hat and accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was gowned in navy blue, with black hat and accessories, and a corsage of white roses. Mr. Maurice Black was master of ceremonies. The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers, and the bride's table was centred with her three-tier wedding cake.

For a two weeks' wedding trip to New York, Buffalo, and other points, the bride donned a two-piece suit in heavenly blue, brown accessories and carried a brown gabardine coat. She also wore a corsage of roses. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home on Burnham street.

WOMEN DON'T GROW UP

Emotionally They Are Adolescents To the End of Their Lives.

THE curse of women is that they so seldom get to be their age. Emotionally they are perpetual adolescents. They never lose their sweet teeth, and at 80 they crave romance and flattery and love-making just as much as they did at 18.

Inasmuch as human ingenuity has never been able to devise any way of making women look as young as they feel, this is bound to be a frustrated desire, but nevertheless with deathless optimism they continue their quest for it in beauty parlors and dress shops in the fond belief that in them they can find the way to bring back the magic of a vanished day.

This yearning of women to be treated like lady loves instead of grandmas would be funny if it were not so pathetic, for to so many of them it is a sorrow that gnaws unceasingly at their heartstrings and that turns what should be plushy lives into beds of thorns upon which they writhe in misery. Over it have been shed enough tears to float a battleship.

It is incredible, but it is true, that women's chief grievance against fate is that in the process of time they reach middle age or worse and their family and friends begin to treat them as if they were adult human beings insteady of fluttery debutantes. And they can't take it. They don't crave home cooking, so to speak. They don't relish the solid, nourishing food of respect and affection. What they long for are the lollipops of flattery to roll under their tongues.

Marriage Turns Into Dust

It is women's mania for maintaining an impossible sentimental situation that brings about one of the most difficult problems of marriage and that is for husbands to combine being great lovers with being successful business men. Marriage is cinders, ashes and dust to millions of women because their husbands take them for granted and no longer notice what they have on or how they do their hair.

So far as a wife is concerned, the unforgiveable sin in a husband is for him not to be a high-pressure love-maker. If he is that, she will overlook all other shortcomings. If he is dumb about the state of his affections, in vain does he buy her mink coats and put up with her nagging. She considers herself a poor, neglected creature.

Worse still is it when at middle age a married woman becomes aware that she no longer sees a hero of romance in her husband and that she does not thrill at his bacon-and-eggs morning kiss. Because she doesn't palpitate at his touch she decides that she has lost her love for him, no matter how good and kind he has been to her. And whether she goes out in search of a gigolo, or settles down into being a disgruntled wife, it is misery for all concerned.

What a pity women's emotions always stay teen-age!

New Sour Cream Dressing Makes Tasty Dinner Dish

By MARY MOORE.

It's savory dishes this week, all because I was foolish enough to let a whole pint of cream go sour. I knew the makings of a couple of good dishes were contained therein so I searched the files and turned up.

Veal Paprika.

One and one-half lbs. veal steak, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon water, 1 clove garlic (or ¼ teaspoon garlic salt), 4 cups corn flakes, 3 tablespoons fat, ½ cup water, 1 cup soup cream, 1 or 2 tablespoons paprika (if you like things "hot" you will want the 2 tablespoons paprika.) Roll cornflakes into fine crumbs. Cut veal into pieces 1" x 2". Dip in egg (slightly beaten with salt and water) and then in crumbs. Cut garlic in pieces and cook in fat until brown. Remove garlic. Add veal and cook until lightly browned. Add water, cover and simmer about 1 hour or until tender. Add cream but do not stir. Sprinkle with paprika, cover and cook about 15 minutes. These amounts serve 6 or 4 very generously.

(The above was a lucky find, for our neighbour whose wife is "at the cottage" was to dine with us and luckily liked "furrin" food.)

Uncooked Sour Cream Dressing.

One-third or ½ cup sour cream, ¼ cup salad oil, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, few grains cayenne, 2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice ¼ cup thick chili sauce or catsup. Just before ready to serve whip the cream until stiff, then add all remaining ingredients, folding them in. Serve at once. Very good with head lettuce salad or on ham salad.

Ham Salad.

Two cups cold cooked ham diced, 1 cup shrede green cabbage, 1 teaspooon chopped onion or chives (or grating of garlic), 1 tablespoon chopped pickle, 2 chpped hard cooked eggs, about ½ to 2-3 cup sour cream dressing (see above). Mix ingredients if liked, marinate in ¼ cup French dressing ½ hour before serving. Pass sour cream dressing. If not marinated, mix with most of the dressing and pass more at table.

I'm not much of a one for involved dishes but my hostess one day of my holidays served us Bologna cups as follows an I liked it a lot— she says it's a "budget-balancer."

Balogna Cups with Hot Potato Salad.

Six ¼-inch slices large bologna. 4 slices side bacon, 1 onion chopped finely, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt, 6 hot boiled potatoes. Do not remove casing from bologna slices. Dice bacon, brown lightly in hot skillet, remove bacon. Cook balogna in bacon fat on both sides, until edges curl up to form cups. Remove to hot platter. Cook onion in bacon fat until lightly browned, Return diced bacon to frying pan, add vinegar and seasonings, heat through and pour over hot sliced or cubed potatoes. Pile potato salad lightly on top of bologna, garnish with pepper rings and parsley. These amounts serve six and make a good lunch.

Sausage Turnovers (perfect for a picnic).

One cup sausage meat, 1 cup chopped ham, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup boiled rise, 1 egg, plain pie paste. Fry sausage meat slowly 10 minutes, stirring. Drain off fat. Add ham, rice, and sauce, mixing. Beat egg and add to mix. Roll pie paste thin and cut in 4-in. squares. Place 2 tablespoons of meat mix in centre of each square. Moisten edges and fold in triangle, sealing edges with fork. Prick tops, bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes.

QUESTION—I won't take much of your time explaining why I want a Golden Angel Food cake—that is a spongecake using both whites and yokes—but will watch your columns for it, hoping you can find space to print it in August. Thanks for past help.—Mabel and Ruth.

ANSWER:

Golden Angel Cake

(This is sometimes called Imperial Sunshine Cake).

Beat together 5 egg yolks with ½ cup cold water and beat into them gradually 1 cup sugar. Sift together 1½ cups cake flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Sift this into the egg and sugar mix, with a folding motion. Flavor with 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until stiff the 5 egg whites and add ¾ teaspoon cream of tartar, and an additional ¼ cup sugar. Fold this egg white mixture into the egg yolk mixture. Pour into ungreased angel cake pan and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then increase heat to 325 deg. Fahr. and bake for 50 minutes.

The above is delicious with orange butter frosting or with a whipped cream topping in which is sliced red and green maraschino cherries and pecans.

QUESTION: We like carrots and have bushels in our garden. I need help quick to know how to prepare them besides boiled or creamed. Any variations you suggest will be a help I am sure. Bess S.

ANSWER:

Shredded Carrots Cooked in Butter

Grate ½ medium sized onion and cook 2 minutes in 3 tablespoons butter, then add 6 medium carrots scraped and shredded; add 1 teaspoon sugar and salt and pepper to taste. Cook over low heat, covered, until carots are tender. Sprinkle with chopped parsley to serve.

Carrots Fried In Parsley Batter

Wash and scrape and cut in halves though small carrots to fill 2 to 2½ cups. Cook about 15 minutes (or until tender) in 2 cups boiling water with 1½ teaspoons salt. Beat together 1 egg with ½ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, and ¾ cup flour. Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley and ½ teaspoon salt and mix well. Dip carrot halves in batter one at a time. Fry until golden brown in deep fat at 370 deg. Fahr. Drain on soft paper. These are delicious on a vegetable plate or with poached eggs on toast and spinach.

QUESTION: I think that the dressing that goes on fruit salads is more important than the salad ingredients. I tasted one with a distinct pineapple flavor at the hotel this summer and would like to know how to make it—I suppose you would call it pineapple dressing for fruit salad. Thanking you for any help on this subject—Mrs. Arch. Smith.

ANSWER: A good fruit dressing may be made by adding 1-3 cup cream whipped, to 1 cup genuine mayonnaise, and flavor this with 1 teaspoon artificial pineapple flavoring.

Pineapple Dressing

Four tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons sugar, juice from 1 no. 2 can sliced pineapple. 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup cream, whipped. Mix flour and sugar, adding pineapple juice a little at a time, until mixture will pour. Heat remaining juice and add flour mixing. Cook directly over heat, stirring until thick. Place over hot water, add butter and well beaten eggs. Cook again unitl quite thick, stirring constantly. Chill. Fold in whipped cream just before serving. A nice variation of this is to hold out the white, and beat them just before serving and add to the chilled dressing. This is cheaper, less creamy, but good.

For Friday, August 11

Concentration of energies, resources and talents on this day may result in putting over very important programs or objectives, with new projects or undertakings moving swiftly to desired goals under high tempo. This should not however be carried to excess or over excitement, since there are antagonistic or indifferent reactions from influential sources. Prepare to rely on individual skill, assets, and well-organized plans and to refrain from impetuous, obstinate, or defiant attitudes and conduct. Keep firm, potent and persistent for best results in major operations. Do not invite competition.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find splendid opportunity for reaching important goals in fresh fields or in new moves of major significance. Energy, resources, talents, should be centered on such advanced objectives, and with entire reliance and personal prowess, will, determination and aggressiveness, as help from others is doubtful. But take care not to provoke or offend superiors by obstinate, impetuous or excitable moods and keep alert to hidden treacheries.

A child born on this day should have much enterprise and initiative, with practical ability in many directions. It may be impatient and self-willed.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: This recipe I am sending is not so much a wartime recipe as an August recipe. We like it a lot and it calls for things you have on hand most of the time.

Scrambled Eggs In Tomatoes

Cut in halves four large tomatoes and put in glass baking dish, adding 1 or 2 tablespoons water. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake until soft at 350 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven and scoop out centres. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in frying pan, add 1-3 cup of the scooped out tomato pulp, a few drops of onion juice, 1½ to 2 tablespoons grated cheese, ¼ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, and ⅛ teaspoon sugar, and 3 eggs. Stir over heat until thick and creamy. Fill tomato cups, and serve on toast with strips of crisp bacon. This looks nice on a large platter, and served with a crisp green salad, and a nice chocolate cake makes a nice summer lunch or supper.

Minted Beets

One other thing I wanted to mention was a way I do beets. I cook the beets and tops separately, and when both are done I slip the skins off the beets and chop the tops and mix them together chopping the beets a little. I add 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 tablespoon vinegar (to 6 medium beets), ½ to ¾ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and 1 tablespoon finely chopped mint, and what butter I can spare. My family likes them this way.—Mary Edson.

It all is good too—I broiled the tomatoes instead of baking because I didn't want to heat the whole oven. Thanks for both ideas.

Cottesloe

Miss Jean Brown of Norwood is spending a holiday with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patterson.

Mrs. Douglas Brownscombe (Dorothey Kelly) of Hamilton is visiting her mother, Mrs. Annie Kelly.

Mrs. John Dewart and Miss Ella Dewart of Indian River are spending a few weeks with Mrs. Annie Miles.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. McDonald accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Freeburn of Norwood spent the week-end at Stoney Lake with Mr. and Mrs. Newton Stephens.

Miss Laura Kelly, Reg. N. of New York is visiting her cousin, Mrs. John Brown and Mr. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kidd and Mrs. Campbell attended the Kidd reunion at Nicholls Oval, Peterborough on Monday.

ENDURING CLASSIC—In all the plethora of after-dark dresses and elaborate fur-trimmed suits, the simplest little frock designed for the careerist or college girl goes its own well-bred way. Here is one such dress, a nice, useful, pretty all-day dress in enduring shirtwaist style. It is in two tones of spicetan with harmonizing beige, crepe and herring-bone spun rayon fabric. The lighter shade is used for the collar, back of the bodice and the sleeves.—By Alice Alden.

BIRTH

CHESTNUT—To Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Chestnut (nee Alice Varty) on August 8, 1944, a little sister for David.

IN MEMORIAM

MITCHELL—In loving memory of Mrs. John O. Mitchell, who passed away Aug. 9, 1943.

Sunshine fades and shadows fall,
But sweet remembrance outlasts all.

—Ever remembered by her friends Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes.

WELLS—In loving memory of a dear husband and Father, William Thomas Wells, who passed away August 10, 1933.

There is still an ache in our hearts to-day
That countless year's won't take away,
To have to love, and then to part
Is the greatest trial of the human heart.
Though his smile is gone forever
And his voice we cannot hear
We shall never lose sweet memories
Of the one we loved so dear.

—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

REID—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother who passed away Aug. 4 in her 36th year.

There is no time that we could set
For parting, we who must remain
Are never ready for such pain
Even our prayer would be "not yet"
Not yet, dear God... another day
With us let our beloved stay
We must believe when falls the blow
That wisely, God has willed it so.

—W. Reid and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

Social Credit Party Gains Across Alberta

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, August 10 —(CP)— The Alberta Social Credit Government, triumphant in Provincial general election voting on Tuesday, saw in prospect a slender band of opposition members for the next legislature as returns from city constituencies came in late last night and early to-day.

After Social Crediters had chalked up victories for more than 40 of the 57 seats in legislature, Mayor Andy Davison, chief magistrate of Calgary since 1930, won re-election in his home city as an Independent.

Soon afterwards, Elmer Hoper, Provincial C. C. F. leader, was re-elected in Edmonton.

Also elected in Edmonton were Premier E. C. Manning and N. B. James, Social Credit, J. Percy Page, Independent, and W. J. Williams, Veterans' candidate.

In Calgary other candidates elected were: Fred Anderson and Ald. Mrs. Rose Wilkinson, Social Credit; H. B. MacDonald, Independent, and FO. A. J. E. Liesember, C. C. F.

To-day, the Provincial standing showed 43 Social Crediters elected, tow Independents, one C. C. F. and one Veterans' candidate.

Leading in contests still to be decided were six Social Crediters, three Independents, and one C. C. F.

Counting of the vote under the proportional representation system started in the five-member constituencies of Calgary and Edmonton last night after a special staff at Edmonton completed the sorting of delayed ballots cast on Monday by some 4,000 men and women in the services within the Province.

Election officals said the soldiers vote was unlikely to cause any changes n the 47 single-member constituencies where the single transferable system of election is used.

At a session to be held in a few weeks, the Government will make arrangements for three additional members-at-large to be elected by Alberta service men and women in the forces outside the Province.

Mr. Manning polled a heavy personal vote at Edmonton. With the quota necessary for election 6,306, he had a surplus of 7,965. Many on of the second choices in this surplus went to Mr. James.

Of Interest to Women

Women of Europe to Play Important Role After War

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer.

NEW YORK, August 14 — (AP). —What kind of women will rise from the seething cauldron of Europe after the war?

What will guerilla warfare do to women who have reversed women's age-old role of giving life, and have shot and killed instead?

Recent comment by representative Europeans indicate some evolutionary changes are in store.

Consider France, here the women of pre-war days, famous for their chic and charm, never had the right to vote or to sit in Parliament and where their civil rights were so restricted that they could not even have a bank account or get a passport without their husband's consent. What kind of role will these women play in post-war France after four years of fighting beside men in the underground?

I put the question to General Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Committee of National Liberation, during his recent visit to New York. And his grave dark eyes lit as though a light had been turned on.

Women More Important.

"The French women must play a far bigger part in her country's affairs than she did before," he said "She must vote. She must be eligible to hold office. The State needs her."

Gen. de Gaulle has been as good as his word. The French Committee of National Liberation already has given women suffrage and has seated two women in its provisional consultative Assembly in Algiers.

Typical of the new French woman is Lillian Winkler of the French women's air service.

"French women are never going back to the old role they used to play," she says. "They have taken an important part in the underground during this war. They have participated in the conclaves on ways and means to keep France a sovereign nation. And they are not going back. They are vitally interested in seeing that there is not another horror like this."

As for England, Caroline Haslett, advisor to the British Ministry of Labor on women's training, predicts no less than a post-war social revolution of women.

"Parasites" to Disappear.

"After the war I think the parasite woman—the woman with three or four servonts who has little to do —will largely disappear" Miss Haslett said on a recent New York visit. "Before the war there was a snobbish British attitude toward women working. But all women from 18 to 50 (with certain exceptions) have had to work in the war and they have learned the independence that a pay cheque brings and they are building their own lives.'

Russia is a very different story.

"I dont foresee much change in the position of Soviet women after the war," says Eugene D. Kisselev, Soviet Consul-General in New York. "Soviet women already have equal rights with men and are active in virtually every phase of the country's afafirs. About one-third of the membership of the supreme Soviet is made up of women and a woman is its vice-president. Women have played a magnificent role in their country's defence during the war and when it is over they will continue their vital part in Soviet politics and work.

By contrast, great change already is evident in Yugoslavia, where women had neither the vote nor the right to run for elective office before the war.

"The war has changed women's position radically," says Dr. Milan Herzog, head of the Yugoslavian section of the overseas branch of the U.S. Office of War Information. "In sections liberated by the partisans they were given immediate voting power. In liberated parts of Bosnia and Croatia they have been elected to the anti-Fascist council (the law-making body of Tito's provisional administration). Women have made up 30 per cent. of the guerilla forces, wearing the same uniforms as men, firing the same guns.

"What effect has guerilla fighting on women? I have seen letters from some of these women. They have not been hardened by the killing they had to do. Killing has made them abhor war more than ever. They are determined to use their power for a policy that will guarantee no more war mongers."

Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, returned recently from a trip to England and Sweden, in the course of which she met women who had worked in the Danish and Norwegian underground.

"They are a completely new breed of people we have never seen before," she said. "They have lost everything — possessions, family, homes. And it has shaken them out of self. When you have lost everything you can lose, you get down to fundamentals. After the war these women are going to take a hand in making their communities what they ought to be.

Same Everywhere

Joseph W. F. Stoppelman, head of the press department of the Netherlands Information Bureau in New York, foresees an appreciably broadened future for the women of Holland, who have had the vote since 1922.

"We have 9,000,000 people; and a half million men are now gone," he says. "It will take time for those who still live to return after the war ends. Meantime women will be on the ground floor and they will have to take over. They will be much more active in their country's affairs than ever before."

Else Roed, former editor of a leading Norwegian woman's magazine and now an attache of the Norwegian Information Service in New York, says that Norwegian women also will extend greatly their spheres of activity after the war.

"The war taught us that knowledge was one of the few things the Germans could not take away from us," she said. "Many Norwegian women attended universities before the war. But now we will see to it that our women are better educated than ever. They will be more active than ever in politics and in the country's affairs."

ly, but Quigley rolled out.

Isaac wild-pitched two runs over in the first of the fifth, to give Switchgear the lead again. Patterson made a two-base muff of Carpenter's short high fly, Ashmore rolled to Quigley and Carpenter was out trying to get back to second. Playford doubled to right. A wild pitch scored Ashmore and when the fourth ball on Mowry was also a wild pitch, Playford ran in Brockley and Nicholls flied out.

Isaac walked three batters to fill the bases with one out in the sixth, but got out of the hole by getting Ashmore on a pop fly and Playford on a roller to third.

It was a different story in the seventh. With one away Brockley singled to right and Nicholls and Harrison walked, filling the bases. Earl McNabb emptied them with a long triple to left centre. Tompkins dropped a single into right scoring NcNabb and when Platt knocked the ball around and Quigley followed with a ball throw to third Tompkins completed the circuit. Carpenter was tossed out by Platt. Ashmore walked and Playford singled to left and both scored on Mowry's double.

U. E. W. came back with two in their end of frame Quigley walked and Girard bunted safely, Quigley going to third. Girard stole second. Griffin flied to Carpenter in short left and Harding fanned. Doughty doubled to right to score the pair and Patterson wound up by popping out.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THE DOUBLE SQUEEZE

Most players consider a double squeeze a very fancy play. It is unusual, to be sure, but understandable. The squeezer leads a card on which nobody can follow suit. When he does, he must have a singleton of another suit which is lower than a singleton at his right, and opposite it, a singleton of a third suit which is lower than a singleton at his left. The squeezing hand must also have a singleton in the fourth suit, and opposite it the top card of that suit plus another card which either opponent can beat with a guarded card.

After the heart 10 lead, South was able to count twelve tricks, and tried a double squeeze for the thirteenth. Knowing his squeezes, he scored the heart A, two clubs, two spades and a ruffed spade, the heart K, the diamond A, and then three more clubs.

When he led the club 10, he had retained also the heart J and diamond 9, and in the dummy the spade 7 and the diamond K-7 West had the spade Q and the diamond J-6, and East the heart Q and the diamond Q-10. On the final club, West had to keep the spade Q to protect against the 7, so discarded the diamond 6.

The spade 7 was then thrown from dummy, and East was squeezed. If he had discarded the diamond 10, the dummy's K-7 would have taken the last two tricks. So he threw the heart Q. But it made no difference and South now got the last two tricks with the heart J and the diamond K.

Allied Doctors Winning In Far East

By JACK BRALEY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Back from the south-west Pacific war theatre, Dr. Thomas F. Donnelly, Liberal member for Wood Mountain consituency in Saskatchewan said in an interview here to-day that the Allies were definitely winning the medical war in the Pacific. He also said that at least two Canadian officers have seen action in that theatre— at Saipan.

There was evidence that Japanese medical officers were good, but their instructions were being disregarded by the military class and the enemy was dying off in large numbers from disease and even minor wounds.

He said the Australian medical corps was reclaiming between 80 and 85 per cent of casualties for further action.

"The only thing that prevents a wounded man from returning to battle these days is if he's lost a limb," said the doctor.

Two Canadians.

Recently at Honolulu Dr. Donnelly met Captain William E. Watt, Ottawa, and Capt. Fred J. Fulton, Kamloops, B. C., who were attached to American forces in the recent action in Saipan.

Dr. Donnelly said his greatest impression of the Australian war effort was that the sister Dominion had not only built several types of planes but had also constructed aviation motors to go with them.

He is the first of a parliamentary delegaiton of four to return to Ottawa from the Pacific.

He was accompanied back to San Francisco by Angus MacInnis, C. C. F. member for Vancouver East, who stopped off at his home, and J. Gordon Ross, Liberal member for Moose Jaw, Joseph H. Harris, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Danforth, is returing to Canada through the Mediterranean area where he hopes to meet his son, serving with the Canadian army.

The Old Remedy For Children

Few people, especially children, escape an attack of summer complaint during the hot weather.

Summer complaint begins with a profuse diarrhœa very often accompanied by vomiting and purging. The matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance, and that from the bowels watery, whitish, ill-smelling, or even odorless.

When the children show any sign of looseness of the bowels the mother should administer a few doses of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry so as to bring quick relief.

This medicine has been on the market for the past 94 years. Refuse substitutes. They may be dangerous.

Polish Problem Dragging Along

MOSCOW, August 9 —(AP) —The Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation accused the Polish Government in London today of clinging to the "dictatorial" constitution of 1935 at the cost of temporarily blocking the formation of a "Democratic Provisional Government."

The critique by the committee's news agency Polpress came as Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the London Government and the committee apparently made no move to resume the intra-Polish conference during the day. The critical Polpress report, however held out possibility that negotiations would start again. Moscow newspapers printed the Polpress report.

At the same time a front age announcement said Premier Stalin told Mikolajczyk in their talk August 3 that he desired "all questions of conditions in Poland might be decided by the Poles themselves."

After two days of silence the Soviet press renewed its attack on Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, war minister for the London Polish Government, as a Soviet-hating imperialist.

A source close to Mikolajezyk indicated that last night's conference at the Kremlin between his group, the Liberation Committee and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotav had left the door open for continuence of negotations between the two Polish factions.

17 Passengers Die In Clipper Crash

HAVA, Aug. 10—(AP)—Seventeen passengers died yesterday when a huge Pan-American flying boat struck a swell while taking off from the rough waters of Nipe Bay, in northeastern Cuba, and was wrecked.

Nine passengers and the crew of five are safe, and the airline office at the scene of the accident, reported that all others aboard lost their lives.

Only six bodies had been recovered this morning as salvage efforts were carried on.

Surviving passengers and two of the crew, flown to Miami, said most of those lost were seated in the centre section of the clipper.

AMERICANS DRIVE TO ENCIRCLE HUNS

Bombers Try To Isolate City Of Paris

U-Boat, Oil Depots Rail-Yards Heavily Pounded

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP)—American heavy bombers smashed in force today at oil dumps and airfields near Paris and at rail yards in the German border city of Sarrbrucken and the Alsace Lorraine cities of Strasbourg Mulhouse and Belfort.

All the rail yards were bottlenecks for German troops which invasion headquarters reported earlier today were moving "westward" toward the French front. Railway facilities through Strasbourg, Antwerp, Brussels, Metz, Lille and Sedan was bombed during the night.

Before dawn, up to 1,000 heavy British bombers attacked oil supplies for submarines, trains and other targets while Mosquitos gave Berlin residents another restless night by plunging two-ton blockbusters into the German capital.

1,000 Planes Up

Up to 1,000 U.S. planes bombed and strafed these objectives:

Fuel dumps at St. Florentin and Pacy on the Armancon river 75 miles southeast of Paris.

Airfields at Villacoublay on the outskirts of aPris, Toussus le Noble southwest of the capital, and Coulommiers, 30 miles east.

Railyards at Mulhouse and Belfort in Alsace-Lorraine near the Rhine.

The latest attacks apparently were part of a rapidly-shaping campaign to isolate Paris. The weather was clear and "good results" were reported.

Weather over the French battle area was unusually good this morning and showed promise of remaining that way.

Polish Troops Take 3 Towns Along Adriatic

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, August 11 — (AP). — Polish troops of the British 8th Army, launching an infantry and tank offensive along a six-mie front on the Adriatic coast, have captured high ground overlooking the Cesano Valley and have sent patrols across the Cesano River after a two-mile initial advance, Allied Headquarters said to-day.

The towns of Scapezzano, Monterado, and Corinaldo were seized as the Poles swept through the Nazi defences. The drive to the south bank of the Cesano put the Poles about half-way between the captured port of Ancona and the next major town of Pesara, where the outposts of the Adriatic end of the Gothic Line are believed to begin.

Heavy storms slowed but failed to halt the onslaught. At the beginning of the offensive 300 prisoners were taken and the Germans suffered further heavy casualties in attempting five unsuccessful counter-attacks.

Huns Withdrawing.

The hard-pressed Germans were reported to have withdrawn entirely from the south bank of the Cesano.

Troops of the Polish Carpathian Division seized important high ground two miles north-east of Lacroce after that village was taken in the first hour of the attack.

Heavy continuous rain fell along the entire Allied 56th Army front and thunderstorms were common most of the 8th Army front, limiting activity to artillery fire and patrol actions.

Gen. Alexander's Headquarters said the situation in Florence "remains the same," and "there is little activity apart from sniping. Our artillery continues the policy of not shelling the town while the German artillery fire on the southern half of the town yesterday was less than normal."

It appeared the Nazi fire was directed primarily against roads entering the town from the south.

In the bend of the Arno River east of Florence British units occupied areas south of the river from which the enemy had withdrawn and were within two miles of the junction town of Pontassieve.

Six German planes were shot down over Ploesti yesterday when up to 500 U.S. 15th Air Force heavy bombers raided Romanian oil targets. One formation bombed the Steaua Romano refinery at Campina, 19 miles north-west of Ploesti.

The Kraljevo rail yards in Yugoslavia were hit last night by the R.A.F. In all operations 17 Allied planes were lost.

Serious Offence?

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP).—The Moscow radio said today that Adolf Hitler had issued a decree to all judges of courts martial directing that the dealth penalty must be imposed on German officers who insist on using the army salute instead of the "Heil Hitler" salute.

8 More Units Named In France

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE(, Aug. 11 — (CP Cable) — The 2nd Canadian Infantry Division which raided Dieppe nearly two years ago is fighting in Normandy, it was permitted to disclose today.

It was announced the Division had been engaged in fighting up to Aug. 6.

The whole 2nd Division was concentrated in Normandy early in July and saw action in the Odon River valley southwest of Caen in the middle of the month.

At the end of the month it engaged in savage battles south of Caen on the line from St. Andre Sur Orne to Tilly La Campagne.

Infantry and support battalions of the 2nd Division have all been named in previous dispatches, but this is the first official disclosure that the entire Division is here with its artillery and auxiliary services

Among the units of the Canadian 2nd Division previously identified as fighting in Normandy are:

Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders; Winnipeg.

South Saskatchewan Regt., Weyburn, Sask.

Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal.

Essex Scottish Regt., Windsor, Ont.

Royal Hamilton Light Infantry (Wentworth Regt.), Hamilton, Ont.

Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto.

All of these units fought at Dieppe. The first three units were then brigaded together, as were the second three. One company of the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment), Montreal, also fought at Dieppe and has been named in dispatches from Normandy.

Other Canadian units identified as fighting in France but whose divisional affiliation was not made known are: Calgary Highlanders and Le Regiment de Maisonneuve, Montreal.

Four Canadian Destroyers Sink 3 Trawlers

By A. D. MERKEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Aug. 11—(CP).—Fresh from a knock down and drag-out fight with four armed German trawlers, off the invasion coast of France, a group of officers and men of H.M.C.S. Saskatchewan are back in Canada, en route to their homes on leave.

The action, first in the war at sea in which a flotilla made up wholly of Canadian units engaged the enemy, was fought off Brest July 6, within range of the 11-inch guns of the German-manned shore batteries of Cape St. Matthew.

The Germans admitted the loss of three trawlers and there were casualties and slight damage aboard three of the Canadian destroyers. Saskatchewan had one man killed, Leading Seaman Doug. Leech, of Calgary, and six wounded; Qu'Appelle had one killed and 16 wounded; Skeena, seven wounded. There were no casualties or damage aboard the Restigouche.

Some Casualties.

Following the action the three destroyers with casualties aboard, put into a south of Eng'and port where the dead were buried and the wounded transferred to hospital. This done they raced back to their stations in the teeming Channel.

Red Armies Shape Huge Pincers

Capture Of Lagow Imperils Eastern Divisions

BY EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Aug. 11 — (AP) — Russian armies applying a great pincers upon east Prussia swept today within 50 miles of Tilsit and Memel and threatened the southern boundary of that home of the Junkers with a plunge across the Narew River.

Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky beseiging Warsaw for the 12th day, thrust a threatening army group towards East Prussia from positions northeast of the Polish capital. This group increased the menace to Warsaw, too, because it could curve to the Vistula and outflank the Polish city from the north.

Russian troops already were seven or more miles inside the Suwalki triangle, which Germany annexed to east Prussia from Poland in 1939. In the north, the Soviet Army group of 37-year-old Gen. Ivan Cherniakovsky, sent bombs and artillery shells into the German province and fought bitter and repeated counter-attacks at several gateways to east Prussia.

Huns Outnumbered

(In this great action, the Germans started reporting that they were greatly outnumbered. On the threat to the south of east Prussia, the official German news agency, D.N.B. sa'l the Russians started a new offensive yesterday between Warsaw and Augustow with strong forces, which made some penetrations.)

A hundred miles or so south of Warsaw, the Russians widened the breach across the Vistula River to 42 miles and advanced to within 26 miles of Kielce. In that area the Red Army stood within 75 miles of German Silesia and within 35 of Krakow, ancient capital of Poland and her fifth city.

(The Germans repeated that another bridgehead had been established over the Vistula 30 miles south of Warsaw in the Warka area.)

The extermination of Germans trapped in the upper Baltic States neared its final phase. Two captured German Generals said more than 30 German divisions (perhaps 300,000 or more men) would be wiped out when the Baltic drive was finished.

However, some thousands of the Germans, whose land communica-

Prepare For Bombs

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 — (AP).—The Tokyo radio in a broadcast to Germany recorded by U.S. Government monitors, said yesterday Japanese school children had torn down "tens of thousands of houses, entire street sections and residential blocks" in the capital as an air raid protection measure, bringing about "one of the great levellings since the earthquake of 1923."

Germany Knew Canada Would Fight

OTTAWA, Aug. 11 — (CP). — Germany had full knowledge that in the event of an aggressive war Canada would be in it, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in the Commons as he lifted the veil from a bit of pre-war history

He said when he went to Germany and talked with Hitler following the coronation in 1937 he went for the purpose of making it clear to the German people that Canada would not be neutral.

At the same time looking into the future in Canadian politics, Mr. King, without naming Premier George Drew of Ontario, issued a challenge to anyone who wished to battle on whether some Canadians were to be treated differently from others.

No Aloofness

Mr. King was replying to John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who referred to the government's alleged pre-war attitude of aloofness to international affairs and urged that Canadian citizenship or the future be recognized as such without any labels as to racial origin.

On the first point, Mr. King said he had nothing to take back as to any stand the government took while he was at the head of the administration. There were some people who suggested, he said, that had Hitler known Canada would fight there would have been no war

Anyone who knew the German war machine and the extent to which Hitler himself was taken in by that machine knew that was not so, knew there was nothing which could stop the plan of world conquest it was concocting.

Then he told of the purpose of his visit to Germany and said Rt Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, had thanked him for what he had done.

On Canadian nationality, Mr King said he was in full agreement with Mr. Diefenbaker. When Canadian soldiers were fighting regardless of racial origin they should have the privilege of regarding foremost and all the time."

Great Disservice

"I regret to see," he said, "that some men in high places are seeking to raise a race cry, forgetting that we are all Canadians."

If any one wanted a battle on the issue he for one would welcome it, said Mr. King, to raise the race cry or to raise a cry of one province against others was to do "the greatest disservice that can be done to Canadian unity and Canadian nationality."

Mr. King said he was not only in favor of the fullest recognition of Canadian nationality and citizenship, but hoped to see a Canadian national anthem after the war.

Canadian soldiers were proud to go into battle under a Canadian flag and they should be permitted to live under one in peacetime. He said he hoped "God Save the King" would always be sung as the anthem of the British Commonwealth and throughout the Commonwealth, but he believed Canadians should stand with equal honon to sing "O, Canada" as the national anthem of Canada."

Germans Battling Canadians May Be Cut Off By Army Beyond Le Mans

Canadian Drive Stalled 5 Miles Short Of Falaise Strongpoint
Nantes, Angers, Soignolles Fall To Allies

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 11 — (CP). — Fierce resistance by fresh Nazi S.S. troops temporarily held the Canadian drive just north of Falaise today, front dispatches reported, while American forces which had knifed eastward of Le Mans were reported turning northward in a scythe-like sweep threatening all the Germans south of the Seine.

The Americans, little more than 90 miles from Paris, still had met no solid enemy opposition.

Meanwhile, Ross Monro, Canadian Press war correspondent, disclosed that the 2nd Canadian Infantry Division—including units which fought at Dieppe—was in action in Normandy.

Munro also disclosed in another front dispatch that a Polish armored division is fighting in the 1st Canadian Army sector in France, and has been taking part in the Falaise drive.

Huns Hold Viment.

While the main Canadian drive on Falaise was stalled, troops on the left flank recaptured the fiercely-contested town of Soignolles and fighting continued around Vimont, key junction town 9 miles southeast of Caen, which British troops of the 1st Canadian Army are attacking. Vimont was still in German hands.

British troops, supporting the Canadian-Polish thrust south of Caen which appeared to be shaping a huge pocket in conjunction with the American drive, stormed into Thury-Harcourt, German stronghold on the Orne.

Field dispatches said the Americans, driving at least 10 miles beyond Le Mans, were not meeting serious German resistance, but today's Allied communique announced the destruction of 15 German tanks by aircraft somewhere in the area.

(The German communique said the American thrust had turned northward from Le Mans with strong air support, and the Paris radio reported the Americans had burst past Alencon, 30 miles north of Le Mans. The Germans said the Americans had run into heavy fighting in that direction. Alencon 97 miles west of Versailles, is just 42 miles southeast of the Canadian wedge driven to within five miles of Falaise.)

Have 3 Routes

There was no official confirmation at headquarters of various reports of striking progress past Le Mans, 110 miles southwest of Paris, which was captured two days ago, but it was obvious that the Paris-pointed spearhead there had the alternatives of swinging northward toward the English Channel short of Paris, swinging south of the capital in an encircling move, or splitting and passing on both sides of it.

A swing northward of the scythe would threaten the rear of the Germans' stubbornly-held swivel position facing the Canadians south of Caen and approximately 20 German divisions or remnants of divisions—upward of 300,000 men. If the sweep crossed the Seine it would threaten the isolation of Le Havre and other Channel ports as well as the rocket bomb coast.

Unofficial reports said other armored columns meanwhile had veered off to the southeast from Le Mans toward Orleans on the Loire south of Paris.

(An NBC broadcast from France said Americans in this drive were attacking Chateadun, 62 miles from Versailles and 30 miles from Orleans. Chateadun is 52 miles east

Polish Division Fighting With Canadians

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 11 —(CP Cable)—A Polish armored division is fighting in the Canadian Army sector in France, participating in the battle north of Falaise, it was permitted to disclose today.

This Polish formation first went into action Tuesday, sharing with Canadian armor the exploitation of the break into the German defence lines by Canadian and British infantry and armor.

The Poles captured several towns in the left flank of this attack and have seen heavy fighting.

The formation surged down the Falaise highway and stormed the towns of Cauvicourt, Bretteville le Rabet and Estrees la Campaigne on the immediate left flank of the Canadian armored spearhead.

Determined Troops

The Poles were the first to bump into the German armor in strength, meeting 20 Panthers, and destroyed three in a tank-against-tank battle.

They've had half-a-dozen stern actions and shown great determination and zeal for battle.

The Poles are equipped with British tanks, vehicles and weapons, and wear battle-dress with blue-black berets bearing the insignia of the Polish eagle.

The formation, which was formed in Britain after the fall of France arrived in Normandy a week before the 1st Canadian Army's attack. Its presence here has been one of the big secrets of the front, and the lid was lifted on the mystery in the heat of battle when the Poles hurled themselves on the Germans.

This is the second time that Poles have fought alongside Canadians in this war. In Italy both Poles and Canadians have served in the British 8th Army.

German Purge Gaining Speed

LONDON, Aug. 11 (CP)—Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter was quoted today by the Berlin radio as saying the new German scrape-the-barrel manpower decrees were only the beginning and declared that "this time we mean business."

"Without venturing loose predictions, it can be said that total mobilization of the German people will bare unprecedented results," the paper said in reference to the series of decrees announced yesterday by Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

A Moscow broadcast reported "mass arrests in Germany not only among generals and senior officers but also among important civil servants" as Heinrich Himmler continued his purge.

Moscow said shooting broke out in East Prussia and Danzig when Nazi Elite Guardsmen attempted to arrest army officers, and that "many S.S men were killed."

The Soviet radio reported the latest victims of the purge included Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Nazi economist, banker and minister without portfolio, and Baron Konstantin von Neurath, a high Nazi once reported being groomed as Hitler's successor. Previous unconfirmed reports said Schacht had been arrested and possibly killed.

2 Weary, Bedraggled Canadians Rescue Wounded Under Fire

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE PALAISE ROAD, August 11 — (CP Cable). — Two weary, bedraggled figures who limped toward our jeep yesterday asked for a lift into Caen for "some food and rest away from this bloody business."

They looked as though they had been through hell.

Dog-tired and dirty, Ptes. E. J. Delorne, 22, Penetanguishene, Ont., and G. A. Redden, 38, Bracebridge, Ont., had dusty, stubble-covered faces greased with grimy lines. Their torn clothes were caked with mud.

As we drove along they told their story in jumbled bits and pieces. They didnt know where they had been or how long they had been on the go.

Seemed Ages.

Redden said it had been for nine or ten days, but actually they had been fighting only since Tuesday. They had been in the area of Point 195 north-est of Potigny — we had to tell them that. We were able to gather that they and a group of their companions were surrounded by the Germans in a wheat field behind the enemy line, and some of them were killed.

Delorne and Redden managed to escape and dragged a wounded mate between them until they had reached frietndly troops in No Man's Land, where they left him. They crawled the rest of the way to our lines.

They had been under heavy fire since noon on Wednesday, and towards dark that night saw the Germans preparing to counter-attack.

"Their vehicles were well camouflaged," Redden said. "They were difficult to make out. Other Germans were hidden in the wheatfield and the first thing we knew one bunch came around our left side, then on our right, then infantry and tanks came at us right across the field.

"I saw three of our leading tanks trying to get through their screen of fire to help us, but they could not get in.

"We had just started to dig in about the time the Germans attacked and nobody had a hole dug more than about three feet. They really "poured honey" at us and we didn't have a chance to dig deeper."

Advance 7 Miles Across Burma

KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 11—(CP).—British troops, in a swift seven-mile advance during the past 24 hours have reached a point 17 miles southwest of Mogaung on the railway to Mandalay, Allied headquarters announced today.

At the same time Chinese forces and Kachin levies operating further to the east battled their way southward seven miles from captured Myitkyina toward Bhamo, the announcement said.

In India, Allied forces pursuing the retreating Japanese southward along the Tiddim Road were said to have reached a point within 10 miles of the Burma frontier.

Bombers Drop Missiles Short Of Mark

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press, War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 8—(Delayed)— (CP Cable)— Maj-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, of Kelowna, B.C., commander of the 3rd Canadian Division, was wounded by shrapnel shortly after noon today when a formation of United States heavy bombers dropped a group of fragmentation bombs short of their mark and into the Canadian area.

Keller, who led his division in its assault landing on the beaches of Normandy and through the British Canadian capture of Caen, was hit in the left arm and left leg, and also suffered a minor chest wound.

A load of bombs dropped a short distance south of Caen caused a number of casualties among personnel. Troops were moving into the area at the time, and no one had time to take cover before the bombs began to explode.

The bombing came while large formations of American Flying Fortresses and Liberators were flying high over the Canadian advance and attacking enemy positions to the south.

Keller was given first aid and later evacuated to England.

Nazi Generals Would End War

MOCOW, Aug. 11—(AP)—Two captured German generals, in statements appearing above their signatures today in the Soviet press, called upon the German people and the army to end the war.

"Over 30 German divisions are doomed to extermination owing to an irresponsible Hitler's strategy," said the statement, by Lt.-Gen. Von Kurowski of the 110th infantry division and Maj.-Gen. Lindeman of the 361st infantry dicision.

"There is but one issue—it is to stop the struggle and lay down arms," the statement said. It is time to finish with Hitler and his clique. He who fights against Hitler fights for Germany."

The declaration, dated Aug. 6, professed complete agreement with a manifesto which 60 of their fellow-generals were reported to have signed July 22 repudiating Hitler.

3 Superforts Lost In Raid

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—(AP).—Three planes of the two forces of Superfortresses which struck targets in Sumatra and the Japanese homeland yesterday "are not accounted for," and one B-29 was forced down in friendly territory, the 20th Bomber Command reported today.

Bombing results were "good" both at Palembang, in southern Sumatra, and at Nagasaki on the Japanese mainland island of Kyushu.

At Nagasaki the mission encountered enemy fighters although that opposition was "weak" and one of the Japanese planes was destroyed.

At Palembang there was no fighter opposition. Anti-aircraft fire was moderate or weak at both targets.

Saipan Made Headquarters

Advance 3,000 Miles From Pearl Harbor

ABOARD ADMIRAL TURNER'S FLAGSHIP IN THE MARIANAS, Aug. 11—(AP)—(Via Navy Radio)—Vice-Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner, U.S.N., announced today he has established headquarters for his amphibious Pacific fleet at Saipan Island—an advance of more than 3,000 miles from Pearl Harbor—and said it will be maintained there until "I can move further forward."

Turner disclosed that headquarters are under construction both for his force and for the commander of Pacific amphibious troops, bringing tactical direction of the trans-Pacific offensive to within less than 1,500 miles from Japan.

The Admiral's announcement followed completion of the conquest of Guam. Hailing the final capture of this Marianas base, Turner messaged congratulations to Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, commander of the 5th fleet, terming it "the greatest naval victory the United States ever won."

Turner commanded the amphibious forces which captured the Gilberts, the Marshalls and the Marianas. He took the Marines to Guadalcanal in the first Allied Pacific offensive—and now he is ready to head westward again.

Guam Survivor Lived 2 Years In Small Cave

ABOARD A JOINT EXPEDITIONARY FLAGSHIP, Mariana Islands, July 12 — Delayed) (AP)—Chief Radioman George Ray Tweed (42), a native of Portland, Oregon, emerged to-day from nearly 1,000 days of hiding in the jungled mountains of Guam and related the heretofore untold story of the tiny marine garrison's valiant defence of that island against the Japanese early in the Pacific War.

Tweed related his amazing tale in the Admiral's cabin of this ship less than 36 hours after he had been rescued from Guam by a United States warship.

His Robinson Crusoe rags had been exchanged for a natty uniform and he looked fit, though tired.

Tweed obviously was elated at the Admiral's decision to despatch him immediately to California for a re-union with his wife, Mary Francis Tweed, and their two children who live at Santa Paul, Cal. They have presumed him dead or a prisoner since Guam's fall, December 10, 1941.

This is his story of the battle for Guam and his escape into the bush:

"I as home asleep the morning of December 8, 1941 (December 7, North American Time), when the Chief Radioman woke me up and said: 'Pearl Harbor has been bombed and the Japs are at war with us.'

Attacked by Planes.

"Four hours later—about 9 a.m.—the first Jap planes came over Guam. They came continuously for two days, bombing and strafing.

"At sunset of the second day (December 9) Jap transports showed up on the horizon. The Japs began landing about midnight.

"We had so few guns, so little ammunition, there wasn't much we could do to defend. We had only about 200 Marines, a few scattered naval personnel, and the island defence company.

"The Marines on Cabras Island, a narrow strip of land off the harbor, armed only with machine-guns actually repulsed the Japs until their ammunition gave out....

"The Japs forced a landing, and rolled into the town shooting.

"The Marines fought them street by street, house by house.... They fought to the last."

Tweed said the Japanese slowly battled their way to the town plaza—arriving before dawn, and set fire to a native house for illumination. They then brought up their field pieces and started point-blank shelling of the Governor's palace.

Tweed said he and other Navy radiomen rounded up canned food got Tweed's car and drove 10 miles from town. They took to the jungles and soon met three other Navy men.

"Back in Agana," Tweed continued, "the Japs put the American prisoners in the church and kept them there for 30 days and then took them to Japan. . . .

Companions Slain

"We ate the food we had and kept out of sight. I never was captured, but on Sept. 12, 1942, the Japs grabbed two of our group and killed them. They located two more in a hiding place the following month and killed them Oct. 22.

"After that I was entirely on my own."

Tweed moved frequently, hiding in ravines, scaling mountains, always ahead of his pursuers, who never gave up the search.

Finally he discovered a high cliff facing the sea. It was such a barren rock he didn't believe the Japanese even would look there and locate a cave. That became Tweed's hermitage.

He caught rain water for drinking and washing, and made weekly nocturnal forays for food. From his vantage point he could see Japanese planes fly off, and could look eastward over the broad Pacific toward home.

His rescue came two years and seven months after the Japanese landings at Guam.

Not Recognized at Home

SANTA PAULA, Cal., Aug. 10 —(AP)—George Ray Tweed, navy radioman rescued after hiding out on Guam for 31 months, was so aged that his wife's mother did not recognize him when he appeared at her home here two weeks ago.

Tweed arrived at night at the home of Mrs. W. H. Suddesth, in search of his wife, Mary Francis, and their two sons, 9 and 3.

"I didn't know him," Mrs. Sudderth said today. "He was so greyhaired and was a pitiful sight. He had lost lots of weight and was very nervous."

Mrs. Tweed, who had come to Santa Paula to live with her mother when her husband went overseas, had been informed he was a prisoner of the Japanese in a Shanghai internment camp. Later she returned to San Diego, where Tweed rejoined her.

Draftees Won't Get Gratuities

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 11—(CP)—Complete details of the government's war service gratuities legislation were scheuled to be given in the Commons today during second reading and clause by clause study of the measure.

Most details were revealed yesterday when members of the Commons gave their support to the bill and moved it through the resolution and first reading stages.

The bill, which will come up for examination at the afternoon sitting, calls for the payment of $750,000,000 in gratuities to general service personnel in Canada and overseas, and to home defence troops which participated in the occupation of Kiska in the Aleutians last year. Gratuities will not be paid to other home defence troops unless they are conscripted for service outside Canada. Then the gratuities will be payable only from the time they have been so conscripted.

To Be Retroactive

The gratuities will be retroactive and will be paid to the 150,000 men and women already discharged from active service. They will also be paid to Canadians in other Empire forces who return to Canada within a year after discharge.

The basis of the gratuities was given before Defence Minister Ralston announced that the clothing allowance for discharged personnel will be increased from $65 to $100. The increase will not be made retroactive.

Later, the House turned to two post-war measures—one aimed at promoting the building of new homes and the other at establishing an industrial development bank to assist in postwar industrial financing.

The Housing Bill would provide for loans totalling $275,000,000 to prospective home owners, to owners who wish to repair their homes, to the builders of low rental houses and to those aiding in slum clearance.

In the Senate, the Government's Family Allowances Bill and a number of other measures previously passed by the Commons were passed. The Allowances Bill passed on division without a recorded vote.

Finance Minister Ilsley said some members had stated that the amount provided for loans was insufficient to meet the needs for housing in Canada.

The members had quoted from the report of the advisory committee on reconstruction which had estimated 600,000 urban and 125,000 rural homes would have to be built in the first 10 years after the war.

If the Government asked for an appropriation of between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 to finance the building of the 725,000 homes over a 10-year period the same members would have criticized the legislation. They would have criticized the Government for binding the hands of Parliament over such a long period.

The amount appropriated under the present bill would fill requirements for the next two or three years. If more funds were required after that period they could be voted after Parliament had ascertained that the housing legislation was operating successfully.

Although the Government was providing only $275,000,000 for loans the volume of building, of land cleared and of homes repaired would be valued at $740,000,000.

The difference between the amount provided by the Government and the total value would be made up by insurance companies and others which entered into housing contracts with the Government.

The Minister said that those who claimed the Government's new housing legislation contained nothing to encourage town and community planning "have not studied the bill or have failed to understand the constitutional limitation of the Dominion's jurisdiction in the matter."

"The bill is shot through and through with the idea of community planning," he said.

ing the sweep which had taken the flotilla well into the approaches to the harbor of Brest. Astern, in line, were Saskatchewan, Skeena and Restigouche. At 1:45 a.m. in inky blackness, Qu'Appelle was challenged by the enemy who apparently thought he was accosting a friendly ship. The captain replied with star shells, lighting up the scene, and immediately both sides opened up with everything they had. Quicker on the draw the Canadians scored an early advantage and closing to 800 yards, pumped broadside after broadside into the Germans. With the enemy trawlers blazing from stem to stern, the Jerries stuck to their guns. Saskatchewan officers said, and went down with their ships. No survivors were picked up.

The commander of Saskatchewan is Lt.-Cmdr. Allan Herbert Easton, D.S.C., R.C.N.R., of Halifax.

First lieutenant of the Saskatchewan is Lieut. Donald M. Waters, R.C.N., of Cobourg, Ont. The men who handled the 4.7's included Nickle Guelenchyer of Oshawa, Ont.

tions were cut by a Russian plunge to the Baltic 25 miles west of Riga, still may be extricated by sea. The Red Air Force continued to pounce on any shipping seen moving from Baltic harbours.

East Prussian and Warsaw were the focal points of battle.

Of equal peril to Hitler's eastern divisions was an extension of the Soviet bridgehead across the Vistula south of the Polish capital, which cut the Sandomierz-Kielce highway with the capture of Lagow and put Red Army troops only 20 miles from the vital Warsaw-Krakow Railway.

In the drive northeast of Warsaw, a big Soviet force south of Bialystok swarmed across the Narew Piver in a move to join other Red Army columns pushing up from the south in a drive on the southern boarder of East Prussia.

This move, together with the capture of Raseinia in Lithuania, 53 miles northeast of Tilsit, brought increased danger to Nazi troops struggling with Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's units close to the eastern borders of the Junker province.

16 New Divisions

Dispatches said the Nazis had hurled 16 new divisions into the struggle for east Prussia. The Germans reported freshly mobilized civilians of all ages had dug more than 1,800 miles of trenches and erected thousands of pillboxes on the east Prussian front in the past 10 days.

The Russians advanced on a broad front on both sides of the Niemzn River. The battle-line moved through 40 localities and extended south to Raudone, on the Niemen 20 miles east of the Prussian border. It crossed to the south Bank at Globoslaventsvo and ran through Aszmcue and Valyule.

Captured Aszmuce is three miles northeast of the Sakiai road junction and only 12 miles from the east Prussian frontier, while Valyule, two miles east or Sakiai, is 11 miles from East Prussia.

Many Towns Fall

The drive on the southern side of East Prussia netted 50 localities of the Narew. Among towns siezed were Wanewo, 30 miles east of Lomza, Nazi stronghold linking Axis defences between Warsaw and east Prussia, and Sokoly, 28 miles southeast of Omza.

Closely allied with these attacks was the drive by Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian Army from positions east of Warsaw in a northwesterly direction along a 38-mile front.

His troops, nearing the Warsaw-Bialystok Railway, captured Stanislawow, 20 miles east of Warsaw, and 30 other localities northeast of Sterdyn, near the Bug River and 55 miles northeast of Warsaw. Sterdyn is 42 miles southeast of Lomza.

Moscow had no fresh news from Warsaw itself, but the battle there was believed growing in violence.

A total of 285 towns and villages were reported captured yesterday by the Russians, including Jekabpils and 67 other localities on the Latvian front. The capture of Daugava rail station, five miles southeast of Riga, Latvian capital on the Baltic. Dzelzava, 85 miles east of Riga, also fell.

of Le Mans. The Brazzaville radio said there were reports Chartres, 37 miles from Versailes, was in Allied hands, but German broadcasts specifically denied it, and there was no Allied confirmation.

Combat teams made rapid progress in the Brittany peninsula to the rear, completing the capture of the Loire River cities of Nantes and Angens and wiping out all resistance except at one stronghold, the Citadel, in St. Malo on the north coast, thus cleaning up three of the six large centres of Nazi resistance on the Brittany rim.

Full occupation of Nantes, France's eighth largest city, and Angers, 60 miles farther up the Loire, was announced this morning. Headquarters said there was only slight resistance at Nantes. Extensive mine fields were encountered around both cities.

Unofficial reports meanwhile said one armored column veered off to the left toward Orleans, south of Paris.

May Be At Chartres

(N.B.C. reported David Anderson, broadcasting last night from a rolling Allied transmitter in France, said this drive had reached within 30 miles of Orleans with the "Americans at this moment" attacking Chateaudun, 70 miles from Paris.

(The Brazzaville radio said there were some reports "Chartres is in Allied hands." Chartres is only 45 miles from the French capital.)

The large-scale encirclement that thus appeared to be in the making would be far more disastrous to the German's whole defence of western Europe than simply pushing Rommel's line back to Paris and the Seine.

The British 2nd Army renewed pressure on their end by throwing a third bridgehead across the Orne River and storming to within half a mile of Thury-Harcourt, 15 miles south of Caen.

Two other powerful battering rams set up by the Canadians, were driving against Rommel's gun-studded anti-tank screen—one last reported within five miles of the German strongpoint city of Falaise, 21 miles south of Caen, and the other thrusting eastward in the Vimont area south of Troarn.

The daily headquarters communique said that hard fighting raged all day yesterday in the Vimont area.

The Germans are seeking to rush reinforcements and supplies from Belgium, Germany and eastern France, but this traffic came under heavy aerial attack.

Fighter-bombers struck without let-up at rail movements westward from Antwerp, Brussels, Metz, Strasbourg, Lille, Sedan and other points east of the Seine, the communique announced.

Aim at Orleans

There was no official news of the reported fanning out of the American Chartres drive toward Orleans and Tours. The latter city is 48 miles southeast of Le Mans. It was believed these two columns might be attempting to head off the thin German forces in southwestern France, estimated to total about 10 divisions, which were said to be rushing toward the battle zone.

Consolidation of their position at Nantes at the base of Brittany 30 miles up the Loire estuary gives the Americans a solid flank at least 50 and possibly 100 or more miles deep at the southern edge of Rommel's defense area.

The communique said enemy resistance to the Canadian drive toward Falaise "increased considerably yesterday."

Gains of up to 1½ miles by British forces driving south of Vire on the American left flank were reported by the communique.

While the British seriously menaced Thury-Harcourt the Americans to the west recaptured Gathemo in heavy fighting in the enemy's Mortain-Vire salient.

Brest Under Fire

On the Brittany peninsula, American forces still were besieging the big western port of Brest and the encircled submarine base of Lorient, and were battering one final nest of stand-and-die German resistance in St. Malo, on the north. The situation at St. Nazaire, the big U-boat nest in the Loire estuary, remained cloaked in official silence.

French resistance forces reported they liberated Quimper, 33 miles south of Brest, the remnants of a garrison of 1,500 to 2,000 Germans being wiped out yesterday after a seven-day fight.

Vannes, on the south coast of Brittany, previously was reported cleared of the enemy.

The fight for Brest mounted in intensity after an American column which had followed the peninsula's north coast drew up before the port and joined other forces which have been there nearly a week.

Elements of three German Divisions maintained a strong resistance in the big port and field reports said it seemed likely its reduction would take as long as Cherbourg.

Its inland defences include four forts and eight big batteries north of the harbor and three forts and 12 batteries south of the harbor across the Elorn River. The Germans there also have some 100 heavy anti-aircraft guns and more than 250 light anti-aircraft guns, all usable as land artillery.

The Americans apparently have reached Brittany's south coast between Lorient and St. Nazaire for the communique said mopping-up was in progress in the area of Quiberon and Auray. Quiberon is directly on the coast.

Inside St. Malo's rocky fortress, which sheds artillery shells like a tin roof sheds hail, the German garrison stubbornly held out.

The German News Agency Transocean early today made the unconfirmed assertion that the American 3rd Army is operating in Brittany "and seems to be in the hands of" Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, "an exponent of mobile warfare."

Senator Says Drew Raising Racial Issues

OTTAWA, Aug. 11—(CP)—The Senate yesterday passed the government's family allowance bill after hearing sharp criticism of an address by Premier George Drew of Ontario in which he said he would do everything in his power to stop the measure being put into effect.

The criticism came particularly from Senator A. K. Hugessen (L.—Quebec) who said Premier Drew had raised a racial issue for political purposes. Senator Hugessen spoke after Senator C. C. Ballantyne, Progressive Conservative Senate leader, had asked that the bill be delayed until dominion and provincial authorities could confer on it.

Senator Arthur Marcotte (P.C.—Saskatchewan) said the bill was unconstitutional and was an invasion of provincial rights. Six Liberal senators supported the bill.

Senator Hugessen opposing the proposals to delay the bill said such a course would be fatal to the measure.

Of Premier Drew's stand he said: "To serve his political ends he is willing to do two things—to raise the race cry and to sacrifice the children of Canada."

Premier Drew had called for a showdown in regard to Quebec.

"If there should be a showdown the vast majority of English-speaking people of Quebec will stand shoulder to shoulder with their French compatriots against men of the kidney of Bruce (Hon. Herbert Bruce, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Parkdale), McCullagh (George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail) and Drew," Senator Hugessen said.

Senator James Murdock (L.—Ontario) said Premier Drew objected to wealthy Ontario taxpayers contributing to the welfare and health of Quebec children.

Delorme smiled and told of throwing three grenades—"one for the wife; two for the kiddies." He was not sure if he hit any Germans, but he "made them scatter a bit."

When they decided the situation was hopeless, Delorme and Redden began to move back toward the Canadian lines, although they were surrounded. There were a lot of Canadian and German dead and wounded around them, but they felt they could only attempt to take a pal who had been wounded by shrapnel.

They had to crawl most of the way under fire, and occasionally the Germans sent up flares to illuminate the fields and detect Canadian movement.

Delorme and Redden fooled them by crawling on their stomachs through the thick wheat, which remained "as still as a mouse."

Delorme said: "I'll never forget it. While the German machine-guns were cutting a wicked rug right along the hedges, we crawled through the fields and lugged our pal as far as we could."

Redden said the Germans turned 88 mm. guns on them, "but I was lying flat with my face buried in a hole."

Just before they got back to their lines, they were caught in an exchange of fire between Canadian troops and the Germans and "we thought we had it this time, because everything was flying over our heads."

Got Cigarettes

"But we got there, and left our friend with the troops we reached," Delorme continued. "They gave us cigarets and told us how to get to this road."

We delivered the two of them to a Canadian headquarters and on the way there, when a convoy of ammunition trucks passed us going the other way Redden said: "I hope that blows a lot of them to hell."

Redden was so jumpy he said he felt that everyone he saw was going to shoot him.

"We were really pretty lucky to get out of it alive," he said. "But I'm pretty sure all we need is a little rest because we've slept only in five-minute snatches since Monday night."

Discussing proposals for an empire council or secretariat Mr. King said there was no division of opinion on the value of maintaining the British Commonwealth. There was room for division of opinion on whether the empire could be made stronger by centralization or whether the methods of decentralization would make it more permanent and enduring.

System Good

In choosing between these two courses the record of the past was important. The commonwealth had grown and prospered and remained united on the methods which had been followed up to now.

"I can't see how anyone would wish to adopt a system which would prejudice the system which has worked so successfully up to the present," he said.

There was no finer example of cooperation of the notions of the commonwealth during the war.

It had come about not by "a central agency directing affairs, but by methods which had grown up over the years for the freest and fullest exchange of views constantly between the governments."

Disagrees With Bracken

Mr. King quoted with House statements made by John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader. They showed that Mr. King was not alone in his views on centralization as Mr. Bracken had expressed opposition. His only quarrel with the Bracken statement, published in MacLean's magazine, was with a suggestion that steps had been taken to break up the Commonwealth.

"All the steps that this administration has taken," said Mr. King, "have been steps to strengthen the Commonwealth."

The British Commonwealth was the greatest agency for peace and goodwill the world had ever known. He hoped it would be permanent and enduring.

"I can't make too strong the feelings that I have in that regard," he said. "They are feelings that I have had all my life."

If anyone wanted to look at his previous expressions of view he was prepared to provide quotations, but he said he had never found it necessary to be continually proclaiming his loyalty.

Get 6 Ships.

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP).—R.A.F. Beaufighters tore into a German convoy of five merchant ships and 10 escort vessels last night off Heligoland, the Air Ministry announced today, and sank or damaged at least six of the craft.

One of the merchantmen was torpedoed and left burning fiercely while another was believed hit and set afire, the announcement declared. Of the escort ships, one was blown up when hit with rocket projectiles and four others were set ablaze.

Four planes were lost in the fray.

Bordeaux, at the mouth of the River Gironde, and well-sheltered La Pallice, nearly 100 miles to the north, must supply and re-fit a submarine force too large for them at a time when previous attacks on oil storage depots and rail and road communications have made it almost impossible for the enemy to bring up supplies.

Cripples Subs.

By smashing what oil resources remain on the spot at the bases, R.A.F. heavy bombers sought to make it even more difficult for the Germans to use many submarines either in the Atlantic or against Allied shipping to the invasion armies in France. The pens at La Pallice were hit several times on Wednesday.

Halifaxes rained a great concentration of explosives on the railway junction of Dijon, 160 miles southeast of Paris. With railways farther north largely disorganized, this roundabout route from southwest Germany to the battlefield is vital to the enemy.

Some 4,000 sorties were flown yesterday against enemy supply centres and transport targets from Belgium to Bordeaux.

In aerial combats yesterday and last night, 16 German planes were destroyed, and 26 others were destroyed on the ground. The Allies lost 22 planes.

U.S. 8th Army Air Force fighters alone destroyed or damaged 126 locomotives and more than 1,200 railroad cars, many of them carrying fuel and ammunition to the front. Tactical units near Le Mans destroyed 15 tanks.

Raid Davao Philippine Island Base

Super-Fortresses Hit Nagasaki Sumatra Oil Wells

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 11—(AP)—The air phase of the battle for reconquest of the Philippines has begun just as the ground fighting for reconquest of Guam ended in triumph.

The first bombing of the Philippines since the fall of Corregidor to the Japanese May 6, 1942, was announced today by General MacArthur back at headquarters after a Pacific war conference with President Roosevelt. It followed strikes by superfortress bombers against Nagasaki in Japan and oil targets in Sumatra.

At Pearl Harbor, site of the conference, Admiral Nimitz, a participant, announced that all organized Japanese resistance on Guam ended Aug. 9, the 20th day of invasion.

That campaign cost the United States 7,247 casualties, including 1,214 killed. But more than 10,000 Japanese were slaughtered; the demoralized remnants scattered in flight instead of making the usual "Banzai" suicidal charge; and Guam now becomes the third American Marianas base withing bombing range of Japan by the B-29 Superfortresses which hit Nagasaki Thursday.

3 Night Attacks

MacArthur announced three successive night attacks on airdromes at Davao, on Mindanao in the southern Philippines, by patrolling heavy bombers.

Yesterday the Superfortresses of the United States 20th Bomber Command, lashing at the vitals of Japan's war machine, struck simultaneously at targets 3,500 miles apart—the enemy homeland port and industrial centre of Nagasaki and the great oil refining area of Palembang on the Island of Sumatra.

The targets of this strategic mission of huge scope are among the most important in enemy territory. The Pladjoe oil refinery at Palembang is the largest in the Orient.

Nagasaki, bombed in the third Superfortress mission against the Japanese mainland, is a military port and shipbuilding centre of key value to the enemy military machine, and a centre of war production.

It is located on the west side of Kyushu Island in the heavily industrialized area where the Superfortresses previously had hit the steel centre of Yawata and the naval base of Sasebo.

Location Of U.S. Unit Still Mystery

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

While we're waiting for a clue to the mystery of the battle for Paris —just where is that fast-moving American armored force which already has captured Angers and Nantes in its race for the French capital?—the Russians are providing us with another first-class mystery as the battle of the Vistula swels to its climax.

The tip comes from the Germans in their announcement that the Russians are developing a flanking movement west of the upper Narew River, along the southern border of East Prussia. When you fit this bit into the jig-saw puzzle, you see that the Red forces ostensibly — though perhaps as a ruse—are pursuing at the moment the same strategy employed by the Russian armies which met disaster in East Prussia in the First Great War.

In 1914 the Russian plan for conquest of East Prussia was to advance with two armies, one to the north and the other to the south of the Masurian Lake region. The northern army attacked near the Insterburg Gap, east of Konigsberg, and flung the Germans back. Then the southern army drove up against the Germans in the Alenstein sector and precipitated the historic Battle of Tannenberg in which Field-Marshal Von Hindenburg inflicted a great defeat on the Czarist forces.

The Rusians once more are driving against th East Prussian border east of the Insterburg Gap, and the Germans have been counter-attacking with a ferocity which in itself is recognition of the possibility that the Rtd Army is trying to reach that strategic gateway. At the same time we get the Russian flanking movement along the southern border, south-east of Tannenberg.

It's an intriguing picture, but in calling attention to the similarity, I'm not suggesting that the Red generals are bent on duplicating the strategy of their predecessors. There may be trickery afoot. Anyway, we needn't worry for fear the Russians don't know the perils of the lake country.

Tells Sea Experiences

COBOURG, Aug. 11 (ENS) — Captain L. M. Goddard, veteran ocean-going skipper, who has returned to Grafton after making a number of trips down the Atlantic coast, was the guest speaker today at Cobourg Rotary Club. When the present war broke out he was called back to duty with the merchant marine.

Essential Pool Of Passenger Autos Shrinking Fast In Canada

OTTAWA, Aug. 11.—(CP).—Canada's supply of passenger automobiles—both new and used—is dwindling to a point where it has become essential to have the best possible use made of cars that remain on the road, J H. Berry, Munitions Department motor vehicle controller, said today.

In broad terms, the picture is this:

When the last civilian passenger car came off the assembly lines of Canadian automotive plants in March, 1942, there were still a number of cars in the hands of manufacturers and dealers. Of these 4,500 went into a Government-controlled pool to assure supplies for highly essential users such as doctors and police forces.

The pool now is down to half its original size and, with demands increasing as cars become older, it is estimated it will be exhausted in another 10 months. The new cars that were in dealers' hands and were left for general sale have long since gone.

Rules Violated

Thus car purchasers have been forced to an increasing extent to turn to used car markets for transportation and this resulted in violations of the price ceiling regulations.

The Prices Board put into effect Aug. 1 an order requiring compulsory price tagging of all cars held by dealers and a detailed report of each sale in triplicate, with one copy filed with the nearest local office of the board within four days of the sale.

The new regulations are aimed at stopping sales of used cars at illegal prices and are designed as a closer check on private sales, which must now be reported in detail the same as sales by dealers.

An individual advertising a used car for sale must give full particulars, including his name and address, full description of the car and the proposed selling price.

"This," Mr. Berry explained, "is intended to give us an overall picture of the used car situation.

More Data Later

"We will have more data than now obtainable on how many cars there are available, what they are like and where they are. With the motor transportation shortage becoming more acute it is increasingly important that we have this information."

In peacetime about 61,000 cars a year are taken off the road in the normal course of wear and tear, but it does not follow that in five years of war 300,000 cars have gone to the junk piles with only limited replacements.

In 1941 there were some 1,277,613 passenger cars in use in Canada. It is estimated that number now has dropped to 1,193,827 and is going down at the rate of about 40,000 a year.

Less Driving Now

E. R. Birchard, Deputy to Mr. Henry, explained it this way::

"People are doing less driving. In peacetime it was estimated the average cars went about 10,000 miles a year. Now, with gasoline rationing and people anxious to save their tires, it's about a third of that Then, too, there are cars on the road now that would have been replaced in peacetime."

To keep cars running the motor vehicle controller maintains a close watch on the supply of parts. On the basis of total mileage being driven there now are more parts available than there were before the war; and there are also fewer cars on the road every month, with no reduction on the supply of parts.

Just how long this process will go on is as indefinite as the war itself, but manufacturers estimate it will take them approximately six months to get back into civilian production.

Election Returns

It has been said for some time that the Alberta and Quebec elections would give us a clue to the political feeling of the country, and an idea of what might be expected in the coming Dominion election. Now that Alberta and Quebec have made their decisions we cannot see any unmistakeable trend; if there is handwriting on the wall we cannot interpret it. Alberta voted to keep the government it had; Quebec changed, but by a narrow margin. Let those who can read these omens.

Alberta is apparently well satisfied with its Social Credit government, and when we look over the record of that party since 1935, we see that it has done well for the province. The Social Credit government has experimented with money, and has done a few unaccountable things, but upon the whole it has moved along efficiently and shrewdly. The Alberta election was contested on purely provincial issues, and it is obvious that the province knows what it wants. This has undoubtedly been an eye-opener to the C.C.F., which made an aggressive campaign in Alberta, running candidates in every available constituency; doubtless the C.C.F. hoped to repeat its success of Saskatchewan, thereby building up a powerful prairie bloc. But in Alberta the C.C.F. met a well-organized opposition from a party which is as young and in some respects as radical as itself, and it was very firmly rejected. The Independent party also took a thorough beating. It looks as though Alberta were ready to stand pat on Social Credit for some time to come.

In Quebec Mr. Maurice Duplessis will face a very strong opposition, which may not be a bad thing. When last he was in power, from 1936 to 1939, Mr. Duplessis did not make a particularly favourable impression upon his fellow-provincials, nor upon the country as a whole; he achieved the somewhat remarkable feat of offending both labour and capital at the same time. Now he goes back to power as the champion of the provincial autonomy of Quebec. He was able to do so because great numbers of French-Canadians were angry with Mr. Godbout because he gave his full co-operation to the Dominion Government in the prosecution of the war. As many French-Canadians appear to be anxious to ignore the war, it was not difficult for Duplessis to persuade them that Godbout had sold Quebec out to Ottawa. Now French-Canada has a leader who favours a very restricted war effort, and it will be interesting and instructive to see precisely what he will do about it.

The rejection of Godbout is undoubtedly a rebuff from the people of Quebec to the Dominion Liberal government. But whether that will have a great effect on their voting in a federal election remains to be seen. There is no equivalent of Duplessis in Dominion politics. The C.C.F. failed to make headway in Quebec, which is not surprising. Socialism, whatever else it may be, is not a nationalistic creed, and the people of French Canada are not ready to listen to anything at present which is not strongly nationalistic. But even in spite of this, they rejected the Bloc Populaire Canadien firmly; it is quite clear now that the Bloc was never Populaire, and we have always known that it was not Canadien; let us hope that we have heard the last of it.

Good News For Taxpayers

On Tuesday night, Aug. 1, Mr. Brooke Claxton, the parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister, spoke thus: "If events move as we hope and expect they will, the Government's expenditures on war account will be reduced substantially, we hope, next year, and it will be possible to reduce income tax and other taxation and, at the same time, pay for social legislation of the Government without any difficulty".

This is good news for taxpayers. As the end of August approaches many Canadians who have put off the day for payment as long as possible will have to find the arrears of their income tax, and the heavy burden which war has imposed upon them will be brought to their attention once again. For it is a heavy burden. We have been told many times that the sacrifice of the taxpayer is not to be compared with the sacrifice of the fighting man, and this is quite obviously true; we have never heard a taxpayer attempt to equate the two. Paying taxes is anything but heroic. But it imposes a special sort of strain on the people who have been doing it. Their job has been to keep things as nearly normal as possible while the country's economy is distorted by a great war. That has involved planning and working of the most arduous character, with no hope or expectation of thanks. We all have some idea of the immense amount of material which has been expended in almost five years of fighting; it has all been paid for by taxpayers, and although they have been happy to pay for a great fight in a great cause, it cannot be denied that it has cost them dear.

Taxpayers will go on paying gladly until victory is ours. Then their thoughts will naturally turn to their own concerns, and to the needs which have accumulated during the war years, and they will look for some relief in taxation. Mr. Claxton's announcement that such a move is expected will cheer the hearts of taxpayers everywhere.

The Real Test Of Germany

An interesting rumour from Germany tells us that Himmler has been assassinated, and Goering seriously wounded; if by any chance this should be true, it will help to depress German morale, which must be very low already. We have now reached the stage in the war where the actual fate of the Nazi leaders is only important so far as it affects the spirits of the German people; their leadership is no longer important enough to rally the Germans and pull them out of the hole. If Himmler is dead and Goering dying their absence may hasten Nazi defeat; their continued life could not have prevented it.

The time draws near when the severest test of the German spirit will be made. German forces are making a stand in Poland, but it is not expected that it will last long, and when it fails there will be nothing to stop the Red armies from rushing on to the German border. How will the Germans fight on their own soil? That will be the real test of their nationhood—a test which has not been applied for a very long time.

The next six weeks will tell us what the Germans are really worth as people and as fighters. They have the reputation of being magnificent in advance and victory, and ignoble in retreat and defeat. On the Western front the Germans face the prospect of a long retreat toward their own borders, and unless they lose their nerve and run away in disorder they must face a long grind of temporary stands and strategic withdrawals. As they now have no air support worth mentioning they will undoubtedly suffer heavy losses every time they make a stand. Will the people within Germany be able to take the strain of enormous casualties and certain defeat?

For a century Germany has been a bully, and bullies are not usually courageous when the fight is going against them. Can the Germans take it as some of the nations which they invaded and occupied took it? We shall see, and we may not have to wait long for our answer. The length of the German resistance now depends on the German people themselves, and the assassination of prominent Nazis will not really make a great deal of difference.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A new leg-paint is on the market which is said to "stand the closest scrutiny". Too close a scrutiny, however, is open to misinterpretation.

The flame-throwers used by our troops shoot a jet of fire for three blocks. After the war we hope that something of this spirit can be transferred to cigarette lighters.

Expressions such as "bribe", "diaper dole", "butterfly" and "tadpole" are to be found in Hansard these days. Undignified and unsuitable as these are, we think that we like them better than the ponderosities which the members mumble at Mr. Speaker during the cold weather.

The more we hear about the city of Ottawa, the sorrier we are for it. Not only does it suffer from the stench of its own garbage, but it appears that in hot weather its drinking water rises to a temperature of 82 degrees. This is a matter which Queen Victoria could not have foreseen when she made her historic choice.

Arguments Of Opponents

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: The main argument against family allowances is two-fold:

1. There is no place in a country which has always relied upon individual initiative, enterprise and self-reliance and which is richly endowed with resources, for this kind of paternalism. The wage and price levels should enable everyone willing to work to support a family.

2. The vast sum of money which would be needed for allowances could be spent to much greater advantage on schools, hospitals, children's aid, health and welfare generally.

Those who hold these views regard the allowance policy as a kind of national defeat—a denial of the very characteristics which have made this country what it is. Miss Whitton, however, concedes that the inter-war experience "somewhat slaked the flames of faith."

It is neither prudent nor necessary to import social security systems from countries whose background is different from Canada. The United Kingdom, for example, is a highly industrialized country whose population is concentrated in a small area, and whose birth rate is falling. Moreover, the United Kingdom has gradually built up a complex structure of social assistance. The Beveridge recommendations, although they seemed revolutionary and were so described by Sir William, involved only a 70 per cent increase in the United Kingdom outlay on social welfare in 1945. Application of the Beveridge plan to Canada, on the other hand, would mean increased expenditures on social security of from 250 to 275 per cent. Too, the United Kingdom is free of the constitutional difficulties which afflict this country.

Canada has been built on the theory that every individual who wants to work can earn enough to support a family, either in wages or on the farm.

MISS Whitton regards this point as fundamental. "There is," she writes, "neither short-cut nor substitute to the fundamental requisite of wage and price levels adequate to maintain decent standards of living."

If industries cannot pay proper wages, they should be investigated and remedial action taken. This, also, she says, holds true of farm prices.

At one point Miss Whitton in "The Dawn of Simpler Life" (page 18) argues for state regulation of wages and prices to this end. The maximum national income should be calculated, she says, and fair wages fixed and farm prices "adjusted" so that everyone will receive an income reasonably adequate to minimum living needs. How this is to be done, she does not say.

The first half of the alternative policy to family allowances, therefore, is adequate basic wages and fair farm prices.

The second half is to develop social utilities as distinct from cash grants. If you are going to raise the money for social services by taxation, rather than by inflation or deficit financing, you must spend it with the greatest efficiency.

"In the peculiarly characteristic elements in the Canadian situation," says Miss Whitton, "cash grants could not of themselves assure wiser or more nutritional provision for the urban child nor affect greatly the feeding of the rural child. They would bring neither health nor educational services to the remote or undeveloped districts where they are most needed and where their establishment involves problems that it is simply not within the power of parents or small groups of parents to meet of their own initiative and planning. Yet the Canadian proposal for children's allowances takes but casual, almost callous cognizance of this."

The mony which would go in allowances could be spent more effectively in other ways.

If the purpose is to aid agriculture, fishing or other basic industries, it is far better to give aid direct and to supervise its expenditure.

Health services would do more to improve the health of the people than allowances. Why not give more money here?

Why not double the expenditure on education?

Why not provide better housing?

Why not spend money on the 95,000 to 100,000 children not now in their own homes?

Why not give more generously to child welfare and supervise the spending? ?

Why not increase old age pensions, sickness and disability grants and so on?

In brief, why not develop all the welfare services which have grown up naturally in the Canadian environment? This, it is argued, could be done at much less cost and with far better results.

Miss Whitton makes the statement that family allowances slash across the jurisdiction of the provinces and, as a federal measure, are unconstitutional. She claims that the Privy Council in the judgments on the Bennett New Deal decided that "the Dominion could not invade an area of provincial jurisdiction by the simple device of taxing and distributing funds within the provinces for purposes held exclusive to the province...." No documentary support for this view is given.

(This is the seventh of a series of articles on Social Security in Canada.)

Acres of Parchment

The collection of original letters belonging to private families is probably larger in England than in any other country. In England the papers still exist in their original homes, but till now they have been a sealed book....At Wroxton some peculiar writing was noticed on the paper cap of a carpenter by an observant boy; "waste paper," they said, "taken out of those dirty old boxes"—in which were afterwards found the correspondence of a Chancellor of the days of Henry VIII. In another house some bags of rubbish were removed out of a closet to make way for jam and soap, and a parchment of a Knight of the Garter of Elizabeth's time dropped out. "Oh, that's only the old paper the housemaids have to light the fire with," said the housekeeper....

When the present possessor of Claydon, Sir Harry Verney, came to live there, he found a wainscoted gallery at the top of the house, forty feet long, full of boxes on trestles containing bundles of letters, acres of parchment, charters and pardons with the great seals attached, early editions of plays, account books, terriers and rent rolls—these literally, as their name implies, strips of paper stitched together, many feet in length, and in this case dating from the time of Henry VII.—"Mercuries," diurnals of the period of the Civil Wars, "newes letters"—the early form of newspaper before the printed manner of promulgating news had been invented—all these were "stacked" round the room.—From "Memoirs of the Verney Family," by Frances Parthenope Verney.

MAGIC CARPET OF 1944

Two Days of Robot Bombing

(BETH TOMALIN in the WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

MONDAY, 9:02 a.m.—But from village to station town.

9:02-9:40 a.m.—Discussions with kindly voluntary helpers in food office in attempt to disentangle shopping difficulties in neighbourhood where we aren't registered. Catering problems for household of 10 is almost insuperable with emergency cards. Shops have their difficulties since they are swamped with these unexpected customers, and large scale redistribution of food cannot be accomplished without re-registration.

Re-registration entails such a welter of mystery and time that despair sets in. And no crying on the grocer's shoulder will achieve anything.

9:50 a.m.—Train to London. Read Saturday's papers. This is essential since it takes weeks to change delivery of newspapers and those on news-stands are all booked. This, at least, gives leisurely effect of Saturday's news being as good as today's.

Later—Arrival in London. There it is! Curious how instantaneously I can remember the sound even after ten days' absence. It stops directly overhead. I turn and cower along with several thousand other people. First I must call at the laundry. Mine isn't ready. Call in at flat and collect what small financial resources I have in form of Canadian war savings certificates in order to remove them to place of safety. How forlorn the unkempt flat looks, and how ludicrous that chest of drawers alongside the unused bed! Decide to buy all rations at my own shop. Pack attache case with bits of butter, margerine, lard, tea and eggs. Walk gingerly from now on.

Noon—The office. What a time to get to work, and how nice it is to be back. Deliver huge bunch of almost dead roses to James Bone, who knows all their names. He tells me there is a Mr. Fry in an office right next door to mine who is the greatest economic expert there is, and that I can pick his brains in order to understand Bretton Wood if I want to. I tell him that I have had ten days with nothing to do but read the Manchester Guardian (a day late) and that I can't imagine a better life.

1 p.m. to 4 p.m.—Dig my way through accumulation of bills, censorship directives and newspapers. Better take a pile of these to the country for my gardener who is always complaining he has nothing with which to light fires. Accomplish neat pile.

4:30 p.m.—Public Relations Office, C.M.H.Q. That well-known bedroll has never reached Jam Cook. He's sleeping on the ground and no one in all France has seen it. Can I have my money back, please?

5:15 p.m.—Another station. Pride that I shall arrive home before mob. Will be able to relax over a half pint. Rations weigh rather heavily. Hope eggs are alright but don't dare to look. Why did I bother about the gardener's confounded newspaper?

8 p.m.—Meet mob on bus the other end. They look tidier and calmer than I. And so to bed.

TUESDAY, 9:05 a.m.—Miss bus. Have been persuaded to bring all valuables to country. Am almost the only person left in the house who still possesses a flat. Carry huge suitcase in which to rescue two pair of nylon stockings, a box of kleenex, a box of Lux, and a Chinese amber ring.

Much later—Arrive laundry. Find I have no keys. Must have left them in the office last evening. Leave suitcase with laundry.

11:15 a.m. to noon—Too late for Campbell Moodie's promised cup of coffee, but catch up on the gossip and persuade John Grierson to take me out to dinner on grounds I need rest in London from household. Bank tells me Jam Cook's balance and can't understand what I have to say about Benny Malkin's difficulties.

Noon to 1 p.m.—Public Relations Office. Here we go again. Remember that bedroll? Can you bear to think of Jam Cook sleeping on the ground with nothing to cover him? Besides he has no typewriter and can't write to me. The colonel is busy for another half hour. Back to office again. Retire to cafe and open cables with some trepidation. Am not fired yet. Seek out housekeeper whose husband has just stepped out with key to my office. Manchester Guardian's diplomatic correspondent is persuaded to climb out window of Baltimore Sun office, leap across space between two iron balconies above Fleet Street, and enter my office through window. Promise him another one of those Canadian chocolates when I get another batch. Full of ideas about work. But there are no keys. What have I done with them, and how shall I get a clean shirt from the flat and rescue those nylons?

4 p.m.—Am really going to get home early this evening, have a good rest and start fresh in the morning to clear up all those important things. When they are done am going to take a room at the Savoy and spend most of my time in the bar.

A Big Potential Market

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

ERIC JOHNSTON, who is called by the Vancouver "Sunday Sun", the "dynamic young president of the United States Chamber of Commerce," has been travelling through Russia as the personal guest of Marshal Josef Stalin. The first man is a capitalist; the second a communist, and yet both are realists. They recognize that trade should go on between countries despite whatever differences there may be in their national outlook and their form of government.

Mr. Johnston is returning to America, it is stated, with the announcement that when the war is over Russia intends to buy millions of dollars worth of goods from the United States.

Inasmuch as the proposed purchases will be for rehabilitation largely, no doubt,—used to rebuild and restore what has been devastated during a long, ugly conflict,—since that will be first demand, we assume, there is every reason why Canadian manufacturers, exporters and other business interests should be alert to the opportunity which seems obvious.

There is a sound basis for thinking this country, a well as our neighbours to the south, should help to provide what Russia will desire to get from North America. The Canadian Government has shipped vast quantities of war goods to the Soviet Union to aid them in the common fight against the Germans and their satellites. The co-operation which the Dominion has given has been acknowledged by Russia. In addition, considerable money has been raised in the Dominion through voluntary contributions of citizens. That these friendly acts were appreciated and will be remembered properly may be assumed but, of course, it will be necessary for Canadians to show enterprise and to produce what is needed in competition with what can be obtained elsewhere.

On the other hand we, as a people, cannot be merely sellers and not buyers. There will, undoubtedly, have to be an acceptance of large quantities of Russian goods, sent here to liquidate a fair percentage of the money loaned by Canada.

Those matters, however, can, we feel confident, be satisfactorily adjusted, but what is primarily important is for the business element of this country to enter the door which is going to be opened, with exports that will hold their own against those of any other exporter. That genius for production, transportation and delivery has manifest itself in an almost astounding way since 1940, for Canada has climbed during the past four years to third place among the trading nations of the world. A great part of our big export, reaching the amazing sum of one billion, four hundred and three million, one hundred and ten thousand dollars—for the first five months of 1944—a great part of that was war materials, equipment and supplies. There will be a rapid drop in that connection when hostilities are over, but the brains and enterprise which have made our record in this respect a fact, should be able to re-express themselves in peacetime. What Mr. Johnston has learned on his trip should be turned to account by our people as well as by his.

IMMIGRATION AND QUEBEC'S FUTURE

If we do not gather in immigration while the other provinces are doing everything to attract it, this will result, that the proportion of the population of Quebec will become smaller and smaller with relation to the other parts of Canada. In the House of Commons, our members, whose numbers are unchangeable will be submerged under an always increasing number; the number of Quebec members in the Cabinet will diminish and we will play a role which will be more and more effaced in Canadian life. If there is to be immigration, it would be better than Quebec should recognize the necessity for it and prepare for it in order to increase its population in the same rhythm as the other provinces. And if we can surpass them, so much the better, for then the Quebec influence would be on the increase.—Le Jour, Montreal.

Letter To The Editor

DISAPPROVES OF BABY BONUS

Sir,—In regard to the baby bonus and other social legislation ostensibly designed to raise the standard of living in our homes we would say we do owe much to humanity not only money but sympathy and kindness to those less fortunate than ourselves — the widow and the fatherless, the blind, the lame, the paralytic and those who have fallen in the race, and have become discouraged and lost interest in life. But to the drinker, the lazy, shiftless, easy-going fellow, the waster and the libertine we owe nothing. When we give to that sort we only encourage and abet them in their wrongdoing. This indiscriminate giving as outlined in those social security schemes is really worse than no giving at all. We are told the baby bonus millions will eventually find their way back into industries but we fear that in the majority of instances those industries that will profit most will be those under the special protection of the devil. Dr. Bruce speaks of the baby bonus as a bribe to secure the Quebec vote for the Liberal party. This appears to be the prevailing opinion all over Canada from Halifax to Vancouver, from the Great Lakes to the Arctic. Be that as it may Mr. King has shown a decided leaning towards the C.C.F. Seems to endeavour to keep on the right side of them by listening to their half-leaked schemes. Perhaps he feels he will need their support after next election in order to obtain a working majority in the House. We have always admired and supported Mr. King as a fine statesman, but his recent conduct has constrained us and many others to the belief that he may be only an accomplished player of parts.

JOHN SERVIUS.

A Bible Message

Hear my prayer, O Lord, give ear to my supplications: in thy faithfulness answer me, and in thy righteousness.... Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee. (Ps. 143: 1, 8.)

The same day went Jesus out of the house, and sat by the sea side. And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore....

And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables? He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given....Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not, and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand. And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see and shall not perceive: for this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart and should be converted, and I should heal them. Dozen Corvettes Placed On Channel Duty

Written for The Canadian Press
By Sub.-Lt. Scott Young, R.C.N.V.R.

WITH THE R.C.N. IN EUROPEAN WATERS, Aug. 11—(CP)—More than a dozen Canadian corvettes who traded punch for punch with German submarines and crushing weather on the North Atlantic for four years have been given their chance to be in on the kill. They are on Channel convoy duty now, escorting men and supplies to the coast of Normandy in a hectic type of war that makes the monotony of the North Atlantic seem like a bad dream/soon forgotten.

On the Atlantic, boredom was their greatest enemy. Some of them went years without seeing a submarine—years of constant preparation for action, but no action.

But this part of the war is different. This is being written in the chartroom of a veteran Canadian corvette, the Mayflower,, while we buzz up and down the lines of a convoy we are helping take back to England from Normandy.

In the last week, this ship's company had flying bombs crash about them and shot down near them; naval engagements going on in plain sight, at night; they've been under spectatular air attack several times This they have concluded, is really some war, after all.

The Mayflower's Skipper, Lieut. D. S. Martin of Halifax, was watching a few minutes before this was written when two mines exploded astern of us.

He estimated we had been right in that area five minutes previously.

Mayflower is part of the strong Canadian Corvette force meeting conditions like this almost every day as part of their normal duties. The constant presence of danger has the Canadian crews taking an almost tourist-like interest in the war. Seawatchers of four hours on and four off don't leave much time for leisure, but almost always there is an an interested audience of sleepless off-watch ratings whenever anything big is going on.

Three Lindsay Men Casualties Overseas

LINDSAY, Aug. 11. — (ENS). — Three young Lindsay soldiers are reported as casualties.

Sgt. E. A: "Ted" Bacon, who was reported as wounded a week ago, is now reported as having died from wounds two days following his admission to the hospital.

Born in Saskatoon, Sask., he had been living for a number of years with his uncle, Reg. Bacon, jeweller. Two days after the first recruiting sign appeared at the local Armouries he enlisted and went to Petawawa for his training, where he was for some time a physical instructor. He went overseas in 1939 and was attached to the Canadian Army in France. Because of his knowledge of watch repairing he was placed in the technical stores, with supervision over small parts for guns.

Sgt. Bacon was quite athletic during his Collegiate Institute schooling and was well known as a rugby, softball, tennis and hockey player. He is survived by his father, Percy Bacon, in British Columbia; his wife and one small daughter.

Percy W. Hancock, Elgin street, has received word of his son, Lance Bombadier Kenneth Hancock, being wounded while on active service in Italy. This young soldier enlisted in 1941 and has seen service in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. A brother, Lieut. Roy Hancock, is serving in France.

Mrs. Menzies T. Paquette, Pottinger street, has received definite word that her husband, Pte. Menzies Paquette, has been wounded while on active service in France. Following the first telegram received from Ottawa, Mrs. Paquette was shocked to receive a letter from a fellow officer that Paquette had died from wounds. This week she received further word officially from Ottawa that her husband is improving from his wounds.

Growing Black Market In Sicily

BY BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

CATANIA, Sicily, Aug. 11 — (CP) — With "Catania ripresa vita normale," Signora Maria Sangiorgi ended the message she was writing on the card we had agreed to deliver to her sister in Rome.

"Catania is back to normal again" she had written. Signora Sangiorgi ought to know She's been living here for 45 years. Capt. Alisdair Fraser, Montreal; Sgt. J. E. DeGuire, Ottawa, and L.Cpl. David King, Burlington, Ont., and myself remember Catania and Sicily as they were last year. Now, after renewing acquaintance, we agree with the signora.

Commodities are commanding high prices, principally because more money is in circulation, secondly because Sicilians will not co-operate in fighting the black market where everything one could want to eat is on the market — at a price.

Everyone receives a ration of 200 grams of bread (or flour), or pasta each day. Pasta is the grain preparation from which Italians make macaroni and spaghetti, the basis of their diet. his 200 grams represents a recent doubling of the ration from 100 grams. However, because bread and pasta are the staples, the ration is admittedly insufficient, and to supplement it Sicilians resort to the black market. Here, a month ago, they were paying $1 or more for a loaf of bread roughly two pounds in weight. Today, the same loaf fetches 80 cents because of the increase in the regular ration.

Black Market Supporter

People can buy on the black market when the administration has not enough grain to raise the ration because of that enigma, the Sicilian farmer. He doesn't trust the provincial granaries and when ordered by the administration to turn over all his crop he turns over a half, perhaps only a third. The rest he sells to the local black market rackateer. Commission combatted the black market vigorously and progress was made. Today, however, now that responsibility for governing the island has been vesting in the Italian provisional government, the Commission is acting in only an advisory capacity. The Sicilians are allowing the black market to gather strength again.

The same situation obtains with olive oil which is in as great demand as flour and pasta. A ridiculously small amount trickles through to the open market for sale at a more or less reasonable price like 20 lire (20 cents) a litre (roughly a quart), but the rest is largely channelled into the black market and sells at from $1 to $1.50 a quart. Equally is it the same with sugar, a reasonable quantity of which the island produces, and to a less degree with potatoes. Meat, cheese, vegetables, fruit are sold on the open market and prices are governed by normal laws of supply and demand. Foodstuffs supplied by the Allied are negligible, but there is enough food for everybody. In peacetime the island was 11/12ths selfsupporting and there's no reason for it to be less so now.

Transportation is also close to normal. All roads are in order: bus and truck services operate with special gasoline allowances from the Allies, and main railway lines are in order with the sole exception of a stretch on the east coast between Messina and Fiuefreddo. Shortage of coal is the only limiting factor in railway services.

Postal, telegraph and telephone communications have been restored Newspapers are produced daily, mostly on Canadian newsprint. Only restriction on freedom of the press is the same security censorship which applies to correspondents and writers in any Allied theatre of operations.

51 Canadians Listed As Prisoners

OTTAWA, Aug. 11.—(CP).—Previously listed as missing, 51 men—two officers and 47 ratings—from the sunken Canadian destroyer Athabaskan were disclosed last night by Naval Service Headquarters to be prisoners of war in German hands.

The list brought to 80 the number of men now known to have been taken prisoner after the Athabaskan went down when pierced by a Nazi torpedo in the course of a pre-invasion sweep off the French invasion coast in April.

The Athabaskan's companion ship, the Haida, rescued 46 from the sinking vessel after she was hit, and later the navy announced 197 officers and men were missing. With 80 known to be prisoners of war, the list of missing now stands at 107.

The Germans claimed after the action that 85 men were taken prisoner as they drifted on life-rafts.

The Athabaskan, a new, powerful 1,900-ton destroyer of the Tribal Class, went down while on regular channel patrol with the Haida, another Tribal craft.

Split in Two by Torpedo

The Athabaskan was split in two by an enemy torpedo and sank, still firing at two German destroyers which had struck at her in the haze of a starlit night. Those still missing include her commander, Lt.-Cmdr. J. H. Stubbs, D.S.O., of Victoria, and Lieut. J. D. Mahoney, Toronto.

The Haida exacted quick revenge for the sunken Athabaskan, driving one of the enemy destroyers ashore in flames. A number of awards to men of the two Canadian vessels were announced after the action.

Former French Premier Leon Blum Dies In Nazi Prison Near Lublin

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 11—(AP).—Konstantin Simonov, correspondent for the army newspaper Red Star, made public today a story that indicated former Premier Leon Blum of France had died at the Nazis' death factory near Lublin.

Simonov's story of Hitler's biggest enterprise dedicated to the destruction of life said hundreds of thousands of persons, principally Jews, were systematically and methodically killed there since the winter of 1941.

The correspondent said the "extermination camp" consisted of death fields with scientific crematories and a system of gallows which Blum was forced to help build.

(A dispatch July 6 from Irun, Spain, said it was understood that Blum and former Minister of Interior Georges Mandel were held in a chateau in central Germany. Lublin, in pre-war southeastern Poland, was captured by the Russians July 24.)

Every day 400,000 gallons GO INTO THIN AIR!

Air power eats up gasoline—on a scale never known before. Every day R.C.A.F. airfields here in Canada consume an average of more than 400,000 gallons; in one 30-day period alone they used an average of 548,000 gallons a day. It takes as much aviation gasoline to train one pilot as to run a car for 18 years.

Air power eats up gasoline: In one day's raid on the German cities of Wilhelmshafen and Dusseldorf, approximately 5,000,000 gallons were used. Three tons of aviation gasoline are needed to "deliver" every one-ton bomb. Every Mosquito that raids Berlin consumes 900 gallons. The equivalent of your year's "AA" ration would last a Lancaster bomber only ½ an hour!

Air power eats up gasoline: In this war the demand for aviation fuel alone exceeds the total demand for all petroleum products during the last war. Here in Canada this demand has jumped from 5,453,930 gallons in 1939 to 176,298,570 gallons in the year ended March 31, 1944—more than 32 times as much!

Air power eats up gasoline: Yet the needs of the Air Forces are only part of the story. In every field of war activity petroleum powers the attack. The Army needs it . . . the Navy needs it . . . war industry, agriculture, essential transportation operators need it. And every single drop of it must come from the same common pool as the gasoline for your car.

Can you wonder that there is a very real shortage of gasoline here in Canada? Can you wonder that there is little gasoline left for civilian use? Can you wonder that a very real need exists for stringent economy by every gasoline and fuel oil user? Remember—every gallon we can go without here at home means that much more for the fighting man!

Answering YOUR QUESTIONS about the GASOLINE SHORTAGE

Does the manufacture of aviation gasoline reduce the production of automobile gas? . . . Yes over twice as much petroleum is needed to make a gallon of 100 octane aviation gas as to make automobile gas. Why do aircraft need 100 octane gasoline? . . . It enables them to take-off and climb more quickly; it increases speed and range; it enables them to fly higher and carry a heavier bomb load. How much aviation gas is needed to ferry a bomber from Canada to England? . . . Over 2,500 gallons.

Bobbie Burns Top Canuck In Golf Battle

SCARBORO GOLF CLUB, Scarboro, Ont., Aug. 11 (CP)—Round two in the $7,500 Maple Leaf Invitation Golf Tournament gets under way over the Scarboro Club's 6,436-yard course today when the 74 entrants tee off for the second 18 holes of medal play.

Diagnosis is Accurate

"Let's forget about the money-chasing players from across the border, invite in a few distinguished guests and hang up a purse that will make our homebreds go to work" somebody suggested.

First chapter in the rehabilitation of our Canadian golfer was written in box-car type at Scarboro Golf Club yesterday afternoon in the opening round of the 72-hole Maple Leaf Open.

Al Watrous 1933 Canadian Open champion from Birmingham, Michigan's Oaklands Hills course shared the first day leadership with Bob Burns of Weston in an inferiority complex-shedding golf ball chase that saw nine homebred pros and one amateur reach par or better it.

Watrous and Burns tied with sub par 68's, three strokes under Scarboro's 71 figures. Stan Horne of Montreal Islemere Club was only a stroke back with 69, produced by means of a sizzling second nine 31. In close pursuit and deadlocked with 70's were Fred Wood, Vancouver; Joe Kirkwood, Australia-born veteran from Pennsylvania; Willie Lamb from Lambton; and Bill Kerr, Cedarbrae's recent Millar Trophy winner.

Par shooters were Bob Gray, Scarboro, Dick Borthwick, Oakdale, Gerald Proulx, Montreal, Jack Littler, Kingston and amateur Frank

Omemee Downs League Leaders

OMEMEE, Aug. 11 — (ENS) — Omemee Creamery defeated the league leading Lindsay Live Wires in a Town League fixture in Lindsay last night, 5-3. The game was fast and keenly contested, each team contributing errors. Eakins on the mound for the electric men was hit rather freely. He allowed nine hits, one walk, and struck out five. Stephenson for the O's held the Live Wires to six scattered hits, walked four and retired two by the strike out method. Omemee scored three runs in the third and added two in the fifth to lead 5-0. In the last of the fifth the Lindsay team scored their first run, and added two in the sixth.

The O's lead was threatened in the last of the seventh. Angiers batting for Green, flied to short stop. Parish walked, then Karrys walked advancing Parish to second. Omemee ended the game in an unexpected manner when two runners were nabbed, Parish trying to make third and Karrys running for second in an attempted double steal.

For Omemee, Parsons had a good night at bat with a walk, two doubles and a triple. Crawford had two hits, and one hit each was made by Brooks, C. Stephenson, R. Deyell, and J. Deyell. For the Live Wires, Coombs and Worsley were the best batters, having two each.

Line ups:

Omemee Creamery: Crawford, 2b; Williamson, 1b; Parsons, 3b; Brooks, c; A. Stephenson, rf; McQuade, cf; C. Stephenson, p; R. Deyell, lf; J. Deyell, ss.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Switchgear and U.E.W. will battle at Riverside Park at 6:45 o'clock tonight in what looks like the crucial battle of their semi-final City League playoff round. The series is tied up with each club having one victory and the outfit that comes down in front tonight will only be a game away from taking the round so that both clubs will put on the pressure all the way, realizing how much a loss in this fixture may mean. U.E.W. hope to have Mac McPerson, the big Millbrook pitcher, who beat Switchgear in the opening game of the series on the mound for them in tonight's struggle and they are counting on him to come through with another win. The Union outfit point out that in two games against Switchgear pitching they have scored 26 runs and that if they get any tossing themselves that kind of scoring should see them through the round. Switchgear on the other hand claim that they are back in form and that they expect to clean up the series in two more games and qualify for the final round. Tonight's game should be a lot tighter than the Wednesday night meeting between the two clubs.

There will be one and perhaps two City League games at Riverside Park tomorrow to settle the Switchgear-U.E.W. round. The two teams will meet tonight in the third game of the series, with the round tied up at one win each. The fourth game has been ordered for tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. If tonight's winner should also win the afternoon game tomorrow that would decide the argument. If hwever tonight's loser were to grab off a victory in the Saturday afternoon affray then the teams would have to meet Saturday evening at 6:45 o'clock in the fifth and decisive game of the series, in order to get a winner ready to start the final playoffs against Plazas Monday night. It is expected that the league executive will decide at tonight's meeting to cut the final round down to a best-of-five affair and the finalists will be ordered to play every night next week if necessary. Peterborough must have a team ready to meet Trenton in the first game of the Provincial playdowns a week from Monday, hence all the haste.

Plazas In Finals

Plazas cleaned up their semi-final round with Soldiers last night by winning the fourth game 13 to 1 and taking the series 3 games to 1. The hockey outfit have beaten the Military Training Centre five times in seven starts this season and have had a shade more power and steadiness than the Soldiers but the latter made every game except the last one a battle and the clashes between the two teams have caused more interest than any other games played during the campaign. For three seasons the Military Training Centre team have battled with the Plaza gang in the City League playoffs and three times in a row they have been eliminated but only after putting up the toughest kind of opposition. The Soldier outfit has added a lot of color to the City League in recent seasons and has won for itself a powerful following of fans who will be sorry to see the military team pass off the stage for this season. Plazas have now qualified for the finals and will meet the Switchgear-U.E.W. winners in the last round for the championship next week. That should be a great series, too, and attract the biggest crowds of the summer.

Sunday Morning Class who play a combined Westclox-Aircraft team here a week from tomorrow in an exhibition game in aid of the Kinsmen's charities were seen in action in Belleville on Monday, winning two battles 37 to 0 and 6 to 1 and incidentally performed before over 4,000 people. Says the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer: "Upwards of 4,000 people saw the famed Toronto Sunday Morning Class girls' softball team display their diamond wares at the Belleville Exhibition Grounds on Civic Holiday in a brace of games played in the interests of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross. Well over $500 was reached with an over-flow crowd surrounding the playing field for the evening game after the "Classers" had trounced an "All-Star" team from the Belleville Ladies' Softball League 37 to 0 in an afternoon fixture. However, in the night game the contest was much closer when Vickie Hillier, from the Mountain View R.C.A.F. team in the local league pitched for Belleville in a game, that ended 6 to 1 for Sunday Morning Class, who were deprived of a collection of runs in the eighth inning as the game was called on account of darkness. It was a great effort on the part of two particular girls playing with the "Classers," Kay (Genereaux) Doughty and her sister Marie (Genereaux) Kirkpatrick, two former Point Anne players, who have done much to make the Sunday Morning Class the greatest girls' softball attraction on this continent. The "Classers" came to Belleville free of expense in the interests of the Red Cross."

He's The Red Shark Now

Some time ago this column announced that Flying Officer Al Marshall, Peterborough's swim champion, had cleaned up the entire swimming card at the Canadian Dominion Day celebration at Cairo Egypt on July 1, winning six different events. At hand is a copy of an R.C.A.F. paper, describing the meet and telling how Canadians travelled to Cairo 'from desert and delta, even from the far off Holy Land by camel, donkey, train, truck, trailer, aircraft and the old reliable thumb" for the gala affair. As to the swimming the official publication says: "Star of the meet was long and lean FO Al Marshal, a product of Peterborough. Head line statistics on Marshall run as follows: Learned swimming at the local Y.M.C.A.—began competitive swimming at 18—member of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. swimming club—local free style champion—In 1942 at Montreal won Canadian 200 yard breast stroke championship. Time 2 min. 32 sec.—at present out of condition—currently training on sand. Marshall dropped into town and filled out the last minute entry form at Canada House. Until seen in the water, he was known as a dark horse (later renamed Red Shark). His record at the meet reads 100 per cent. Six entries and six first and if you think swimming a total of almost half a mile in sprints in little over an hour is an easy task, just try it some time." Incidentally Al was first in the 100 yard free style, 100 yards breast stroke, 50 yards free style, 50 yards breast stroke, 50 yards side stroke and 440 yards free style. In addition to six first prizes he took the plaque for the best swimmer of the day.

Those St. Louis clubs seem determined that when the world series opens in October neither of them will have to spend any time travelling. The Cards increased their lead in the National to 18½ games by shutting out the Phillies 2 to 0 while the second place Cincinnati Reds were dropping a game to the Boston Braves by the same score. Mort Cooper allowed the Phils only four hits in hanging up his 15th win. In the Reds-Braves game, a former Red, Charlie Barrett, held Cincinnati to two hits and Bucky Walters failed to grab off his 17th victory. In the American loop the bustling Brownies made it 10 straight wins when Denny Galehouse held the New Yorkers to six scattered singles and the Browies shut out the Yanks 3 to 0. The second place Boston Red Sox also won, nosing out the Chicago White Sox so that the Browns did not gain any ground. But with 6½ games lead, all they have to worry about is to prevent their nearest opposition from gaining any and apparently the St. Louis club has decided that the simplest way of doing that is to keep right on winning. Anyway they have done nothing else for the past ten games and show no signs of faltering.

Westclox Girls Beat Marines By 21-6 Count

Taking an early lead, Westclox handed Outboard Marines a walloping in a Ladies' League softball game played Thursday evening at Ashburnham Bowl, winding up the final count with a 21 to 6 win.

Periods of loose fielding by the red-garbed Marines, just back from a two-week vacation, helped the Big Bens to effect the defeat, and costly errors also set back the Marines. The Westclox girls, pounding out run after run, had the game in control from the first inning on, and effective batting, including a homer in the fifth by Aggie Anderson, gave the Big Bens a five-run lead.

Joyce Withers, pitching for the Westclox team, held the losers to 9 hits, striking out 3 and walked 10.

Helen Mark and Maxine Monson shared the hurling chore for the Marines, with Miss Monson pitching the last two innings. The combined Marine pitching effort fanned 1, walked 2, but allowed 20 hits.

The Marines ran in 2 runs in the fourth frame. Helen Mark scored when Tedly Mills reached first on an error and Marjorie Smith was walked home.

In the fifth frame, Ollie Smith dashed home on the play that put out Helen Mark at first base. Another run, in the sixth, was registered when Maxine Monson was walked in. The Marines' scoring efforts were wound up with 2 runs turned in during the seventh inning. Helen Mark scored on an easy ball to the pitcher by Bertha Phillips and Teddy Mills whipped home on a wild throw to third base, uaking the sixth and last run by Marines.

With Joyce Withers and Olive Hanwell on bases, Miss Anderson drove one into centre that bounced away from Edna Smith, and all three players had scored before the ball was returned to the game. The most successful Westclox inning was the seventh when seven runs crossed on 8 hits, includinb a well-placed double into centre field by Nona Whetung. The eighth inning, when the game was alrealy wrapped up, netted Westclox five more counters on four tricky bunts and one hit. The Westclox crew scored in every inning but the second and seventh. They went down in order in the second, and in the seventh Barbara Rome and Verna Patterson were both out at second base when they shot balls to Maxine Monson on third, and Olive Hanwell popped to pitcher. Isobel Bullock took over the catching chore for Westclox in the seventh frame, retiring Marjorie Hawthorne, and also smacked a long double in the ninth.

Westclox — Aggie Anderson cf, Nona Whetung 1b, Viola McLean 3b, Marjorie Hawthorne c, Beryl Dobbin ss, Barbara Rome lf, Verna Patterson 2b, Joyce Withers p, Olive Hanwell rf, Isobel Bullock c.

De Glane To Get Crack At Katan

Promoter Frank Tunney, impressed by Pierre De Glane's fervid argument that he wasn't given a fair deal in his semi-final bout with John Katan here the other night, has matched the fiery Frenchman with the Palermo Panther as the main bout feature for next Tuesday night's show at the Brock Arena.

John Katan

"De Glane has worn me ragged ever since Tuesday,' said Tunney in announcing the bout, "and so I am giving him a chance to make good in his claim that he can take Katan to the cleaners. He's got an hour to do it in this time so it's all up to him." De Glane's beserk tactics in Tuesday's match guarantees that the return engagement will be a red-hot affair, perhaps the most explosive of the season.

Sally Sessions of Muskegon, Mich., bowed out of the quarter-final round of the Women's Western Golf Tournament at Chicago yesterday when she was eliminated by Georgia Tainter of North Dakota 3 and 2. Defending champoin Darothy Germain of Philadelphia advanced a stage by a decisive 6-and-5 win over Betty Jean Rucker of Spokane, Wash. Miss Germain today meets Mrs. H. M. Sims, 1941 Minnesota State champion, who had disposed of Peggy Kirk, semi-finalist last year from Findlay, O., in a one-stroke decision after three extra holes. Miss Tainter opposes Phyllis Otto of Nebraska, western runner-up in 1942.

The final day of Grand Circuit racing at Goshen, N.Y., yesterday was featured by the victory of Darnley, owned by Aaron Williams of Corning, N.Y., in the $3,650 Trotting Derby, during which he hung up a competition record for the track of 1:59¾. The previous track mark was two minutes flat, set by Tara nine years ago.

William Boyd McKechnie yesterday signed a two-year renewal of his contract as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, of which team he has been the pilot for six seasons. The pact dissolved rumors that Bill and the club were at the parting of the ways.

Jockey Sol Magath booted home four winners to take a tight hold on Connaught Park Jockey Club's summer meet's riding championship at Ottawa yesterday. He opened by scoring with Galliris and closed by bringing Brotela home in front. Between these two winners Magath clicked aboard Jorufus in the third and added another with Grovela in the sixth.

Great Push Starts

LONDON, Aug. 11 —(CP)— The German radio heard by Reuter News Agency here said last night "British troops today reopened their great offensive in Italy after regrouping their forces."

Stokoe Pitches 3-Hit Ball; Plazas Victors

Behind masterly three-hit pitching by Frank Stokoe, Plazas smothered Soldiers 13 to 1 in the fourth game of their City League semi-final series at Riverside Park Thursday night, taking the round 3 games to 1 and qualifying for the legaue finals against the winners of the Switchgear-U.E.W. series.

Stokoe turned in one of the best pitching exhibitions of the season to effectively muzzle the Soldier attack. Two pop fly singles and a safe bunt represented the total hitting effort of the losers and Stokoe set up a season's record by retiring the last 19 batters to face him in order. After getting the last hitter in the third frame the Plaza pitcher set the next 18 men to face him down in a row. Altogether he retired the side in order in seven of the nine frames. One of the two bases on balls Stokoe handed out however blossomed into the only Soldier run.

Against that airtight kind of twirling the Military Training Centre did not have a chance, particularly as Earl Revoir who was to have done the pitching for them had tire trouble in trying to get back from furlough and did not arrive until the last stages of the game.

Bill O'Reilly, a new arrival at the camp, was assigned the pitching job and the youngster found Plazas in a hitting mood. Sparked by Phil Pryde who slammed out two homers and drove in six runs the winners teed off on O'Reilly and by the end of the eighth when he retired they had broken through his service for 18 hits and 12 runs. They bunched a triple by Blewett and a single by Starr to pick up their last run off Revoir in the ninth.

Blewett had four blows in five trips to the plate and Bun Kingdon

New York Yankees Fading Rapidly On Home Stretch

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Joe McCarthy's world champions rested in fourth place today, 9½ games off the pace and no longer a threat to St. Louis' bid for its first American League pennant. When Denny Galehouse shut out the New Yorkers with six singles yesterday, 3-0, allowing only one man to reach second base, he drained most of the hope from the Yankee fans.

It was the Browns' 10th straight victory—longest string in the league this year—and protected their 5½-game margin over second-place Boston.

Galehouse captured his fifth straight and first whitewash job at the expense of Ernie Bonham, No. 2 Yank ace.

Boston remained hot for the week-end St. Louis series by taking a second straight from Chicago, 2-1, behind Emmett O'Neil. Bob Johnson's three hits aided the win.

Detroit Wins 3-2

Detroit shouldered New York out of third place by trimming Washington in a night game, 3-2. Paul (Dizzy) Trout had to travel 10 innings to beat Johnny Niggeling, but he did the trick on a five-hitter for his 18th win, tying Hal Newhouser and Tex Hughson.

Myril Hoag's single scoring Russ Peters in the ninth gave Joe Heving his seventh victory and Cleveland a 5-4 shade over Philadelphia.

Mort Cooper lifted the St. Louis Cards 18½ games out in front of the National League with their 74th victory in 101 games by shutting out the Phils, 2-0, on Whitey Kurowski's 13th homer with Ray Sanders on base in the fourth. Red Barrett hurled the third scoreless game of the day by shading Bucky Walters for Boston's 2-0 margin over Cincinnati.

Tom Warren's pinch single with the bases loaded scored two winning runs in the 10th inning in Brooklyn's 6-4 victory over Chicago as the Cubs missed a chance to regain fourth place when New York bowed to Pittsburgh, 10-4. Frank Colman of the Pirates socked two homers.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—If the Cardinals and Browns clash in the world series—which seems quite likely now—the attendance may be the smallest since the Red Sox-Cubs playoff at the end of the abbreviated 1918 series....That one drew only 128,483 spectators and $179,619 for six games.... Sportsman's Park holds about 34,000 fans (the Browns' official high is 31,931 paid) and at that rate four games could draw only 136,000....No wonder a Cleveland player recently commented "If the Browns win and we finish fourth, we'll owe Uncle Sam 89 cents as our share of the series pool."....Sniping in boxing's most protracted feud was resumed this week when Abe (Hatfield) Greene addressed his latest N.B.A. bulletin to Commissioner Cilain B. Powell of New York, hinting htat they should get together and ignore Gen. John J. (McCoy) Phelan and his string of working agreements with other states.

One-minute sports page:

Turk Edwards of the Redskins and Walt Kiesling, who'll head the Car-Pitts coaching staff, agree that it's a lot easier to find pro football players this year than last. The reason, they say, is army discharges.... Lieut. Larry French, former Cubs and Dodgers flinger, brings back news from the war zone that the Americans took baseball right along into Europe.

Old Red Kress Pitches And Bats Toronto To 2-1 Win

(By The Associated Press)

Cliff (Mountain-Music) Melton, who, with Carl Hubbell, helped pitch New York Giants to a pennant in 1937, may be on his way back to the majors after a short stay with Jersey City in the International League.

Last night he followed up a 2-1 five-hitter victory against Toronto Aug. 6 with another five-hitter, this time against Rochester, as the Jerseys notched a 6-1 victory. Cliff went all the way and never was in trouble.

Baltimore tightened its hold on the league lead by sweeping a twin bill from Buffalo, 7-4 and 7-2. Johnny Podgajny got credit for the opener, although Stan West came to his rescue in the fifth. The big show was put on by Red Embree in the nightcap as he won his 15th game and added to his league-leading total of strikeouts by fanning 10 Bisons.

Floyd Bevens chalked up his ninth straight victory as Newark defeated Montreal in the first game of two, 7-3. Jean Pierre Roy pitched for the Royals.

In the second game, Charley Fuchs, just sent down from the Dodgers, scattered six bear hits as the Royals took the measure of Ken Holcombe 3-1.

Red Kress pitched and batted Toronto to a 2-1 decision over Syracuse and Bud Bebber. After pitching shutout ball for six innings, with the score knotted at 1-1, Red doubled Harry Davis home with the winning run, Davis having tripled before him.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, August 11 — (CP).— One of the most remarkable figures in Canada's sporting scene is H. L. (Doc) Durnan who at the age of 69 is still going strong at one of the most strenuous of sports—sculling. It's usually considered a young man's pastime, but the venerable Doc can stil scoop spray in erable Doc can still scoop spray in supposedly spryer opponents.

At Barrie, Ont., the other day Doc captured the 440-yard sculling dash, besting Bill Reid and Ken Thorburn, scullers of no mean ability. This business of winning is not any novelty for him either, since he's been doing it 47 years.

Back in 1897 he won the junior Canadian singles, and he's been gathering trophies ever since. He has kept in near-perfect shape, too, and weighs 145 pounds now compared with 132 pounds in that 1897 race. And he isn't the kind of boatsman who forgets about it in the winter months either. It takes a bad winter day to keep him under cover, and it's his special boast that in the winter of 1932 he didn't miss a single day.

Tweet, tweet:

Golf followers around Chatham, Ont., are still talking about Bruce Morgan's feat of collecting two birdies on a single hole. It was his way. Morgan lofted a husky tee shot into the air, and as it swooped through the breeze with abandon, it struck and coup-de-graced a flitting meadowlark. Then it fell to earth and Morgan sank his putt for the second birdie. We'd like to see how Morgan would go about scoring an eagle.

Tribute:

Dan Parker has some laudatory remarks for Toronto's Conny Smythe in his New York mirror column Madison Square Garden fans, says Dan, are offering prayers for Conny's speedy recovery from his wounds suffered in France and he continues: "It was typical of Conny to rush headlong into danger, heedless of the consequences. Garden galleryites...want to see him play the role of little 'Liza again on the Eighth Avenue ice so they can boo him once more—but not until they have sent up a hearty cheer to let him know how they realy feel about him."

Concert Group Injured In Naval Action

BY ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 11 — (CP Cable) — The "tin hats," the Canadian army's own concert party composed of non-commissioned ranks are back in England after an attempt to reach Normandy for an entertainment tour which resulted in three of their party being listed as missing along with a Canadian soldier attached to them as a driver.

Pte. Bert Witheral trombonist from Kingston, Ont., Pte. Joe Rennie, Vancouver, stage manager, and a third member of the troupe were missing after the small ship in which they were crossing the Channel was involved in a naval action. Also missing is Pte. Blix MacDonald a Maratimer.

Others who were injured were Pte. Al (Pee Wee) Beaudoin, Montreal, minor arm injury; Pte. Norman Harper, cowboy singer, Toronto, who broke his arm but did not realize it at the time; Pte. Frank Miskelly Smiths Falls, Ont., piano player, crushed leg; Pte. Harold Vanbuskirk, Edmonton song and dance man.

The "tin hats" recently completed a tour of Italy where they played to more than 100,000 members of the forces.

Right now they have no equipment and must scour about to get their things together again.

STARS IN MOVIES—Pte. June Emery, originally from Toronto, is one of three Canadian Women's Army Corps soon to appear in the movie entitled "Air Crew" produced at the Pinewood Studios, near London, Eng. Starring Edward G. Robinson, the story centres around R.A.F. cadets training in Canada and the United States.

Nazis Cracking

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP)—Gen. Walter Von Sidlitz, president of the Free German National Committee in Soviet Russia, broadcast by Moscow radio yesterday that "the whole Hitler system is cracking up, militarily and politically," and that many anti-Nazi plotters still were within the ranks of German armed forces.

Italy Partisans Pay Price To Help Allies

By DOUG HOW.
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, August 11—(CP)—Mamma Gracchi could weep this minute and smile the next with a smile that seemed to take possession of her whole body.

The broad sweeps of emotion could bear her from mourning for her 17-year-old Biovanni shot by the Germans for alleged partisan activity, to delight that these guests had found her. Then she poured out the story that is becoming the story of Italy.

Giovanni was shot because the Fascist Mayor of Perugia had accused him of carrying supplies into the hills to the Partisans.

Her husband has done good work behind the lines:

A Colonel, he had refused to go to the office in Perugia when the British troops came, because the other Colonel he would have to work with was a Fascist.

Before the British forces came, they had been in hiding.

That, briefly is the story of the Gracchis and, in essence, the story unfolding as the Allied armies drive into the north and into ever-increasing belts of Partisan activity. Into its pattern are woven political beliefs and strange men with red neckerchiefs and innocent women and children and sporadic shootings of German soldiers and vicious German reprisals that came more than once wiped out entire villages.

To the Allied soldiers, the Partisan is a vague, suspicious figure who sometimes comes out to greet him and tell him of the things he's done.

There is no definite yardstick by which their efforts can be measured because they have no centralized organization like that of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia.

Partisans help troops when they come into villages or towns by pointing out where booby-traps and mines are, where the enemy has gone; they have slipped through the lines to point out enemy positions.

Ate Papers

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP Cable)—The commanding officer and adjutant of a Canadian battalion holding the little French village of Fontenay le Marmion, about six miles south of Caen, thought they would be forced to retreat and ate their secret army code papers — then later found their chewing was so much wasted effort. The village held Alan Moorehead, Daily Express war correspondent said.

THESE LADS SMASHED CRACK NAZI DIVISION—Working with a British division in Italy, Canadian tankmen led the Allied advance through rough country in the Arno River sector in Italy, smashing the crack Hermann Goering Division and sending them reeling back in retreat. These pictures from the battle-front show (Top Left) a youthful Nazi prisoner, guarded by a Canadian soldier, being taken to battalion headquarters in a jeep for questioning. At Lower Left, Canadian tanks following through on the heels of the retreating Germans, and Right, Trooper Bob Sharpe, of Winnipeg, a Canadian tankman, bathing and doing his "family" wash at the same time, during a brief halt in the Allied drive. (Canadian Army Overseas Photo)

Nazis To Pay For War Crimes Some Would Wipe Out Nation

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

I have before me a letter from a reader hotly advocating the "total extermination" of Germany's population as the only way to insure peace.

That represents an extreme (though not rare) view, and one which I'm sure my correspondent wouldn't back up on a showdown. However, I've yet to encounter anybody who ventured an opinion at all who didn't say he hoped the Allies would fight their way through the Reich so the German people would get overwhelming punishment.

That's an argument we needn't try to settle here. Probably all agree that heavy retribution is just, and necessary to prevent repetition of aggression, and in this connection I call attention to the fact that the Fatherland just now is entering a period of chastening which will be hell.

Worst Nazi Punishment

This column yesterday pointed out that the next few weeks are going to be among the most crucial of the war for Germany. This is the period of the great retreat of Hitler's broken armies to his inner defences—a catastrophic reversal of the victorious blitzkrieg with which he opened the war. It's the period which will give the Germans the worst punishment they've endured in modern history. They will be undergoing both the strain of their dictator's awful regimentation for total war, and the despair of defeats and retreats.

Thus both military and civilians are about to be put through a fierce test of morale. The Nazis will be lucky if they don't crack up.

The defeats the Germans are suffering now are far worse than anything they encountered in the first great War. Their casualties in the previous conflict were 7,142,558 and already the present conflagration has claimed an estimated 9,000,000. Countless thousands may die in the next few weeks.

Talk about annihilating the Germans: The young men who would sire the future generations are being sacrificed by Hitler at fearful rate in a mad effort to delay the surrender which must come. This is particularly true on the Russian front where he is using every reserve he can muster. The Russians report grimly that the Nazis are being "bled white."

Small Industries To Receive Help

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 — (CP) — The Commons Banking Committee today completed study of the Bill providing for the establishment of an industrial development bank to assist in post-war industrial financing.

The Bill was amended restricting loans in excess of $200,000 to a total of $15,000,000. The total amount which the Bank may loan is limited to $1,000,000,000.

Ross W. Gray (L—Lambton west) said he had been convinced there was a gap in the financing of small industries which this bank would be able to fill and he would support that proposal.

However, he added, he was opposed to a provision in the Bill that would enable the Bank to lend to companies already in receivership. He suggested this clause in the Bill be dropped.

Finance Minister Ilsley said arguments that the assistance of the Bank be restricted to small industries had been pressed in the committee. Amendments had proposed that no loan be more than $50,000 to any one firm and others had suggested $100,000 as the top.

He said he had been impressed with the arguments, but he thought the Bank should not be tied down to such amounts. He proposed in an amendment that of the $100,000,000 which the Bank will have at its disposal not more than 15 per cent be used for loans of $200,000 or more leaving 85 per cent. for loans under $200,000.

Report By Foch Parallels Conditions Now

BY WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 11 — (CP) — A memorandum issued during The First Great War by Marshal Foch suggests a number of parallels between the general situation in France in the summer of 1918 and the present situation.

The memorandum, dated July 24, 1918, was quoted by a British Staff Officer. Here are extracts:

"We have already attained equality in the number of battalions at least and in a more general sense in the number of combatants....

"The Germans have been compelled to throw so many divisions into action that for the first time we have a superiority in reserves, also owing to the large number of exhausted divisions they will be compelled to relieve from the battlefront, we shall likewise have superiority in the number of fresh reserves....

"In addition the Allies have a material superiority in aircraft beyond dispute; also tanks....

"It's apparent that owing to the [illegible] which the Germans find [illegible] keeping up the strength of their various units at the front a new crisis now is asserting itself....

"In addition to all these indications that the factor of 'material force' is veering around in our favor there can be added the moral ascendancy which has been maintained on our side from the beginning of the battle owing to the fact that the enemy, despite his unprecedented efforts, has been unable to bring about the decisive result he needed to attain....,"

Godbout Cabinet Through Aug. 30

QUEBEC, Aug. 11—(CP).—Members of Premier Godbout's Liberal Government today began clearing up unfinished business around the Quebec Legislature in preparation for the change over to the Union Nationale Government of Maurice Duplessis which will be sworn in August 30. Mr. Duplessis announced the date of the swearing in and it was later confirmed by Mr. Godbout.

The Union Nationale representation in the Legislative Assembly was increased to 47 last night following an official count of ballots in Maisonneuve riding in Montreal where previously a Liberal, Edmond Hamelin, had been reported elected by a majority of 28 votes. The new count gave Dr. J. F. Gatien, Union Nationale, a majority of 39.

The defeat of Mr. Hamelin cut the number of Liberal members to 37, which with four Bloc Populaire members, one C.C.F., and one Nationalist, brought the total Opposition to 43.

Tire Thieves Raid 3 Cars

Tire thieves hit Peterborough hard last night and three car owners are today, lamenting the loss of those hard-to-replace accessories.

Dr. W. N. Hayes, 277 Park street, was another victim. There the booty also consisted of four wheels, tires and tubes.

The third theft was at the home of E. T. "Buster" Johnston, 305 Frederick avenue where one tire and tube and a quantity of tools were stolen.

Jack Ferguson Catches 2 Fish

That old saying "The early bird gets the worm" had better be changed to "The early bird gets the fish,' according to Jack Ferguson, 235 Engleburn Avenue, who hooked an 8¾ pound pickerel early on Thursday morning in the Otonabee River, and was back out this morning, to catch a 12-pound muskie, that measured 36 inches. Trolling, it took Mr. Ferguson only five minutes to land the lengthy muskie, and the same amount of time to bring the pickerel into the boat.

"The pickerel I caught Thursday was practicaly at my back door, just below the C.P.R. bridge near McDonald's Point," he said, "and this morning I got the 'lunge at the mouth of Little Lake, on the Otonabee."

"I'm going out again to-morrow morning, and I'm hoping for something even bigger," he said.

The muskie was hooked with three hooks, while he was trolling using a silk line and lucky-strike bait.

Of the year's appropriation of $14,000, the present balance for the five remaining months is $7,204.11.

Wrong Address

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—(AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey received yesterday a letter addressed to him at the White House with a reminder he doesn't live there. The letter, sent from Brooklyn, was addressed "To the Governor of the United States, Mr. Dewey, White House, Washington, D.C." It reached here stamped twice "Not at White House."

"Loupe" Prices Higher In Short Market

Cantelopes that were $1 the twenty-quart basket Tuesday advanced to $1.80 in the Toronto wholesale market Thursday, and local retail prices are likely to be higher at the week-end on a temporary lag of supply.

"The Leamington crop is just about finished, and the Burlington 'loupes' will not reach the market until next week, probably beginning Monday," George Clark of National Grocers explained to the Examiner this morning. "There is this gap in supply together with a heavy demand as more people than ever are buying, especially during this extended hot spell. The Burlington growers are reported to have a good crop on the way."

Mr. Clark passes out a tip to housewives, based on the prospects of normal weather conditions, that they should plan an excess of preserving of plums and peaches, and especially peaches, to make up for the deficiency in strawberries and raspberries.

"Jubilee and Rochester peaches, of which there is a normal yield, are due next wek, say from the 14th to the 18th and probably a few days longer. Then, the vidette peach should start around Monday the 21st. These are hybrid Crawfords, a free stone peach of the "V" type. They are a good crop and a fine peach, and will no doubt be in strong demand. The Albertas will be ready about the first of September, and are about a 60 per cent crop. If there are no heavy wind storms or hail in the peach districts everybody should be well supplied.

Plums will be available about the same time as the peaches. The early fruit was light and is finished. Green gages are a 60 per cent crop, but the Reincloud plum, choicest of the plums and gages, is a full crop, and can be confidently recommended. The crop of Damsons is very light, and will be a disappointment to those housewives who feel that their fruit stock is not complete without this well known fruit."

As for pears, Mr. Clark said the Bartletts are "a very light crop, and there is not likely to be enough to go around." However, there may be local supplies of pears from the Central Ontario district to make up some of the shortage as the season progresses.

"The grape crop is very good. The price prospect may be indicated by the fact that wineries are paying $65 a ton as compared with $50 last year."

National Grocers ordered 100 baskets of canteloupes Thursday, but receipts today were only 50 baskets.

Tomatoes are ripening fast these hot days, prices have been on the move downward, and top quality stock in the stores is under 50 cents for six quart baskets.

Local Thermometers Spurt Toward 100

Like the Weller description of a gift of the gab, the mercury columns in all local thermometers were to-day "wery gallopin." The only possible exceptions were in refrigeration plants.

The official thermal record at noon was 92 degrees, but the Examiners thermometer was 96 in the shade, and none who stopped to verify their estimates was inclined to dispute it. As reported elsewhere the official level on Thursday was 91.

Domestic gauges this morning began the day 12 degrees over Thursday morning, certain promise of tropic heat before nightfall. Only the Stoics ignored it as a seasonal commonplace, and left it to the conversations of common folks about town, yearning for the intervention of clouds, and otherwise taking it gracelessly on damp chins.

Peterboro Man Decorated; Member Of OBE

A former manager of the Savings Department of the Bank of Montreal here in Peterborough, Acting Major Ernest William Whelpton, 35, Canadian Infantry Corps, has been named a member of the Order of the British Empire in a list of 33 awards announced Thursday by Defence Minister Ralston. He was one of five officers and six men to be so honored.

Major Welpton, whose wife, Mrs. Helen R. Welpton, lives at 210 Poplar Plains Road, Toronto, came from that city to assume the post of Savings Department manager here when the merger of the two branches of the Bank of Montreal occurred in 1939. Previously employed by a branch of the bank in Toronto, he worked here for over a year before joining the Canadian Active Army on June 25, 1940 with the rank of lieutenant.

Major Whelpton has been overseas twice, for the first time between July and November, 1941, when he returned to Canada with the rank of Captain. He proceeded overseas again in May, 1942, and was promoted to the rank of acting major October 14 of the same year.

The former Peterborough banker was connected for a number of years prior to the war with various reserve units in Ontario. He had served with the Grenadier Guards (Toronto), Argyle Sutherland Highlanders, Brockville Rifles and the Prince of Wales Rangers (M.G.).

Two young Peterborough boys arrested in Lakefield at an early hour this morning by Chief Garnet Samis pleaded guilty to vagrancy charges before Magistrate R. B. Baxter in police court today.

At the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., the two, Anthony DeCarlo and Kenneth Fleetwood, were remanded until next week.

A man believed to have been a deserter from the Canadian Army was also picked up by Chief Samis and turned over to the military authorities.

3 Generations Of Murphy Family Set Up Unusual Rescue Record

When the quick action of 17-year-old Dorothy Murphy in bringing a boat to the scene helped to save Mrs. Dorothy Thompson from drowning at Inverlea two weeks ago, she brought a story as thrilling as any movie up-to-date, and carried a family tradition of saving lives into a third generation.

A household word among police and firemen, the Murphy family for many years has made a habit of pulling struggling people from the swift-flowing current of the Otonabee. They have lived on Park Hill road and there is scarcely a year goes by that their help does not save the life of some swimmer.

The late John Murphy had been saving lives many years before 1917 when his eighteen-year-old son, Fred, now a member of the Peterborough fire department, plunged fully dressed into the Otonabee to save Barbara Cook and Dorothy Stuart, who had become exhausted in the water. The Murphy family is noted for courage in jumping into the water, in summer or winter, come what may.

In the spring of 1922, John Murphy, not waiting for ropes, boats or any other safeguard, rushed across the bridge and plunged headlong into the icy waters to save two youngsters, Howard Kendry and Clarence Beebe, who were clinging to a submerged stump in the water after their punt had overturned while they were collecting driftwood When Mr. Murphy reached the boys he quickly brought one into shore, but by the time he went into the water to get the second another man had attempted the rescue and was himself in difficulties. Mr. Murphy saved both the remaining youngster and the man.

Saves Eight

Previous to the Kendry-Beebe rescues, J. Murphy had rescued eight people from the swirling half-mile of water between Auburn dam and the bridge at Inverlea, besides helping to pull many other people from the river when hope of their survival seemed slim.

In 1931, a newspaper report called attention to a "superb piece of life-saving work by a man with a brilliant record of rescues behind him." J. Murphy in this case brought a young boy named Smith, who had become entangled under the water with his fishing line, safely to shore, and revived the boy with artificial respiration. The news item also pointed out that in the 25 years prior to the present rescue Mr. Murphy saved no fewer than 16 people, and gave valuable assistance at the recovery of five more nearly drowned victims. With no medals or rewards bestowed upon him for all this work and fine swimming prowess, a clamor went up from the people, and newspaper columns were often taken up by discussions of Mr. Murphy's rescues The Hon. G. N. Gordon, one of the most ardent supporters of the "medals for Murphy" cause, awarded Mr. Murphy a medal in 1916, for a particularly meritorious record of rescuing people from the river.

Another of Mr. Murphy's sons and present member of the Peterborough police department, Leo Murphy, has also taken part in many rescues from the Otonabee. In July, 1936, he plucked 14-year-old Gerald Hewie from the river, who was drowning in an attempt to save his younger brother, 10-year-old Lionel Hewie. The two boys had gone out to "explore" the eastern banks of the Otonabee in a frail, home-made craft which they found as salvage in the river just above Auburn, and the boat had overturned in the swift current. Leo, hearing cries from a man who was trimming trees in the Oval, rushed to the scene, and rescued the elder boy who was "just bobbing in the water." Forty minutes later, the 10-year-old lad was brought up from the river on a pike-pole.

Total Unknown

The resume of rescues listed is necessarily small and are but a few of the adventures gleaned from the files of the newspapers of that day. How many rescues went on that were never fully reported, and the story never completely told, is a theme of courage that must have remained with John Murphy until he passed away 11 years ago.

At the Inverlea incident a few weeks ago bystanders were amazed at the skill of 17-year-old Dorothy Murphy in bringing a boat to where the rescue was taking place. In every sense of the word, Dorothy Murphy is carrying the family tradition proudly, and there are undoubtedly many in Peterborough today who can look back on the years and thank the Murphy family for their lives.

FIFTH BIRTHDAY OVERSEAS —Cpl. F. Joseph Millar, son of Mrs. Charlotte Seeney, 154 Wolsley street, and the late Robert M. Millar, is today celebrating his fifth birthday overseas. He enlisted with the H. and P.E. Regiment in March, 1940, and is now with the R.C.O.C. in Italy. A brother, Flt.-Sgt. Robert Millar, is with the R.C.A.F. at Uplands.

Wool Tops Case Sends Man To Higher Court

Fred Smith was committed for trial by Magistrate R. B. Baxter in police court this morning on a charge of stealing a quantity of wool tops and burlapping from the possession of G. Whitaker and Sons.

Evidence for the crown had been completed a week ago and the case had been enlarged until today at the request of defence counsel John A. Bradshaw.

This morning Mr. Bradshaw informed the court that he did not propose to call any evidence and Smith stated that he had no statement to make.

Bail was fixed at $3,000 in spite of a request from defence counsel that it should be lowered. He said that up to the present Smith had been unable to secure bail.

"I am informed that the value of the stolen goods was around $2,500," said Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., "so I do not think that there is anything unreasnoable in fixing the bail at $3,000."

Charlotte St. Brawl Aired

As an aftermath of a recent disturbance on Charlotte street in front of the Hotel Champlain a number of persons found themselves facing charges in police court this morning.

Aonmg them was Nicholas Orlando who was arrested in Toronto yesterday and brought down to Peterborough by Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher and Officer C. J. McGillen.

Orlando was charged with assaulting Margaret Revoy and pleaded not guilty.

He was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair and the case was dismissed on payment of $6.20 costs after the crown offered no evidence. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., told the court that the complainant wished to withdraw the charge and she confirmed that statement.

Mrs. Ruth Lee Bouvaire, described as the wife of a soldier and Mrs. Gladys Kent, 501 Wolsley street pleaded not guilty to creating a disturbance. Mrs. Alma Ronco, similarly charged, was unable to attend because of illness, her father explained and all these cases were adjourned by Magistrate R. B. Baxter for a week.

OVERSEAS THREE YEARS — Cfn. Walter A. Bignell, R.C.E. M.E., who enlisted in July, 1940, has been overseas three years. His wife, formerly Gladys Wynne, is living with her two sons, Terry, aged 4 years, and Lawrence, aged 2 years and four months, at 24 Edgewater Blvd. Cfn. Bignell, who has not seen his youngest son, landed in France in July.

Robot Victims Given $50 By Church Group

Far greater success usually attends any work or labor of love that is done in a cheerful manner, an evidence of which has been found in the success which has attended the efforts of the Cheerful Workers Bible Class of St. Jame's Church, who in addition to other things of a welfare and christian nature, have raised and given considerable help to the sufferers from enemy air raid attacks over Britain ever since the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund commenced to operate

In the first few days that the und began to make its daily appeal, this Class came forward with a donation of $100.00, which they have since repeated at every Christmastide, and now, adding to the very creditable help they have already given, this same group is represented in to-days receipts with another $50.00 through Mrs. W. J. Swanger their treasurer, no doubt inspired by a desire to be of the utmost in giving help, with the increased need occasioned by the devastation wrought by the latest attacks with robot bombs by the enemy from the shores of France and Belgium.

In this manner, they give a very apt and practical demonstration of the Christian teachings under whose auspices they are banded together as a group, being real followers of Him who spent his life in going about doing good for others.

Another personal gift of $5.00 is noted in to-days list also, following on a list of such that appeared on Thursday, this appearing under the acknowledgement of "E.F.D." who has also given on previous occasions to succor the distress of the bomb victims in Britain.

Gladiolus Show To Assist

Next Wednesday and Thursday, August 16 and 17 will see the 2nd annual show by the Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society, and the Peterborough Aquarium Society being jointly held in the Market Hall, which this year will be bigger and even better than the very successful event of a like nature held last year at this time.

There will be a draw each evening for five prizes, which have been donated for that purpose by W. E. Franks Furniture Store, Canada Packers Ltd., Fred Cripps, the ladies of the E.O.G.S., Howard Hall, Nesbitt Funeral Co., H. S. Routley China Shop, N. T. Routley, Grocer, the W. M. German Nurseries and R. C. Braund, Grocer, tickets for which have been on sale for some time, and which can be procured from members of either society.

These tickets admit bearers to the show on either day, and in addition there will also be special door prizer given, at no further cost to those who attend. Many entries from outside the city are expected, this being indicated by the numerous enquiries already received, and anyone desiring information in regards to entries (which may also be made without further cost), should get in touch with H. B. Ball, telephone 9102, C. H. Bacon, telephone 9021, or F. H. Storey telephone 9292.

At the close of the show last year, all the flowers were on exhibit were sold, and the returns added to the proceeds to aid the fund. Some of the very finest specimens grown are to be found among these flowers, and it is hoped that J. H. Miles will be on hand on Thursday night to assist dispose of them in a similar manner to again assist the worthy cause for which the whole returns from the show will go to.

Farm Symphony Hits Climax Of Field Work

Farm work across Ontario during the last ten days has been a conglomerate of threshing, cutting grain, hauling hay, cultivating in root fields and even some plowing, according to the weekly report of the provincial Department of Agriculture.

However, the grain crop and its threshing are the stars of the act, holding the front of the stage and getting along toward the end of their performance. As with the rest of the season's schedule the farmers in the western half of the province are considerably ahead of their eastern neighbors, and in this section some of the work is a week ahead of last year.

The continued hot, dry weather has been favorable to field operations, but this condition of drought or at least of subnormal rainfall is parching the pastures and reducing the flow of milk.

Renfrew presents a report typical of the eastern area of the province: "Almost every farmer in the county has been busy harvesting oats, barley, mixed grains, spring wheat. About 60 per cent of the crop has been cut; considerable amount of second cut alfalfa was also harvested during the week."

Peterborough: "Some farmers have finished harvesting." But in Frontenac: "About 60 per cent of the farmers are through haying."

Lennox-Addington has cut about 90 per cent of the spring grain, and this is about a week ahead of the average. Loss from rust has been considerable, especially in the Cartier variety. "All vegetable crops have made excellent growth."

Glengarry pullets are being offered for sale at $1.50 for birds about ready to lay. Prince Edward notes that the price of lambs is lower than at this time last year. A Muskoka farmers reports a yield of Warba potatoes in the ratio of 30 to 1. "Local pork supplies are decidedly short with prices at the ceiling tops."

Much stock threshing is being done in North Simcoe. Melville Hanna held a Yorkshire sale last week. Prices averaged $50 for young and old stock. Buyers came all the way from Alberta to New York State.

Toronto 'commandos' have been helping in Halton. Last week their contribution was equivalent to 225 days' work.

Lincoln comments: "Quite a number of enquiries are being received from parties wishing to spend their vacations picking peaches and grapes in the Niagara district. It is almost impossible to get experienced help."

Ontario farmers, in brief, have reached the climax of their 1944 harvest crescendo.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, August 12.

A conspicuous chance for pushing bold ventures, large ideas and visions, and major new propositions to cherished goals, is indicated by the interesting planetary aspects. Working along ambitious lines in connection with important persons or institutions may lead toward high objectives, or under similar auspices there might be a move to attaining influential political or diplomatic power. Work discreetly for this preferment, and also promote ambitions of a more cultural relationship.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of great achievement in the direction of new, important and perhaps dramatic goals and in connection with big business or public corporations. Diplomatic, political or even intellectual and cultural affiliations may likewise be stimulated, and should be sought with discretion and finesse. Be not surprised at some sudden rift, or disruptive events, subtlety or baffling loss.

A child born on this day may have great versatility, creative ability and craft, but a soft, luxurious and indulgent nature may defeat its prospective success.

CHILDREN ARE SELF-CENTERED
They Feel They Owe Parents Nothing But Lip Service.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have three children whom I love very much, two girls, ages 14 and 10, and a 12-year-old-boy. Sometimes they seem to love me very much. They are always planning surprises for me, rush to meet me when I return from work and are respectful and polite at all times. But whenever I ask small favors of them or send them on short errands, they whine and sulk and complain that other fathers do not do that.

I am sure that they are far from being overworked and I like to think that a father can ask his children to do things for him once in a while. Do you think my children have a dislike for me?

PUZZLED PAPA.

No Sense of Obligation

ANSWER — Certainly not. From your own account, they must be unusually devoted to you. The only reason that they whine and sulk when you ask them to make a small return for all you do for them is because they are children and selfish and self-centered and have no sense of any obligation to you. Children think about their fathers pretty much as they do about God, as the source from which all blessings flow, and it doesn't occur to them that they owe them anything but lip service or a perfunctory "thank you" now and then.

I doubt if children ever think of their father as someone who works hard to provide them with a good home; who goes shabby that they might have fine clothes; who never takes a vacation so that they may go off to camps in the summer. They just take him for granted as a specimen of the genus homo whose natural habitat is the office or the factory; who has a queer fancy for old clothes, and who prefers the tail end of the steak and the backbone of the chicken. They feel that he was somehow provided by Nature for their convenience and it isn't up to them to make any returns for favors received.

Children have to be civilized and socialized, and you have to do it by making the youngsters, from their infancy up, do something for Pop besides working him.

DEAR MISS DIX—The question I want to ask you is: What do you think is the reason my husband never asks me to come to his office? Occasionally I go downtown to meet my husband but I always wait for him downstairs. If he is still busy, he wants me to wait in the car. But he never suggests that I should come upstairs and wait for him in his office.

CURIOUS WIFE.

ANSWER—The reason husbands do not like their wives to come to their offices is because a wife in a office is a disrupting factor. She breaks up the routine and slows the tempo down. Her advent changes the whole atmosphere of the place.

The husband has to pretend to be overjoyed and give her a glad welcome, no matter how rushed with business he is. She has to be introduced all around. If the husband is talking with a man with whom he has been trying to put through a deal that he has been working on for months, everything goes to pot because the strange man won't talk business with a strange woman listening in.

And generally the wife glowers at Miss Pothooks and Miss Pothooks glowers back because she will be kept overtime by the letters she could have gotten through of the wife hadn't come.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband has all of his insurance made out to his mother and refuses to change it. Don't you think he should carry it for the baby and me? My insurance has been made out to him. I have been considering changing the beneficiary.

A READER.

ANSWER—I think the wife and baby should have priority unless the mother is old and helpless while the wife is young and able to be self-supporting.

If your husband pays the premiums on your insurance, he has the right to expect to be the beneficiary of it.

THE NEW SIDE DRAPING—The transition dress which gets you past the jaded last days of Summer comfortably into Fall is usually black. Here we have it with many a forward looking style sign to recommend it . . . the side drape, the bulky top, the cut off, even sleeveless effect at the shoulder. Not the least of the charms of this particular model is, however, hidden charm . . . until you read the tag which comes with it. The black fabric from which the dress is made has been tested by laboratory experience for dry cleaning, and the tag tells you that the model will retain shape and color after repeated trips to the dry cleaner.

Carnelian August Birthstone Said To Give Poise, Healing

Do you want to be calm, cool and collected at all times, and to have a handy little gadget to stop the flowing of blood, as well as a safeguard from the sting of envy? Try a carnelian ring. Yes, the carnelian, according to custom, does all these things, and confers honors too! Another of its useful properties is its power to help people who have difficulty in speaking because of timidness, since it's guaranteed, according to the ancients, to give them the courage and assurance they lack.

The custom of wearing birthstones, as it is known today, is not in itself an old idea, since the wearing of natal stones is first mentioned in Poland sometime during the 18th century. However, the custom of wearing precious stones for protection against disease and danger, and their use as remedies for sickness, and talismans, dates back to very early days.

Mention of the practice has been found in the writings of Josephus, in the first century, A.D. and St. Jerome, in the fifth century, A.D. but their use dates back much further than that, since each zodical sign has a stone, and traces of them have been found in early Egyptian tombs.

In a way, the idea of using the stones strictly for their medicinal properties, of their powers of protection, was a good idea, since a certain stone, not necessarily the birthstone of the patient, would often have to be recommended by the doctor for a particular ailment. The therapeutic value of the carnelian, the birthstone for August, is along similar lines to most of the red and rose-colored stones, in that it is supposed to be a sovereign remedy for hemorrhages—the hue of the stone being naturally connected with the color of blood.

Special Inscription

Ancient Egyptians placed great stock in the carnelian's magic powers, and believed that it protected souls on their journey through the realm of the dead. Since they considered the heart the seat of life, carnelians were usually cut in heart shape, and engraved with a chapter from the Book of the Dead, an ancient scroll describing the soul's journey through the realm of the dead. Everything was down to a science, and it was customary to engrave certain chapters from this all-important book upon certain stones, the 29th chapter being designated for the carnelian. These precious stones were also used in various amulets and good luck charms, and are commonly found in tombs, where most of the personal effects of the diseased were buried with him.

The Romans also gave credence to the therapeutic and safe-guarding qualities of the carnelian, and often engraved astrological symbols on the stone, as double insurance, calling upon the protective powers of the stone and the sign also. In the "Book of Wings", by Ragiel, published in the 13th century, various precious and semi-precious stones were listed, with the powers they were supposed to contain, and instructions as to the particular engraving which should be put on certain stones to increase their potency. Of the carnelian it says, "A man, richly dressed, with a beautiful object in his hand, engraved upon a carnelian, will check the flow of blood, and confer honors." The latter property is really secondary, since practically every stone mentioned in the book manages to "confer honors" upon its wearer.

Sign of Mohammed

Since the prophet Mohammed is supposed to have worn a silver ring set with a carnelian, on the little finger of his right hand, his followers put great faith in it, and believed that the stone had the power to curb envy. General beliefs however, tend to give it the power of stopping hemorrhages and curing inflammatory diseases, as well as exercising a calming influence and removing anger and discord.

Here are some other little odds and ends about the birthstone for August: it is the stone connected with James, in the New Testament; it's zoological sign is Virgo; the poppy is the flower connected with the carnelian, and it is the stone for Thursday. Any girl named Clara should have exceptional help from a carnelian, since it is associated prominently with that name.

The alternate birthstone for August is the sardonyx, and it is equally correct. However, a great many people prefer to wear the carnelian, since it is a more attractive stone.

Dowsett from Cedar Brae.

Only a stroke off the par-or-better pace of the 12 leading shot producers were Gordon Brydson, Mississauga's Ontario Open champion, and Millar finalist Gord DeLaat with 72's.

Dowsett Tops Amateurs

Dowsett's par 71 topped the amateur contingent by a margin of two strokes. Closest to the Cedar Brae player was stocky Ken Black from Vancouver's Capilano Club, and former Canadian amateur champion, who had 73. Nick Wisnock of Burlington took a 40 while hunting Scarboro's fairway secrets on the first nine, and then proved he had solved the problem by returning in 34 for 74. It beat out Phil Farley, Scarboro's perennial amateur title collector by a stroke.

First Visit Since 1936

The sun-bronzed Al Watrous who picked up the Canadian Open crown at Mount Bruno in 1922, last competed here in 1936. He finished in a tie with Paul Runyan for third place in the Canadian Open Lawson Little won at St. Andrews with an all-time record count of 271 (George Coles please note).

Playing what he confessed to be some of his best golf in years, Watrous stepped off eight pars and a birdie for his out-trip 35. Returning he had three birds and was one over at the 14th.

Bob Burns' round was a study in links workmanship. He never strayed above par at any stage and injected into his score one bird on the first nine, two on the second.

Stan Horne, one of the Dominion's top scorers in Canadian Open competition for many years, did a Merriwell finished for his 69. He was out in 38 with a six at the par four fifth. He started cooking with birdies at the 10th, shaved a stroke off par at the 15th, 16th and 17th and practically knocked the chalkman off the scoreboard platform by recording a 31.

Horne's finish represented one of the hottest golf performances in major competition here in many years. It matched a second nine 31 marked up by Sam Snead in the first round of the Canadian Open at Scarboro in 1940. Sam had to bag an eagle and two birdies for his trick.

Today the field gallops another 18 holes, same starting times as Thursday. Low 60 players will remain in the 36-hole grind Saturday.

Stokoe Pitches

and Jim Ellis each came through with three base hits. Altogether Plazas had 20 hits for a total of 29 bases.

There was no sensational fielding plays but Tony McIlveen had a busy night with six catches in centre field for the losers and Ossie Anderson started a neat double-play. For Plazas, who fielded steadily all night, Pryde had a couple of nice grabs in right field.

Soldiers had a great chance in the first when Anderson dropped a single into left and Mortimer bunted safely, Anderson going to third and Mortimer to second on the throw to the red light corner. McIlveen however lined to Tucker, Murphy popped to Kingdon and after Morgan had walked to fill the bases, Herrick was tossed out by Tucker.

Plazas Big Second

Plazas got more than enough runs to win the ball game in the second, all of them unearned at that. Ellis opened with a single to right. Hawks popped to Anderson. Mike Conroy drew a pass. Stokoe rolled to Murphy and Ellis was safe at third when Paris dropped the shortstop's throw. Wilson running for Stokoe started to steal second with the bases full and when Thomlison threw to Morgan Ellis beat the return throw to the plate with a long slide. Wilson got back safely to first. Kingdon flied to Herrick in short right. Phil Pryde then hammered a long homer down the left field foul line to score Conroy and Stokoe in front of him. Tucker flied to Herrick to end the inning.

Soldiers got their only run in the third. Anderson walked, went to second while Kingdon was tossing out Mortimer, to third on a passed ball and scored on McIlveen's short fly to centre. Murphy bunted and was safe when Ellis dropped Hawks' toss. Morgan popped to Ellis. Herrick rolled to Tucker and got a life when the Plaza shortstop dropped the ball when McIlveen collided with him. Incidentally he was the last Soldier batter to get on base for Thomlison rolled to Kingdon to retire the side and for the last six innings not a Soldier reached the runways.

Plazas made it 5 to 1 in the fourth. Hawks singled to left and Conroy sacrificed him to second. Stokoe flied to Morgan. Kingdon got a single on a roller which Morgan fielded but could not make a play on. Pryde rolled to Murphy who tried for Conroy at the plate but Conroy slid under the throw to score. Tucker forced Kingdon at third.

The top blew off the ball game in the seventh when Plazas scored seven runs. Blewett flied to Morgan to start with but Starr slashed a single to short and Ellis pushed another over second. Hawks whistled a single through Paris scoring Starr. Conroy beat out a little tap in front of the plate, Ellis scoring. Stokoe forced Hawks at third with a roller to Paris. Kingdon singled to centre scoring Conroy and when the throw-in got away from Thomlison as the runner collided with him at the plate, Wilson running for Stoke also registered. Pryde homered over Mortimer's head in left, Kingdon crossing the plate ahead of him. Tucker laced a double past third and came home when Blewett handcuffed Morgan with a vicious drive that went for a single. Starr ended the route with a long fly to Tony McIlveen.

That was all until the ninth when with Revoir pitching for the Soldiers Blewett boomed a long triple over McIlveen's head and Starr beat out a bounder to short for a hit, Blewett scoring. Ellis flied deep to McIlveen.

Mining News

TORONTO, Aug. 11—(CP)—The mining groups and the industrials were stronger and the western oils slightly weaker in the early session. Volume totalled 317,000 shares for the first three hours.

The Yellowknife issues led the gainers, Giant adding 40 cents, Frobisher 20, Conwest 10, Negus 5 and Bear 6. Prices were up moderately for Pioneer, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Francoeur and Wasa Lake. West Malartic took a drop of 20 cents to 1.45.

Smelters, Ventures and Nickel were stronger base metals.

Moderate strength was shown in the industrial section for the utilities and the papers. Canada Packers gained 1½ to 106½.

Thursday Night Peak For Water Pumpage

The city's waterworks reached a pumpage rate of 8,500,000 gallons an hour Thursday evening between 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock, the summer's peak and close to the department's all time record.

Flower and vegetable gardens were wilted after another day of August heat, lawns had baked under the long day's torrid sun, to the outdoor hosing the people added to the pumpage volume 5,277,000 gallons for Thursday, by much bathing in tubs and showers. Hardier folks finished off with more than the usual recourse to the cold tap against a febrile peak that was common to the humanity of Peterborough and all of Ontario, for that matter.

Canadians Use Remodelled "Battle-Taxis"

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 11—(CP Cable)—The armored vehicles which carried Canadian infantry in the night attack at the start of the Canadian army offensives down the Falaise highway were converted "priests" — American self-propelled guns used by Canadian artillery.

In preparing these "battle-taxis" for the infantry the priests' guns were taken out to make room for 15 soldiers and extra armor plating was added to vulnerable spots. They were quickly nicknamed "de-frocked priests."

Normally this tracked vehicle is a field gun mounted on a tank chassis, and a turret on the front of the hull gave it the original name of "priest."

When the attack was planned the Canadian general directing it felt it was imperative for the infantry to have armor protection in their hazardous advance into German defence lines in the darkness. He ordered the workshops to convert a considerable number of these self-propelled guns into troop carriers. The first Germans who saw them last Monday thought they were tanks charging right down on them in the night.

They were further confused when no fire came from the mystery vehicles and when half a platoon of infantry leaped from them they were completely dumbfounded. Canadian infantrymen are enthusiastic about the armored carriers and think they are the answer to getting them over fire-swept ground speedily and without severe casualties.

Signals Centre Grooms Men For Sports Meet

KINGSTON, Aug. 11.—A strong bid for top honors in the forthcoming track and field meet of Military District No. 3 to be held at Cornwall on August 23 will be made by athletes of the Canadian Signals Training Centre, Vimy. Signals recently held their annual camp sports day to determine the contestants they will place in the field and officials there are confident that their entrants will hold up the training centre's past reputation.

Twenty-year-old Pte. A. Leonard, Toronto, who had no previous running experience until he joined the army, was clocked at 17.12 for the 3-mile run and 5.6 for the one mile running and his supporters believe that he will outdo those times at the Cornwall show.

In the sprint races, Signals' hope rests with AC.-2 R. D. MacDonald and Lt. R. H. Wootten. MacDonald hails from Victoria, B.C., where he was prominent in High school athletics. He turned in times of 10 and a half and 24 seconds for the 100-yard and 220-yard sprints. Wootten, a Toronto officer, was 2 seconds behind MacDonald on the 220-yard sprint, being clocked at 24 and a half seconds.

Former all-round athlete at Queen's University, 2-Lt. W. R. Roberts carries Signals' expectations for the 440-yard run. In the 880-yard run 2-Lt. J. C. Carlyle, formerly of the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, is expected to better his previous record of 2.50 and 2-5 registered at the Vimy sports day. AC.-2 A. E. Hills, who won the grand aggregate for the individual trophy at Vimy on August 5th, is another athlete who is expected to add great strength to the Vimy team. Hills also comes from Vancouver and in 1943 was junior champion at the inter-High Caledonian games.

C.W.A.C. Has Star Too

The Canadian Women's Army Corps at Signals will place an outstanding track and field star in Corporal Lois Markell. A Moose Jaw girl who has been with the C.W.A.C. since May, 1942, Cpl. Markell formerly competed in High school meets in Western Canada and was the outstanding C.W.A.C. entry in a sports meet held at St. Jerome, Quebec, under the auspices of Military District No. 4. In the Signals' show she obtained first place with a jump of 4 feet, 2 inches, and also took first honors in the running board jump, scoring a distance of 4 feet, 5 inches. Cpl. Markell also placed first in the 60-yard dash and a team of which she was a member placed first in two relay events.

Major F. I. Tanner, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, is confident that the M.D. 3 sports meet at Cornwall will be most successful in the history of army sports in this district. Working with Major Tanner is an able committee whose interest in the undertaking already assures its success.

Other training centres and establishments throughout the district are now determining, through play-offs, the contestants they will enter in the meet and there is every indication that only top-notch athletes in their field will compete.

Quaker Team Clips Brintons

Behind in the early stages, Quaker Oats fought back fiercely in an Industrial League softball game played at Memorial Park Thursday evening, until a four-run rally in the seventh frame gave them a one-run lead, and they took the game from the Brintons 9 to 8.

Hitting star for Brintons was Rose, who batted a sizzling home-run in the seventh innings, and Phillips, who also hit a homer in the eighth. In both cases, there were no runners on bases, which would have otherwise given the game to Brintons. Weaver batted a homer for the Quakers in the seventh inning.

Fisher pitched for the Quakers, fanning two and walking one, and Craig hurled for the Brinton team, fanning four and walking five.

The teams:

Quakers—Sullivan, 2b; Roote, ss; Horton, lf; Gunn, c; Fisher, p; Townsend, 1b; Willshaw, cf; Tice, rf; Weaver, 3b.

Brintons—Corbett, 1b; Dorrell, 3b; Rose, lf; Byers, c; Weese, ss; Kingdon, cf; McLarrity, 2b; Phillips, rf; Craig, p.

Score by innings:

Quakers	200 003 40x	9
Brintons	200 310 110	8

London Seems Ontario's Best

LONDON, Ont., August 11—(CP)—London's hard-hitting major inter-county team to-day appeared to be the one to beat for the Canadian Congress Sandlot baseball championship as a result of their impressive 13-1 victory over Toronto Tip Tops in a quarter-final round game here last night.

To-night they meet the Nickel Belt champions from Sudbury in a semi-final bracket and Toronto Mahers, who eked out an 8-7 victory over Stratford Nationals last night, meet Kingston Ponies in the other semi-final. The final will be played to-morrow night.

London took no pity on Tip Tops, last year's Toronto and District champions, scoring almost at will. Tommy White and Hank Biasatti took turns pitching for the winners who marked up 17 runs in the first five innings while holding Toronto scoreless. By agreement the game was cut to seven innings.

Mahers edged Stratford only after the lead changed hands five times in the last four innings and despite the fact they made nine errors.

Yarnell, though hit often, went all the way for the Toronto team, recent winers of their district title. Mahers scored two in the ninth inning to win out after Stratford had moved into a 7-6 lead in the eighth. Each team got 12 hits, but Stratford made only three errors.

Golfers Start Third Round Next Sunday

By ANDY RUTTER

The third round of the C. G. Graham mixed two ball foursome tournament has been announced for Sunday, August 13, and players are requested to tee off as soon after 1 p.m. as possible.

G. Whiting and Mary Strickland are drawn against Bob Abbott and Margaret Abbott. J. M. Watson and Mrs. S. McBride will play against Mrs. J. M. Watson and Stanley McBride. Russel Kitchen and Miss M. Hatton will play Max Lauder and Miss O. Hutchings. Mr. and Mrs. J. McKercher will receive a bye into the next round.

In the consolation round A. Rutter and Florence Leach must play Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Steer for the privilege of meeting Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Degraw. The winners of this match will then advance into the final round against the winners of the second bracket which finds W. E. McCreery and Miss Johnston playing against Hec Thompson and Miss I. Bullock. Therefore, in Sunday's games Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Degraw and Mr. and Mrs. J. McKercher will not be playing and it is suggested these teams get together for a friendly round.

Earlier in the year it had been hoped that losers in the second round of the Graham Trophy could be redrawn into a consolation round, but the surprisingly large number of entries made such a plan impossible and the Match and Handicap Committee are arranging a sweepstakes for other two ball foursome teams who wish to play on Sunday afternoon. Please get in touch with your partner at once and arrange a game with some other team which has been defeated or be on hand Sunday afternoon and the game will be arranged for you at the first tee.

The next mixed two ball foursome date will be Sunday, September 10, and all games in the Graham Trophy or consolation round must be completed by that date with the exception of the final round. It is planned that a general get-together with all mixed two ball foursome teams should be held on September 10 at which time the teams left in the final brackets of both tournaments will play off. Arrangements are being made to present the prizes and to serve a luncheon on that date.

In Sunday's round players are asked to take into consideration any changes in men's handicap which might be in effect. No change has been made in the ladies' handicap. Strokes will be allowed where they appear on the men's card. Stymies will not be played.

STANDARD DOUBLE SQUEEZE

In the standard double squeeze, the eleventh trick is the one which ruins the opponents. There are times, however, when the entry situation is such that the tenth trick is the logical time for it. Usually, this rare play includes the top two cards of some suit opposite each other, with a doubleton in one hand and a trebleton in the other.

West: ♠ K 3; ♥ Q 8 3; ♦ K Q J 9; ♣ 10 6 5 2
East: ♠ 9 6 4; ♥ J 10 7; ♦ 8 3 2; ♣ A K 9 8
South: ♠ A Q 10 8 7 5 2; ♥ A 5 2; ♦ 6 4; ♣ Q

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♦	Pass

West sent his diamond K to the A, and South promptly lost the finesse of the spade J to the K. West scored the diamond J, and led the club 2 to the K. Now South needed all the rest of the tricks. He ruffed the diamond 8 return with the spade 8, and ran five other spades.

Everybody had four cards when the last spade was led. South's other three were his hearts. In the dummy he had kept the heart K-9, the diamond 10 and the club J. Both East and West had held onto their three hearts, and West also had the diamond Q to fend off the 10, and East the club A to cancel the J. But on the spade 5, West had to discard. Obliged to retain the diamond Q to keep from setting up the 10, he could do nothing but discard a heart. The diamond 10 was then tossed from dummy, and East was on the spot. If he discarded his Club A, the J and two diamonds would have given South his contract, so he threw a heart. Thereupon the heart K, the 9 to the A and the 5 finished the hand.

German Elite Troops Try To Stop Canucks

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 11 (CP Cable)—The Germans have thrown veteran S.S. troops in the path of the 1st Canadian Army's attack, and although the Canadian-British attack has been slowed down, it is still moving forward.

There was fighting all along the Falaise front, following a series of counter-attacks which the Canadian column beat off earlier.

Troops under Gen. Crerar's command have captured more ground on the left flank. One force has taken the village of Estrees la Campagne, three miles northeast of Potigny. And an advance element drove south to high ground overlooking the Liason River.

This push on the left flank brought these troops up to a line approximately conforming to that gained by Canadian troops on the right. The leading Canadian spearhead still is about five miles from Falaise.

Along the left flank running north towards Vimont fighting has again broken out in St. Sylvain which was taken yesterday. The Germans are steadily being beaten out of this town.

On the Vimont sector of the Canadian Army operation British troops under Gen. Crerar have advanced about 2½ miles toward Vimont, nine miles southeast of Caen, which is believed to be strongly held.

Nazis Recovery

The Germans have recovered from the initial shock of the Canadian Army attack which burst through their defence line astride the Falaise highway and now they have pieced together a jig-saw defence arc running along the left flank of our advance from the Liason River on the south to Vimont on the north.

This is a hectic effort to stabilize their positions while reinforcements are brought up. The usual screen of 88-millimeter guns, self-propelled guns and assault guns has been strung out over the sloped-in front of the Liason River which flows northeast from the Falaise area. The Liason is the next river obstacle on the left flank.

This new German gun-screen is a makeshift job and nothing like the defence lines the Canadians broke in their push along the Falaise highway.

Police Recover Stolen Jewelry

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 11—(CP)—Police said Thursday John Bikow, 24-year-old factory worker, had been arrested on a nominal charge of vagrancy after rings and watches valued at more than $1,000 were found in his possession.

The jewelry was identified as part of $5,000 worth of merchandise stolen June 27 from the James Dyett jewelry store at Hamilton, Ont., in what police described as the largest theft of its kind in that city.

Meanwhile in Hamilton J. W. Thompson, inspector of detectives, said warrants were being issued for the arrest of two other London men in connection with the same case.

Quebec Papers Discuss Election Claim Results Show Resentment

MONTREAL, August 11—(CP)—While an element of uncertainty and confusion remained to-day in Quebec's general election that produced a split down the middle of the popular vote, the province's newspapers Wednesday set forth in editorials their views on the close, hard-fought battle.

There was a tendency to keep in mind the possibility that Premier Adelard Godbout might constitutionally remain in office with his Liberal Government, but it was generally accepted that the Union Nationale forces under Hon. Maurice Duplessis had "won the election."

The result was variously interpreted as a demand for provincial autonomy, an expression of war-weariness and resentment against Federal restrictive measures, and as posing the possibility of another election soon.

L'Action Catholique of Quebec saw "two main reasons for the Liberal setback": 1—"The people of the Province of Quebec are tired of war, of the coercion imposed upon draftees; of the billions given England; of restrictions; of rationing, etc.

"2—In general, the electorate has little confidence in third parties." (The Bloc Populaire Party, with a heavy entry of candidates, ran far behind Liberals and Union Nationale.)

Sherbrooke Record (Independent): "Perhaps one of the highlights of the voting was the complete reserve of traditional form in the constituencies, district, such as Westmount, Notre Dame de Grace and other English-speaking divisions, which had been strong supporters of the Conservative cause in the past came out in surprising strength for the Liberal candidates, while other historically Liberal centres came out for the Union National candidates."

Not Anti-British

Montreal le Devoir (Bloc Populaire) said that during the campaign the English-language press "represented the two main parties which opposed the government and which in the end have determined its undoubted defeat—the Union Nationale and the Bloc Populaire Canadien—as anti British, anti-imperialist, isolationist, anti-conscriptionist and anti-participationist parties . . . the affirmation . . . was false and deceitful. Never did Mr. Laurendeau (Bloc Populaire leader), or Mr. Duplessis, in any of their speeches, say a word which could have been taken, in all honesty, as anti-British or isolationist. Neither of the two ever advocated the exit of the Province of Quebec from confederation. As to the anti-conscription, anti-participation feeling, wanted by Mr. King (Prime Minister MacKenzie King) and his ministers, Quebec ones included, there is no doubt that Mr. Laurendeau expressed it many times, in clear and precise formulae. Numerous Union Nationale candidates did the same. And that feeling they expressed was that of the Province of Quebec and French aCnada, a feeling which was well felt in 1942 by the formidable 'no' of the plebiscite. The result of yesterday's election is, manifestly, a reiteration of the 'no' pronounced at the occasion of the plebiscite by nearly the whole of the population, not of the province of Quebec but of French Canada."

Le Nouvelliste (Liberal) Three Rivers, said that "what was called old-line parties" had not lost the confidence of the people.

Quebec showed "in a categoric way, that our province resisted all appeals to racial prejudices to maintain their confidence in the two groups which have a political tradition . . . Quebec gave an evident denial to all those who pretended that our province had separatist tendencies . . . furthermore, it was evident that socialist tendencies of other parties in the country have no grip in Quebec."

The Montreal Gazette (Independent), its editorial headed "Duplessis Wins," he said: "....The electorate has rebuked Premier Adelard Godbout for what it regards as the surrender of its provincial autonomy to Ottawa, and for what has appeared to it to be too close co-operation with the Federal Government in its war participation and emergency measures......The desire for change has been strong in the Quebec electorate, and the National Unionists have been chosen as the middle ground.....The people of Quebec have administered a rebuke also to the National Government......It remains to be seen if he (Duplessis) can distinguish between the proper preservation of provincial rights and a return to narrow provincialism.... The violence of the Bloc was too much for Quebec to swallow. It has had its days.'

Montreal Le Canada (Liberal), heading its editorial "A Salute to Mr. Godbout," said: "The fight was unequal because all the arms of passion, prejudice and fanaticism were turned against him who had only reason for his defence, and reason is a weak shield when war, with all its hardship and confusion, crazeyprit and blinds even the clearest thinking intelligence."

4. A clothing allowance of $100;
5. A rehabilitation credit equal to the service gratuity, $450.

The private, in his example, would be entitled to a total of $1,077, Mr. Macdonald said.

The gratuity would be paid in installments over a certain period but the private on discrarge could collect in a lump sum the clothing allowance, the seven days' pay and allowances for every six months credit.

The rehabilitation credit would, however, only be paid for certain specified purposes, such as a down payment on a home, the payment of insurance policies or for rehabilitative purposes.

Mr. Macdonald said that sailors serving in shore establishments within the western hemisphere—North and South America, Bermuda and the West Indies and Newfoundland—would be paid the gratuities on the basis of service in Canada. The men would be paid overseas rates for any time they served on ships or bases that were considered overseas areas.

Canadian Fliers Stationed On Red Sea

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN ADEN, Aug. 11—(CP)—Canadian airmen, stationed here in pre-war quarters, operate with the Middle East command to patrol the Gulf of Aden, Indian Ocean, Red Sea and Persian Gulf. The R.C.A.F. men watch, too, over troops transports to and from the Far East, merchantmen with supplies for the Middle East, American ships bound for Russia and tankers from the Iraq oil fields.

Aden, main base from which they can operate, is "infamous" for its climate. No rain has fallen in three years, but despite the heat the men manage to live comfortably.

Flying is dangerous and difficult. Visibility is often less than a mile in the monsoon season.

Canadians from every province are among the crews flying Wellingtons on nine-hour "stooges" over the sea lanes.

Among the Ontario men are FO. N. S. Babock, St. Thomas; FO. F. W. New, Windsor; LAC. W. C. Hopkins, Welland; Flt.-Sgt. R. E. Seney, Blenheim.

8th Army Captures Florence Beautiful Italian City; Polish Troops Gain Ground

Cradle Of Italian Art And Culture Spared Ravages Of Battle As Germans Withdraw During Night

By LYNN HEINZERLING—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, Aug. 12—(AP).—The Germans withdrew all their forces from Florence today and the ancient cradle of Italian art and culture was spared from the ravages of battle. British 8th Army troops, who have refrained from firing on the northern part of the city lying beyond the Arno River, remained on the south bank of the stream, but officers of the military government moved to assist the hungry civilian population.

It was apparent, an official announcement said, that the enemy withdrew the bulk of his forces during the night to the north of the Mugnone Canal which flows through the northern outskirts

The 8th Army, bringing up its lines on the west for a crossing of the Arno and an assault on the German Gothic line beyond, reached a number of villages west and northwest of Empoli against stiffening German resistance.

Many Snipers.

An official source said Col. Fuchs, who was the German garrison commander at Florence, had fighting under him parachutists, engineers, and "various Fascist squads organized by the notorious Pavolini" (Allessandro Pavolini, Mussolini's Minister of Culture) who infiltrated into houses south of the river as snipers.

The Germans have been pushed back from 500 to 1,000 yards on both sides of Fibbiana, between Empoli and Montelupo but action in general on the Italian front yesterday was confined largely to patrolling, headquarters said.

German shelling caused the Allies to withdraw half a mile to the southwest of San Colombano.

In the Polish sector near the Adriatic the Germans have withdrawn over the Cesano River south of Pesaro. On the left, advance Polish elements have reached points two miles east and northeast of Castelleone Di Suasa. Forward troops faced heavy enemy shell fire. Polish troops have reached a lateral road one mile beyond the river.

Rain slowed road movements and hampered other activity on the Allied 5th Army front, where patrols were unable to make contact with the enemy.

The poor weather restricted air activity. Heavy bombers were unable to operate, but tactical aircraft, making 500 sorties, attacked communications and transport in southern France. Italy and Yugoslavia.

Plane Attacks Upsetting German Planes

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 12 (CP Cable)—On this bewildering and hourly-changing front, this week-end will be one of grave decision for the German forces of Field Marshal von Kluge.

The Germans have put their strongest forces of armor and S.S. troops in the west into the area east and souhteast of Mortain, and now are in a salient created by British, Canadian and Polish troops on the north and American troops on the east and away around to the south.

The German armor was intended to break through to Avranches and split the American forces, but the havoc wrought by Allied planes in attacks on enemy tank concentrations there delayed the enemy offensive. Now it's probably too late.

The Americans have swept ahead on the east at an incredible speed. On and on they've gone with tanks, trucks and armored cars, through Le Mans and along the long, straight highway leading to Paris from the valley of the Loire.

The 1st Canadian Army, with its British and Canadian troops and with a Polish armored division in the same area, hit the base of the salient from the north, striking toward Falaise. The attack now is temporarily blocked five miles from the city with German S.S. torops and other infantry barring the way.

Guerillas Fight Inside Reich

MADRID, Aug. 12—(AP)—Escaped prisoners of war and foreign laborers have begun guerrilla warfare inside Germany, the German press revealed today in a dispatch from Nazi Correspondent Werner Gilles who wrote from "In the Mountains of Southern Germany".

He said guerilla bands were waging a war of destruction on Germans in the mountain regions, wiping out entire families, burning homes, and stealing food and arms.

He described an expedition against the guerrillas which led far above snow-line, and said heavily-armed German police finally isolated one group of escaped Russian prisoners and foreign laborers who fought to the last.

Hitler's own newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, reported guerrillas killed four Germans in one village, and commented:

"Even in the smallest village everything must be prepared for defence against air raids, marauding foreign workers and armed prisoners of war who have escaped."

Narrow Escape

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 12—(AP)—Rescuers dug the driver of a truck out of his cab after the truck and a Santa Fe freight train collided at a crossing. The cab was torn off and flung 35 feet from the chassis by the impact, but John L. Straley, 53, Pueblo came out with only an ankle injury.

Great Invention

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 12—(AP).—A new type of rescue boat, sturdy enough to be dropped from a plane by parachute from high altitudes, has been developed by Higgins Industries, Inc., of New Orleans, and officials said "several hundred" are being rushed to completion. They said the boats can be dropped fully equipped to ship or plane survivors or castaways.

Drew Announces Increases

Plans New High School Courses

TORONTO, Aug. 12—(CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario, in his capacity as minister of education, said in a statement last night "very substantial increases in grants" will be made by the provincial government for the purpose of improving rural secondary education."

In addition to the regular grants now provided, he said further assistance up to $2,500 will be made available to each school in proportion to the extent of the adoption of a new program relating to studies.

Stating that nearly 50 per cent of the pupils in small secondary schools leave school by the time they completed Grade 10, or before that, Mr. Drew said a new arrangement is being inaugurated whereby high school courses in these rural communities are being re-arranged to suit particula local conditions.

In about a dozen schools where this has been done it has been proved that pupils remain longer at school, do better work, show pride in their schools's particular standing and take a keener interest in school activities."

DECORATED FOR COURAGE—Two Peterborough men have made a name for themselves with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in France. Capt. R. T. Brain (Left), 379 Stewart street, former curate of St. John's Anglican Church, has been awarded the Military Cross for devotion to duty, when he remained helping the wounded after he had been injured himself. RSM. Fred Lockhart (Right), whose wife lives at 100 Ware street, has been given the Military Medal for the work he did in getting ammunition to his regiment when it was under severe shelling and for saying part of the ammunition when a supply dump was hit by a mortar.

Peterboro Men Win Medals For Bravery in Normandy

OTTAWA, Aug. 12—(CP).—The story of the bravery of Canadians in the invasion of Normandy was told in citations accompanying gallantry awards to 107 members of the army announced at defence headquarters today. These are the first invasion awards and one of the largest single lists of awards issued from headquarters.

All the citations were not given but those that were told of brave men who fought on after being wounded, of chaplains who walked mine fields to treat wounded men of a sapper who cleared beach blocks under fire, of a bulldozer operator who cleared a path through a shell-torn road, of an infantryman who cleaned out an enemy nest by charging and shooting from the hip.

The citations also told of medical men who saved lives at the risk of their own, of dispatch riders who looked carelessly at death and got their important messages through, of signallers who maintained vital communication lines through heavy bombardments, of service corps men who ignored heavy shell fire and got their deadly loads of ammunition through, of tank men who faced long odds and won, and of artillery men who made sure of fire direction by stalking in enemy lines.

Great Damage At Hoboken Fire

HOBOKEN, N.J., Aug. 12—(AP).—A spectacular fire that followed a series of thunderous explosions left an 1,100-foot Hudson River pier in blackened ruins today with damage estimated in the millions of dollars.

Flames towered 50 feet in the air and a pall of smoke blanketed the entire New York City area before massed fire-fighting equipment brought the four-hour blaze under control at 12.30 a.m., EDT.

Scores were injured, none seriously, as the flames ate through Pier 4 and damaged two adjacent piers extensively. All three piers were used to load ships for the fighting fronts of this war.

Fire broke out anew on the shore end of the ruined pier at 2 a.m. and smouldered for hours although firemen were able to confine it to a small area.

Bursting drums of highly inflammable liquid fed the earlier blaze.

Acting Fire Chief Andrew H. Keller said the fire was of undetermined origin and began on a barge which was transferring its cargo to a ship moored at Pier No. 4. Keller said there was no indication of sabotage. He said there was no immediate estimate of the loss, but it was unofficially reported at $4,000,000.

Fourteen persons were taken to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment of burns and smoke poisoning, while more than 50 others, including firemen, were given first aid at the scene. Keller said none was seriously injured.

Heavy Bombers Using Saipan

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 12—(AP)—American heavy bombers on Saipan have opened the same deadly campaign of attrition against enemy islands south of Japan as that of New Guinea-based bombers already perceptibly weakning bases guarding the Philippines.

While General MacArthur added five more ships today to the 11 his August reports have listed as sunk by planes south of Mindanao, Admiral Nimitz disclosed the first heavy land-based blow at the volcano islands, 750 miles from Tokyo.

Nimitz did not say from whence the heavies carried their 47 tons Wednesday to Iwo Jima but he identified the bombers as elements of the 7th Army Air Force, previously reported to had moved its advanced base to Saipan.

MacArthur's report today from the Southwest Pacific told of the sinking of four freighters and a coastal vessel near Halmakera, the biggest Japanese defence base between New Guinea and the Philippines, with two other freighters probably sunk.

Allies Seeking To Isolate Germans Along French Coast

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Whatever may be the Allies' intentions towards Paris, it seems clear from the fresh crisis in the battle of France that their major objectives of the moment are:

1. To destroy the German 7th Army on the Normandy front, and then

2. To out-flank the strong enemy forces along the English Channel to the north.

As this column pointed out several days ago, the Germans are clinging to the channel coast tenaciously for two reasons: first, their withdrawal would permit the Allies to pour into France from England over the narrowest part of the channel, and second, the vital launching-grounds of their robot bombs are in this area and it's only from here they can reach London.

Took Exciting Turn

Yesterday, the Allied effort to envelop the 7th Army took an exciting turn. Canadian, British and Polish troops intensified their attack on the German right wing anchor in the Caen zone. Simultaneously an armored American force, which had been speeding towards Paris, turned suddenly northwards and swung an arc about the German left wing that had been torn from its anchor at Avranches and had been flying wild while the Nazis tried to swing it back north towards the Seine River where they hoped to re-establish their front.

The result of this daring Allied operation has been to jeopardize a great force of Nazis south of the Seine, but it's too soon to assay the results. The position is best described in the pungent language of General Montgomery, commander of the Allied ground forces in France: "The great bulk of the German forces in northwest Europe are in a bad way."

The Germans make no bones of the seriousness of their predicament. They say 1,500,000 men are engaged in this battle. Be that as it may, the Allies have a great numerical superiority on the ground and are supreme in the air. Moreover, Eisenhower undoubtedly has in reserve much more striking-power.

Great Offensive Near Warsaw Makes Big Gains

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, August 12 — (AP).—The Red Army clashed across Southern Estonia to-day in a new drive aimed at destroying an estimated 300,000 Nazi Baltic troops, whose fate was sealed in advance by Hitler's blind refusal to extricatethem when retreat was feasible.

At the same time other Soviet forces, driving forward on a 100-mile front north-east of Warsaw in what may be the greatest strategic manoeuvre of the summer campaign, smashed within 15 miles east of Prussia from broken German lines east of the Biebrza River.

Gen. Ivan Maslennikov, striking from the Pskov area south-west of Lake Peipus, shattered an enemy front in a sector 43 miles wide and more than 15 miles deep and sent an armored vanguard racing past Petseri, 115 miles east of the Gulf of Riga.

Petseri, an important rail and highway junction, was among 200 Estonian border cities and villages captured in the drive dooming possibly 30 German divisions.

Nearing Riga.

The troops of Gen. Andrei Yeremenko south of Maslennikov's forces thrust westward toward Riga from Central Latvia, occupying 50 settlements, including Gravenderi, only 55 miles south-east of Riga.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian held the Germans around Riga pocketed on the south and west by his heavy tanks and self-propelled guns.

Marshal Stalin's Supreme Command has thus carefully set in motion all but one of the Baltic armies that will participate in executing these isolated Germans.

Only Marshal Leonid A. Govorov in the salient beyond Narva in the north-eastern tip of Estonia has not yet joined the grand sweep westward.

The steel jaws of the Russian nutcracker were clamped tighter on East Prussia as Soviet armored units reached the upper arms of the Biebrza River past Tykocin after a terrific defensive struggle by the Nazis.

Tykocin commands the road leading to Lomza, 27 miles to the west.

Tramways Taken Over By The Government

OTTAWA, Aug. 12.—(CP).—Labor Minister Mitchell announced today the Government placed two controllers in charge of Montreal Tramways properties and will resume service Monday morning.

An order-in-Council passed by the Cabinet yesterday makes it an offence for any person to refuse to resume work or to recommend that work not be resumed.

It would also make it an offence for the company to refuse to place its properties at the disposal of the controllers.

The 4,000 employees are required to return to work under the same conditions that prevailed when they went on strike August 3 seeking a union shop.

The controllers who will be in charge of Montreal's public transportation system are E. L. Cousins, Halifax, Wartime Administrator of Canadian Atlantic Ports, and J. E. St. Laurent, Ottawa, member of the National Harbors Board.

Complete Control.

The Order-in-Council, passed under the War eMasures Act, gives the controllers custody and control of all property and assets of the company related to the Montreal transportation system, and they are empowered to operate the system with powers which normally are held by the board of directors.

Exercise of these powers iss ubject to existing contracts with the municipalities in which the company operates.

The controllers take charge of the property at midnight Sunday night and remain in control until the order is revoked. During this period the authority of the board of directors and shareholders is suspended.

Must Negotiate.

The employees, who are represented by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) and the company are required to enter into negotiations

Mercury Soars To 100 Above

By The Canadian Press

Eastern Canadians sweltered under a blazing sun which sent temperatures as high as 100 degrees above zero in some places yesterday while residents of Western Canada experienced more moderate weather.

At Ottawa, the low for the day was 68 and the official high 100 above while at Toronto the official high was 96, which was accompanied by intense humidity. Low in Toronto also was 68 above.

The Toronto maximum was the highest since July 28, 1941 when citizens sweltered under the same temperature.

Other hot spots in the east were: London, with a high of 94; Hamilton, 95.4; Parry Sound, 87; Montreal, 93, and Peterborough, 93.

Hottest point in the West was Lethbridge, Alta., in southwestern Alberta, where the high mark of the day was 84 above.

The only "break" for Torontonians in the heat wave which began Thursday was a cool breeze off Lake Ontario. Thousands flocked to the beaches and parks.

Although the official high was 96, many Torontonians reported thermometers in various districts went over the 100-above mark.

Exact Location Unknown As U.S. Units Speed On; Canadians Score New Gain

Belief Persists Flying Column May Encircle Nazis Battling Allies In Caeh Sector

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 12 — (CP). — Canadian forces north of Falaise made a local gain to the west today, taking the town of Barbery, while on the other end of the curving Allied line—a noose that is being slipped about 100,000 Germans north of Paris—the American "mystery column" drove on, its latest whereabouts still unrevealed by official sources.

Other American armor driving across the Loire River at Nantes in a new thrust had penetrated 10 miles into Southern France while the four-day mystery push continued a simultaneous threat to Paris and the German army deadlocked south of Caen.

Headquarters kept silent on the mileage rolled up by the American columns reported driving north, east and south of Le Mans, possibly because the Germans themselves were confused as to the exact direction of these drives and did not know which thrusts were feints. The communique did not mention the sectors east and north of Le Mans and headquarters had no amplification.

Stiff Resistance.

A frontline dispatch said the Germans were putting up stiff resistance to the drive to the north. This is the one which is sawing in behind the Germans in the Caen area.

(The German-controlled Paris radio said this army already had driven through Alencon, 30 miles north of Le Mans and 42 miles south of the 1st Canadian Army's battle positions before Falaise.)

London afternoon newspapers played up an unconfirmed report by an American broadcaster in London that American advance units were in the Paris outskirts. This came on top of a Swiss broadcast that the Americans had reached Chartres, the guardian of the last 50-mile defence zone before Paris.

Paris Has Curfew.

But there was no official information of anything beyond a push of undetermined depth east of Le Mans, 110 miles from Paris.

(The Paris radio said to-day the German command had placed Paris under an 11:15 p.m. curfew beginning to-night.

(Available information indicated Paris might not be one of the immediate objectives of the sweeping American advance and that the Allied Command was pursuing the primary aim of destroying enemy armies.)

Nazi broadcasters took cognizance of the encirclement possibility in the drive north of Le Mans and forecast a German withdrawal from the narrow 30-mile Orne-Mortain salient here, amid steady and heavy fighting, the Allies both were pressing the Germans back and threatening to squeeze the salient to extinction between the major northern, southern and eastward drives.

4 Columns Move

In addition to the arms extending to the north and northeast, one American column was reported rolling due east of Le Mans on Chateaudun, guarding the road to church and the open country between the Seine and Loire Rivers south of Paris. Unofficial British reports said Chateaudun had been reached.

A fourth column striking out from Le Mans was believed headed toward Tours to the southeast to solidify the hold on the Loire River guarding the American right flank.

At Field Marshal Gen. Guenther Von Kluge's shattered hinge in Normandy, where the 1st Canadian Army still was halted outside Falaise. 21 miles south of Caen, the Germans were reported withdraw-

Metz Blasted By Bombs In Daylight

LONDON, Aug. 12 — (CP) — Up to 850 American heavy bombers and 500 fighters tore at the rail yards of Metz and airfields in northern France today a few hours after a force of four-engined R.A.F. Lancasters poured six-ton factory-busters into the U-boat shelters of beseiged Brest.

Airfields attacked by the Americans included those at Le Perthe and Chamant, about 30 miles east of Paris, and Athies, Couvron and Juvincourt, near Laon.

The blows followed R.A.F. night attacks on Berlin and Givors, a rail junction 200 miles southeast of Paris.

The German radio reported daylight battle formations approaching southwestern Germany, and single planes over the upper Danube and upper Silesia.

It was the second consecutive night Berlin was hit by two-ton bombs.

Givors, on the bank of the Rhone 14 miles south of Lyons, is a vital rail centre. The attack by Lancasters was the fifth by the R.A.F. bomber command in 12 hours against railways in France. The assaults are aimed at preventing the Germans moving reinforcements north from the Mediterranean area.

Black Watch Fight To Last

TORONTO, August 12 — (CP). — Ralph Allen, Globe and Mail war correspondent, told in a dispatch to-day from France of a gallant but futile stand of the four rifle companies which comprised almost the full fighting strength of the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders of Canada) from Montreal. Allen said the unit was trapped on a barren ridge above May-Sur-Orne on July 25, and "all that was left of their gallant spearhead was swallowed up, platoon by platoon, section by section, and finally man by man.'

He quoted an officer of the regiment as saying that "only a handful of men who crossed the ridge ever came back," and told how 24-year-old Major Pete Griffin of Vancouver, who had taken command of the battalion after his two immediate superiors were killed sent back a message: "Don't send reinforcements. We have too many men here now."

Wheat Lost

GLENDIVIE, Mont., Aug. 12. — (AP). — A 60-mile-an-hour wind storm, coming on the heels of a destructive hailstorm, probably caused a loss of 5,000,000 bushels of wheat in Montana, unofficial estimates showed yesterday.

Simonds Heads 2nd Corps

Planned Attack That Cut Hun Line

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 2nd CANADIAN CORPS IN FRANCE, Aug. 12—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, 41, of Kingston, Ont., is in command of the 2nd Canadian Corps, fighting in Normany with the 1st Canadian Army, it has been announced in the field.

It was he who planned the unprecedented manoeuvre which enabled his troops to smash their way through the first crust of German defence south and southeast of Caen as the present thrust which has carried the Canadians close to Falaise opened early this week, it was revealed.

Gen. Simonds conceived the scheme of operating tank columns at night by special directional methods, including the firing of Bofors' tracer-shells along the line of advance. Armor had not been employed after dark on the offensive before in the French campaign.

Gen. Simonds has been in France since late in June. His corps became operational July 11 and the Canadian formations in Normandy came under his corps, which then was part of the British 2nd Army.

Gratuities Bill Discussed In Parliament

OTTAWA, Aug. 12—(CP)—Members of Parliament renewed their efforts today to clean up the business before them and pave the way for adjournment of the session which began last Jan. 27.

A considerable amount of work remained to be dealt with and some opposition members were doubtful that adjournment would come before some time next week. However Prime Minister Mackenzie King was confident that with "cordial co-operation" from the opposition there would be no need of prolonging the sittings into next week. The Senate still has to deal with the $750,000,000 War Service Gratuities Bill, passed through the Commons.

The Commons still has to pass a bill to amend the Canadian and British Insurance Act of 1932, and more than 200 items in the civil estimates of various departments.

Finance Minister Ilsley said that the insurance bill was the last legislation the government would introduce. The bill would allow Canadian insurance companies operating in the United States to invest in bonds and notes secured by mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Commission of the United States. The Canadian companies had been at a disadvantage because their American competitors were allowed to make such investments, Mr. Ilsley said.

The government has given no indication as to whether the House will be asked to pass the bill authorizing the provincial government of Alberta to set up a provincial bank. The bill has yet to be reported by the Commons Committee on Banking and Commerce which was asked to study the measure after it was given second reading in the House.

Besides advancing the gratuities legislation yesterday, the Commons gave third reading to the bill establishing an industrial bank which would help small industries to finance their change-over from war to peace.

Examination of Prime Minister King's external affairs estimates was resumed but no progress on them was made. Mr. King endorsed a suggestion that it was time government records stopped referring to Canadians by racial origin. Defence Minister Ralston said the war service gratuities legislation was the final draft of 10 different plans studied by the government.

Discarded Several

One of the plans suggested that the gratuities be paid according to rank, and another suggested that they be based on degree of combatancy. Both suggestions had not been discarded entirely.

It was decided to pay $7.50 for every 30 days of service in the western hemisphere, including Newfoundland and the West Indies, and $15 for every 30 days' service overseas, or in the Aleutians. Rank was taken into consideration when it was decided to pay in addition to the gratuity seven days' pay and allowances of rank for each six months service overseas.

Before the bill was adopted, Col. Ralston put through an amendment which would bring the legislation into effect next Oct. 1 instead of on a date which originally was to have been fixed by proclamation.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie put through another amendment making it clear that in cases where the gratuity was paid to dependents of a serviceman killed in action, the Minister of Veterans' Affairs could decide how the gratuity should be divided.

Col. Ralston said that the gratuity would be paid to dependents who were found to be in need of dependents allowances and to those receiving assigned pay.

Oppose Amendment

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) moved an amendment that was accepted. The Amendment would make the rehabilitation credit in the legislation payable to service personnel who showed to the satisfaction of the Minister that the money would be used for prescribed conditions. The original satisfaction of the Minister or persons designated by him that the money would be used for the conditions outlined in the Bill.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he felt that the persons designated by the minister might refuse the credit to a man who deserves it.

Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South) withdrew an amendment which he had believed would remove "the strings" attached to the payment of the rehabilitation credit.

Mr. Mackenzie said the amendment as drafted would deprive serviceman of $350,000,000, and he wondered if the Progressive Conservative party favored such a move. The amendment would have taken all the effect out of a clause providing $350,000,000 in rehabilitation credit for the service personnel.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said Mr. MacKenzie knew very well the purpose of the amendment Mr. Homuth wished to see the rehabilitation credit paid to all servicemen whether they were able to meet the required conditions or not.

Under the Bill, the credit would be paid when the serviceman established that it would be used to acquire a home, a business, furniture, working tools, education, Dominion government insurance or any other purpose authorized by the Governor-in-Council. It could be collected within 10 years after discharge.

Col. Ralston said the payment of a "battle line bonus" has been considered, but had been discarded because regulations would have had to be drawn up for every particular case.

The degree of combatancy varied greatly, Col. Ralston said in reply to Mr. Graydon, who said something "extra" should be done for those who came in actual contact with the enemy.

Mr. Graydon also felt that gratuities on overseas rates should be paid R.C.A.F. men flying in Canada. Navy Minister Macdonald said men on the Atantic and Pacific Coasts who were on patrols ending outside territorial waters would be considered on overseas service.

blow aimed at the Nazis' East Prussian divisions from the south. The enemy is locked in battle with Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's troops at the north-eastern extremity of the Unker Province.

Meanwhile Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, fighting one of the toughest engagements of his brilliant career, has not only spurred on the great East Prussian attack but has wiped out German nests of resistance at Dobre, Pniewnik, and Korytnica, 26 to 30 miles from Warsaw. At the same time he has maintained pressure against the capital itself.

By smashing northward between Warsaw and Bialystok at the Red Army has developed the threat of ultimate encirclement against both the Germans defending East Prussia and those committed in the siege of Warsaw.

The Red Army advanced 15 to 20 miles through its 45-mile-wide gap on the Estonian front and today was in a position to strike southwestward at Riga and move northwards upon Tallin.

The capture of 150 settlements northwest and west of Bialystok put the Soviets in some places 18½ miles southeast and east of the Prussian border and 29 miles from Lyck, in the Masurian Lake region.

The push northeast of Warsaw which swept in 100 settlements and railway stations advanced the Russians in some places to less than 50 miles from the southern East Prussian border.

The steady advance toward Lomza carried past Tykocin, with the Russians 39 miles to the south and 25 miles away to the east.

Gave Their Lives

Two of the men decorated—Sgt. J. A. Lacasse of Opastika, Ont., and Cpl. D. B. Macdonald of Halifax—paid with their own lives and many of them were wounded. Through the citations ran such phases as "complete disregard of danger," "his bold action resulted in the objective being taken," and "carried on coolly and courageously for a day after being wounded."

The Distinguished Service Order has been awarded to a Brigadier, five Lieutenant-Colonels and 11 Majors; the Bar to the Military Cross to two Captains; the Military Cross to 11 Captains and 16 Lieutenants; the Distinguished Conduct Medal to a Sergeant, a Corporal, a Private and a Sapper and the Military Medal to 57 non-commissioned officers and men.

Highest ranking officers to win awards—the D.S.O.—were Brig. Kenneth Gault Blackader of Montreal, Lt.-Col. Donald Bowie Buel of Kingston, Ont., Lt.-Col. John Ray Coldwell of Halifax, Lt.-Col. Foster Martin Mathewson of Prince Albert, Sask., and Lt.-Col. John Godrey Spragge of London and Toronto. No citations were issued in connection with these awards.

Capt. Robert Theodore Francis Brain of Peterborough, Ont., a Chaplain, won the M.C. for the tending casualties under fire after suffering wounds himself.

H. Capt. R. T. F. Brain

Honorary Captain Robert Theodore Francis Brain, M.C., Canadian Chaplain Services, was born at Toronto on Sept. 8, 1907. He was a curate at St. John's Church before being taken on strength of the Canadian Active Army on August 1, 1940. He proceeded overseas in July, 1941 and was a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers, N.P.A.M. prior to entering active service. His wife, Mrs. Edith Isobel McKee-Brain resides at 379 Stewart street.

The citation covering his award reads: "At Les Buisson from D-day to D plus 4, Capt. Brain was indefatigable in carrying out his duties. He tended the casualities around the Regimental Aid Post and in the open while under fire. He was wounded himself, but carried on coolly and courageously or another day. His wound then prevented him from carrying on, and he was evacuated to the rear."

R.S.M. FRED LOCKHART.

RSM. Frederick Allan Lockhart, M.M., Canadian Infantry Corps, was born at Halderman, November 30, 1906, and was a clerk and member of the Peterborough Prince of Wales Rangers, Reserve Regiment, prior to enlistment as a private in the Active Army, June 24, 1940. He was promoted to Acting Company Sgt.-Major on June 24, 1940, and to Company Sgt.-Major on November 9, then proceeded overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders on July 19, 1941. His wife, Alfreda May Lockhart, resides at 100 Ware Street, and prior to enlisting he worked at the C.G.E.

The citation accompanying his award of the Military Medal reads as follows:

"From evening June 7, 1944, to noon on June 12, RSM Lockhart established and maintained the battalion ammunition reserve and replenishment in our positions in Les Buissons. Our positions were under mortar, shell and small arms fire almist continuously. RSM. Lockhart took his lorry back for ammunition without regard for the risk of being hit, though the road was under enemy observation 900 yards away. On one occasion he was unloading his lorry in our area when mortaring resumed, but he carried on in order to get the vehicle unloaded. On another occasion his ammunition dump received a direct hit and by his efforts the resulting fire was kept away from the undamaged portion.

Lt. W. A. P. Smith

Lieut. William Angus Paul Smith, M.C., Canadian Armoured Corps, was born at Lindsay, on July 4, 1915, and resided at Toronto at the time of his enlistment. He was taken on strength of the Canadian Active Army on Nov. 11, 1939, served Overseas from October, 1940 to March, 1941 and again proceeded Overseas on November 9, 1941. He was commissioned on September 11, 1943. His mother, Mrs. Mary Brans Smith is his next-of-kin and resides at 39 Russel St. E., Lindsay.

His citation reads: "On June 8, 1944 regimental headquarters and a reconnaissance troop with one squadron of a Canadian armored regiment were at le Bout Cachard in support of a Canadian infantry brigade. Information was brought in by a French civilian that there were a number of enemy in the vicinity who had been left around and were carrying out sniping, sabotage and generally delaying the operations.

Lieut. Smith, reconnaissance officer of the armoured regiment was detailed to take his light tank to investigate and bring back all possible information. He located the enemy position and proceeded to attack it, coming under heavy machine gun and rifle fire. The officer pressed forward the attack relentlessly and in doing so received a severe gun shot wound in the right arm. Despite his injury he continued to press forward until he had ascertained the exact position of the enemy and their approximate strength.

He then returned to regimental headquarters and despite the fact that he was suffering from severe wounds and shock he refused to accept medical treatment until he had passed on detailed information which later resulted in the enemy being cleared from the location and twenty seven of them killed or captured. Throughout the operation this officer displayed great courage, coolness and exemplary leadership and has been a source of inspiration to those under his command."

SERVING OVERSEAS — Rfmn. Clifford Graham, whose wife and children live at 473 Elm street, is serving overseas. He enlisted first in the Prince of Wales Rangers in April, 1942, later transferring to the Winnipeg Rifles. He was one of a group of men to go to Kiska, where he spent four months. Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graham, of Peterborough, Rfmn. Graham was formerly employed at the Peterborough Lock Company.

Canadian patrols moving westward into the Cinglais forest met British patrols from the Orne bridgehead, making the junction without opposition.

The westward move also took Barbery, about four miles southwest of Bretteville Sur Laize.

British troops of the 1st Canadian army, who had plunged into Vimont, seven miles southeast of Caen, found the town too hot to hold, a front dispatch said.

British 2nd Army troops pressing from east of the Orne toward a junction with the Canadians attacking Falaise took Esson, across the river and just south of the newly-captured road junction town of Thury-Harcourt, putting them within 13 miles of the Canadian line.

American heavy bombers blasted some 20 strongpoints in Brest, the great port on the tip of the Breton peninsula, but it was not known whether decisive ground attacks had been launched there.

St. Malo Resists

Evidently the American siege forces in Brittany were taking time in order to save manpower in cleaning up the doomed strongholds in the cut-off peninsula. The communique said only that the situation remained unchanged at Brest and Lorient.

A small part of the German's held strongpoint at St. Malo, north coast port, still was holding out and heavy fighting was continuing for the little cape town of Dinard, just across the inlet.

Closely keyed to the ground fighting were the relentless bombing attacks made by Allied aircraft on the German's fuel dumps, transportation routes and choked freight yards far behind the battlelines in France.

The primary objective of these attacks was the isolation of the zone of ground fighting. They were armed at countering German attempts to rush reinforcements to their hard-pressed divisions from Belgium, Germany and other areas of France.

(The Stockholm newspaper Tidningens in a dispatch quoting a person with close connections in Germany, said German war leaders were withdrawing troops from the Calais area—the portion of France closest to Britain—and rushing them to the Seine-Loire river region for the defense of Paris.)

Members Ready To Quit Parliament

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 12—(CP)—For the 245 members of the House of Commons except cabinet ministers, parliamentary assistants and a few who represent constituencies near Ottawa the end of a Parliamentary session means a moving day. And if all goes well moving day this year will be Sunday as Parliament is expected to adjourn today.

It means closing up an office and a home, even though the office is a half room in the Parliament buildings and the home may be a room in the Y.M.C.A., a rooming house or an hotel.

It means a break in intimate associations established over a period of six months and a return to associations broken off six months before, except for the contacts maintained through correspondence and occasional visits.

All during the last week members have been busy in their rooms sorting out letters and documents. They have had the assistance of the secretaries who served them throughout the session.

Take Files Home

Many of their files have to be taken back home so they can explain to their constituents what they have done during the session.

Most members have to do a lot more than sit in the House and in committees, listen to speeches and speak themselves. Their supporters and friends, not to mention others, write to them. They have to do what they can to get information requested and influence decisions this way or that.

As the trains pull out of Ottawa for points between Halifax and Victoria next week they will carry members riding free by law and baggage cars loaded with boxes of books, letters and documents, the homework members are taking back to their constituencies.

Puzzler: Justice Minister St. Laurent, considered one of Canada's ablest lawyers, would like to know where the legal term "and politic" originated and what it means.

The minister admitted this to John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member for Lake Centre constituency in Saskatchewan, also considered a clever legal man, who asked what the term "body corporate and politic meant."

the British 2nd Army, hammering at the German wedge with tanks, guns and infantry attacks. The whole front is blasing with artillery fire.

On the south the Americans appear to be swinging north from Le Mans toward Agentan and Falaise. A huge Canadian-American pincer on the base of the salient seems to be slowly closing while other American columns race for Paris.

The German dilemma is this: How are they going to extricate their armor?

Are they going to be able to get it back or are they going to risk everything in an 11th-hour gamble to attempt to drive through to Avranches and the sea even at this late date?

Should they attack, their supply line would be menaced by the Canadian-American pincer from Caen and from the south. Even a long withdrawal would be a difficult operation, short as the Germans are of motor rtansport.

Face Heavy Losses

The armor could, of course, move back under its own power with the infantry fighting in suicide rear-guard squads.

On every road where the tanks moved by day, however, they would be slaughtered by the Allied air forces.

If the armor has to stick in the salient—and if it is caught there and destroyed—it could mean the disintegration of the German armies in the west.

But the Germans are master of withdrawal. They have proved that time and again in Russia and the Mediterranean. Somehow they may be able to retrieve their position and get back to the Seine with the other German forces falling back on them.

One thing seems certain—this is the most critical for the German armies in the west since D-Day, and the hour of the Allies' greatest opportunity.

A wave of optimism that the finish may be near at hand has swept this front. Even on the Canadian sector on the German northern pivot, where every mile gained means savage, bloody fighting, many officers and men believe the Allied forces in France are on the last lap to victory in the west.

Operation At Sea

HALIFAX, Aug. 12—(CP)—Stoker PO. John H. Colley of Victoria, fourth Canadian seaman to undergo an appendectomy at sea in this war, left Naval hospital today in good health. He suffered an attack of acute appendicitis aboard a frigate 17 hours out of Halifax and was operated on by Surgeon Lieut. W. O. Coates of Amherst, N.S.

Few Polio Cases

TORONTO, Aug. 12—(CP)—Dr. J. T. Phair, chief medical officer for Ontario, said last night that the expected rise of number of infantile paralysis cases in Ontario this summer has not developed to date and of 52 cases reported since the beginning of the year about 70 per cent have been of the type in which no paralysis occurs.

ROME—American heavy bombers, numbering upwards of 750, delivered a blistering attack on enemy installations in the coastal areas of Southern France today, following up an opening attack yesterday by the tactical air force.

Nazis Gamble With Troops

By ROGER D. GREENE

ON THE ORNE RIVER FRONT, August 12 — (AP). — Field-Marshal Von Kluge iss ending reinforcements into the German bulge west of the Orne in one of the strangest moves on the Western Front, it was disclosed to-day.

Instead of trying to escape from the ever-tightening noose—coffin-shaped corridor resembling the German death trap salient at Stalingrad— the Nazi commander apparently was jamming more troops and armor into the pocket.

"Undoubtedly reinforcements are reaching the hard-pressed German division," a British staff officer said. "Their quality is uncertain, but in some cases at least they were produced by milking other divisions or by switching reinforcements meant for other divisions."

British strategists were frankly puzzled by Von Kluge's amazing gamble in throwing the bulk of the German armed forces in Northwest Europe into the battle cauldron where flames are licking at them from all sides."

The British opened an attack in the post-dawn coolness, and four hours later the enemy had been thrown back 2,500 yards in bitter close-quarter fighting.

The threat to Conde heighted the peril of masses of German troops fighting in blind obedience to Hitler's "stand or die" order in the bulge west of the Orne River

Farther north inside the tightening noose, however, the Germans delivered a violent assault, recapturing Hill 229 just west of St. Pierre La Vieille, scene of bitter and bloody fighting, for the last 36 hours.

Eli's Failure in Discipline Brings Defeat to Israelites

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 13 is I Samuel 1—4:18, the Golden Text being Hebrews 5:1, "For every high priest, being taken from among men, is appointed for men in things pertaining to God.")

The city of Shiloh was northest of Jeruslem. About five miles from Jerusalem was the village of Rahmathaim-Zowhim, where lived a man named Elkanah. This man ha dtwo wives. Hannah who had no children but whom Elkanath dearly loved; and Peninnah, who had several children.

Hannah grieved because she had no little ones, and Peninnah evidently twitted her with this sad fact, making her still more unhappy. At last Hannah went to Shiloh to the house of the Lord and prayed, pleading with the Lord to send her a son. If He would do this she would lend him to the Lord for all his days, she promised. Now, in her anguish Hannah prayed with her lips moving but no sound coming forth. Eli, the priest and judge of the Israelites, was watching her from his high seat, and he decided that she was drunk—talking to herself.

He chided her and she explained what her purpose was in praying so fervently. Then Eli blessed her and she and her husband went home. She did have a son and name him Samuel, and she sang a beautiful song of thanksgiving to the Lord ,which reminds us of the Maginicat of Mary when she was told of the coming of Jesus.

Taken To Temple.

When he was old enough to leave his mother Hannah took him to Eli and "lent him to the Lord," as she had promised. He lived in the temple, waiting upon Eli.

Now Eli had two sons who were priests of the temple. They were wicked men who would snatch sacrifical meat from the altar before the offering was burnt, and led lusftul lives. Their names were Hophni and Phinehas. A man came from the Lord to Eli and reminded him that the Lord had promise Aaron that his house "should wlak before his house but since Eli had not destrained his sons from such wickedness the Lord had changed His mind. The Israelites should be conquered by an enemy, and Eli's two sons should die on the same day, and his whole house wiped out.

Meanwhile Samuel grew in favor with God and man. Eli seems to have loved him dearly. One night when Samuel was asleep, he heard someone calling him. Thinking it was Eli, he ran to him, but Eli said he had not called. The call came three times, and each time Samuel went to Eli only to be told that Eli had not called him. The last time Eli told him it was the Lord calling him and he should say, "Speak, Lord: for Thy servant heareth."

Again the call came and Samuel answered as Eli had said, and the Lord told him the same things Eli had been told. Next morning Eli asked him what the Lord had said, and Samuel told him all. Eli replied, "It is the Lord, let Him do what seemeth Him good."

When the word the Lord had said to Samuel was told to the people of Israel they went to battle against the Philistines, and in the battle they were beaten. They then took the Ark of the Covenant with them into battle, and the Philistines were frightened, but their leaders said, "Be strong and quit yourselves like men, O ye Philistines, that ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, as they have been to you: quit yourselves like men, and fight."

Israelites Are Slaughtered.

So the Philistines fought and the Israelies were smitten and they fled and there was "a very great slaughter, for there fell of Israel 30,000 footmen." The Ark of God was taken, and Eli's two sons were slain.

A man ran from the army and came to Shiloh ,and he found Eli sitting by the wayside, watching: "for his heart trembled for the ark of God." The man told him what had happened, that his two sons were dead and the Israelites slaughtered, finally, that the ark of God was taken.

Eli was 98 years old now and blind. He heard of the death of his sons with comparative calm, but when he knew that the ark was taken— that sacred ark which it was his business to protect and care for — the poor old man fell from his seat backward by the side of the gate of the city and broke his neck; "for he was an old man and heavy. And he had judged Israel forty years."

Thus, through this good man's failure to discipline his sons, when they were young, and make good men of them, came about their deaths and his own, and woe upon the Israelites.

The Compassion of Lord Jesus

REV. E. R. JAMES.

The Woman came behind Jesus and Touched the Hem of His garment. Jesus turned him about and said unto Her: Daughter, be of good comfort, thy Faith hath made the Whole. Go in Peace. St. Matthew 9; 20.

A man of over sixty remarked to this writer: "I have never been sick in my life." He rejoiced in this privilege, as he understood it. Yet he could not really sympathise. He had never suffered pain. Pain and sickness very frequently produce a sense of sympathy for sufferers. In these terrible days multitudes are passing through terrible agony.

This story has a deep human interest. The first three Evangelists, according to their ideals, have recorded this story fully In St. Mark's account we see the touch of the eye witness. Very probably St. Peter emphasised:— "Jesus looked round about to see her that had done this thing" As a thoughtful reader of the Gospels have you noticed the searching eye of the Lord His outstanding characteristic. For some reason St. Matthews reduces the story to about fifty words. St Luke adds St. Peter's explanation of the crowd thronging Him. All are agreed that the woman came behind and touched the hem of His garment and received immediate healing.

We have a beautiful word picture of a sensitive woman, timid and self conscious. Are you moved by St. Mark's graphic touch of her feelings:—"The woman ,fearing and trembling, knowing what she had done, came and fell down before Him and told Him all the truth." Having touched Him and received healing her only desire was to creep away unseen, the multitude helping Her heart is full of thankfulness.

The Master Physican knew within Himself that the cure had taken place. "Virtue had gone out of Him." He desired to give her a greater blessing. To the Gentle He said:— "I have not seen so great faith, no, not in Israel," High praise. But a greater blessng is to come to this daughter of Isreal. The Lord knows what is in man. He understands the woman's mind. She is sensitive, self conscious. In the coming days, had she gone away unnoticed, her conscience would have troubled her. So the Lord, being Perfect Man, with a heart full of compassion, seeks and finds. He desires to deepen her faith and blessing her with peace. "Go in peace," pronounced by the Master of all peace.

Let us not forget she came behind Him. She could not see His Face. So He turned and looked with a compassionate eye upon her. For the first time she has come face to face with the Beloved Son of God. She looked into the face of the Perect Man. She will never forget that Face, its loveliness, its compassion and its gentleness. She "Behind His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." He speaks to her. She alone of all the women in the Gospels receives the title of "Daughter." She is a member of the family of God by faith. "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole. Go in peace."

Nearly twenty centuries ago this happened. "How can I see His Face"? is your natural enquiry. In His great love and mercy He has given us four portraits of Himself. A portrait reveals something of the character the painter sees in the man who is sitting before him. These portraits were written by men who loved Him. They strive by the help of the Holy Spirit to reveal that Something they saw in Him; that Something which made men love Him and follow Him to the death.

Have you read any of these portraits? You can buy one for five cents. As you read pray that your eyes may be opened. You have devoured many books. You enjoyed them. Some character has thrilled your mind and soul. You have seen him in your mind's eye. Will you read one of these Goseps with the intention to see Him, Who is the fairest of all Men? Will you pray to have the experience of Ezekiel:— "I did eat the book and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness." Then only will you get a glimpse of the Son of God and the Son of Man; "Who for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary and was made Man." A glimpse of the God-Man will thrill and entrance you and you will want to see more of Him. And you will read the other portraits.

THINE EYES SHALL SEE THE KING IN HIS BEAUTY.

GUARD AGAINST INFLATION

The best service we can give those boys overseas, fighting their toughest battles in France and Italy today, is an even more determined campaign against inflation on the home front.

POPE GRANTS UNPRECEDENTED AUDIENCE—Signal Corps cameras record for the first time the speech of a reigning pontiff, in English, following which his holiness Pope Pius XII granted a general audience in Rome to hundreds of fighting men of all races and creeds, an unprecedented event in the long history of the Vatican. To them he imparted the papal blessing and benediction. As the pontiff made his departure, eager soldiers reached out to touch the hand his holiness graciously offered.

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

Well distributed over Canada up to the tree limit is a beautiful little falcon, the Sparrow Hawk. This bird might better be called "Grasshopper Hawk", due to its fondness for these creatures which together with other insects make up the bulk of its food.

Its color pattern is very striking. The male has a brick-red crown bordered with gray-blue; brick-red back and tail barred with black; gray-blue wings, the primaries black with white tips, the under parts pale buff, barried and marked with black. The female is all black barred brick-red on the back and wings, not so colorful as the male.

SPARROW HAWK

Falcons are birds of the open usually obtaining their prey by stooping down from above, striking the bird down with closed foot, then following down to give a second stroke if necessary. The characteristic long pointed wing of the Falcons give them their powers not only of sustained fast flight, but also tremendous bursts of speed. In hunting, the Sparrow Hawk commonly hovers in mid-air like the Kestrel so familiar to Old Country boys, which is also a falcon.

Falcons have a curious "tooth" on the upper mandible back of the hook itself. None of the other hawks have it. What its purpose is appears to be unknown. It is interesting that the Ancient Egyptians, who frequently used the Lanner and Peregrine Falcons in their art had noticed this character, for all statuettes seen in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York showed this.

Gallinules Are Mud-Hens

Common Gallinules are accompanied by downy youngsters now, little black fuzzy objects with whitish beards and bright red bills.

The Common Galliule is another one of the Mud-Hens. It is shaped like a Coot, and like it bobs its head back and forth as it swims about open patches in a marsh. It is dark brown on the back and slate-gray elsewhere, darker on the head and neck, where the Coot is all slate-gray; has a bright red bill and frontal shield where the the Coot's bill is white with no shield on the forehead; and has white streaks along the flanks, these feathers overlapping the edge of the wing. Even at a distance the two can be distinguished for the Coot holds its tail horizontal as it swims, while the Gallinule holds its up.

In the woods during the sizzling hot days of summer, a plaintive long-drawn pee-a-wee is heard. This note is always associated in my mind with the welcome shade of deciduous trees. Its author, the Wood Pewee, is a bird of sparrow size, very nondescript in pattern, being simply olive-brown above darker on the head and dull, pale yellowish below. Two distinct light wing bars, light edges to the secondaries and a whitish eye-ring complete its dress. Several of the other Flycatchers also look like this, but although they are definitely smaller, the most reliable field mark of any smallish Flycatcher is its note, for the songs are all distinctive.

The Wood Peewee brings forth young in mid-July, in a nest well up in some broad-leafed tree.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Priest in the Life of Israel

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Samuel 1—4:18

A certain man named Elkanah, had two wives, Hannah and Peninnah. The latter had children but Hannah did not, so she went to the temple and prayed to the Lord for one.

Hannah had a son whom she named Samuel and she lent him to the Lord; he lived in the temple and ministered to Eli, the priest, who had two wicked sons in the temple.

Eli grew old and his sight failed, and the Lord called Samuel when he was asleep and told him that Eli and all his house should perish; and Samuel told Eli what was said.

The Israelites were beaten in battle by the Philistines, the Ark of the Covenant was taken, Eli's sons killed, and Eli fell from a wayside seat and died.

The Montreal Tram Dispute

It looks as though the outcome of the Montreal Tramways strike would have a strong influence on the future of labour arbitration in Canada, and therefore it may be well to examine closely the issue which has caused it. Briefly, it is this: the union of the majority of the employees, wants a complete closed shop, and also wants a clause in its contract Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, wants a clause in its contract compelling all new employees of the company to join the union within 30 days of being hired. The Tramways company has refused to agree to this because it is contrary both to Dominion and Provincial law. The union has refused to refer the matter to the courts, and the strike is the result.

The issue here is not the simple one of the closed shop, but a more complex one relating to the kind of closed shop which shall exist in industry. The chairman of the conciliation board which has been looking into the dispute, Mr. Justice Oscar Boulanger, approves the closed shop principle, but he is against forcing members of minority unions to join the Brotherhood; the unions which would be affected as minorities are a Catholic syndicate and an A.F. of L. union. But a minority report from the conciliation board has been written by Prof. Frank Scott, well known as a C.C.F. leader, who says that a fundamental principle is at stake in this dispute which will affect the whole future of collective bargaining in Canada.

Judge Boulanger's objection to the Brotherhood's demand is that it eliminates the minorities, an action which he considers undemocratic. He is willing to agree that new employees of the Tramways company should be forced to join the Brotherhood, but compulsion used upon old employees to do so, in his own words:

> "Violates the right that every workman has under the law to join the union of his choice, because it would put the employees who are not members of the brotherhood, in the position of having to give up their lifelong occupation or joining the Brotherhood against their will".

The objection of the Minister of Labour to the union demand is that it places the Dominion government in the extremely nasty position of intervening in a labour dispute to tell workers what union they must join. Again, his criticism of the action of the Brotherhood is that it is undemocratic.

The reply which Prof. Scott makes to these objections is logical, but it can hardly be interpreted as democratic. The will of the majority must rule, he says, and there must be no odds and ends of minorities to prevent the Brotherhood from showing a united front.

> "We cannot", he wrote, "perpetuate the freedom of the minority not to join the majority union, without taking away from the majority their right to determine by collective bargaining the conditions of employment which shall prevail in that industry.... To force a minority to conform to the working conditions established by the majority is not a denial of freedom but a guarantee of it, otherwise the majority loses its freedom".

Mr. Scott does allow, however, that employees who are forced to join the Brotherhood may belong to other unions as well, if they care to pay two sets of dues. And although this sounds reasonable, if a little arbitrary, a deeper insight into what is really going on is afforded by Mr. Clarence Gillis's statement in Parliament that: "No small groups within the country or within industry should be permitted the prerogative of carrying on an agitation on the side so as to disrupt or interfere. " In other words, minorities need not expect to survive, and there must be no loophole which would permit a company to hire non-union workers.

Thus it appears that the dispute rests upon a subtle difference of interpretation of the principal of maintenance of union membership, as it is interpreted by Judge Boulanger and Prof. Scott. Several disputes of this nature have appeared before the National War Labour Board of the U.S.A., and that body has always upheld the point of view put forward by Judge Boulanger: that is to say, the American judgements support the principle that only existing and new members of a union must keep their membership as long as a union contract is valid; they permit the existence of minorities in these cases. It is also a fact, of course, that any employee can vote against the policies of his union by secret ballot, if he wants to do so; membership in a union does not imply as much totalitarian solidarity as Prof. Scott seems to think. Another interesting aspect of the Montreal situation is that a Catholic syndicate is one of the minorities involved, and if it is quashed the Church may have something to say on the subject which will make the Brotherhood think. The problem is a very complex one, and at present it does not look as though it would be settled for some weeks. Meanwhile war workers and a great number of busy people are being seriously hindered by the action of the strikers. However favourable he may be to the principle of trades unionism the spectator of this affair must be impressed by the paradox that Canadians are fighting to crush fascism abroad, while other Canadians are striking to institute a form of it at home.

The Charming Cherry Sisters

Miss Effie Cherry, the last of "The Charming Cherry Sisters", is dead. Between 1893 and 1903 these five women amassed a fortune by the curious method of presenting the worst vaudeville act ever seen on any stage. They were so bad that they were good. People would not believe that such utter innocence of dramatic art could exist unless they saw the act with their own eyes, and thus the Charming Cherrys made themselves rich.

The Cherrys lived on a heavily mortgaged farm in Iowa, near Cedar Rapids, and in 1893 they were fired with an ambition to visit the Chicago World's Fair. In order to raise money for the trip they wrote, produced and acted a passionate drama called The Gypsy's Warning, and presented it to an audience of friends and neighbours. Possibly the friends and neighbours knew no better, or possibly they could not find words in which to tell the ambitious sisters the awful truth; perhaps they made the ancient mistake of saying "Girls, you ought to be on the professional stage". In any case, the Cherry Sisters took their act to Cedar Rapids and put it on in a professional theatre there, and when the local paper panned the act they sued for libel. That was the beginning of their career.

For ten years after that they gave The Gypsy's Warning all over the United States, while audiences hooted, and roared and threw things at them. They saw the World's Fair, they paid off the mortgage on the farm, and they made enough money to retire in comfort. To the end they retained their curious delusion that they could act.

The only similar case of which we have heard concerns a play called Young England which enjoyed a very long and remunerative run in Great Britain before the war. It was written by an aged clergyman who was attempting to condemn vice and exalt virtue by means of the drama. It too was so bad that it was good, and it made the astonished author a large fortune.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The time seems ripe for a strike of Parliamentarians, demanding higher pay and shorter hours.

"Wife Shoots Husband With Bow And Arrow", says a headline. Probably she didn't want to wake the children.

Most Canadians, we think, will be glad to move forward into a time when both whisky and politics will be straight.

In Winnipeg sixteen diapers were stolen from a clothesline. The police are having an embarrassing time trying to pin the goods on someone.

Toronto holds the record for more heart attacks than any other place in Canada. More gas attacks originate there, too.

Only 3 per cent. of the Allied casualties in France have proved fatal. This shows good generalship and good fighting.

The spirit of savagery is to be found everywhere in the world. Recently President Roosevelt refused a proffered gift of a paper-cutter made out of the shoulder-bone of a Japanese soldier. And it will be recalled that one of Queen Victoria's faithful warriors once wanted to present her with an inkwell made from the shrivelled head of an African chieftain.

Diary Of A Work Despiser

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Was talking to a lady today who was in despair about her child; it had just broken a handsome old Spode plate—an heirloom. She wanted to know what she should do? I suggested that she follow the example of that great Shropshire gentleman, Sir George Mytton, and make the child pay for it when it had some money. Sir George had seven lovely daughters, and when suitors asked for them in marriage, the father would present the young man with a bill for the girl's upbringing, including the cost of food, clothes, nurses, governesses, travel and everything else; the suitor could pay for what he was getting or he could go elsewhere. All the girls married well, and Sir George was not out of pocket because of his family.... I told the distracted mother that she could charge the child for the plate when he was old enough to go to work and earn money. She attacked me indignantly: she did not want money, but a good child. There is no such animal.

MONDAY: This evening a friend of mine, who has recently become a keen amateur of astrology, attempted to cast my horoscope. According to his calculations, I have missed my vocation; I should either have been a postman or a real-estate agent. He also told me that in order to be in tune with my astrological influences I should dress in pinks, pale blues and yellows; he warned me against over-indulgence in food and drink and a tendency toward diseases of the digestive machinery; he told me my lucky gem and my lucky flower; he told me that if I worked hard (either as a postman or a real-estate agent) I should eventually enjoy a measure of success. I treated him with the derision he deserved.... Although I have no use for people who try to draw up astrological charts with a little knowledge gained from popular books on the subject, I cannot see why astrology should not be given a measure of credence. To believe in it demands an act of faith, but think of all the other things, no less improbable, we believe in on acts of faith! If we believe in the findings of astronomers and physicists, who are always proving each other wrong, I don't see why we should not believe astrologers, who are quite often right.

TUESDAY: A letter today from a man who does not sign his name, who wants to know why all my conversations appear to be with women. The answer is easy: I prefer talking to women. For many years I talked to men by preference, and at last I found out that very few of them have anything of interest to say. Now I talk to women by preference, to see if they are any better. I don't think they are, but they display a greater fancifulness in their errors than men do....Another correspondent writes to ask if I have noticed that most ghost stories are laid in the winter months. Why, he asks, do ghosts dislike hot weather? I presume that it is easier for a ghost to collect and materialize its ectoplasm in crisp weather than in these hot, muggy nights when the air is full of humidity. Humidity gives ghosts rheumatism....A gentleman told me today that he liked my diary because it gave him a chance 'to check up on me. Yes: and I have toyed with the idea of writing a gossip column, which would give a few thousand people a chance to check up on him. There are always people who know a great deal more about us than we suspect. You know my methods, Watson.

WEDNESDAY: Tonight to see the movie of Jane Eyre; a pleasant experience, chiefly because Joan Fontaine was admirable in the name-part; her beauty and good-breeding are deeply refreshing on a hot August night. But Orson Welles, as Mr. Rochester, was a misfit; he utterly lacked the aristocratic manner which should have made Rochester's imperiousness tolerable. Hollywood seems quite unable to grasp the fact that a man may be proud, and even haughty, without therefore being a boor. Indeed, this misunderstanding upset the balance of the film, for it looked as though Jane were marrying beneath her, instead of the other way about....Although the film began with a long list of credits, for everything from dialogue to make-up, I cannot recall any mention of the name of Charlotte Bronte, who in Hollywood parlance was the 'idea-woman' of the whole thing....I have now seen two movie versions of 'Jane Eyre' and one stage-play adapted from it, and my respect for the story is vastly increased. It appears to be utterly indestructible; however far actors or writers get from Charlotte Bronte's original the vigour and passion of the plot hold their efforts together.

THURSDAY: I see that the battle still rages about William J. Sidis, the infant prodigy who died a while ago, after a life devoted to obscure clerical work. There are those who say that his early development spoiled him, and those who say that he was not a real prodigy, but most of those who have written about him belong to the It's A Break To Be A Dope school of thought—those who think that any sort of mental effort is fraught with the most appalling dangers to body and soul. The fate of Sidis, they say, merely shows what comes of using your head more than you have to. To this I can only reply that Sidis worked his head very hard and he died in obscurity; those who presume to pity him do not use their heads at all, and they will probably do the same. There really doesn't seem to be much choice in the matter....Frankly I doubt whether most of us are in any grave danger of perishing of our own brilliance, even if we use our heads twice as much as we do at present.

FRIDAY: My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle; I really do not know where this week has gone. Or rather, I do; it has gone in work—so much work that there has been little time to think of anything else. For this is the holiday season, which means that someone is always away, and somebody else has to do his work; thus during the 2 or 3 months when the workers in a business are taking their fortnight's holiday, most of them are working harder than at any other time of the year, except for the one who is actually away. In due time I shall go for a holiday too, and someone will have to do my work, and be twice as tired as if I were here. Frankly, I think we should all have a better time if we never took any holidays.... Whatever the moralists say, work is a curse. It is frequently pointed out that people who have no work to do get into mischief, but I am sure that this is because they have never had a chance to learn how to use their leisure. In many ways the Middle Ages were much more enlightened than our own times; then people frankly recognized that work was a loathesome necessity, and nobody worked who could possibly afford to be idle.

SATURDAY: Chatted briefly this evening with a man who was interested in my proposal that bankers, lawyers and other professional and business men should sing at their work; he asked me if I knew a song which the late G. K. Chesterton had written for bankers? I did not, as I am not a Chesterton fan, but I shall look it up....We all take our work much too dully and sadly these days. And, as always happens when we exaggerate the normal and inescapable element of dullness and sadness in life, we tend to degenerate into figures of farce. An intelligent objective observer from another kind of life altogether—an Arab, for instance—would find our frozen-faced seriousness over our routine jobs hilarious in the extreme. Devotion to routine and elaboration of routine are both characteristic of our North American life. Our approach to the business of living is not: how can I make this as adventurous as possible? It is rather: how can I make this as stereotyped as possible? The Eastern mystic who seeks to achieve complete nullity by the endless repetition of set prayers has much in common with our western worshippers of routine for its own sake.

What Can Be Done About It ?

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

A REMARKABLE, indeed an extraordinary, feature of the general election in the Province of Quebec, is the large number, indeed a considerable majority, of the constituencies in which the elected member represents a minority—often a small minority—of the voters.

By the returns so far, such is the case in no less than 46 of the 65 constituencies of the province. When the full returns are compiled, the case may be worse.

Let us illustrate what we mean by taking the worst instance, namely, Rouyn-Noranda, the one solitary case in the province where a C.C.F. candidate was elected. The vote was:

David Cote, C.C.F.	2,695
Maurice Caouette, Bloc Populaire	1,751
Romuald Gagne, Lib.	1,663
Camille Beaulieu, U.N.	1,558
Gerard Mercier, Social Credit	1,305
L. D. Pilon, Ind. Lib.	1,181
J. S. Drouin, Ind. Lib.	53
Wilbrod Poirier, Ind.	14
Total vote	10,220

Here the elected members is shown to be the choice of 2,695 voters as against nearly 8,000 others who objected to him and his ideas, and yet he will be supposed to speak for all as a factor in the legislation of the Province of Quebec, or in the choice of its government. Duplessis has only a majority of one.

Or take the case of another constituency, namely, Beauce, where one of the few (four) Bloc Populaire candidates was successful:

Edouard Lacroix, B.P.	5,765
G. O. Poulin, U.N.	5,512
Hon. Henri Renault, Lib.	5,187
Laurent Legault, Social Credit	3,239
Total vote	19,703

Less than one-third of the electors who voted send to the Legislature a man to have a voice in the direction of provincial affairs and possibly decide the fate of its government.

These constituencies we quote are only two out of at least 46 in which a minority of voters are sending men to Quebec to rule the province.

Perhaps we might cite another case, that of another Bloc Populaire victory namely, Stanstead:

Ovila Bergeron, B.P.	3,597
Joachim Berube, U.N.	3,140
Maurice Theroux, Lib.	2,786
Raymond Fregeau, Ind.	2,100
Romeo Gauthier, S.C.	540
Total vote	12,163

Less than one-third again of the voters name the legislator.

With similar though less extreme minorities 46 constituencies of the province out of 65 elect to the Quebec Legislature men who represent a small part of the people.

This is a pretty series condition of the principle of Democracy that a minority of the people should dictate the government of the people.

What can be done about this anomaly? Must we experiment with the principle of Proportional Representation? The anomaly (which sent France to ruin) is something to which our political leaders and the people generally should give serious thought. Clearly with our present electoral system there is no guarantee that any parliament or legislature or government really repesents the best will of the people. Any govenment might be chosen by one-quarter of the people whose ideas and actions might be wholly repugnant to the other three-quarters of the people, and the whole political and national scheme plunged into chaos — as happened in France.

French Canada Answers Her Critics

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

WHATEVER may be the immediate consequences of the Quebec election on the provincial scene, the nation will mark its larger implications, we believe, with a deep sense of relief and with a lightening of the spirit. Surely at no time in the country's history has a Quebec election been scanned with such anxiety. The nation has watched the course pursued by the politicians of this province in hardly-concealed apprehension of their purpose. The more excitable observers in other provinces have not been slow to express their opinions and their fears.

Their alarm, caused by the emergence of the Bloc Populaire, has been proven groundless. This party has enjoyed the democratic liberties of free speech and a free press. Its anti-Canadian and separatist mouthings have been carried by the very freedoms it scorns into every corner of the land. It has deluded many into believing that it represented the thoughts and aspirations of the French Canadian people. Cut down to an impotent group of four representatives, it can now be seen tha tthe Bloc no more represents Quebec than are their English-speaking counterparts representative of the other provinces in which they are to be found. Quebec has no monopoly on rabble-rousers, as the country would do well to remember.

The French-Canadian people have once more demonstrated the stability that is the basic factor of their existence. They have reaffirmed the essential pattern of their national life that resists change, particularly if it is violent, and rejects the unknown for the known, the unreliable for the trustworthy.

These wholly admirable traits of citizenship have been obscured to the rest of the country by the actions of the very few who have interposed their noisy persons between French Canada and the nation. But they have not succeeded in blinding the Quebecois, who have thus proved themselves wiser than most, and possessed of considerably more sagacity than the country cared to credit them with.

The violent showdown between Quebec and the rest of the country envisioned by some observers has not materialized. There has been a showdown, but it has taken place, and rightly, within the province and between those who live in it. Its outcome is an affirmative act that should go far to consolidate and unify the national spirit. The people of Quebec have spoken, and what they have had to say merits the country's acclaim.

Certainly those elsewhere in the country who have been loud in their denunciation of French Canada should find in this rejection of extreme nationalism the best of reasons for a revision of their perspective of their fellow-citizens in this province.

"Total" Bunk

Hitler names a "super dictator" and proclaims a "total mobilization" of every resource. Politically both feats may be possible—grammatically not either in German or English.

Der Fuehrer is adding a rhetorical murder to his long list of homicides. His victim is the superlative degree in adjective and adverb.

How can there be a super dictator or even a super-duper dictator unless the preceding dictator was a phony—a mere half-breed tyrant? limited dictatorship is preposterous. And h[illegible] can one stage more than one "total mobiliz[illegible]tion?"

To the best of our recollection Hitler decre[illegible] "total mobilization" and "total war" after St[illegible]ingrad, but he just started the "total" talk [illegible] Funk, Ley and Goebbels have been screami[illegible] more "totals" ever since.

And what about "totalitarian"? Hasn't t[illegible] Third Reich been total ever since the Reichst[illegible] fire?—Chicago Daily News.

NO-RUN STOCKINGS

There is new inducement to hasten the end of the war in the announcement that chemical treatment of fibres, developed in recent months for war uses, has already attained such a state of perfection that women can be assured their silk and nylon stockings will be run-proof when the new process is applied to hosiery. It is all due, the explanation goes, to a deposit of submicroscopic grains of sand or silica which prevents the fibres from slipping out of the positions into which they are knitted. For the men, the same process means suits that won't wrinkle or wilt, that will never pick up a shine and will always retain their creases.—Boston Post.

A Bible Message

The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him. . . It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord....

Let us search, and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord.... O Lord, thou hast pleaded the causes of my soul: thou hast redeemed my life. (Lam. 3: 24, 26, 40, 58.)

Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy; and gathered them out of the lands, from the east, and from the west, from the north, and from the south.

They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in. Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them.

Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses. And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation.

Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men. (Ps. 107: 2-8.)

ALLOWANCES

Sir,—This controversy for family allowanc[illegible] seems to me to be very easily analyzed to thi[illegible] extent. It is claimed, that should family allowance as a whole be legalized, Protestants, generally having smaller families, would be supportin[illegible] those families of non-Protestants, who on a[illegible] average have larger families.

Now the solution would be, and should be th[illegible] a separate family allowance be instituted f[illegible] non-Protestants, and likewise a separate famil[illegible] allowance for Protestants. This would wor[illegible] out similar to the public and separate scho[illegible] system which exists in parts of the Dominion.

With this explanation, the public should vo[illegible] on this important matter all across Canada, [illegible] no injustice would be done to anyone.

EGGS are one of our more important foods from a nutritional standpoint and they may be used liberally in our menus to add variety to summer meals. There are any number of ways in sandwiches, combined with either foods as in souffles, added to sauces for extra smoothness and flavor, in desserts such as fruit whips.

Eggs hard cooked and devilled, sliced or chopped, may be added to salads, and when an egg per serving is allowed, a light salad becomes a main course like the following Garden Salad recommended by the Agriculture Department Consumer Section.

GARDEN SALAD: For six servings grate 1½ cups raw beets, 1½ cups raw carrots, 1½ cups shredded cabbage and 1½ cups finely shredded raw spinach. Hard cook six eggs. Arrange lettuce leaves on individual serving plates and arrange beets and carrots in lightly piled mounds on opposite sides on the plates. In between, place counds of spinach and cabbage. Arrange sliced or devilled hard cooked eggs in centre of plate and garnish with parsley or watercress. Serve with dressing.

ARE CHILDREN INDEBTED?
Parent-Offspring Relationship Full Of Heartbreaks, Crises

There is no other problem that is so filled with heartbreak and complications as what children owe to their parents. It touches life on the raw at so many points for it is not merely a question of duty. It goes far beyond that and takes in the obligation that children owe to the women and men they have married and to their own children and so often involves the ultimate well-being of the old people themselves.

No other human relationship is filled with so many dilemmas. Does the mere fact of a man and woman having brought a child into the world make that child a slave and entitle them to sacrifice it to their own whims and pleasures? Should an intelligent man and woman, capable of doing worth while things in the world, give up the careers in which they would find happiness and usefulness to please a senile old father or mother? Should husbands and wives let their parents break up their homes because mother likes to meddle and father is a born Hitler? Yet we see these tragedies happen every day.

Mothers-in-Law A Menace

We all know dozens of Miss Sallys and Miss Marys who gave up all thought of love, marriage and homes of their own because their mothers preached to them in their old age. We know dozens of men and women who have been doomed to lives of poverty and drudgery because their parents wouldn't let them go where opportunity awaited them. And it is a matter of common knowledge that divorce statistics show the mothers-in-law break up more homes than all other causes combined.

Now, of course, the great majority of parents are good fathers and mothers and do make many sacrifices for their children and they are entitled to all the love an appreciation that their children can give them. They present no problem. That riddle comes in when father and mother refuse to adapt themselves to the altered relationship between them and their children that inevitably takes place when their sons and daughters grow up and marry.

It is then that the children do not know what to do with Father and Mother whom they love, whom they want to make happy, yet to whom they do not feel that they are called upon to sacrifice themselves entirely. For well they know that if Father and Mother come to live with them peace and happiness will walk out of the door because old people cannot change their ways or opinions and they never get over feeling that they have a right to control their sons and daughters.

Yet both parties are bound by the tradition that parents should live with their children when they are old, and that children should take care of their parents, no matter how much better somebody else could do it, nor how much happier they would be if they lived in their own home and didn't have to witness the carryings-on of their modern grandchildren.

But how you are to make Grandma and Grandpa see this without hurting their feelings, goodness only knows.

Women Planning To Remain In Industry

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer.

WASHINGTON, August 12 (CP). —Margaret Hickey, new president of the United States National Federation of Business and Professional Women and chairman of the Woman's Policy Committee of the War Manpower Commission, says women are in industry to stay.

"Women have created the same place for themselves in industry in this war that they did in the business world in the last war," she said just after her election to head 80,000 of the United States' leading women in business and the professions. "A lot of them have come to like it and want to stay in it. They have proved themselves useful and made a place for themselves. Industry is adapting itself to the women and their working conditions are growing steadily better. And after the war hundreds of thousands of women will have to earn money.

"Of course, many women will leave industry as the war picture changes. Many have already gone—some because they were dropped, others because they chose to go. We are coming to the place where we will have a surplus of women in war work. The demand for women in industry will decrease in the next year or two. But there is nothing alarming about it.

"After the defeat of Japan we shall move into a replenishment period when we shall be replacing the houses we have not built, the household equipment, shoes, tools, and many other things we have not been making. In that great industrial period there will be a great deal of work for women."

Speaks From Experience.

Miss Hickey is one of the few women in the C.S. who can speak with authority for all classes of women workers—industrial, business and professional. In her address to the New York convention which elected her president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, she strongly advocated the expansion of its membership to include women war workers in war industries. (The Federation gave its first charter to a group of industrial workers—in Seattle—in June.)

In private life she is Mrs. Joseph Strubinger, wife of a St. Louis lawyer.

She went into the business world during the last war and by 1923 climbed into an office manager's job. Then she decided to study law. She was graduated from the Kansas City University Law School, was admitted to the Missouri Bar 1928 and practised law for a time in St. Louis. During the depression years she became tremendously impressed with the number of women who lost jobs in hard times and was convinced that the reason was largely due to faulty training and faulty job outlook on their part. So she left law practice and started a training school for secretaries and business women which she now runs in St. Louis.

In her job with the War Manpower Commission, she heads the first wartime committee of American women which settles important policy. She and her committee of 11 women leaders of labor and industry helped recruit millions of women for war production. They iron out problems of their training placement, and working conditions. Now they are to work on problems of transition from war to peace.

Otonabee Farmer Wed In Arntfield

A pretty wedding of interest took place recently in the United Church at Arntfield, Quebec, when Mary Edith Irwin, of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Irwin of Arntfield, became the bride of Douglas John Manley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Manley of Otonabee. Rev. Snelgrove officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white chiffon. Her finger-tip veil was caught to her head with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she wore a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Ben Jiles of Arntfield, was matron of honor, in floor-length pink chifon with a corsage of pink roses. Mr. Ben Jiles was best man.

About fifty guests were present at the reception, where the bride's mother received wearing rose crepe, with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a yellow gold locket. Mr. and Mrs. Manley will make their home on the groom's farm in Otonabee.

Lois McBride Weds Soldier

A wedding of wide interest took place in St. Cyprian's Anglican Church, Toronto, today, when Lois Marguerite McBride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McBride, Rogers street, became the bride of Bandsman Russell Arthur Bertram, of Camp Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bertram, of Toronto. The church was decorated with gladioli for the ceremony, with Rev. J. L. Hughes officiating. Miss Aileen Hughes was at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. Aileen McCall when she sang "At Dawning" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Stanley A. McBride, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white sheer with a full skirt. The bodice was made with a V-neckline finished with a diamond clip and the long full sleeves were caught tightly to her wrists with matching bands. Her fingertip veil of white net fell in graceful folds from a halo of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

As this is the season for preserving everyone is looking for new recipes, so I am going to give you some now. I hope you will try them and like them.

Carrot and Orange Marmalade

6 carrots, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, sugar. Dice the carrots and cook them until they are tender, in as little water as possible. Slice the oranges in thin pieces and add the juice and grated rind of the lemon. Measure the carrot and fruit and add two-thirds as much sugar. Simmer the mixture until it is clear. Turn into jelly glasses and when it is cold, cover with hot paraffin.

Peach Butter

2 quarts peach pulp, 4 cups sugar, 1 cup water. Pare, stone, slice and measure the fruit. Place it in preserving kettle with the water and heat it very slowly. When it is soft, pass the peaches through a fine sieve, return the pulp to the fire, add the sugar and cook until thick and clear. Pack in hot jars and seal.

Quince Preserves

3 quarts sugar, 3 cups water, 4 quarts prepared fruit. Never cook quinces in syrup before steaming or boiling them in water until tender, as sugar hardens the uncooked fruit. Scrub the quinces with a stiff brush, wash, pare, core, and quarter, dropping the pieces into cold water to prevent discoloration. Save all the good parings and cores for jelly. Measure the prepared fruit, put it into a preserving kettle, cover with cold water and cook until the fruit is soft. Then skim out and drain. Save the water to be used with the cores and parings and gnarly fruit for jelly. Make a syrup of sugar and water and boil for 5 minutes. Add the drained quince quarters and cook rapidly until fruit is clear. Pour into hot glasses and seal. Some people prefer quince preserves made with equal measure of sweet apples or firm pears. The method of making is the same as for quinces alone.

Cherry Conserve

3 pints pitted sour cherries, 1 pint black raspberries, 2 2-3 cups sugar. Combine all ingredients and cook until thick and clear.

Grape Butter

4 lbs. grapes, 1 lb. sugar. Wash and stem grapes. Cook in a small amount of water until skins are soft. Press the pulp through a strainer to remove seeds and skins. Add the sugar and cook until thick and clear. Pour into hot glasses and seal.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 13.

Sunday's horoscope points to high activities in the way of celebrations, parties, diversions and gala affectional life with probable culminations in courtships or marriages. Yet there are signs of excesses and over indulgence with regrets unless the feelings and emotions be kept under firm supervision. Be elert to treachery; and false words or writings. Also be on guard against physical dangers. With care, success and happiness are shown.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a successful and prosperous year if they will be alert to fraud, treachery and underhand doings especially with all papers or documents and with speech. Also shun impulsive or ever emotional indulgences or excesses, offensive to elders. Affectional affairs may reach happy culminations in engagements or marriage. Be conservative in expenditures and safeguard the health.

A child born on this day may be impulsive and tempestuous, but have a kindly and sociable nature, popular and happy.

For Monday, August 14.

Monday's astrological forecast is a conflicting one, with several contradictory situations. There is fair promise of progress and success, if certain precautions regarding treachery are followed. Subtle as well as sinister and malevolent matters may undermine. With care there might be lasting benefits, with firm foundation for future security, but be wise to mistaken judgments and intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is may have several matters to adjust during the year, prior to enduring and worthwhile benefits and progress. Intrigues, snares, underhand menaces in both private and business life should be shrewdly disposed of. Public or group recognition, with romantic and financial rewards may result.

A child born on this day should have sturdy qualities and talents, although it may be easily duped or deceived. With care and prudence it may reap substantial success.

OTTAWA, Aug. 12 (CP)—SMALL TALK: If you are one of the large number of Canadians who prepare special meals for the small children in your home, the Pensions Department Nutrition Division advises you to save time and energy by making the same basic meal do for both children and adults. And it needn't be dull for the adults, either. Build menus around the essential foods listed in Canada's Food Rules. Serve them cooked simply for the children; add a little imaginative flavoring and seasoning for the adults.

EGGS are one of our more important foods from a nutritional standpoint and they may be used liberally in our menus to add variety to summer meals. There are any number of ways in sandwiches, combined with either foods as in souffles, added to sauces for extra smoothness and flavor, in desserts such as fruit whips.

Eggs hard cooked and devilled, sliced or chopped, may be added to salads, and when an egg per serving is allowed, a light salad becomes a main course like the following Garden Salad recommended by the Agriculture Department Consumer Section.

GARDEN SALAD: For six servings grate 1½ cups raw beets, 1½ cups raw carrots, 1½ cups shredded cabbage and 1½ cups finely shredded raw spinach. Hard cook six eggs. Arrange lettuce leaves on individual serving plates and arrange beets and carrots in lightly piled mounds on opposite sides on the plates. In between, place counds of spinach and cabbage. Arrange sliced or devilled hard cooked eggs in centre of plate and garnish with parsley or watercress. Serve with dressing.

FLOWER TALK: With the gladioli season in charming swing and the tall spikes of bloom brightening every flower lover's home, this tip will extend the life of the flowers and your appreciation of them: when all but the top blooms on the stalk have wilted cut off the remaining flowers and float them in a large shallow dish of water. Their resemblance to water lilies will help the family cool off these sweltering August days.

VINEGAR ADDED to the water in the pressure cooker when canning will keep the metal interior experts say. Two tablespoons will shining and bright, the Prices Board do the trick.

EGG BEATERS: Tap the egg beater on your hand to loosen every last little bit of egg fluff when you are cooking. Banging it on the bowl's edge knocks out the air you've been working to put in.

ARE CHILDREN INDEBTED?
Parent-Offspring Relationship Full Of Heartbreaks, Crises

There is no other problem that is so filled with heartbreak and complications as what children owe to their parents. It touches life on the raw at so many points for it is not merely a question of duty. It goes far beyond that and takes in the obligation that children owe to the women and men they have married and to their own children and so often involves the ultimate well-being of the old people themselves.

No other human relationship is filled with so many dilemmas. Does the mere fact of a man and woman having brought a child into the world make that child a slave and entitle them to sacrifice it to their own whims and pleasures? Should an intelligent man and woman, capable of doing worth while things in the world, give up the careers in which they would find happiness and usefulness to please a senile old father or mother? Should husbands and wives let their parents break up their homes because mother likes to meddle and father is a born Hitler? Yet we see these tragedies happen every day.

Mothers-in-Law A Menace

We all know dozens of Miss Sallys and Miss Marys who gave up all thought of love, marriage and homes of their own because their mothers preached to them in their old age. We know dozens of men and women who have been doomed to lives of poverty and drudgery because their parents wouldn't let them go where opportunity awaited them. And it is a matter of common knowledge that divorce statistics show the mothers-in-law break up more homes than all other causes combined.

Now, of course, the great majority of parents are good fathers and mothers and do make many sacrifices for their children and they are entitled to all the love an appreciation that their children can give them. They present no problem. That riddle comes in when father and mother refuse to adapt themselves to the altered relationship between them and their children that inevitably takes place when their sons and daughters grow up and marry.

It is then that the children do not know what to do with Father and Mother whom they love, whom they want to make happy, yet to whom they do not feel that they are called upon to sacrifice themselves entirely. For well they know that if Father and Mother come to live with them peace and happiness will walk out of the door because old people cannot change their ways or opinions and they never get over feeling that they have a right to control their sons and daughters.

Yet both parties are bound by the tradition that parents should live with their children when they are old, and that children should take care of their parents, no matter how much better somebody else could do it, nor how much happier they would be if they lived in their own home and didn't have to witness the carryings-on of their modern grandchildren.

But how you are to make Grandma and Grandpa see this without hurting their feelings, goodness only knows.

Women Planning To Remain In Industry

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer.

WASHINGTON, August 12 (CP). —Margaret Hickey, new president of the United States National Federation of Business and Professional Women and chairman of the Woman's Policy Committee of the War Manpower Commission, says women are in industry to stay.

"Women have created the same place for themselves in industry in this war that they did in the business world in the last war," she said just after her election to head 80,000 of the United States' leading women in business and the professions. "A lot of them have come to like it and want to stay in it. They have proved themselves useful and made a place for themselves. Industry is adapting itself to the women and their working conditions are growing steadily better. And after the war hundreds of thousands of women will have to earn money.

"Of course, many women will leave industry as the war picture changes. Many have already gone—some because they were dropped, others because they chose to go. We are coming to the place where we will have a surplus of women in war work. The demand for women in industry will decrease in the next year or two. But there is nothing alarming about it.

"After the defeat of Japan we shall move into a replenishment period when we shall be replacing the houses we have not built, the household equipment, shoes, tools, and many other things we have not been making. In that great industrial period there will be a great deal of work for women."

Speaks From Experience.

Miss Hickey is one of the few women in the C.S. who can speak with authority for all classes of women workers—industrial, business and professional. In her address to the New York convention which elected her president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, she strongly advocated the expansion of its membership to include women war workers in war industries. (The Federation gave its first charter to a group of industrial workers—in Seattle—in June.)

In private life she is Mrs. Joseph Strubinger, wife of a St. Louis lawyer.

She went into the business world during the last war and by 1923 climbed into an office manager's job. Then she decided to study law. She was graduated from the Kansas City University Law School, was admitted to the Missouri Bar 1928 and practised law for a time in St. Louis. During the depression years she became tremendously impressed with the number of women who lost jobs in hard times and was convinced that the reason was largely due to faulty training and faulty job outlook on their part. So she left law practice and started a training school for secretaries and business women which she now runs in St. Louis.

In her job with the War Manpower Commission, she heads the first wartime committee of American women which settles important policy. She and her committee of 11 women leaders of labor and industry helped recruit millions of women for war production. They iron out problems of their training placement, and working conditions. Now they are to work on problems of transition from war to peace.

The bodice was made with a V-neckline finished with a diamond clip and the long full sleeves were caught tightly to her wrists with matching bands. Her fingertip veil of white net fell in graceful folds from a halo of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Switchgear and U.E.W. will meet at Riverside Park this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the fourth game of their semi-final playoff series with U.E.W. needing a win to tie up the round. If the Union comes down in front the two teams will meet again this evening at 6.45 o'clock to break the deadlock. In other words whether there is a game this evening depends entirely upon the result of this afternoon's clash. The crowding in of so many games has been made necessary by the fact that the City League has only another week to decide a winner and the local representatives must be ready to play Trenton a week from Monday. Although beaten last night and behind in the series 2 to 1 the U.E.W. team is hoping to have Hatty Eakins of Lindsay on hand this afternoon and they are confident that with the fireballer fogging them through that they can take Manager Murph Chambers team and sew up the series at two wins each. Switchgear on the other hand are supremely confident that the series will be all over this afternoon and that no game will be necessary this evening.

The City League final series, maintained by the executive last night as a four-out-of-seven arrangements will get under way Monday night at 6.45 o'clock when Plazas, winners of one bracket will meet the Switchgear-U.E.W. winners in the first game of the final round. Plazas came through the series with Soldiers in good style and are ready for the finals, with all their players back. They have Dave Wilson, Terry Woods and Frank Stokoe all ready for pitching duty and there is a lot of confidence in the Plaza camp despite the fact that if they should have to meet Switchgear in the finals they will be facing a club that they have not been able to beat in four starts this season. The two clubs have met four times and on three occasions the Chambers' team came down in front while the other battle ended in a tie. Plazas declare that the playoffs are something else again and that what happened during the regular season can be forgotten now that the chips are down and the last stage of the pennant race has been reached. Switchgear are also confident as to the result, arguing that what they did during the scheduled games can be repeated now. The series should be brimful of excitement and attract the biggest crowds of the season. There will be games each night next week.

Girl Finals Start

There is going to be plenty of championship softball next week. The City League finals between Plazas and the Switchgear-U.E.W. winners will hold down the stage in Riverside Park every night and the Girls' League finals at the Ashburnham Bowl also get under way. Westclox and Aircraft who are tied for first place in the senior division will meet Monday night in a sudden-death game to decide which outfit will finish on top of the heap. And having decided that the two teams will clash in a best-of-seven playoff series to decide the senior championship and the right to represent Peterborough in the provincial series. The first two games of the finals will be staged on Wednesday and Friday nights. Another girls' league championship playoff series also gets away next week with Johnson Motors and Brintons clashing Tuesday night in the first game of the intermediate finals. Immediate attention, of course, centres on Monday night's battle for first place in the senior section between the two old rivals Aircraft and Westclox. Both would dearly love to finish the regular schedule on top. Westclox took the first two games between the two clubs this season but Aircraft came back to take the next two and square the series and that is where they are now. Monday's game should be full of thrills.

The lineup of the Peterborough All Stars to meet the Sunday Morning Class here a week from this evening has been announced and a glance over the battle array will show the fans that a representative team, strong in every department has been chosen for this clash, which looms up as one of the season's outstanding attractions. Norma Strickland of Aircraft has been chosen to pitch for the Peterborough girls and Isobel Bullock of Westclox will do the catching. The infield will be composed of Nona Whetung, Westclox, 1b; Eleanor Craig, Aircraft, 2b; Viola McLean, Westclox, ss, and Marg Hawthorne, Westclox, 3b. In the outfield Marg Batley, Aircraft will cover left garden, Aggie Anderson, Westclox will patrol centre field and the right field duties will be taken care of by Barbara Rome, Westclox. The alternative players will be Audrey Patterson and Pat Wilson, Aircraft and Beryl Dobbin and Joyce Withers, Westclox. That is a lineup that includes strong hitting and fast fielding and one that should give a good account of itself against the starry swing-skirted Sunday Morning Class, one of Canada's outstanding softball attractions. The Toronto girls who play a brand of ball that is as sparkling as the uniforms they wear the bringing their full team down at their own expense to make this benefit game a real success and help the Kinsmen's Club whose charities will receive all the proceeds. The biggest crowd of the year is expected for this unusual attraction.

Here Too, Perhaps

George Soup Campbell, Oshawa sports commentator has the following crisp paragraph in his sport column and there may be something in what he says that applies to many Peterborough patrons of softball. Anyway here it is: "Getting back to last night's game, it was certainly a humdinger, from start to finish. GM Main Office nosed out O.K. Billiards 4-3 in the first game of their 3-out-of-five series and the issue was in doubt until the final out was made in the last half of the 9th inning. There were about 500 fans on hand. And while talking about the big crowds—we would like to point out also that any person who considers themselves a real "sport fan" and any person who is sufficiently interested in these softball games to go all the way to Alexandra Park to see the game, should at least toss in a "dime" when the "coffee-pot" is passed around. After all, if we only had a closed park in this city (the greatest need for all local sport organizations in order to assume financial success) then nobody would be able to see a bang-up thriller-diller, such as last night's game, without paying "two bits." And it would be certainly worth the money. Anybody who tossed less than a dime into the collection for a game such as that, is shirking his or her duty as "a sports fan." After all, these softball teams finance their own cause year-after-year and provide No. 1 brand of entertainment. Last night's collection was a long way off $50.00 and it should have been at least that."

The St. Louis Browns were finally stopped by the Yanks yesterday after they had reeled off 10 victories in a row but as the second place Boston Red Sox also were beaten the league leaders didn't lose any ground. The Yanks hit Jacuki and Hollingsworth hard and won the argument 6 to 1 on eight-hit pitching by Atley Donald. Chicago White Sox made history by picking off their first win of the season in Boston, getting two runs in the final frame to beat Joe Cronin's men 9 to 7. The Pale Hose have only won three games from the Red Sox this year. In the National League the Cards picked up another win, hammering the Phillies 9 to 4 with home runs by Johnny Hopp and Martin Marion playing a big part in the final result. The losers used four pitchers but found it impossible to keep the Card batters under control. At Pittsburg London's Frank Colman had a three-run homer that was a factor in a 12 to 8 win over the Giants. The Pirates had to come from behind a 6 to 0 deficit to overcome the Ottmen.

Switchgear Wallops U.E.W. 11 to 1

Switchgear moved another step closer to qualifying for the City League finals at Riverside Park Friday night when they handed U.E.W. a neet 11 to 1 shellacking and thus took the lead in the best-of-five series by 2 games to 1.

The argument may be settled today with a game at Riverside Park at 3 o'clock. If Switchgear win it will be all over but a U.E.W. victory would make a fifth game necessary this evening.

Ronnie Akers who was beaten by the Union in the opening game of the series was sent back at the fourth-placers again last night and got sweet revenge, holding the losers to four hits, two of them scratchy and hammering out two home runs, each with a team mate on the sacks. Akers did not allow a hit until the eighth frame when the losers bunched three for their solitary run. Until then only two Union batters got on base, both on passes and it looked as if the Switchgear was going to hang up the first no-hit game of the year.

Switchgear hammered Mac McPherson's offerings for fifteen hits. Mowry drove in our hits, getting a double and two singles, Honey Tompkins had our blows in six trips to the plate and Brockley had a double and two singles.

Switchgear fielded smartly behind Akers' good pitching and the Union team was given no chance to build up a big inning.

The winners started the scoring in the second. Mowry singled to centre and scored on Ashmore's drive to right on which Patterson tore in only to have the ball shoot by him for a triple. McPherson got the next three batters to hold Ashmore on third.

Switchgear added three more in the third. With Akers out Tompkins bunted safely and McNabb walked. On Carpenter's fly to Doughty the runners advanced a base when the throw in got away from Jackson. Mowry doubled to left to score Tompkins and afterwards scored on a passed ball when McPherson dropped the ball in tagging him at the plate.

That was all the scoring until the seventh. Switchgear had two on the fourth and sixth and the bases full in the fifth but the necessary hit was not forthcoming.

Five In seventh

They finally got rolling in the seventh. Brockley singled to left, McCormick flied to centre and Nicholls sacrificed. Akers then lined a homer over Patterson's head in right field to send Brockley home in front of him. Tompkins beat out a roller to short and McNabb and Carpenter walked to load the bases. Tompkins scored on a wild pitch and Mowry singled over second to score McNabb and Carpenter, Ashmore flied to Griffin.

U.E.W. finally spoiled Akers' no-hit game in the first of the eighth. With one away, Harding scratched a hit on a bunt along the first base line. Jackson lined to right for a base and when Brockley fumbled Harding went to third and the batter to second. McPherson singled into left scoring Harding but Carpenter cut Jackson off at the plate with a perfect throw when he tried to score on the play. Platt struck out.

Switchgear got their last pair of runs in their half. Brockley doubled to open the frame. McCormick popped out and Nicholls also raised a fly to Quigley. Akers rifled a homer to centre just out of Griffin's reach and followed Brockley across the plate with the last run of the ball game.

DISTINGUISHED GOLFERS ATTEND MAPLE LEAF OPEN TOURNAMENT — On the opening day of the $5,000 added "Maple Leaf Open" tournament being held at Scarboro Golf Club, Toronto, Al Watrous, 1922 Canadian open champion from Birmingham, Michigan's Oaklands Hills course, shared the leadership with Bob Burns of Weston, Ont. Watrous and Burns tied with sub par 68's. Stan Horne of Montreal Islemere Club was only a stroke back with 69. In close pursuit and deadlocked with 70's were Fred Wood of Vancouver, B.C., Joe Kirkwood, Australian born veteran from Pennsylvania, Willie Lamb from Lambton, Toronto, and Bill Kerr from Cedarbrae, Toronto. The man who made the tournament possible was "Angel" Bill McKenzie of Toronto, who put up the $7,200.

I'll Take Him Brags Fiery Pierre De Glane

Pierre De Glane, French-Canadian grappler, is decidedly cocky about his main bout battle with John Katan at the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena next Tuesday. "That bird ran out on me last week but now I have an hour to work on him and believe me that is just what I am going to do. Katan will think he is mixed up with a buzz saw when I cut loose," De Glane chortled. As for Katan he merely grunted. "That fool Frenchman needn't think he can scare anybody sounding off," the Panther exclaimed. "He'll be sorry he ever had the nerve to sign on for a main bout with me." It all looks like a riot when the two gladiators clash.

Promoter Tunney has lined up two other outstanding bouts to support the main card.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Although the boys have bowled and bowled and bowled all week, yet a goodly crowd came out last night for the week-end tourney. It seems that our members just can't get enough of this popular summer game.

The little shower didn't stop them and the heat didn't seem to bother either, so they came. They played the usual 3-7 end games, with the following results: C. Williamson, 1st; H. Darling, 2nd, and W. Jeffries, 3rd.

As we are entering the home stretch of our schedule games, the only group that looks as if it is settled is group No. 1. Tom McMillan's rink seems to be "home free." In all of the other groups anything may yet happen. Below we give the standing up-to-date:

Men's Section

Group No. 1—T. McMillan, 26 points; H. Darling, 19.

Group No. 2—R. Payne, 22; W. Jeffries, 21.

Group No. 3—G. Sorenson, 20; C. Williamson, 18.

Group No. 4—W. Ashby, 20; C. Lawrence, 20.

Ladies' Section

Group No. 1—Mrs. R. Dyer, 26; Mrs. H. Beatty, 25.

Group No. 2—Mrs. W. Hepburn, 28; Mrs. C. Renaud, 25.

Kingston Ousts Toronto Mahers; London Wins

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 12—(CP)—London city enters the final for the Canadian Sandlot Baseball championship with Kingston Ponies here tonight favorites to cop the title as a result of their impressive victories in the quarter and semi-finals.

The Londoners last night trounced Copper Cliff 16-3 while the Ponies trimmed Toronto Mahers 18-6. On Thursday night, London walloped Toronto Tip Tops, last year's Toronto and District Champions, 19-1.

Kingston and Copper Cliff were given byes into the semi-finals. The London team slugged the ball to all corners of the field in downing the Northern Ontario champions before more than 3,500 fans. Flat Chase, Negro veteran from Chatham started on the mound for London but left the game in the fifth inning riding the crest of an 8-3 lead. Tommy White and Hank Biasatti alternated for the remainder of the game.

Kent Sargent, Copper Cliff's starting hurler, was shelled from the box in the second with Maurice Vaillancourt following up with some neat relief work until London broke out with a crushing five-run rally in the sixth. Everitt Staple took over in the final inning for the visitors.

Kingston took advantage of 10 Toronto errors to pile up their string of runs. Mahers, however, appeared to be headed for their second victory of the tournament when they started the game with three runs in the first inning and added another in the fourth. Kingston showed nothing in the first.

Singles by lay and uinn and a fielder's choice got the Ponies two runs in the second and in the third they rode Samuelly out of the pitcher's box with a five-run rally to take the lead, which they never relinguished. In the fifth inning they brought across six more runs and by agreement of both teams the game was ended after seven and a half innings.

TORONTO, August 12—(CP). — Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching. And there's a good chance that when the war is over some of the prominent track and field men in the services will continue marching and running to bring that branch of sports to new peaks of popularity.

Bill (Niagara Falls) Gaynon opines that track and field events will be much more in the public eye in post-war days because of the emphasis the pastime is getting now. The Army of late has been stressing cross-country runs, and sprints and other track events are popular with the boys in their recreational periods.

Many star performers have enlisted, and their instruction and advice will do wonders to help the beginners learn the tricks and intricacies, as well as promoting interest in the sport. In this country, it's never been a great spectator attraction like hockey, baseball, boxing and so on, but the time may conceivably come when track and field wil graduate from the high school - college division and join other spectator sports.

Auld Lang Syne:

The old school tie was much in evidence at the old-time lacrosse players' re-union in St. Catharines, Ont., the other day. The old boys gathered from many points of the compass to talk over bygone plays and players. Among members of old double-blue teams present were Teddy Brown, goalie of 40 years back, Pete Barnett, Duffy Braden, Norm Harshaw, Tim O'Rourke, Fred Waghorne, Senior, Eddy and Tommy Sulivan, and many others.

Incidentally:

Tsk, tsk, the Halifax wrestling game is getting sissified. The Athletic Commision there has legislated against rowdyism. No bottles can be bounced off grunters' noggins, nor can spectators climb into the ring and assault the referees. Ho, hum, guess the Haligonians will all attend the tiddlewink exhibitions now....Chuck Conacher's champeen Oshawa Generals Juniors may have Jack McInnes in goal next winter. McInes goaled last season with the Ontario Junior B titlists—the De La Salle Oaklands......Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail relays some gossip from Hamilton, reviving the previous rumor that Brian Timmis won't be coaching the Wildcats this fall. His breach with Bossman Sam Manson hasn't healed yet. Jim says Ross Trimble, former coach of Ottawa Rouch Riders and last year's Toronto Hurricanes, will take over the reins.

MAKE DO WHAT WE HAVE

We can send material off to war by making what we have do....by re izing battle equipment needs wool and cotton and rayon....steel and rubber and paper more than we do.

Detroit Golfer Leading In Tournament

SCARBORO GOLF CLUB, Scarboro, Ont., Aug. 12—(CP). — The golfing spotlight today was turned on Al Watrous, veteran United States professional from Detroit, and Freddie Wood, youthful professional at Vancouver's Quilchena golf course, as play went into the final round of the $7,500 Maple Leaf invitation tournament over Scarboro's 6,436-yard course.

Physical trim and age probably will be important factors in the scoring over the 36-hole finishing route. Watrous, the Canadian open champion in 1922, tees off with a four-stroke lead over the Canadian shotmaker as a result of his four-under-par 67 yesterday and a three-under-par 68 Thursday.

Wood, one of the Pacific Coast's outstanding shotmakers for many years and a frequent campaigner in tournaments from Vancouver to Los Angeles, clipped two strokes off par yesterday and added to his one under 70 of Thursday has a total of 139.

Freddie, for some years has always expressed a likeness for keen competition and may upset the American pro.

Four strokes back of Wood were Stan Horne of Montreal, who added a 74 yesterday to his sub-par 69 of Thursday; Bob Burns, Weston, Ont., professional, who tied with Watrous on opening [illegible] ed to 75 yesterday; Bob Gray and [illegible]

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(AP)—First entry for the United States championships is 46-year-old Gill Hall, recently discharged from the tank corps...And the U.S.L.T.A. probably is hoping that Gil won't be able to go though the field without the aid of a tank...In Latrobe, Pa., site of the first pro football game in 1895, the public library has had duplicates made of all the early pro data gathered by Dr. John Brallier, the first professional player, and keeps it under lock and key as a historical document...Now if they could only made duplicates of such historical items and Jim Thorpe and Red Grange—and unlock 'em.

Weary Query

For the Q. and A. dept., Holly J. Same of Charleston (S.C.) suggests one on how many perfect games ever have been pitched in the major leagues...The Green-Red book lists six, including Ernie Shore's performance for the Red Sox in 1917 when he relieved Babe Ruth after the Babe passed the first man and the umpire passed Ruth out of the park...The other perfect-game pitchers: John Lee Richmond, Worcester, and John M. Ward, Providence, both National League, and Cy Young, Boston; Addie Joss, Cleveland, and C. C. Robertson, Chicago, American League.

Detroit Tigers A Threat To The Browns

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit's hot and cold Tigers emerged as the latest "threat" to the St. Louis Browns today with an eight-game win streak giving them renewed hopes of catching the leaders.

Although the Tigers held third place by only a half-game over the Yankees, they trailed Boston by only 1½ games and were coming on fast.

Detroit's two-man pitching staff of Hal Newhouser and Paul Trout, each with 18 wins, found a new partner last night in Stubby Overmire, who yielded 12 hits but chimed in with three blows on his own behalf in trimming Washington, 11-4.

New York finally stopped the Brownies' streak after 10 straight when their old jinx, Atley Donald, turned the pace-setters back with eight hits, 6-1. Donald's 12th win of 1944 was his 12th over St. Louis in 15 tries since he hit the majors. Rollie Hemsley and Russ Derby homered.

Boston missed a chance to gain by losing to Chicago 9-7 when Clem Hausmann and Pinky Woods walked in runs to break a tie in the ninth.

Russ Christopher scattered nine blows while the Philadelphia A's poked 13 hits off three Cleveland tossers for a 6-3 night edge.

Teddy Wilks failed to last in his first start since last Sunday's injury but Fred Schmidt came in to stop the Phillies and take credit for the Cardinals' 9-4 win over the Phils' Charley Schanz. Pittsburgh cut loose with seven runs in the fifth to trim New York 12-8 with Reliefer Art Cuccurullo decisioning Ewald Pyle.

Brooklyn belted Chicago out for the third time, 7-6, on Louis Olmo's single scoring Barney Koch in the 11th to beat Bob Chipam, and Cincinnati outslugged Boston 12-6 on two big innings.

Remember When—

Boxing fans made James J. Jeffries 2-1 favorite to defend his heavyweight title against Corbett 41 years ago today. "Gentleman Jim" entered the ring for the last time against Jeffries and took a beating in a 10-round battle.

IT'S THIS WAY — No, Chick, this way—not that way. It's 17-year-old Jack Atten, caddie and protege of Chick Evans, giving the ol' master advice on how to sink that long one in the 40th renewal of the Chicago amateur golf champion tournament at Jackson Park. Both men won their second round matches.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

After appearing in pinch-hitting roles during the past 11 weeks, Frankie Colman, with Toronto Leafs before moving up to the National League and a native of London, Ont. has become a regular right-fielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was announced last night by Manager Frankie Frisch. His relief work at the plate had broken up a number of games but the pilot asserted Colman would stay in the regular line-up as long as he keeps hitting. The player had been turned down for the Canadian Army because of a questionable knee.

Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia is meeting Phyllis Otto of Omaha, Neb., today at Chicago in the 36-hole final of the Women's Western Amateur golf championship. Last year the defending champion eliminated Miss Otto 4 and 3 in the second round of the tournament, this being their only previous clash.

Company stock of the St. Louis Browns, issued in 1936, is doing nicely. Shares of the leading American League club sold yesterday at $5.25, after being as low as $1.75 in the less lively years of the club. Par value is $5.

Goalminder for Victoria Army in the Allan Cup finals with Ottawa Commandos in 1942, Lieut. Arthur Rice-Jones, 32, has been wounded in France, according to word received by relatives in Vancouver yesterday. He was a member of Winnipeg Elmwods when they captured the Dominion junior hockey title in 1931.

Toronto Leafs In Tie For Fifth Place

(By The Canadian Press)

Baltimore Orioles are rolling again. The International League pace-setters won their second straight twin-bill from Buffalo Bisons last night 2-1 and 9-5 for their fifth successive victory to increase their league lead to three full games over the runner-up Newark Bears.

Prior to their latest winning streak the Orioles had dropped six of seven games and four straight to see their lead shrink to a mere half-game.

Bobo Palica notched his 12th victory as he out-dueled Bob Gillespie, Bison righthander, though each gave up but five hits.

Johnny Moldavon, runner-up to Red Embree of Baltimore for strike-out honors, fanned 10 Montreal Royals as the Bears defeated Montreal 6-1. It was Maldovan's eighth victory.

Rochester Red Wings evened the series with Jersey City Giants by pounding out a 9-3 victory as Bill Trotter limited the Little Giants to seven hits in gaining his 11th triumph.

Al Jarlett of Toronto joined Embree as the league's only 15-game winners when he blanked Syracuse Chiefs 3-0, with seven hits. Chet Morgan hit his first homer of the season in the first frame with one on. The Maple Leafs' victory put them in a tie with the Royals for fifth place.

RCN Beach Commandos In France Straighten Ship Traffic Jams

By Lieut. Cmdr. George Lawrence, R.C.N.V.R.

WITH THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY BEACH COMMANDOS IN FRANCE, Aug. 12—Along these sloping sands a bunch of very tough young Canadians preside as traffic cops and trouble shooters over a scene that looks like a Buck Rogers dream.

Their job is to beach the ships and bring ashore and put together the jig-saw puzzle that is the thousands of men and thousands of pieces of equipment cut apart and loaded on the other side of the channel.

The amazing part of this scene is the speed with which everything moves. Big ships with blunt prows come sliding to a stop, the prows flap open and the armor of war literally belches forth—huge cruiser tanks, little tanks, armored cars, scout cars, jeeps, transports, ambulances—a never ending vareity. Soldiers come ashore in transport trucks that whip off a beach they have never seen before at 30 miles an hour.

The beach looks, sometimes, chaotic. Seeing that it isn't, is the beach commando's job. At first responsibility falls on the officers of this super-trained lot.

In charge is Lieut. Cdr. Dennis J. Patrick O'Hagan, R.C.N.V.R., George Medal and Bar, whose home is in Halifax, and who won his decorations as one of the originals of a group of mine-disposal officers since described as "either decorated or dead."

Identical System

Here's how they bring your army and air force personnel and their equipment ashore on the beaches of France, for each beachhead oganization is similar. Each beachhead has a principal beachmaster—Lieut. Cmdr. O'Hagan here; he has a deput. The beachhead has three sectors under beachmasters, and the other officers and men are divided into three parties under them. The ships lay off shore on arrival waiting instructions that are based on tide, weather, enemy action, and a score of other reasons. Once ashore their cargo of humans or supplies goes out by three main exits, one for personnel, one for wheeled and another for tracked vehicles.

It sounds simple, but it isn't. Take, for instance, the day our beachhead was narrowed by enemy minefields. There was an urgent demand for certain supplies anchored offshore. There was a choppy sea and a crosswind. The ships had to be laid side by side, dangerously close, their bows on the beach and their stern held only by the kedge anchor they drop just before they hit the shore.

Upsets Operations

Suddenly the stern anchor cable on one broke. In a moment it was drifting to a crash with the craft alongside. Then there roared into action a 20-ton armour-plated water-sealed monster with a snub bumper nose. It plunged into the sea, met the ship coming around, and calmly proceeded to push it back to sea again. "The crew were all leaning over the side, and the officers, waiting for the crash," chuckled Petty Officer Douglas McIntyre of Sherbroke, Que. "Brother, you should have seen the look on their faces when we started pushing them around!"

Sometimes the tossing of the sea jams heavy tanks in the holds of the landing ships. Then through the yawning bow mouth of the long ship is run a wire cable, and a beach engine on the sandy shore digs in its tracks and tugs, for all the world like a little bulldog that has a line down the gullet of some sea monster. By sheer force the tanks are freed. Sometimes a vehicle will bog down. And if it isn't convenient to pull it out, there's a huge crane that will amble over and quietly lift it out and set it down somewhere else.

They have a return traffic, too. A different kind of traffic, and they're always looking for one of those friends they greeted coming in—and this, the wounded, is the harsh cut in an exhilarating job of action. They bring them down in ambulances each evening. They come from all near-by fronts, and you'll find men of many nations among them—French patriots and civilians, German wounded, a few Poles, Czechs, Dutch, Belgians — they've been conscripted into Hitler's labor corps and abandoned by the ruthless Hun.

Sleep By Hun Guns

The merry young Canadian beach commandos eat bully beef and canned stew and sling their hammocks at night in a vaunted west wall fort from which the Germans peered across the channel for three years.

They haven't even bothered to move the field gun whose snout sticks out in the seaward end of the huge steel and concrete box which the Hun built into a sandy bluff. In fact some of the lads used the gun carriage to sling hammocks, and hook the other end of the "mick" into the steel reinforcement girders bared of their concrete by Canadian tank shells still buried where they struck.

Not all of the boys were lucky enough to find themselves west wall forts to live in, and the result has been an assorted group of tents, dugouts and hastily constructed kitchens which look very much like a 'hoboes' shacktown. For from the moment they landed on the beach the commandos had to fend for themselves—they had to find their own places to cook, eat, sleep and relax in their spare time.

A.B. Reg. Burse of Hamilton, Ontario, constructed himself a dugout of solitary grandeur and named it "Little Hamilton." Four other lads have a shack of some proportions, built with pieces of broken boats and wrecked vehicles, which is dubbed "Canada House".

"It is just like being on a holiday," says Commando Joseph Adams of Belleville, Ontario, "We're all having the time of our lives — a glorified camping trip. Except I'm the cook!"

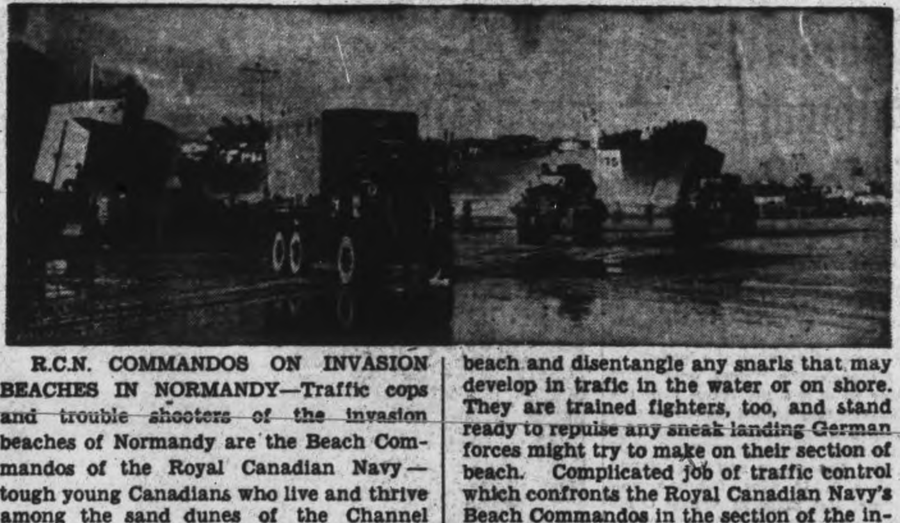
Meals Joint Affair

Food, Adam points out, makes or breaks a camp. And so every member of the group has become an unofficial "scrounger" to vary the monotony of the otherwise very excellent "Compo" rations—all tinned food, stew, soup, canned puddings, and so on. Usually extra food comes from the galleys of ships coming in to the beachhead, whose officers realize the conditions ashore are rather primitive. Fresh bread and fresh meat are "prizes beyond compare."

The commandos have no cook. "Somebody just gets browned off", Adams explains, "and I'm it." Every member of the unit, however, has been trained how to make a tasty meal—if necessary out of limited rations, and anyone may be called upon to take a turn in the galley.

"Even though the lads have a lot of work to do they've also got to keep themselves in shape," Petty Officer Douglas McIntyre says. "So we give them livening up exercises to keep them sharp, and exercises to keep their muscles hard. They have softball, volleyball, football swimming, boxing and wrestling. And believe me, they are tough and healthy lads!"

Which brings them back to Adams for something to eat. "I know they're tough and healthy," he mutters. "You can't ever fill them!"



R.C.N. COMMANDOS ON INVASION BEACHES IN NORMANDY—Traffic cops and trouble shooters of the invasion beaches of Normandy are the Beach Commandos of the Royal Canadian Navy—tough young Canadians who live and thrive among the sand dunes of the Channel coast. They are there to direct landing craft where to nose into shore with their cargoes of troops, tanks and supplies. They direct the movement of traffic along the beach and disentangle any snarls that may develop in trafic in the water or on shore. They are trained fighters, too, and stand ready to repulse any sneak landing German forces might try to make on their section of beach. Complicated job of traffic control which confronts the Royal Canadian Navy's Beach Commandos in the section of the invasion coast under their supervision can be guessed from scenes such as this showing great landing ships disgorging men and equipment.

This is the seaward end of a German West Wall fort which Royal Canadian Navy Beach Commandos have taken over as living quarters. Shown in front of their Normandy home are, Left to Right: Able Seaman J. Ross, of Owen Sound; Able Seaman A. Petty, of Toronto; Able Seaman J. White, of Port Saunders, Newfoundland; Leading Seaman J. Forsyth, of Regina; Leading Seaman W. Murphy, of Montreal, and Able Seaman A. Watt, of Regina.

So swiftly were the Germans thrust back from the beachhead now manned by Beach Commandos of the Royal Canadian Navy that they did not have time to take down the warning signs about their own minefields, which made things much simpler for men of the Canadian Army who took this area. Here one of the Beach Commandos, Able Seaman Douglas Trewin, of Sackville, N.B., studies one of the signs.

An armour-piercing shell that penetrated the interior of this German West Wall fort bared the steel reinforcements and gave Able Seaman Arthur Watt, of Regina, Sask., Royal Canadian Navy Beach Commando, a place to sling his hammock. The shell from the Canadian tank can be seen buried in the concrete.

Joint Efforts Prove Gardens Money Savers

By K. Z. PALTIEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 12—(CP)—Toronto's backyard farmers count their returns in exercise, health and a more or less steady supply of fresh table vegetables, but it is the organized Community Association that has put the Victory Garden into the realm of financial enterprise.

An estimated 2,500 or more community gardeners toiling over areas as large as 12 acres, this summer expect to save $20 to $30 on each average size plot of 2,500 square feet through their co-operative efforts. This is based on an estimated cost of $5 to $10 against an average return of $35 to $40 at retail prices.

Untold thousands of others belong to small, unregistered cooperatives or tend their tiny plots within easy distance of the restful backporch steps.

Largest of the organized groups is the Community Gardens Association, a division of the United Welfare Fund of Toronto, with a membership of 700 families. The Association has 10 blocks of land, ranging in size from two to 12 acres, with 900 plots, situated on vacant city lots or donated land. Co-operation is the keynote of such community enterprises, with members collectively buying pipe to carry city-supplied water to their plots.

Larger Group Pays Dividends

Greater financial advantages to community gardeners lie in greater production, their ability to obtain seeds, fertilizers and spraying materials at lower cost and because the amount of land involved in such co-operative undertakings makes for less waste space.

Wholesale dealers say increased home gardening has not affected their business. One, George Stronach, said the produce of Victory Gardens has not made "a particle of difference" to prices. George Rush of the Ontario Department of Agriculture says home and community gardening has had the effect of educating people to eat more vegetables in greater variety, resulting in the end in benefit to the commercial growers, canners and dealers.

Abolish All Hatred To End Wars Says Henry Ford

BIG BAY, Mich., Aug. 12—(AP)—One of the major post-war tasks, Henry Ford says will be to level off the far-reaching hatreds that have been created by the war. The Industrialist took time out from a vacation on the nearby Lake Superior shore to comment upon the progress of the war and the steps that must be taken to make it the last war.

"There can be no lasting peace where hatreds exist," he said and added that "hatreds will continue to arise as long as the causes of war are not rooted out and exposed.

"Remember this war was not brought on by men who work for their living. It was caused by the individuals—many of them unfortunately citizens of our own country—who profit from the manufacture of munitions and explosives.

"And mark this well, until these individuals are exposed, there can be no peace—only another armistice. By exposing tha I mean making them so well known that every school child can identity them by name and tell their purposes.

Oust War-Mongers

"If another Hitler comes into power after this war it will be because the war-mongers have not been ousted and want another war; because this war with its terrific cost was fought solely for the benefit of the munitions-makers and not for the preservation of democracy."

Mr. Ford said he did not believe it would be necessary to dismember Germany after the war in order to prevent another conflict.

"Get rid of the militarists and the German people can live in peace with the rest of the world," he said. "But you can't get rid of the sabre-rattlers by cutting them off at the top; you will have to root out the philosophies that create them."

Already, he said, "there is talk of a world federation; it isn't being called that, but those who propose world currency and world trade without tariff barriers are looking in that direction. A world federation and a parliament of man are coming; it may not be in my lifetime but it's coming just as surely as the world moves onward."

Hun Soldiers Drink Heavily

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer.

IRUN, Spain, August 12 — (AP)—Jean T'Kindt, 16, who crossed the Spanish frontier a month after he fled from his home in Belgium, said to-day the bulk of German troops have been transferred from coastal cities of south-western France and that those who remain are "drunk most of the time."

"They sell every piece of German army equipment they can get to buy more wine," he added. "Each night they sing German songs while drinking. They tell anyone who will listen they are afraid they won't get back alive."

Five Russians, once prisoners of war who were forced to volunteer for service in the German navy, told similar stories after fleeing into Spain. They described the remaining German garrisons in south-western France as "drunkards, men plotting desertions, and a handful of young fanatics."

Just Actors

Two Indians Are Convicted

JAMESTOWN, N.Y., Aug. 12 (AP)—A Federal Court Jury yesterday convicted two Canadian-born Indians, George A. Maracle, 25, and Robert D. Jamieson, 34, both of Buffalo, on similar charges of failing to report for induction into the United States Army. Both will be sentenced Aug. 21 in Buffalo. The jury deliberated 10 minutes in the Maracle case and found Jamieson guilty in six minutes.

Four Indians, all natives of the Grand River Reservation at Brantford, Ont., have been convicted in two days on the same charges. Wednesday, Delos E. Claus, 34, Buffalo, and Elwood M. Burnham, Nigara Falls were found guilty in separate trials. They will be sentenced Monday.

Judge John Knight ruled recently that Canadian-born Indians residing in the United States are subject to induction into United States military service. Marvin Marcus, attorney for the men, was indicated he would appeal Judge Knight's ruling.

10,000 Tons Tobacco Lost At Leamington

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Feb. 12—(CP) — Frances R. Gregory said today 10,000 tons of flue-cured tobacco had been lost on farms he owns in Simcoe county due to labor restrictions and said he had telegraphed Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other Federal officials asking removal of the order requiring flue-cured tobacco workers to register with Selective Service.

Mr. Gregory said the 10,000 tons of tobacco were lost on 16 farms totalling 650 acres he owns in the Delhi area. Many workers refused to register, he added.

Over Million Locked In Battle

LONDON, Aug. 12 — (CP) — The German Transocean News Agency estimated today a total of 1,500,000 men are involved on both sides of the fighting in France and acknowledged that the American break-through at Avranches has placed the Germans "in a difficult position."

In a Berlin broadcast, the Agency said General Montgomery, Allied Ground Commander, was throwing fresh tank formations into the Canadian sector east of the Orne, where "the German High Command has to reckon with a perpetual force of 200 to 1,000 tanks."

Transocean said Polish troops had gone into action on that front "to make up for the losses of the Canadians."

The Berlin broadcast said the Canadians and their Polish reinforcements had advanced 3½ miles through territory "completely devastated by the Allied artillery barrage of the last few days and by Allied air bombardments."

"GHOST OF GUAM"—Chief Radioman George Ray Tweed, of San Francisco, Calif., 42, a navy enlisted man who hid from the Japs on Guam for almost two years, is shown. Tweed, stationed on Guam when that island was captured by the Japanese in Decmeber, 1941, was rescued by an American ship after the invasion of Saipan.

Butter Output Shows Decrease

OTTAWA, Aug. 12 — (CP) — Production of creamery butter in Canada in July amounted to 41,464,961 pounds, compared with 44,523,802 in the corresponding month of last year, a reduction of almost 7 per cent, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Output in the seven months ended July aggregated 176,658,285 pounds compared with 186,919,249 in the corresponding period of last year, a decrease of 5.5 per cent.

July production of cheddar cheese totalled 28,056,902 pounds. against 26,958,902 in July of last year, an increase of 4.1 per cent., the bureau said. All Provinces except Ontario recorded increases in this comparison. U.S. Changes Bomber Output

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—A sweeping cut-back, in aircraft production, affecting Liberator bombers, Commando transports and Thunderbolt fighters, was ordered by the United States War Department last night to clear the way for the huge new B-29 and B-32 superbombers and to release workers for more critical jobs.

Twenty thousand workers will be affected immediately and an estimated 100,000 more will be laid off by the end of this year, said the announcement released by the Office of War Information.

Inability of the Luftwaffe to inflict as heavy losses as had been expected account for the cut in transport planes, officials said.

Housing Law

OTTAWA, August 12 — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley said last night in the Commons that the Government's new housing legislation will be made effective as soon as possible, at least in part.

He said the part of the legislation providing $100,000,000 in loans to prospective home owners would be made effective first, possibly with some of the other parts. However, all sections of the Bill might not be put into effect immediately.

Market Under Survey By Council

Off the market sales of honey, fruit, poultry and other produce have been noted by the city council, as a wartime development during the last few years tending to leave an impression around the city hall that farmers themselves are losing interest in the market accommodation.

Observations are continuing as a preliminary to the conferences which the council is planning for September with market gardeners, farmers of the county and district, and also with consumers of the city, who are also taxpayers.

Some of the members of the council who would not have listened even a year or so ago to any idea of closing the market are now willing to give it thought.

If farmers and other producers are not going to bring their supplies to market, the changing practice of many of them at times during the last two years, then, obviously the market is no accommodation to them or to the city people.

Turkeys sold off the market, honey, raspberries and strawberries, potatoes in a shortage, and so on down the list of district products, have been opening the eyes of members of the city council to a rural and market-gardening indifference to the Peterborough market that is discouraging to those who have long favored and supported it.

If producers prefer "black markets" they might remember now, as it has been remarked at the city hall, that they are creating an unfavorable attitude toward the market. In fact they have been the very first to desert it, leaving the buying public to the methods of the scroungers or go without. Members of the council have already declared that, as far as their influence goes, the market is going to be switched from its present location. If the city is going to spend money on a new site and building there will have to be strong reasons and evidence to support that investment. "Off-market" selling by producers is not one of them.

Apples In Quantity Appearing On Market

Apples were featured at the Farmer's Market this morning, with choice yellow transparents selling at 40 cents a six quart basket, Duchess apples at 35 cents a measure, and other varieties ranging from 30 cents a six quart basket.

Eggs ran the price gamut from 30 cents to 38 cents a dozen, dpending on grade, and chickens started at 35 cents a pound and were steady at that price. Roast chickens sold at 45 cents a pound, although there were few in evidence at the market this morning. Corn held firm at 35 cents a dozen; green and red peppers went for 5 and 10 cents each, choke-cherries were to be had for 50 cents a six quart basket, and tomatoes sold generally for 50 cents a basket.

Thimbleberries held the fruit spotlight this morning, moving at 40 cents a quart. Cabbages vanished at 5 cents each, marrows at 30 cents each, egg-plant sold at 5 cents a bunch. Cucumbers ranged from a cent each to 3 for 5 cents, pencil-pod beans at 5 cents a quart potatoes from 25 cents a six quart basket, and honey was moving at two pounds for 45 cents, or 1½ pounds at 35 cents. Green garden beans sold for 3 boxes for 15 cents, dill at 5 cents a bunch, summer squash at 5 and 10 cents each, and gladiolus at 60 cents a dozen.

Fire Destroys Barn, Hay Crop

WARSAW, Aug. 12—(ENS)—The larger of two barns on the farm of Henry Dewart, one mile from here, was completely destroyed Friday afternoon when the threshing-machine blower pouring straw into the barn suddenly caught on fire and threw sheets of flame over the inflammable contents of the building. The loss, including the destruction of the threshing-machine, the entire season's crop of hay and 80 bags of oats, was estimated to approximate $2,000.

Fifteen men were threshing at the barn when the fire started just before 4 p.m., but none were inside when the flame astonishingly burst from the blower. Fire started up in a dozen places at once and even the utmost efforts were unavailing to save the barn or any of its contents. Though fanned by a high wind, the flames were kept away from the smaller of the Dewart barns, which is only 100 feet distant.

The threshing-machine which was being used was the property of John Payne, and it was the second time in ten years' that he had lost a threshing-machine by fire. It is irreplacable under the rationing of farm machinery at the present time.

CANUCKS DRIVE AHEAD TOWARD PARIS—British and Canadian forces are driving ahead on the main road to Paris, and are closing on the French capital. R. Montgomery Single-Handed Wipes Out Nest

CAMPBELLFORD, August 12 — (ENS). — Frederick Griffin, staff correspondent writing in the Toronto Star says: "Then at Columbelles during the fighting at the chateau, there was Bob Montgomery of Campbellford, who virtually ended its resistance single-handed when he ran into the open with his Bren gun, shooting directly into the cellar windows to ferret out 30 prisoners."

The young soldier was born in Campbellford 22 years ago and attended the Public and High Schools here. He enlisted in April, 1941, with the Irish Regiment and went overseas this year. Writing to his father and mother from France of another occasion from that mentioned by Mr. Griffen, he says: "We put on a big show and our regiment was congratulated by the General Officer Commanding. There were about three platoons of us, and altogether we took over 300 prisoners. We moved right up to our objective and I really enjoyed it, for we have a pretty good gang here, mostly from Toronto, and we are like one big happy family."

Watering Troughs Infect City Horses

Three watering troughs for horses are being drained and closed temporarily as suspected sources of infectious distemper.

Delivery horses in bread and milk services and also some of the city's horses have been affected by a disease which is believed to have been spread by the watering trough on Hunter street east. At a meeting of the Board of Health three weeks ago some mention was made of signs of distemper and actual sickness in local horse barns. The Hunter street trough was especially suspected, and observation has been continued since then.

The water supply has been cut off by the Utilities Commission at the request of Dr. Harold Worton of the city's health department, and three troughs will be thoroughly disinfected. One hose is at present sick to the extent that recovery is doubtful. The experience of distemper infection has been fairly general, but some of the barns suffering more than others. It was reported that the sickness among municipal horses was not serious.

Hotels Close Early Due To Beer Shortage

A beer shortage effected an early closing of most of the town's hotels Friday, with the Grand and the Champlain closing its doors shortly after 1 o'clock. The Empress hotel closed down at 6.30 o'clock, the King George Hotel sold out at the same time, and the Queens Hotel closed their doors at 6 o'clock. There has been no indications the shortages of beer will be alleviated today, and the local liquor control board had their "beer sold out" sign hanging in the windows at an early hour this morning.

Inquiries at the Brewers' Warehouse revealed it would open as usual at 10 o'clock this morning, but would make no predictions as to how long they would have supplies.

Sort Of A Joke

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 12— (AP).—Two former rodeo riders who met eight weeks ago and "got to talking about horses" were married at a riding stable here Friday, each astride a horse. Tommy Thompson and Betty Reed, the bride and groom, both wore riding clothes and the judge who conducted the ceremony was dressed like a cowboy.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE — Pte. Reginald J. Mongraw, who was wounded in England by a robot bomb recently, writes that his escape was nothing less than a miracle. He left his lorry parked across the road from a cafe, and after the bomb struck not even a piece could be found of the machine.

Soldier Writes Miracle Protects Him

"It was an act of God that saved me," wrote Pte. Reginald Mongraw to his wife at 129 James Street here as he described how he parked his truck in London and walked across the street to a restaurant. Two minutes later a buzz bomb completely disintegrated the machine killing 29 people, fatally injuring others who died later, and causing injury to 150.

His letter reads: "I went into a large cafe to eat, leaving my truck just across the street. I had not been there two minutes when a buzz bomb fell. It landed right where I parked my truck. There were about 20 people in the restaurant. Nine of them are dead and more will die."

"A total of 29 people were killed outright and about 150 injured. The bomb landed about 20 feet from where I was sitting. I wasn't knocked out and was first out of the building and then it collapsed. Those remaining in the cafe were burned with it. They never found a bit of my truck."

"I got a nasty cut on the side of my temple, another on my right cheek and quite a hole in my chest. I underwent an operation at a hospital. They said they removed an awful lot of glass and steel from my body. I am fine now and getting better quickly."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mongraw.

EASING HEAT DISCOMFORT

During the height of Friday afternoon's oven-baked heat-wave, at least one young lady in Peterborough was cooling off. Lying in the back seat of a car driving down George street, the girl's shoeless feet could be seen gaily protruding from the window of a car. Whether she lost her shoes, stockings and other equipment on a previous trip, was a topic of interest among pedestrians as the car whizzed by. At any rate, it looked mighty comfortable and cool!—D.M.

MISSING IN FRANCE—Formerly on his father's farm at Omemee, Pte. Bruce Fairfield, son of Walter Fairfield and the late Mrs. Fairfield, has been officially reported missing in action in France July 28, according to a telegram received recently by his sister, Mrs. E. Berry, 285 Romaine street.

Box At Empress Adds $25 To Good Record

In all kinds of welfare work of a public nature there is bound to be at least a certain measure of success when some interested people take a real personal interest in the appeal that is thus made, no finer example of which may be found in its own sphere than that of the penny box located in the Empress Hotel on behalf of the bomb victims in Britain, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose.

Less than one month ago this column on behalf of the fund reported a collection from this one box as yielding the fine sum of $20, and now today it goes considerably better by yielding the splendid amount of $25, very largely in 25-cent pieces, at least one of which is deposited every day in the box through the personal interest of the proprietor.

This personal interest has made this one feature of the local activities on behalf of the fund a really outstanding example of what is possible from an individual standpoint where a genuine interest in the needs of others less fortunate than oneself is of such a nature as to cause one to think and act in a practical way on a daily basis.

Were the entire revenue from this one source to be tabulated, it would be shown to have played a very important part in the activities of the fund. This particular time, it was enriched with the winnings of a $2 side bet as to the amount of its contents, and when the box was thus found to have $24.25 in it, the amount was immediately made up to $25 by the one whose personal interest has done so much for it in the past.

Recorded also today is a collection from the first box placed in circulation for the fund at Bert McLeod's drug store, this having a $1 bill in it to make a total of $2.85, which gives an overall up to the minute credit of $2,310.63 for the penny boxes in general.

Young Children Help

Some boys and girls have learnt how much real satisfaction lies in using their holiday hours for the purpose of helping others in need, this being borne out by a group of youngsters in West Romaine street turning in the proceeds of their 3rd activity for this purpose during this and past summer recesses from school.

Five youngsters, Carl Brioux, Bobby Curtis, Barbara Bryant, Ronnie and Kenny Deck, ranging in age from 10 to 13 years, held what they termed a circus at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Briou at 558 Romaine street, on Tuesday, having a hot dog and drink stall, with four different games which included the ever popular bingo, to raise the nice sum of $7.05 credited in their name today, a fine way in which to spend their leisure hours from school, which reflects credit to themselves.

Personal Gifts Wednesday

Another list of personal gifts is now in the course of being received, with the expectation of having them acknowledged in next Wednesday's report, for which purpose some have already come to hand. All personal gifts received up to next Tuesday at the close of business in The Examiner office will be acknowledged at that time.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, August 12 — (CP). — You know that the engine of a buzz-bomb stops a few seconds before it dives and explodes. Well, listen to this true tale from S. F. Rous, secretary of the bigtime Football Association who convulsed an audience at a sports luncheon when he told it the other day.

Rous said he was visiting an elementary school in London where some of the boys were playing cricket.

"One boy was bowling to the batsman when a flying bomb was heard approaching," Rous said. "The boler stopped and said, 'What about the shelter?'

"'Garn,' replied the batsman, 'give us another ball. The engine hasn't cut out yet.'"

Vince Hawkins, Britain's new boxing sensation and undefeated contender for the British middleweight championship, outpointed Tommy Davies, Welsh middle titlist, over 10 rounds in the feature bout of a card held in a massive circus tent at Birmingham. It was Hawkins' 54th fight as a professional and he has won 53 of them. The other was a draw — against Davies a couple of months ago.

Hawkins, a railway fireman who also belongs to the Home Guard, forced the pace from the start and thrilled a crowd of 4,000 with his hard-punching that overcame the ringcraft of the wily Welshman.

One of the closest finishes in the history of British bicycle racing came about at Barnet, when, after a race of 83 miles, the winner beat his nearest rival by a length with the third finisher just a half-length behind.

The victor, Rod Baker of West London, covered the grind in three hours 46 minutes 50 seconds. Bob Boyden of London, winner last year, was third.

A proposal that sports representatives from towns and villages of Britain should exchange visits with those of Holland and Belgium when the Nazis are driven out was made by A. Milhado, president of the Netherlands Sports Organization at a London meeting.

He said that international games certainly will be resumed but that he wanted to see lesser lights in the sports world facing each other in competition to "further cement the friendship which has grown between the different Allied countries during our stay here."

Representatives of Poland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, France, Norway and Switzerland also attended the meeting, which was in the form of a luncheon tendered by the Netherlands Sports Organization.

Vacation Slump At Clinic Showing Some Improvement

The outstanding feature of blood donors clinics in the past two weeks and more has been the severe dent that factory holidays made in the number of contributors. During the week the C.G.E. - Genelco was closed for vacations, the loss of its many employees who regularly attend the clinic dropped donations to record or near-record lows. Wednesday's clinic, the first held this week due to Civic Holiday Monday, showed a definite upward trend once again, with a total of 57 donors, but vacations are still evidently taking their toll, since in the early spring the Clinic was time and again handling as many as 100 donors each day of operation.

COMBINING PLAYS

Among the most beautiful plays in the game are those which are really combinations of two or more different plays. Sometimes they give the defenders an option between two courses of action, either of which will beat them. In other words, the declarer lets them choose between different ways of committing suicide.

North: ♠ 8 6 3 ♥ K Q J 2 ♦ J 6 5 3 ♣ Q 5

West: ♠ K 10 7 ♥ 10 9 8 4 3 ♦ 10 ♣ A K 10 7

East: ♠ J 5 ♥ 7 6 5 ♦ Q 8 4 ♣ J 9 8 4 3

South: ♠ A Q 9 4 2 ♥ A ♦ A K 9 7 2 ♣ 6 2

Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	5 ♦

West's lead was his club K, and for some reason he decided that the diamond 10 was a good shift. This brought the J, Q and A. The diamond K and 9 closed out the hostile trumps, the heart A was scored and the diamond 2 was led to the 6, West discarding hearts on the trumps. Followed then the heart K, Q and J for discards of a club and two spades.

If West had put two clubs on these, the dummy would have fed him the club Q to his A, South shedding a spade, which would have compelled West to lead up to his spade A-Q. If West discarded two spades, his K then could have been dropped. So he tossed one club and one spade, whereupon North led a spade and played his Q. The K was all West could take, as South's cards were now all good. He had used a combination of a squeeze and lead-throwing end play.

West could have taken two clubs at the start, and then waited for South to lose to the spade K, but he didn't do this.

Cyclone Damage 2 Millions In Saskatchewan

KAMSACK, Sask., Aug. 12.—(CP) —Government and army authorities today moved to aid storm-stricken Kamsack, where a cyclone caused damage of more than $2,000,000 Wednesday.

The Saskatchewan Government donated $50,000 to the town, 225 miles northeast of Saskatoon, to help in rehabilitation plans; the city of Regina plans a cash grant, and a province-wide appeal was made for funds and supplies.

More than 220 soldiers arrived to help townsmen and scores of volunteers from near-by communities to clear the debris-littered streets.

The first storm fatality was reported today as 9-year-old Evelyn Padely died in Kamsack Hospital from head injuries.

She was the third victim of the storms that whipped across the prairies Wednesday. Two deaths were reported in Manitoba. May Priessen, 16, of New Bothwell, and Henry Burak, 39, of Lorette, Man., were killed by lightning.

Several in Hospital

Several other persons were in hospital at Kamsack, one, Aylmer Padely, 2 years old, whose sister died today, in critical condition.

Acting Agriculture Minister L. F. McIntosh, left Regina today to direct relief work. The soldiers came here from Dundurn military camp.

There is no shortage of food, but with power services disrupted there is no refrigeration. Ration restrictions were lifted, effective during the emergency.

"I do not contemplate any trouble in feeding the people," said Town Clerk W. G. Blewett.

Many homeless people are being cared for at the Salvation Army building. Three churches, many buildings, and scores of houses were demolished, while many more were damaged.

Building Disappeared

Mary Yuzyk told of the destruction of her home, a three-room cottage.

"I was coming home as the cyclone struck. In a flash of lightning, I saw my home at the corner. When the lightning flashed again, it was gone. It was simply unbelievable.

"I have absolutely nothing left," she said. "I haven't even a tooth brush or a comb."

On a farm, a short distance from Kamsack, a barn, a shed, seven granaries and 300 acres of grain sheaves completely disappeared.

Blown Onto Tracks

Death appeared but a few feet away to June Lucas, 19-year-old railway express clerk, when she was caught in the Kamsack cyclone and swept from the station platform to the tracks. She is now in Winnipeg.

A locomotive was but a short distance away, moving toward the station. Stunned, she crawled and squirmed back to the platform. Again she was caught in the wind and tossed back onto the track. The engine had passed.

Semi-conscious, she was found under a pile of wreckage by two railway workers. Brought to St. Boniface Hospital today for X-ray examination it was found she had suffered a broken pelvis. She will be in hospital for several weeks.

Miss Lucas was accompanied to Winnipeg by Nurse A. Batterman of Kamsack who told newspapermen the story of the young express clerk.

Teachers Seek $1,200 A Year

MONTMORENCY FALLS, Aug. 12.—(CP).—Conviction that no salary lower than $1,200 was adequate for any teacher today was expressed by delegates at the 23rd annual meeting of the Canadian Teachers' Federation. The convention, which began here Monday, closed Friday night.

In a telegram to the federation, Selective Service Director A. A. MacNamara stated it was quite reasonable that the wartime freezing of the teaching profession be modified in order to permit teachers earning low salaries to look for spare-time jobs. Modification of the teachers' statute had been requested by the federation.

In his telegram, Mr. MacNamara said: "Letters have already been prepared to be sent to Ministers of Education in the provinces suggesting that the freezing order might be modified or cancelled some time next year." He added: "It was thought wise to ask Departments of Education for advice."

A resolution approving establishment of a joint committee of Canadian and American educators to study textbooks with a view to establihing better international relations was passed by the conference. It was resolved that the federation's executive inaugurate a study of the textbooks now in use in history, geography and related subjects with a view to encouraging and fostering national unity.

The federation decided it would continue to urge that the Dominion Government accept a measure of financial responsibility in assuring every Canadian child equality of educational opportunity up to the end of the secondary school level.

Egg Prices Show Increase

TORONTO, Aug. 12—The egg market continued firm yesterday, light receipts meeting a good demand. Prices to the retail trade moved up a cent a dozen yesterday for the three top grades, but all other prices were unchanged at previous levels. After three weeks of inactivity, the market for "B" grade showed some improvement There is little demand for 'C' grade, but with the return from vacation of numerous small bakers, regular channels for the movement of these should reopen. Offerings to the Special Products Board have ceased owing to the quotation being above the Board prices. No eggs were reported from Western Canada this wek.

Butter held firm under light deliveries. Demand is not especially heavy, but is sufficient to keep offerings on th move. Dealers report having no trouble selling Ontario No. 1 solids at 33¾ cents. Quotations on Western butter yesterday ranged from 34¼ to 34½ cents, but outside of one extra good lot reported sold at the higher figure, sales were made at 34¼ cents.

Soldiers Resent Statement By Clergyman

TORONTO, Aug. 11 — (CP) — The Maple Leaf, newspaper published for Canadian troops in Italy, published in a recent issue a letter asking that Rev. George N. Luxton of Grace church-on-the-hill in Toronto retract statement he made in June about the attitude of medical officers in the services toward venereal disease.

The letter, forwarded to Dean Luxton on behalf of the RCAMC., dealt with statements he made at Toronto synod of the Anglican Church during discussion of a program of sex education and venereal disease control.

Dean Luxton called for "an intensive Christian approach" to the venereal disease problem in the services and said the attitude of some medical officers was "we know you can't be good but be careful" Prophylactics were distributed in some units, said the Dean, adding: "We should insist on Christian idealism among medical officers instead of peddling this unsavory attitude through our forces."

The letter said that Dean Luxton was not fully informed as to army policy for methods of venereal disease control and said that "medical officers continually preach continence and advise about the evils of immoral sexual intercourse."

"This may or may not, according to your standards, constitute Christian idealism, but it has virtue of being sound, practical common sense," said the letter which added that the Medical Corps "bitterly resents your words."

CANADIANS START GREAT OFFENSIVE

Red Armies Mass For Great Push

Russians Bite Deep Into Hun Lines No News At Warsaw

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 14 (AP) — The zero hour for an all-out Soviet assault on East Prussia appeared to be approaching rapidly today as Russian armies massed in a great threatening arc before the borders of that German province.

Russian units to the south were 15 to 17 miles from the East Prusian frontier, while to the east other Soviet forces were seven to 10 miles away and to the north from 30 to 35 miles.

Red army forces apparently striving to rip Nazi defences in East Prussia wide open from the south menaced the enemy stronghold of Lomza, vital communications centre that links embattled Warsaw with the Baltic province.

(The Germans announced the evacuation of Osowiec, communications centre 15 miles south of the East Prussian frontier, and withdrawal of Nazi lines "a few kilometres" to the west. The German radio said strong Russian forces supported by many tanks and planes "succeeded in gaining some ground" northwest of Bialystok.)

Great tank battles continued west of the Vistula in the Kielce region about 100 miles south of Warsaw and within 35 miles of Krakow, the last great Polish bastion guarding industrial centres of German Silesia 75 miles from advanced Russian elements. The Germans were counter-attacking vainly.

Take 530 Towns

Almost no news came from the siege of Warsaw itself where the Russians were planted just outside the Polish capital on the eastern side of the broad and swift Vistula.

Since Friday the Russians between Warsaw and East Prussia have bitten deep into German lines, capturing 530 settlements and forcing three rivers, the Narew, the Upper Bug and the Biebrza, crossed Sunday. Progress here was one of the major strategic victories of the summer campaign, for the Germans had mounted massive counter-attacks in futile attepts to destroy this threatening wing of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's forces.

Marshal Rokossovsky's army group was pressing north and northwest on a 65-mile front from the Bug northwest of Warsaw. The important communication centre of Lomza, Ostrow and Ostroleka lay within his grasp, and there are practically no other large towns before the East Prussian frontier.

At the same time, a Soviet communique disclosed that the twin armies of Marshal Konstantin K.

Allies Driving Deep In Burma

KANDY, Ceylon, August 14 — (CP). — British 14th Army troops, steadily driving the last Japanese remnants out of North-eastern India, made steady progress yesterday as they advanced against light opposition on the Tiddim Road and in the Kabaw Valley sector, Allied South-east Asia Headquarters announced to-day.

In Northern Burma, meanwhile, Chinese troops and Kachin levies consolidated positions around faller Kazu and pushed patrols down the Mandalay railway to Mingon, five miles south-east of Taugni, the announcement said.

CYCLONE SWEEPS OVER TOWN OF KAMSACK, SASK.—Some idea of the intensity of the cyclone which swept over Kamsack, Sask., is shown here. The wreckage was formerly a garage. Two hundred soldiers from Regina are helping clear away the debris after the storm which caused $2,000,000 damage and to date, one life, a child.

Destruction Of 7th Army Near

By MERRILL MUELLER—Distributed by The Canadian Press

GEN. EISENHOWER'S ADVANCE COMMAND POST, Aug. 14—(AP). — The destruction of the German 7th Army is about to take place in the present battle of France. Gen. Eisenhower, Allied invasion commander, predicts this coming week will be one of the most momentous in the history of this war—a fruitful week for us and a fateful week for the enemy. Peace cannot come with the major victory we are about to accomplish, because there still are three German armies remaining in France which are not engaged. It is true that some divisions from these three remaining armies have been shifted into the present battle and are lost in the Allied pocket.

Some of the enemy divisions east of the Seine are lower units of poor quality, but the fact remains that these three armies have plenty of drive and fire power.

Only a political collapse within Germany—a successful attempt on Hitler—could possibly deliver this war to an armistice within the next week. There is a slight chance that a political collapse may show its first manifestations on either the Russian or the Allied battle fronts with the German army's effort to rid itself by revolt of its new Nazi commanders. But even so, our terms still are unconditional surrender and clear roads to Berlin.

Wants Action.

Gen Eisenhower has been in almost constant conference with all his battle commanders for the past three days. He is working at a pressure reminiscent of the closing days of the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns.

These are the closing days of the campaign in northwestern France and the next phases are the campaigns of north-eastern and southern France.

Gen. Eisenhower asks his Command for even more self determination and speedy action. He is commanding a naval, air and army cordon around what is left of a German army, once under Rommel's command—a cordon without a passageway for the escape of a single Nazi.

If it succeeds, Paris is the plum for the taking with little effort.

Allied troops have produced a tremendous battle situation about to pay dividends of a great victory in the field. There will still be much fighting left to do in Europe thereafter.

Canadian Heavies Jolt Huns In Sweeps On Nomandy Front

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP Cable.) —In one of the busiest 12 hours in the history of the Canadian bomber group, R.C.A.F. heavies jolted the enemy five different times between Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning at a cost of five aircraft.

The widespread raids took the R.C.A.F. to Brunswick in Germany and Falaise, Foret Du Mont Richard and two other smaller objectives in France.

German night fighters came up after a mixed R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. group hit Brunswick, returning pilots said, and the Canadians claimed at least two were destroyed.

Two Lion squadron gunners—Flt. Sgt. Howard Smith, Preston, Ont., and Rlt. Sgt. Roy Pettigrew, Lumsden, Sask., claimed one victory. Seven times night fighters swooped in to rake their Halifax with tracers but the attack ended when an ME-109 burst into flames.

Another night fighter—an ME-410 —fell to the guns of Flt. Sgt. G. J. Ritchie, D.F.M., Montreal, and Flt. Sgt. P. D. Bluethner, Toronto. "We saw him burst into flames," reported Ritchie. "Then he went down and exploded on deck below."

Two Canadian squadrons were led personally by their commanding officers— Wing Cmdr. Eric Mitchell, Wolfevile, N.S., heading the Iroquois Squadron, and Wing Cmdr. Frank Watkins, Winnipeg, the Bluenose.

The attacks on French objectives made in support of the invasion drive, appeared successful. At Falaise, where the bombers tried to cut off the retreating Germans, FO Jim Lowe, Kapuskasing, Ont., said "everything seemed to blow up" while Flt.-Sgt. H. Lamb, Hamilton, Ont., said he was sure "something big had been hit."

Like a Firecracker.

At Foret Du Mont Richard there was a gigantic explosion which Sgt. Peter McKay, Toronto, said "cascaded in a shower of sparks like a big firecracker.' Flt. Lt. H. B. Legrace, D.F.C., Montreal, described the scene below as much like a forest fire with "columns of

Maquis Harass German Rear

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

IRUN, August 14 —(AP) — The great majority of the French Maquis forces in the central plateau region of France, the Pyreness foothills and Savoy now have moved northward and are fighting a guerilla war at the rear of the German armies along the Loire, V advices from france said to-day.

A member of the French underground who crossed the Spanish border near here said former Maquis strongholds now are almost deserted, and only small patriot forces remain in the Pyreness to prevent the escape of Vichy officials.

Other French advices reported continued withdrawal of Germans from southwestern France, where forces near the Bay of Biscay were declared reduced to a bare handful.

This movement reputedly added confusion to the traffic situation east of Paris, where highways already were chocked with retreating German troops.

Heavy explosions in the Biarritz and Bayonne area were heard in Spain yesterday. Frontier officials said the Germans were destroying equipment they could not cart away.

Canadians Learn Sniping Tactics From Partisans In North Italy

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

FLORENCE, Aug. 14. — (CP Cable.)—The central part of Florence lying north of the Arno river remained an inhabited "no man's land" to-day with Partisans mopping up snipers at a cost to date of 100 killed and 300 wounded.

Troops of the British 8th Army control the part of the town on the south bank while the Germans have positions in the western and northern outskirts, and sometimes send patrols into the city.

Despite the ceaseless sniping, civilian activities have been negligible and a high degree of public order has been maintained. Services are slowly being restored and 35 tons of food and medical supplies is sent daily over the Ponte Vecchio, the only bridge the Germans left intact.

Allied Supplies.

These supplies are received from Allied military government officials by members of the Italian Liberation committee who handle distribution. Yesterday bread was baked in three re-opened bakeries with flour sent into the city this way, each Florentine receiving 100 grams, which will be increased to 200 to-day.

Supplies sent in included four tons of milk and much anti-typhoid serum.

The humanitarian work is sometimes interrupted not only by snipers but by prowling Germans. Saturday afternoon a German reconnaissance tank came upon the supply group near Ponte Vecchio and opened fire, wounding a British office and killing an Italian liaison officer.

Three Fascist snipers — one of them a woman — were caught by Partisans yesterday, and lined up against a wall in the Piazza Sante Maria Novela and unceremoniously shot in view of the crowd.

A Ticklish Job.

It appears certain that some dozen bodies seen in the same square Saturday were similarly executed, although the leader of the Partisans gave personal assurances all had been killed while actually sniping!

Major R. G. Riddell of Alton, Ont., and Toronto, whose company assisted 250 Partisans in a house-to-house cleanup in South Florence, said they were "ceaselessly

Street Car Service Resumed

Union To Negotiate With Controllers

MONTREAL, August 14 —(CP) — Street-cars and buses plied regularly over Montreal traffic arteries today and Montrealers packed them to capacity in welcoming them back to runs that had been deserted for 11 days.

While Montreal Tramways Company and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C. C. F.) remained dead-locked in a dispute over a union shop clause in their collective bargaining contract.

The Federal Government broke the stalemate Saturday by placing the company under temporary Government control and by appointing two controllers to take over the management usually invested in the Board of Directors.

Meanwhile, the union shop question remained unseettld. The order-in-council providing for temporary seizure of the company provided also for renewed negotiations between company and union during the next 60 days.If an agreement is not reached by then the Federal cabinet will reconsider the situation and presumably the Government controllrs would remain in charge for a further period.

A. R. Mosher, C. B. R. E. president, said last night that the union planned to negotiate with the Controllers rather than the company. Mr. Mosher said such a suggestion had not been authorized by him.

Bombers Lash Nazis In Normandy

3,500 Huge Planes Smash War Plants In Southern Reich

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 14 — (AP) — Great armadas of British and American planes numbering well over 3,500 today bombed war industries in southern Germany, enemy installations throughout France and shipping in the great port of Brest, while harrying the Germans in their perilous retreat in Normandy.

They struck from British and Italian bases.

Up to 1,500 U. S. heavy bombers from England attacked German war industries at Mannheim and Ludwigshafen and German airfields, rail yards and bridges in both Germany and France.

Another great fleet of up to 750 American heavy bombers struck from Italy at military objectives in the south of France for the third consecutive day. They also battered the northwest Italian coast again. The heavies flew without escorts. Fighters flew separately and spent the day strafing targets in the same areas which the bombers hit. Targets were not immediately identified.

Support Canadians

Hundreds of British medium and heavy bombers hammered Nazi lines in the Falaise sector to pace the new Canadian offensive.

Since Aug. 3 the big Lancasters have plunged 12,000 tons of bombs on submarine pens at Brest in three attacks. Fighters escorted the bombers in clear weather.

Swarming down only 3,000 yards in front of Allied troops Mitchells and Bostons of the Second Tactical Air Force successfully attacked three German strongpoints along the front of the German escape corridor in Normandy. Returning crews said the bombing was very accuate and no planes were lost.

More than 250 light and medium bombers plastered bridges, road and rail junctions, including half a dozen highway spans over the Touques River between Pont-L'Eveque, 10 miles north of Lisieux, and Gace, 25 miles sout hof Lisieux, in the immediate path of the fleeing Germans.

They also bombed road and rail junctions and bridges both east and west of Paris and around Amiens.

Up to 750 heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, rained tons of explosives on the I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical plant at Ludwigshafen, an elec-

Blind Builder

CHICAGO, Aug. 14—(AP). —Emil Jorgensen, 75, got tired of living in a coal shed back in 1914. For 19 years he sold shoelaces and pencils from door to door. Six years ago he started building his home alone. Once he had his supplies stolen and a complete roof burned. But now the four-room bungalow is completed. Jorgensen said "Everyone thought I was being ridiculous, a blind man building a house."

Hit Philippines Four Times In Five Days

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 14 (AP)— The fourth bombing of the Philippines in five days and new air blows north and south of Japan were portents today of a war moving west so fast that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz may have to advance his headquarters to keep up with it.

Underscoring this tempo of offensive, Admiral Nimitz told a press conference the war may be won without invading Japan—although occupation "would be necessary to insure a winning peace"—and mentioned the possibility of American warships bombarding Japan.

The commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, in looking for new headquarters, even has his eye on the recently invaded Marianas, 3,000 miles away, within 1,500 miles of Tokyo.

It can now be disclosed that Admiral Nimitz, after conferences here with President Roosevelt and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, went to Guam and Saipan, consulted fighting leaders there and has returned, determined "to put the heat on as hard and as fast as we can."

French Tanks Aid Americans

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, August 14 — (AP).— The French 2nd Armored Division, commanded by the mysterious Gen. Jacques Le Clerc of African fame, is fighting in France alongside the American forces, Supreme Headquarters anounced late to-day.
the recent whereabouts of the General, one of the first to rally to Gen. De Gaulle.

This was the firshmrdflu ETAO

At the time France fell, he was Governor of the French Cameroons and a year later he had organized a small force and was fighting the Italians in Libya.

The following year he was the organizer of a daring 2,000-mile march from his base at Lake Chad in which Fighting French Forces made harassing raids on Axis forces in Libya.

Once more his forces appeared in the climactic Battle of North Africa in 1943, appearing as a menace to Marshal Rommel's south flank when Gen. Montgomery began his drive.

Gen. Le Clerc's forces joined the 8th Army in the battle that ran the Germans from Tripoli, then participated in the showdown struggle for Tunisia.

The General assumed the name of Le Clerc, and his true name has been hidden from the Germans to prevent reprisals on friends or relatives in France.

AmusementPark Mass Of Ruins

FORT LEE, N.J., Aug. 14—(AP)— Most of the Palisades Amusement Park was a smoldering ruin today after a fire in which 150 or more persons were injured or affected by smoke and a Sunday afternoon crowd estimated at 25,000 was sent stampeding.

Several spectacular rescues were effected as flames swept the popular resort atop the Palisades across the Hudson River from Upper Manhattan.

Irving Rosenthal, the proprietor, estimated damage to the park at $1,500,000.

Meanwhile, three men were listed as missing in the pier and ship explosions and fire which broke out Friday night in Hoboken on the Hudson River south of here and continued to smolder today.

Allies Closing Escape Gap On 100,000 Nazis; Americans Gain 12 Miles

Demoralized Enemy Troops Fleeing Through 16-Mile Corridor Major Allied Victory Predicted

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 14 — (CP). — Canadian infantry in armored trucks leaped forward in a new offensive and American tanks and infantry advanced seven to 12 miles today, striking for the destruction of the cream of Germany's forces in northwestern Europe. The Germans were caught in a closing ring with an escape hole less than 16 miles wide.

British, Canadian and American troops were swiftly collapsing a huge Nazi pocket, spurred by Gen. Eisenhower's declaration that they had a fleeting opportunity to score their greatest victory in the west, a victory which might bring the fall of Paris like a ripe plum.

Canadian tanks and infantry, carried forward in tough armored track vehicles called "priests," jumped off in a major attack which gained several miles and crossed the Laison River toward Falaise, the northern jaw of the clamp.

Surround Argentan

American armored spearheads, which had swept dramatically behind the Germans from La Mans, forming the southern jaw of an Allied nut-cracker, had completely closed around Argentan.

The effect was to cut to less than 16 miles the gap through which Field Marshal Gen. Von Kluge was making frantic efforts to extricate approximately 100,000 Germans—a fourth of the entire force with which the Allies have come in contact since D-day.

The Canadian offensive got off at noon, backed by hundreds of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy and medium bombers which smashed enemy strongpoints within 3,000 yards of the Allied front lines.

The Canadians, who had been five miles north of Falaise and 1½ to 2 miles north of the Laison River, got across that major barrier. Capture of Falaise, three miles south of the river, would close another German escape point.

Before the Canadians smashed forward they were told by Gen. Crerar in an order of the day "We can contribute in a major degree to a speedy Allied victory by our actions today." The Canucks, now battle-seasoned after last week's push down the Caen-Falaise road were urged by their commander ot strike down the enemy—"first hit him hard and keep on hitting."

There was no immediate report of the number of Canadian heavy bombers working in support of the new drive, but Canadian aircrews were said to have been given a terrific "lift" by working in support of their brother Canadians on the ground in a major offensive.

Jaws Closing

In a smoking cauldron, covered by a lid of thousands of Allied bombers pounding the Germans in the new offensive area and pouncing on every Nazi in sight through the corridor, the enemy fought a bitter, tangled battle to escape extermination.

American troops, closing in on the 30-mile deep pocket, found Germans mowed down by the hundreds. The advance was so fast the infantry found the enemy's smoking machine-guns with belts still loaded.

So confused was the enemy that remnants of six divisions were found in one narrow three-mile front.

Greatest American advance was along the middle of the contracting claw east of Mortain where the infantry bore down on the vicinity of Domfront in a smash of six miles by noon today. Domfront is 13 miles east of Mortain.

Barenton, on the Mortain-Domfront road was captured in this drive.

British Troops Capture Frontone City

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, August 14 — (AP). — British 8th Army troops have captured Frontone, 27 miles inland from the Adriatic coast in the Apennines, in the only major advance along the Italian front, Headquarters announced to-day.

Empoli, Arno River city west of Florence, fell to the 8th Army without a fight yesterday. Although enemy movements were observed on the north side of the Arno near Pisa in the American 5th Army sector, there was only scant fighting on the whole front.

Mediterranean Allied Air Forces, hammering for the third successive day at German defences in Southern France, struck at Rhone River bridges and coastal installations yesterday. Objectives in North Italy also were hit.

Gen. Alexander's Headquarters said a pamphlet issued by Nazi Marshal Kesselring threatened stringent retaliation against Italian civilians for attacks which jeopardized Nazi supply and communication lines behind the front.

Forest Fires Paralyze City

FREDERICTON, Aug. 14 —(CP) —White smoke dimmed New Brunswick's dry summer skies to-day as more than a dozen forets firtes turned acres of woodlands to ash, and the Provinces's capital lay almost paralyzed with all electric lines cut by the flames.

Almost three miles of the N. B. Electric Power Commission's lines were burned out and power house at Newcastle Creek, which supplies Frederickton ,was threatened by the flames. Reports from the Minto area, where 30 buildings have been destroyed in the biggest blaze and most of the town evacuated, were vague, with the fire apparently under control in places and still raging unchecked in others.

Fire-fighting crews have been rushed to the scene from Saint John and Fredricton, but are hampered by the low water levels, in nearby streams. Mine workings of the Minto Coal Company in the area are threatened.

Telephone lines to Fredericton have been reopened, but are operating entirely off batteries.

As the flames roared into Minto last night, townspeople were evacuated to Sussex and the Grand Lake District while fire-fighters battled the blaze house to house.

Ther has been no casualties in the fires.

Yugoslavs May Get More Support

LONDON, Aug. 14 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, Yugoslav Partisan Leader Marshal Tito and Premier Ivan Subasic of the Yugoslav Government in Cairo met in Italy Saturday and Sunday, it was announced here today, for talks which may do much toward shaping the post-war fate of Yugoslavia.

A brief announcement from the Prime Minister's residence of 10 Downing street said:

"On Aug. 12 and 13 the Prime Minister had meetings in Italy with the Yugoslav Prime Minister and Marshal Tito at which political and military questions were discussed in a spirit of entire frankness. Marshal Tito and the Yugoslav Prime Minister propose to continue these discussions, which are animated by the desire of each side to make the largest contribution to the common welfare of Yugoslavia."

The conferences culminated a series of political manoeuvres from which Marshal Tito apparently has emerged as a dominant figure in Yugoslav affairs. It was generally believed here the talks would pave the way for more active military support of Tito's Partisans, who have been credited with keeping as many as 17 German divisions busy

15,988 Beds Available For Soldiers

Mackenzie Recalls Dr. Bruce Rapped During World War I.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 — (CP) — The House of Commons on Saturday changed the date for the coming into force of the War Services Gratuities Bill from Oct. 1 to Jan. 1 next after hearing Defence Minister Ralston say it was doubtful if the machinery for paying gratuities and grants would be set up by Oct. 1.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie, in reply to the argument of Dr Herbert Bruce (PC—Toronto Parkdale) that Canada was behind other countries with arrangements to care for wounded men returning from the front, offered to have a committee of members of all parties examine into every phase of hospital care for service ersonnel and suggest whatever improvements they thought necessary.

During discussion of estimates for the pensions and health department, which pro oked sharp exchanges, Mr. Mackenzie said Dr. Bruce had been condemned for his own administration of hospitals ovrseas in the First Great War.

He charged that for political reasoses an attack was being made on hospital a iministration and regretted it as it broke the understanding which had prevailed for 25 years that the elfare of veterans should be kept out of politics.

Ample Room

Mr. Mackenzie quoted figures to show that there was ample hospital accommodation and that Canada was ahead of the United States.

He continued:

"At the present time there are beds completed, available for use, 8,317; under contract, 2,322; plans in preparation, 3,585; under advisement and approved in principle, 1,314; in Hamilton, 200 in Victoria, 250, or a total of 7,671. That gives a grand total of 15,988 beds or available, between now and Christmas, 2,300 beds for casualties in the Dominion."

Referring to construction of the new Sunnybrook Hospital Mr. Mackenzie said there had not been an hour's delay on the part of the architects and a suggestion that work could be proceeded with before the plans were complete was "stupid."

Dr. Bruce said he understood the Thomas was being taken over to relieve the need for hospital accommodation and hostels and Kingston and Peterborough were also being transferred to the Pensions Department.

"I think we are justified in assuming that a grave emergency has arisen in regard to hospital accomodation," he said.

WHY ALLIES DRIVE FOR PO RIVER VALLEY—As Nazi troops withdraw from Florence and the Gothic Line appears in imminent danger of crumbling, Allied military leaders speculatively eye the Po River valley on their maps. The valley, say military observers, should present an ideal battleground for the more heavily equipped Allied forces. Tanks and armored columns can manoeuvre with facility in this rolling country and many of the most insurmountable problems presented by the present mountainous battlefront will be dispensed with. The taking of rail centres like Milan and Mantua would throttle Nazi supplies now being transported to the front through these cities. Capture of Milan would also put an end to the manufacture of tanks, military cars, and other equipment under construction there, and open the way for drives on Genoa and Turbin, two key points which complete the Nazi-held triangle. Large arrows depict possible direction of Allied drives.

Haliburton Boy Bags Hun Plane

WITH R. C. A. F. BOMBER GROUP OVERSEAS — Canadian aircrew, always very cautious claiming Luftwaffe aircraft destroyed, are somtimes even too modest, as the case of a Tiger squadron demonstrates.

After fighting off five night-fighter attacks during an operation over important railway yards in France, they claimed one "destroyed" and one "probable." Bomber Command has just corrected their log books to show that both Nazi aircraft were destroyed.

Approaching the target the Halifax crew saw a Messerschmitt 109 attacking another bomber, then turn on thier aircraft. FS. Austin Snider, Haliburton, Ont., rear gunner, beat the Nazi off with several hits. Because they did not see it crash the boys only called it a "probable."

After they had bombed, a Focke Wulf 190 charged them, firing cannon shells. Snider and mid-upper gunner FS. Jack Cumbers, Winnipeg (463 Hetherington avenue), replied. Three of Snider's four guns packed up, but the Nazi plane, already flaming, crashed and blew up The "Hally" weaved out of the other three attacks.

"The destroyed" allowed on the Messerschmitt resulted from testimony by other crews that they saw it crash. A careful check proved that Cumbers' and Sniders' guns sent it down.

Rokossovsky and Gen. G. F. Zakharov, whose mammoth drive to outflank Warsaw on a 100-mile front has reached almost the entire length of the Warsaw-Bialystok railroad, had cleared the Germans from more than 180 settlements northeast of the Polish capital.

The Russians announced Gen. Andrei Yeremenko's 2nd Baltic Army, now almost half-way across Latvia, has killed or captured nearly 70,000 Germans in a month, boosting to 609,525 the Nazi casualties inflicted in the summer offensive.

Mostowka, 11 miles northeast of Warsaw, was taken by Marshal Rokossovsky's troops. That town and captured Sulejow, 26 miles northeast of Warsaw, are only two miles from the Warsaw-Bialystok rail line.

Soviet rifle units supported by tanks and planes were 27 miles from the East Prussia city of Lyck, along the main highway— rail lines running northwest from Bialstyok.

Cross Bierbrza River.

Soviet troops threw the Germans back across the Biebrza river last big water barrier before East Prussia, and fought for bridgeheads from which to press toward Lyck.

Gen. Yeremenko's Latvian legions, driving toward the Baltic, captured the rail-highway centre of Madona, 75 miles East of Riga Other units reached within 55 miles of Riga on the southeast in Russia's attempt to smash remnants of two Nazi armies trapped in Estonia and Latvia.

North of Gen. Yeremenko's forces, Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's troops swept beyond captured Voru, nearly 38 miles inside Estonia and 95 miles from the Gulf of Riga. These forces have occupied more than 60 settlements in 24 hours, the Russians said, and the swift pace seemingly indicated early collapse of German power in the Baltic.

"I am not prepared to say now whether I will advance my headquarters to the Marianas," he said, "but I can say that I am constantly am on the lookout for an opportunity to move closer to the fighting."

Sink Several Boats

That fighting was carried again to the Philippines Saturday, Gen. MacArthur announced today, by New Guinea-based heavy bombers which sank a 3,000-ton freighter in Davao Gulf.

It was carried within 600 miles of Tokyo Friday by Marianas-based heavyweights which bombed the airfield and a cargo ship at Chichi Jima in the Bonins, south of Japan.

Striking within less than 500 miles of northern Japan, Aleutians-based heavies sank a patrol vessel and damaged another near Paramushiro in the Kuriles Thursday.

The aerial arm swung like a giant scythe along more than 3,500 miles of Japan's inner defence wall os islands, adding a 3,000-ton ship, a 1,000-ton freighter and a coastal vessel to the shipping disaster befalling the enemy in the Halmahera-Talaud defence zone for the Philippines.

Admiral Nimitz plotted war strategy in the Marianas with Vice-Admiral Richmond Kelley Turner who is establishing a huge invasion base at Saipan. He talked with Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, whose powerful task force recently drove the Japanese fleet behind the Philippines, and conferred with Maj.-Gen. Roy S. Geiger of the U. S. Marine Corps.

The Pacific commander said he did not belive any "single form of attack will defeat Japan."

"It will have to be a combination of every weapon—sea blockade, air bombardment, possible surface ship bombardment," he said, adding pointedly:

"Already surface ships have bombarded northern Kuriles."

Although foreseeing the possibility of forcing Japan, without invasion to "throw in the sponge," Admiral Nimitz told reporters "we should keep in mind the possible necessity of invasion and be prepared for it."

Allies Closing

4 U. S. Divisions.

(The German radio said there also was violent fighting near Carrouges, 13 miles south-west of Argentan, with approximately four American divisions blocking the Germans' chief escape routes).

British troops on the Canadians' right flank also scored gains of three miles or more, capturing Martainville and pushing on to near Bonnoeil seven miles northwest of Falaise, and taking Proussy, two miles north of Conde-Sur-Noireau, 15 miles west of Falaise.

Seven mile spurts were made by the Americans on the west side of the pocket along the Vire-Tinchebray line.

It was announced that American troops on Saturday had taken 2,828 more German prisoners, bringing their four-day total to more than 13,000. German prisoners taken in France since the beginning of the campaign had now mounted to more than 115,000.

The blazing new offensive came within 24 hours of Gen. Eisenhower's call to his forces to capitalize on what he described as a "definite opportunity for a major Allied victory."

A front dispatch said the Nazis were retreating down every open road, using everything from military transport to farm vehicles and even bicycles.

It was not known how much of this army of possibly 200,000 men had run the gauntlet in the Falaise-Argentan area. A front dispatch from the Canadian sector last night estimated fully 12 under strength divisions (possibly between 100,000 to 120,000 men) still were in the bag.

Latest official reports at headquarters said the gap was 18 to 25 miles wide. This corridor can be completely covered by artillery fire although in the centre this fire necessarily is unobserved and may not form a complete seal.

Thousands of Allied bombers and fighters ripped with frightful toll yesterday at the congested columns of tanks, trucks and troops falling back all along the way to Paris. Despite this terrific aerial pounding, the withdrawal of Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge's Normandy army — once 30 divisions strong and including the finest S.S. armored divisions in France—was a retreat and not a rout.

The Germans were putting up stubborn resistance along the covering crust behind which every man possible was being pulled out. There was no indication whether von Kluge hoped to rally for a major stand on the Seine River or even Paris.

Gains 55 Miles

American armor in its reported northward push to the vicinity of Argentan has driven 55 miles from Le Mans during the last five days. Argentan is only 13 miles southeast of Falaise.

A front dispatch last night said the Americans were attacking north of Argentan, while the drive by the British 2nd and Canadian 1st Armies had widened over a 20-mile front and carried to within five miles of Falaise from the north.

(The Brazzaville radio, heard by CBS, said troops of the Canadian Army were 1¼ miles from Falaise. There was no immediate Allied confirmation of this.)

A field dispatch by an Associated Press correspondent said Canadian 1st Army forces have reached a point about six miles from Falaise.

Capture of Argentan would mean that American armor, in a scythe-like sweep behind the enemy positions in Normandy, had cut the last direct escape highway toward Paris. The Germans still had one good road, leading northeast from Falaise to Lisieux and indirectly to Paris, but this was menaced by Canadian artillery fire.

The American armored force on the south side of the corridor had plunged more than 100 miles through Nazi lines since it slashed eastward from the Breton peninsula. From Le Mans, 110 miles southwest of Paris, it is 30 miles to Alencon and another 25 to Argentan.

In the Vire area the Allies gained up to three miles, although the Germans displayed stubborn resistance around Mortain. This sector is along the western portion of the enemy line and in the area from which the Germans tried unsuccessfully a week ago to split the Allies in Normandy and Brittany.

American columns pushing eastward have established a bridgehead between Domfront, 13 miles east and slightly south of Mortain, and Mayenne, 20 miles south of Domfront.

trical equipment factory at Mannheim, and air force stations at near Mannheim and near Stuttgart.

A fleet of heavy bombers of the same size attacked German airfields in eastern and northeastern France, railroads in southwestern France, and bridges northeast of Paris. sent the tactical Air Forces lashing anew at Field-Marshal Von Kluge's scattered divisions, and the Berlin radio declared Allied bomber and fighter formations had swept over Southern Germany to Bavaria and then returned to the north-westward.

Cloudy weather gave the German 7th Army extra protection during the night, but R.A.F. Mosquitos and Allied medium bombers pounded Nazi troops, supplies and transport far beyond the battle zone, and other Mosquitos attacked the German industrial city of Hannover. All the Marauders and Mosquitos returned.

Marauders, bombing with the aid of flares, rained explosives on troops and ammunition stores dispersed in the Forest D'Halouse, some 15 miles east of Mortain, where the Germans were putting up the stiffest rearguard resistance.

Mosquito squadrons bombed and strafed rail lines from the battle area to Paris, and many radiating northeast from that city. Direct hits were scored on a bridge over the Orne

5,500 Sorties

The Germans probably were in for another day of blistering air attack such as yesterday's, in which Allied airmen flew more than 5,500 sorties in all-day blows at everything moving between the battlefront and Seine river.

The Germans are now in the position Allied Air Forces have been hoping for since D-Day. They have been driven to daylight withdrawal, putting all their manpower and material on the open road, where bombers and fighters can blast them at will without the danger of hitting Allied lines.

This situation was forecast recently by Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory, who promised that once it developed his airmen would turn enemy withdrawals into a rout.

Yesterday's score by U.S. 8th Air Force fighter bombers alone was more than 3,000 railroad cars damaged or destroyed, including 42 ammunition cars, 71 oil cars, 229 locomotives disabled, 432 trucks and other military vehicles shot up or bombed, and more than 40 barges damaged.

The R.A.F. 2nd Tactical Air Force fighter bombers and rocket-firing planes, and U.S. 9th Air Force planes, operating closer to the battlefront, knocked out 19 tanks, 58 railroad cars, two locomotives and 39 vehicles.

The Germans offered little opposition in the air. The day's known Allied losses were 14 heavy bombers, two medium bombers and 17 fighters, but the reports were admittedly incomplete.

106,678 Men Enlisted Of Own Accord

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 — (CP) — Manpower available in Canada in the age classes for military service on March 31, 1944, totalled 1,665,504, of whom 682,232 were in the armed forces, according to a return tabled Saturday in the Commons by Labor Minister Mitchell.

The number who enlisted before being called up was 106,678. The total also included 28,733 men under the age of 18½, and 46,578 men who had not been sent orders to report for medical examination.

The number to whom orders were sent to report for medical examination were 1,483,515. Of these 331,1[illegible] enlisted on receipt of the orders for medical examination, but before receiving orders to report for military training, and 26,921 were rejected on voluntary enlistment.

A total of 339,759 men were examined and found unfit for enrollment. Men to whom orders for military training had not been sent totalled 20,594. Orders to report for military training were sent to 456,757 men and 235,503 reported.

Of those listed as not reporting for training 82,695 enlisted on receipt of their notice, and 15,727 were rejected for voluntary enlistment.

A group of 122,832 from the unreported category were classified under various headings including: Men on or applying for postponement, not available as being out of Canada or in jail, dead or unacceptable for other than medical reasons.

The number of orders returned undelivered was given as 25,774 and the number of orders not complied with 23,227.

Gratuities Bill Passes Senate

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 (CP) — The Senate Saturday gave wholehearted approval to the Government's bill providing gratuities to service personnel of the present war after they are discharged.

Third reading was given to the bill after Senator J. H. King, Government Leader, explained the general provisions and Senator A. K. Hugessen (L., Quebec), going into details at considerable length, said discharged service personnel would fare much better than those in the first Great War. He added, however, that the provisions Canada made after the last war were considered generous as compared with what other countries did.

He referred to criticism by persons who objected to the Government's family allowances bill on the ground that it would cost Ontario more than its residents would receive in allowances.

"We consider these gratuities as a responsibility for Canada and we in Quebec are not going to sit down and figure out whether our Province will pay more or less than our people receive," he said.

Senator Iva Fallis ((P.C., Ontario) said she was glad women in the services were being treated on an equality with men.

Legion, I.O.O.F. Hold Decoration Day

CAMPBELLFORD, August 14 — (ENS) — The Campbellford Branch No. 103 Canadian Legion and Lodge No. 248 of the Independent Order of Oddfellows held Decoration Day services at the Cenotaph with the Midland Regiment Band in attendance. Captain, the Rev. E. M. Cadigan of Marmora United Church was guest speaker.

The Oddfellows marched to Christ Church and Mount Pleasant cemeteries for the decoration of the graves, followed by a short service in commemoration of late members and returned to the Cenotaph where the Legion was assembled. After the placing of the wreaths in memory of those who fell in World War I and those who have since died; those who have paid the supreme sacrifice in World War II were also remembered by the Last Post; two minute silence and the Reveille. Following the Invocation by Rev. G. N. Maxwell and the scripture lesson by Rev. B. Babcock; Rev. W. J. Lennox led in a prayer of thanksgiving, supplication and intercession.

Introduced by Mayor F. F. Long, the speaker noted that Armistice Day has declined in popularity because of resulting conditions from date. In the course of years it was changed to Remembrance Day, due to the fact that before the present war the jubilant celebrations of Armistice Day were a mockery. He reminded his hearers that during the darkest hours of the present conflict the British people and their Allies still could believe in Victory and as proof of this vigorously pursued a V for Victory campaign which was a truly remarkable feature of the war.

To this the speaker added that "V." to him signified also "Vicarious." Concluding Capt. Cadigan expressed the hope that these ideals would be carried on into the peace which follows this war. This in his opinion would result in an enduring peace and fulfill a need which after the first armistice provoked a second world war. Rev. B. Babcock pronounced the benediction.

400 Strikers Return To Work

GUELPH, Ont., Aug. 14 (CP) — Four hundred employees of the International Malleable Iron Co., returned to work here today, expecting that the Ontario War Labor Board will hand down a decision this week on their application for wage increases. The workers left their jobs Friday afternoon.

A workers' conference was called by union officials who charged lack of action on an application which has been before the Board for six months. The walkout was called off when Labor Minister Daley promised action before Monday, Aug. 21.

The brief layoff did not seriously affect the plant which has been engaged on war orders, a company official said.

A Fish Freak

FORT ERIE, Ont., Aug. 14 — (CP). — A 14-pound fish landed by Jules Barok from the Niagara River has the experts guessing. It is described as a "channel cat, a bull-head, mugwump, and catfish," yet is none of either. It has very few scales on a smooth, silvery body, a be-whiskered lip, and gills—not usually found on the fish described.

To Never Trust Japanese People

BREMENTON, Wash., Aug. 14.—(AP).— President Roosevelt gave his solemn assurance here Saturday that never again would the Japanese empire be given the leeway to start another Pacific war.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke less than an hour after the destroyer had docked, brining him from Alaska on the last leg of a Pacific tour of inspection that had taken him from California to the Hawaiian Islands, north to the Aleutians, through the fringe of what the Japanese call thier "sphere of influence," and back to the Puget Sound navy yard here, where he made his report to the American people.

Twenty thousand shipyard workers an naval personnel were his immediate audience. In his broadcast speech, Mr. Roosevelt told his listeners:

"The word and honor of Japan cannot be trusted."

He told his conference with Pacific war leaders at Pearl Harbor, where "complete accord both in the understanding of the problem that confronts us and in the opinion as to the best method for its solution" was reached.

The speech throughout indicated determination that the defenses of the United States and of all the Americans must be so strong in the future that no would-be aggressor dare attempt to disturb the peace of the continent from the Antarctic to the Arctic Cirle.

Cobourg Team Beats Kingston Ponies 5-3

COBOURG, August 14—(ENS) — Kingston Ponies, a juvenile entry, played an exhibition game at Cobourg during the week-end, taking a 5-3 defeat. The visitors played an all-star "Cobourg Kiwanis" team and the fans saw a fine game of baseball, and appreciated change from the menu of softball that has been handed out all summer. Cobourg played tighter ball with fewer errors than Kingston. Locals scored a run in the first and second, which Kingston evened up in the second inning. Kingston registered its third in the sixth while Cobourg ran in three to put them two up on the Ponies. Kingston chalked up two more in the first of the eighth to tie up the score but the game was called on account of darkness and the score reverted to the standing of the two teams in the seventh inning.

The Struggle In Germany

It will be many years before the full story of the present struggle in Germany is available to us. Meanwhile the pattern of that struggle may be seen clearly enough. It is a struggle between two legends of infallibility.

For more than a century the legend of the infallibility of German military might has been carefully built up by the higher officers of the German army. Whatever might happen, and whatever appearances there were to the contrary, the German army never admitted that it had been beaten. It was always betrayed, or stabbed in the back by traitors outside itself; these traitors were usually politicians or unworthy groups on the home front. The legend was seen in full operation after the first Great War: as soon as the army had pulled itself together after defeat, it began its propaganda. A good example of the sort of nonsense that the army talked about itself then is this quotation from a book by Colonel Gottfried von Buelow:

> "The stab in the back of our army and hence into the heart of our Emperor has been administered by Germans, and paid for in advance by the French.... We are no longer worthy of being Germans.... We are a people smitten by God. Our own infidelity and treason have made us that—our infidelity and treason toward the Kaiser".

As a matter of plain fact, the Kaiser was thrown overboard by the military caste in order to protect their own reputation for infallibility.

Recently, unless the reports are grossly inaccurate, the German high command made an attempt to get rid of Adolf Hitler, by blowing him up with a bomb. Between 1920 and 1939 the legend of the infallibility of the German army had grown to elephantine proportions, so that Major Gerhard Thomee, of the High Command, was able to write thus of the debacle of 1918:

> "Fearlessly the front line soldier continued to fulfil his duty.... The home front broke however.... More and more the leadership at home passed to the representatives of meanness and cowardice.... The real nation faced the enemy with teeth clenched. Those at home who behaved as if they were the people were the slag that had been eliminated in the crucible of war.... 'The people' is something different from the sum total of traitors and deserters".

Hitler has now jeopardized the legend of infallibility, and apparently the officers wanted to get rid of him in order that they might start riots on the home front and bring about their own 'betrayal' once again. The plot failed, and several German officers have paid the price of failure. They were hanged—an ignominious death which is not usual in Germany, even for felons; an officer is usually given the chance to shoot himself. Obviously Hitler wanted to disgrace those who had dared to oppose him.

For the Nazis have their own legend of infallibility. Ever since they came to power they have never allowed it to be whispered that they have made a mistake, great or small. Hitler must know that his regime cannot last, but apparently he does not mean to be remembered as the Kaiser is remembered—as a man who was made a scapegoat for the German High Command. He may still hope to pull a rabbit out of his hat, and go down to defeat with some shreds of his legend clinging to him. Certainly he does not mean to be balked of his place in the inglorious history of German aggression.

It may be that he hopes for a death which will appear to the German people as a martyrdom. If he were to die as an obvious victim of Allied arms, his spirit might live, and inspire the Germans to another aggressive war as soon as they could collect themselves to fight it. It is for this reason that the Allies might show wisdom in banishing Hitler, as Napoleon was banished, instead of killing him as an enemy of mankind.

The conflict of legends in Germany is tearing it apart, and we stand to benefit from the conflict. When two opposed groups in a nation at war are eager to show themselves infallible, the third party to the quarrel is the only one who will gain.

It Still Leans

It was the German news agency which sent out the report that the Allies had trained their guns on the famous Leaning Tower of Pisa, and razed it; the Allied forces denied the report, and now we are assured that the tower still stands. This is good news, because the tower is famous for more than being 16 feet out of plumb; it is one of the handsomest bell-towers in the world.

The Leaning Tower is part of a group of buildings formed by itself, the Cathedral and the Baptistery, at the northwest of the town. The architect of the Tower was Bonnano, who also played a minor part in the designing of the Cathedral; work was begun on the Tower in 1174, and although it was obviously going to be a heavy structure, rising to a height of 179 feet, the foundations appear to have been carelessly planned; their circumference is no greater than that of the tower, and they are only sunk 10 feet into the ground. Apparently the structure began to lean slightly while it was being built, and it has incerased its cant ever since. In 1829 it was 15½ feet out of the perpendicular, and in 1910 this had increased to 16½ feet; probably the Tower will fall in time, but meanwhile it is one of the wonders of the world.

The design of the Tower is magnificent. Its base is ornamented with semicircular arches supported on 15 columns, and above this rise six stories with arcades of 30 columns each. The eighth storey, which contains the bells, is much smaller and has only twelve columns. The view from the top commands the surrounding country, and the Allies report that the Germans used it as an observation post, thereby making the structure a legitimate military objective. It is from this top storey that tourists are invited to look out and see if they can bring the foundations of the Tower into their view; the effect is uncanny, or sickening, according to your sense of equilibrium.

The Germans in Italy are doing their best to trick our forces into as many acts as possible which may later be interpreted as vandalism, and because our people refuse to be caught in any such trap they have sometimes been forced to progress very slowly. But after the war we shall realize the value of their policy of discretion. The millions of visitors to the great Campanile at Pisa will bless the restraint of the Anglo-American forces who refused to level it to the ground, merely because the Germans were using it as a spy-tower.

Skirmish In The Word War

For some time we have neglected our prosecution of the Word War; hot weather dulls the appetite for contention. But we have material on hand for a brief skirmish, and we cannot allow the opportunity to pass.

First, a contemporary describes a pathetic incident of the war in France as "heart-rendering". Now an incident may be heart-rending; that is to say, it may tear and lacerate the heart. But if it is heart-rendering, it implies that the heart is in a fatty condition and is being melted down. Hearts, garments and temple veils are rent; butcher's offal is rendered.

Second, we are growing weary of all the mail which reaches our desk, which refers to the bosses of business or government as 'executives'. An executive is a man who carries out an order which another man has given; literally, he executes the order. The man who gives the order is a boss, or if you want a fancy word, an administrator. The essence of a boss's position is that he is not an executive.

Soldiers of the Word War, don't let the hot weather lull you to sleep. The Enemy is as active as ever.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Hitler, the agile paper-hanger, now finds himself with his back to three walls.

In this hot weather we are glad to see the city police in their shirt sleeves. And of course this gives us a better view of the arm of the law.

The Rev. T. C. Douglas says that the election of one C.C.F. member to the Quebec Legislature is "the thin edge of the wedge". It couldn't possibly be thinner.

The Orillia Packet says that the habit of painting the finger nails appears to have declined, and adds: "Now if the girls would give up painting their lips scarlet they would once more give us the satisfaction of admiring the beauty with which nature has endowe them". Perhaps they are afraid to let you see.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THERE has been a good deal of grain down in Ontario this year, some of it by heavy winds of course, but a great deal of it that should not have gone down at all. A loss in the yield of grain is the result when a crop lodges badly and care should be taken to prevent it as far as possible. I have observed a great many fields, of both fall wheat and oats, this year that were flattened. The natural conclusion one arrives at is that the plant food, in such a field, is badly balanced. It may be a result of too much nitrogen which promotes leaf growth and gives long straw not stiff enough to carry the crop.

It may be lack of potash which is the plant food that gives straw the strength to stand up. There are some varieties of grain that grow stiffer straw than others, and some that have shorter stems. Heavy applications of barn yard manure often cause too much growth in straw and a tendency to lie down. Seeding these years has been hurried by lack of labour and so farmers have been unable to give as much attention as they would like to tests of their soil to find out what its deficiencies really are. There is no time like the present, however, to make careful note of the crops in each field, which will serve as something of a guide for next season's seeding and fertilizing. To get well filled heads we must have a sufficiency of phosphates and this plant food also helps the crops to stand even if it does make the heads heavy.

Lime helps in stiffening straw and we have learned more about the value of lime applications to soil than we ever knew before. Not only has more land been treated with lime, but very much larger quantities are now being applied per acre, than we thought necessary or valuable a few years ago. This is true particularly on clay land as the addition of lime to it is very beneficial.

THERE is a good deal of discussion going on now as to bad results from excessive nitrogen in the soil. Farmers in this province usually depend very largely upon crops of leguminous plants for a supply of nitrogen, and it can be made quite sufficient, except for giving an early start to fall wheat or grass in the spring. This purpose requires only a very light application. In England where grass crops for pasture, hay or eusilage, are very important, farmers are expressing the opinion that new grass, or leys as they express it, is of rather doubtful value for young stock. They are emphasizing the importance of using a careful balanced fertilizer, strong in lime and phosphates. The new grass will produce milk and is quite good for fattening, but not for growing cattle. British breeders of pure bred cattle frqeuently rent pasture for their young stock on light land with plenty of lime because it is a good place to grow young beasts. A farmer must study every crop he raises and search for the weakness in his yields so he may plan against it in the following year and improve his harvest in grain and livestock as these are the sources of his income.

A SCHEME for vaccination against Bang's Disease, contagious abortion, is to be started in England by the Ministry of Agriculture, on September 1st. There is to be a compulsory chemcial examination of all dairy cattle of tuberculosis and mastitis and it is proposed to have this vaccination for Banks in conjunction with that. The scheme is to be only for young cattle, calves of a few months and heifers up to within two months of being bred, in dairy herds only. A charge of one shilling per head is to be made for the service. For the present beef herds are to take care of themselves. For the first time next February the entries for the Perth Sale in Scotland have all to show a clean bill of health for both T.B. and Bangs.

We must make more progress against Bangs in Canada. At the moment veterinarians are too scarce to do the work but later I am going to further discuss this matter and offer some suggestions as to carrying on the testing and inocculation for Bangs disease in connection with the testing for T.B.

Reports are to the effect that Russia is likely to harvest a wheat crop large enough to furnish bread to its entire population during the new crop season. This is the country which Germany thought she had devastated. There was a lot of burnt area left in the Ukraine, but this deep rich soil is capable of producing heavy grain crops, and the people who have farmed it for some years are organized for food production upon a scale commensurate with the demands bound to follow this war. There is still labour in abundance, in spite of the size of the army, and everyone has ben working in defence of their homes and their land. That inspiration has made the Russian army invincbile against the Germans who were only fighting for power and the right to loot and kill. Russian farming will restore itself in amazing fashion.

WELL into August as we now are planning for 1945 crops is actively in the mind of every farmer. As the fall wheat is cleaned if it is intended to use this land for a grain crop next season, the young cattle, sheep and brood sows should be turned in. The sheep will clean up along the fences, the young cattle will get a bite and perhaps a little grain for a few days and brood sows are good cleaners of heads of wheat lying about. Get the field cleaned up this way and then cultivated at once to get weed seeds started. I wonder if there ever was a much better implement for this than the old three furrow gang plough, run lightly and the weed seeds all covered so if the land is damp or a light shower follows, the weeds will all grow and so prepare themselves for as nearly annihilation as they ever do. A one way disc is a good implement for this, which is the best job it does in this province, and I suppose a three furrow gang is much too slow, but it was a most effective implement for this purpose.

IF your corn is not too high to run the scuffler through it, give it another going over. Labour is too scarce to talk about hoeing, but horse hoeing will be a fair substitute, and I have never yet talked with a farmer who grew drill crops who was not in favour of an "extra hoeing." I have been told by men who did a good job of farming that an extra hoeing or scuffling was preferred by them to a little extra fertilizer. Stirring the earth and breaking a crust following a heavy rain is well worth the cost, and then some. Keep soil in good tilth is an axiom with many good farmers.

For some time now no reduction has been made in the price of black pigs in England, the demand for meat being so keen, nothing was said about "seedy cut," though in normal times there is a definite objection to the black seeds in pork or bacon when it is made from pigs known as "Larger Blacks" in England. Already there is definite talk in the Old Land about reviving prewar penalties against the "seedy cut," and with the British Bacon imports as large as they now are, we must avoid any such penalties against Canadian bacon. White pigs are mostly favoured here and should be if our bacon is to have pride of place.

RUSSIAN VICTORY ARCH?

Florentine Beauty

By G. V. FERGUSON

IF the exigencies of war demand the destruction of a lovely and historic city, one may be theoretically at least in favour of destroying it. These cities were built in turbulent days when the ebb and flow of war beat incessantly around the creations of their greatest artists and nobody then thought of saving a building or a statute by depriving his arm of an important military objective. But there must be grief at the thought of Florence suffering such a fate in 1944 for those who have seen Florence and its loveliness, find their theories seriously weakened by sentiment.

The last word from the front is that the Germans have withdrawn belatedly from the city but only after blowing up the Arno bridges and shelling the southern part of the city. The church of San Miniato stands high on the ridges south of the Arno, if memory serves aright, and the Pitti palace—ancient home of the Medici family and, up to the war, one of the six greatest art galleries in Europe. The beautiful pictures have in all likelihood been placed long since in safety but the Pitti palace was itself beautiful and historic, the home of the grand dukes of the city in its days of splendour, and connected by a long covered passage-way with the Uffizi palace on the north bank. The passage-way led over the Ponte Vecchio, the only bridge of the Arno left untouched by the Nazis, and the only one of historic value.

The others, though retaining their old names, were modern in construction. One of them, the Ponte alle Grazie leads direct to the church of San Groce and to the Bargello, both within 200 yards of the Arno and hence presumably today in grave danger. The Ponte alle Grazie was the bridge on the south side of which the young, hawk-nosed Dante met his ethereal lover. Beatrice and, from that single encounter in which neither spoke, created an immortal love affair which echoes through the stately lines of the Divine Comedy, one of the three greatest poems written by man.

THE Uffizi, rich with the loveliest paintings of the Florentine renaissance, by Leonardo, by Michel Angelo, Botticelli, Ghirlandiao, Massacio, Andrea del Sarto and Fra Lippo Lippi, stands on the north bank of the Arno half way between the Ponte Vecchio and the Ponte alle Grazie. Just behind the Uffizi spreads the Piazza Signoria, where Michel Angelo's gigantic statute of David, young and tranquil, his sling in hand, stands guarding the great palace on the square.

Only a few hundred yards further north stands the cathedral itself, and the dome of the Florence cathedral, built by Brunnelleschi, is one of the most magnificent works in Europe. It was said that, when Michel Angelo was called to Rome to build St. Peter's, the Pope bade him build a lovelier dome than Brunellschi's to which the sturdy, honest, harassed genius replied: "I cannot build a lovelier one, but I can build one bigger." This he did, and those who sneer at American boasting of the biggest, the finest, the largest this or that in the world, should remember that such thoughts were not absent from the minds of even the greatest spirits of the finest flowering of European culture. Beside the cathedral stands the Giotto campanile, and before it stands the bapistery with Ghiberti's bronze gates, both of them centuries-old monuments to Florentine greatness.

Not far away is the lodging of Benvenuto Cellini, the greatest goldsmith and rascal of his age, and near it in turn is the chapel where Leonardo da Vinci of Milan carved his great series of statues to the famous names of the Medici dynasty, Pieri and Lorenzo the Magnificent whose pattronage of the arts was so richly repaid by the handiwork of his servants.

BUT Florence is not all statues and paintings, great as these are. There, too, you are shown the hills where Boccacio wrote his immortal tales, the Decameron company having fled from Florence to escape the plague and told each other well-spiced stories until the danger was past. It was in Florence too that Machiavelli served his masters, the grand dukes, and wrote The Prince, that maligned and misinterpreted handbook for statesmen.

No city in the world, with the possible exceptions of Rome and London can boast such famous names among its great men, and Florence, once the bloody site from which armies poured forth to battle, has long been a peaceful town, nursing its many treasures, its possible content to live quietly and wander the streets at night, the traditional mandolin accompanying the traditional Italian tenor under the cypress trees that stand high in the hundred walled gardens of the city.

Screams From Chicago

HANSARD, AUGUST 3, 1944

CHICAGO Tribune, which right up to Pearl Harbor opposed the United States going to war, now nourishes its public with sweeping claims that "America" is winning all the battles. An editorial published on Wednesday states:

"We Americans are winning this war. We are doing virtually all of the fighting in the Pacific and we have made virtually all of the advances in France since the initial beachheads were established. Our industry has meant the difference between a hopeless stalemate and victory to the Russians."

The conclusion is reached that "this is an American made victory and the peace must be an American peace."

Apart from the somewhat important fact that victory has not yet been achieved, the Tribune's claims are as inaccurate as they are contrary to good manners. It will be astounding news to Australians that U.S. troops are doing all the fighting in the Pacific. As to France, U.S. troops in the Cherbourg Peninsula, according to the Tribune's own statement, are meeting with "feeble" opposition. The reason it is feeble was disclosed by U.S. Secretary Stimson on Thursday, when he paid special tribute to the heavy Canadian and British attacks aroun Caen. He said the British and Canadains had pinned down a great array of German troops there, especially German armor, "thereby ensuring success of the U.S. drive from St. Lo." Americans, Canadians and British, he added, shared equally in the great successes so far achieved.

Of course, an appropriate comment upon the ravings of Col. McCormick would be a reminder that for two years before the U.S. entered the war Britain and the Dominions withstood the full force of Germany's vast armament, with Russia as an ally for only six months before the United States. And inasmuch as operations in France are in charge of a United States general, critical comparisons of gains in one area and another are pointless. This feature was suitably dealt with last Monday by a high officer of Gen. Eisenhower's staff, quoted in a cable dispatch as condemning a tendency of military writers to compare gains made by the British and U.S. armies. He said: "There is no nationality over here. We are all Allied soldiers. One man is running this show. He is feeling his way and punching where it does the most good. It just happens that the British have a tough spot at Caen; they are up against a preponderance of Boches and armor."

Canadians will not, in any case, take too seriously the screams of a journal which before the United States was forced into the war by Japanese attack was completely indifferent to the cause of freedom, believing that its own parish could remain immune from aggression, and which now treats the bloodiest war in the world's history as it would a "world series" baseball game.

ALWAYS A CATCH

George and his wife had a few words and of course didn't speak for some time afterwards. So George, in order to make peace, thought he would buy his wife a present. He bought a pair of silk stockings and took them home and gave them to her.

"Thank you, George. This is kind of you." A few minutes later on looking them over, she said: "Oh, there's a ladder in them."

"Well, my dear," said George, "you didn't expect to find a marble staircase, did you?"

A NUDGE IN TIME

What seems to have been one of the most daring and adroit exploits of the whole war was achieved the other night by the fighter pilot who "nudged" one of the flying bombs off its course so that it fell and exploded in an area of gardens instead of among crowded dwellings. He flew his own machine alongside the blind missile, touched it with his wing, and so diverted it from its existing path. The risk of exploding the thing in mid-air must have been considerable, so that great courage was involved, but the delicacy of manoeuvre needed in orde to bring off this exploit is even more remarkable. To have elbowed a flying bomb off it course without damage to the British machine o its pilot is a feat that deserves to be remembered.—Manchester Guardian.

Three Boys Rescue Chum At Canal

Exhausted from swimming across the canal, at the bottom of Rogers street, several times Saturday afternoon, Donald McNabb, 16, 533 Elm street, narrowly escaped drowning when his fingers slipped on the pier as he attemtped to raise himself out of the water, and he fell back under, losing consciousness.

The swimmer, who works at the Westclox and is the son of Armorer Sgt. George McNabb, now fighting in France, and Mrs. Margaret McNabb, was seen in his predicament by his 18-year-old cousin, Clayton Druary, who jumped in after him and was pulled underwater himself by the weight of the unconscious body. Two other lads, Fred Mortimer, 255 Engleburn and Phil Brown, 796 George street assisted Drury in getting Donald to dry land.

Warren Gamble, 321 Roger street, pre-medical student at McMaster University applied artificial respiration until the arrival of firemen, who resuscitated the McNabb boy with the aid of the inhalator in six minutes. He was later taken to his home.

The near tragedy took place just above the gate lock on the canal.

Harry Nixon Answers Premier Drew's Bonus Charges

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—Harry Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, issued a statement Saturday saying he was shocked by Premier Drew's broadcast address of last Wednesday night and that the Premier was using the Family Allowances Act, passed by the House of Commons, "to stir up Ontario against the rest of Canada."

The statement:

I was shocked and I believe the great majority of the people of Ontario were shocked by the broadcast delivered recently by the Premier of this province. The young men of Canada, from every province and of every race, are fighting and dying side by side in France and Italy and this is the moment the Premier of Canada's largest province chooses to try to set province against province and race against race. Surely the least that can be done by those of us at home is to keep peace among ourselves while the war is on.

As for Mr. Drew's condemnation of the Family Allowances Act, he is, as might be expected, adopting the traditional Tory attitude. Men like him have violently opposed every measure of reform. The fact is that not a single Conservative Federal member voted against this measure. Mr. Drew is using this as a means to stir up Ontario against the rest of Canada.

Mr. Drew talks about the Federal taxes collected in Ontario. Well, most of the taxes collected in Ontario are collected in Toronto. Does this mean that all the taxes ollected in Toronto should be spent in Toronto? This is the logical conclusion of Mr. Drew's argument.

Let the people of Ontario beware. Mr. Drew is beginning to realize that it is impossible to carry out his 22 promises of last summer. He may well be seeking a new and false issue on which to appeal to the people. I warn Mr. Drew that if he attempts to avoid his own responsibility and escape his own promises, the people of Ontaro will not forget.

Charges Link With Duplessis

A. A. Macleod, leader of the two-man Labor-Progressive party representation in the Ontario Legislature, on Sunday said that Premier Drew has "entered into a sinister conspiracy" with Premier-elect Duplessis of Quebec "to sabotage the Federal Government's program of social security."

"If Premier Drew thinks he can stampede the people of Ontario into a rejection of family allowances by a campaign of racial prejudices he is due for a rude awakening," Mr. MacLeod's statement said.

"The Premier's outburst will be recognized, I am sure, as an attempt to divert the attention of the electorate from his own abysmal failure to grapple with those problems which lie within the provincial jurisdiction. The people are not likely to be fooled by Premier Drew's sham battle with Maurice Duplessis, the Tory Premier-elect of Quebec, with whom Premier Drew and his national leader have a close working alliance."

Ontario Units Stage 5-Mile Advance

By WILLIAM STEWART,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, August 14 —(CP Cable) — Canadian troops continued their advance along the west bank of the Laize river yesterday while forces of the British 2nd Army with which the Canadians now are linked also kept up a steady fighting advance.

Canadian troops, with Western infantry in the lear, worked south along the steep bank of the river, which flows from the direction of Falaise into the Orne river. They had to pick their way through thick minefields and booby traps but good progress was made.

Ontario troops in a march of nearly five miles since they attacked across the Laize valley from Bretteville, swept through the town of moulines, due south, and took the village of Le Bequet and Le Mesnil about a mile beyond.

Fight In Woods.

Meanwhile French-speaking troops fanned out through the wooded area on the east bank of the river, while other forces pushed through the hilly wooded area bordering the Caen wheat plain. The enemy was kept occupied along the entire line which now runs across the Laize along a hill just west of the Falaise highway, through the villages of Estress La Campagne and Soignolles, north to Vimont and thence practically due north to the coast.

Canadian artillery harassed the enemy all day while a constant procession of aircraft of all descriptions cross the front, flying under cloudless skies to strafe and bomb German gun positions, troop vehicle concentrations, transport and communications.

Behind the lines 1st Canadian Army headquarters held its first church parade coming to France. It was an open air service and all but personnel involved in immediately essential work attended. Lt.-Col. Crerar read the lesson and took the salute at a march-past following the ceremony.

The advance south of the village of Barbery and the town of Bretteville Sur Laize, captured in Tuesday's big advance, is being carried out by marchink infantry suported by tank squadrons.

The Canadians are fighting their way down the high Western bank of the Laize due west of high ground which is held by other Canadian troops between the Laize valley and the main highway running south from Caen into Falaise.

Crews Given Long Leaves

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, August 14 —(CP) — Vanguards of the invasion of fortress Europe, crew members of three hard-slugging little minesweepers of the Royal Canadian Navy left today for long leaves, their first in many months.

Arriving heer over the week-end, they had many stories to tell of those first fateful weeks off the coast of France.

The men were from H. M. C. S. Bayfield, Thunder, and Canso, pocketsize fighting ships of the Bangor class, part of an invasion force of more than 100 Canadian craft, and they considered themselves mighty lucky to get back.

With 70 per cent casualties predicted among the Canadian minesweeping flotillas, the Canucks escaped almost scot-free — perhaps, one officer suggested, they were too small a target to shoot at. But they had lots of action. The Canso ran back and forth clearing minefields while overhead blazing long range coastal guns from the Cherbourg fortress duelled with fire-belching British and American warships. Thunder, like Canso operating with an Allied minesweeping force, also took part in the siege of Cherbourg. Bayfield, laying danbuoys to mark mine-cleared lanes with an all-Canadian flotilla, ran close to the French shore and chalked up 73 miles in one night, and nearly 150 in the first 72 hours of D-week.

An now they are back, their only casualties two men from Bayfield who got over-enthusiastic and swam ashore to settle private scores with jerry— and stepped on a high-explosive land mine.

PATTERN FOR DESTRUCTION

Alcohol Plays a Vital Invasion Role

Day and night, Allied bombers carry their crushing, destructive might far beyond the enemy's flagging lines. Daily the tempo of the war's world-wide battle mounts . . . and daily the demand for War Alcohol grows.

For planes, and countless other materiel of war, Alcohol is vital. War Alcohol is used in the plastic binder of plywood planes and gliders; it is in the plastic plane-windows the synthetic tires and oxygen masks, the de-icing fluids, the anti-freeze even the paint on the fuselage! It is in the propellant that sends shells screaming at enemy strong-points. From Alcohol too, comes carbon-dioxide, the magic life-saving gas that smothers flame as quickly as pinching out a candle, or inflates—just as quickly—the life rafts and life belts that keep men afloat till help arrives.

Today—and as long as the need lasts—every Hiram Walker and Gooderham & Worts plant, is distilling War Alcohol to bring Victory nearer!

London Beats Kingston To Win Title

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 14— (CP) — Durable Tommy White sparked London's drive to a second straight Canadian Congress Sandlot Baseball championship with a 7-2 win over Kingston Ponies here Saturday night. White struck out 12 Kingston batters.

It was easily the best game of the season here and the tide didn't definitely turn until London scored four runs in the eighth on only two hits, but with the help of the daredevil base-running that would have looked very foolish if it hadn't worked so amazingly. The Londoners pulled three double-steals. A record crowd of 4,300 attended.

The Congress trophy was presented to the London Club by Commissioner Lloyd Douglas of Toronto.

Mahers Lose.

Copper Cliff qualified as the third place club in the Canadian Congress Sandlot tournament by defeating Toronto Mahers, 7-3, at Labatt Park Saturday afternoon before 500 fans. Toronto played a better game than on the two previous night but were still sloppy on the field, kicking in a total of six errors, to bring the grand total of the three games they played to 25 errors. Copper Cliff turned in a well played game showing a good defensive club.

Kenny Sargent went all the way for the Northerners, allowing but eight hits, striking out four and walking five. He was opposed by Roy Tredgett and Al Yarnell, who made his third appearance for Toronto in the series. Both Toronto pitchers gave up nine hits, but the six errors were too much for them.

Lex Robson Finished In 8th Place Winning $150 In Big Tourney

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(CP). —Al Watrous was back in Detroit today richer by $3,000 he picked up by winning the three-day Maple Leaf open tournament at suburban Scarboro's Golf Club.

Watrous picked up first prize money despite what could have been a disastrous four-over-par 75 on the last 18 of the 72-hole affair. However, he wound up with 280, four under par for the full distance. He was chased through Saturday's rounds by Vancouver's Fred Wood, who wound up with a pair of 72's for a 72-hole score of 283. Wood was enriched by $1,000 through his performance.

A total of $7,100 was split among the professional linksmen, while the amateurs took away $500 in bonds and merchandise. Vancouver's Ken Black and Nick Wisnock, of Burlington, Ont., shared first place among the amateurs with 298's. Black blew a chance to top the amateur field when he helped himself to three putts on the last hole of the last round for a 78.

Robson Hits 69.

A former host club professional, Bobby Gray, wound up in third place with 285, his Saturday rounds being 72 and 70, while the veteran Hugh Borthwick of Toronto, edged out Stan Horne of Montreal Islesmere for fourth position.

Saturady's best round—a 69—was posted by Peterborough's veteran Lex Robson. This with a morning round of 74 and a 36-hole total of 168 gave the Kawartha Lakes linksman 291.

Gray won $700, Borthwick $500 and Horne $400. Dick Borthwick, Toronto, $300; Gordon Brydson, Toronto, $250; Bill Kerr and Bill Lamb, both of Toronto, and Robson, $150 each; Bob Burns, Toronto. Gerry Proulx, Montreal, Joe Kirkwood, Sar., of Huntington, Pa., and Leo Diegel and Jules Huot, $100 each.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP)—For the benefit of baseball teams that are wondering where they'll train next Spring, we offer this report from Oklahoma U., which recently finished a summer football session and will start again in 90-degree weather in September: . . . "Trainer Ted Owen is stuck on hot weather for conditioning because (1) players can be reduced to their normal playing weight faster and get in shape faster (2), players can recover faster from 'Charleys' and other injuries (3), it is much easier for a team trained in heat to go north and play in colder climes than for northern teams to come south and play in our heat. They don't chill."...Interesting, perhaps, but the ball clubs will continue to train where Judge Landis tells them, regardless of temperatures.

Optimism Dept.

Vince DiMaggio, who is having a slight argument with Owner Bill Benswanger of the Pirates over a $9.97 dinner check (The Bucs' limit is $4.50) says: "If you think I eat too much, trade me."...Where does he think they'll find any takers since that tab became public?

Switchgear Team Moves Into League Finals

After an afternoon game in the semi-final play-off series when Hatty Eakins, Lindsay fireballer fogged the U.E.W. team through to a 7 to 5 victory, Switchgear in the night game, belting 2 homers in a difficult and unpredictable game, came out with a 5 to 2 decision, enough to break the 2-game-each deadlock, and win the semi-final City League play-off series. While the Switchgear outfit was supremely confident of taking the afternoon game which would make unnecessary a night tilt, the U.E.W. crew, behind 7-hit hurling by Eakins, managed to whip up a 2-run edge and bring to a tie the race for the City League finals. But the night game decided the fate for U.E.W., and although "Fireballer Eakins" still whizzed red-hot balls across the plate, he couldn't prevent Honey Tompkins and Mowry from batting a home-run each. Eakins might have become fagged out for he pitched less effective ball as soon as the first homer was registered.

In the night game,....the deciding game or the play-offs..... Union began the scoring in the third inning. Quigley singled through short, stole second, and completed the run when MacPherson's easy ball was fumbled a 2nd. This gave Union a single run, and they carried it as a lead until the sixth. During the first five innings, the Switchgear team limped through with 3 solitary hits; Holmes' single through short, Elliott's one-base bang over second base, and Holmes' powerful double to centre field.

Took The Lead

The sixth inning netted Switchgear 2 runs, to shoot them out one-run ahead of the opposition. This involved Tompkins' home-run to right field, when the ball bounced clear from MacPherson, and with no runners on bases. The second run came when Playford, who was walked to first, later stealing third on a play that was close scored when Carpenter was put out at first, on a throw from Quigley at short.

Union sewed the game up in the seventh, when another run threw the game into a 2-2 deadlock. Harding ran in when the ball was thrown to second in an attempt to catch Platt, but was fumbled, allowing Harding to score, Platt going to third.

Switchgear broke the tie to win the game in the eighth inning. Three runs crossing in order gave them a healthy lead, and although the Union outfit battled on it was all over for them. First came Mowry's homer to centre field. Brockley doubled to centre, and Nicholls popped to third. Brockley scored on the play that put out Elliott at second and Carpenter, who walked to first, scored when Holmes singled into centre.

Eakins struck-out four, three in the first three frames and walked 3. The Switchgear hurler for the evening game was Elliott who struck-out one, walked none, and held Union to 7 hits. Union had seven players on bases, and in the fifth frame, Switchgear managed to load the bases, but the needed hit did not show up. In the final game, a total of 8 flies were caught by the three fielders.

The teams for the evening were:

Switchgear—Holmes 1b, Pagett 2b, Tompkins 3b, Playford cf, Mowry c, Brockley rf, Carpenter lf, Nicolls ss, Elliott p.

U.E.W. Victory

In the aternoon, Union's win came with 5 runs on 13 hits and 2 errors. In the first, they gained one when Platt scored on a fumble of Quigley's hot one into centre. The Switchgear scored two in the same frame. Eakins for U.E.W. scored on a single into right field by Platt in the second. Switchgear's next counter came in the third. Pagett doubled into deep left, and scored on a hit into centre field by Brockley. The game was tied 3-all in the third as Union also crossed one run, when Girard scored on a single into right by Harding; the same play putting out Isaac at third, and Doughty at second. At the end of the sixth inning, Union had 7 runs, with the Switchgear 4. Although the latter tried hard to tie the game again, the three needed runs didn't make an appearance, and a single run turned in during the eighth frame, when Brockley scored on a hit into right by Nicolls, totalled the final count. Eakin's pitching had much to do with the unexpected Union win, and the Union boys went into the night round with high hopes.

Eakins struck-out no fewer than 11 of the hard-hitting Switchgear during the 3 o'clock game. Although he walked two, he held them to 7 hits, and thoroughly demoralized the Switchgear camp with his speed-ball preceded by a terrific wind-up. Harrison was on the mound for Switchgear, fanning 3, including MacPherson, who, evidently mixed-up considerably in the fifth rame, ignored the ball and threw the bat clear over the second base. Harrison walked 6, and Union pounded out 13 blows from his offerings. Eakins smacked a hard ball into right field that led him to third base when it got away from Brockly in the fifth inning.

The teams for the afternoon were—

U.E.W.—Platt 2b, Quigley ss, MacPherson, rf, Griffin cf, Girard c, Isaac 3b, Doughty lf, Harding 1b, Eakins p.

Bad Man Rally Here Tuesday

Promoter Frank Tunney's card for Tuesday night's show at the Brock St. Arena looks like as if the Toronto impressario had called a convention of all the curent bad men. Not satisfied with matching the fiery Pierre De Glane with the roughneck John Katan in the main bout —and that should be a riot —he is tossing the Hindoo exponent of the cobra hold, Nanjo Singh, in against Al Bunny Dunlop who would rather fight than eat and he loves eating, and then has added that newest wild man, Dr. Len Hall, to the bill, with Tom Collins as his opponent. With all those villains on one card there should be a series of explosions that will make the Tuesday show one of the wildest of the season.

Although the winners finished in a tie with an artillery reinforcement unit, each with 125 points, the signallers were awarded first place on the basis of a higher standing in the shuttle relay. In third place, with 119 points, was an infantry reinforcement unit, while a transport company finished fourth with three less.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

With the passing of Gilbert Wall, early Saturday morning both the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club and the Peterborough Curling Club have lost one of their most promising members. Of a quiet and retiring disposition, he made many friends in both clubs, and was always looked upon as one who would do his share any time he was called upon to do so.

The news of his death came as a shock to his many friends. The sympathy of the members of both clubs is extended to his widow and family.

Out of respect and in memory of the late Mr. Wall, the flag at the club house will be flown at half-mast until after the funeral.

The main event of this week is that of the ladies' open trebles tournament on Wednesday. Just how many entries the ladies have we don't know, but it is more than likely by the time Wednesday rolls around the response will be as generous as always.

To-night at 7 p.m. the club singles for schedule groups 1 and 2. H. Freeman is the convener.

Despite the heat there were fourteen mixed rinks out on Saturday evening. The usual three 7-end games were played and were all over this side of eleven o'clock.

Rookie Hurler Makes Colorful Debut

By LEROY ATKINSON
Associated Press Sport Writer.

BOSTON, August 14 — (AP). — Rex Cecil, 27-year-old Red Sox rookie pitcher from the San Diego Padres of the Pacific Coast League, made transportation and sports history of some sort during the week-end when he came down from the skies to beat the league-leading St. Louis Browns the first time he ever stepped into a major league ball park.

Acquired by the Red Sox as an emergency replacement for Tex Hughson— 18-game winner who has left to join the American Navy—Cecil hurried to the airport Friday at San Diego and started for Boston.

Several hours later the pitcher was tossed off the plane in Tucson, Ariz., because of a military priority on space. Cecil left Tucson late on Saturday on another plane and arrived in Boston on Sunday afternoon. Not once on the trip had he enjoyed sleeping-plane accommodation. Instead he sat up and dozed.

In Boston on Sunday he leaped off the plane; actually kissed the aircraft a fond farewell, and was rushed to Fenway Park where the 2nd-place Red Sox were in combat with the first-place Browns in 100 degrees of heat as part of a Sunday double-header opened.

A Tough Spot

Never before had Cecil been in a major league park or seen a major league game, even in news reels.

With the score tied at 6-all, the green recruit went on to the mound to face the Browns in the 10th inning.

Al Zarilla bunted safely on Cecil's curve; Mark Christman was hit by a pitched ball and Frank Mancuso walked. The bases were filled. Then, with two out, Cecil threw three straight balls at Don Gutteridge before he caused that worthy to fan, to retire the league leaders scoreless.

Well, that was Cecil's first inning in the majors. He continued onward, pitching in all four innings, yielding four hits; walking three batters to come up with his first major league triumph, 7-6, in the 13th inning on the echo of Bobby Doerr's homer.

Around and around Mr. Rex Cecil the Boston fans swirled. He was a hero. What were his plans?

"Plans? I gotta find myself a room somewhere in this man's town," quoth he nonchalantly and ambled away.

Toronto Wins Two Games Over The Weekend

By The Associated Press).

Montreal Royals, slipping and pretty much out of the International League pennant race, came to life Sunday to put on one of the most concentrated slugging exhibitions of the season.

As they defeated Baltimore Orioles twice, 10-9 and 7-6, the Royals counted nine of their total of 17 runs as a result of home runs. It was Ed Stevens, who had already hit one four-master, who saved the first game for the Royals when he exploded that prettiest of hits, a home run with the bases loaded, in the last of the ninth.

The blow evened the count at 9-9 and set the stage for the 11th inning, when Eddie Basinski doubled Jean Pierre Roy home with the run that won.

Smut Addreholt maintained his title as one of th homer kings of the loop when he uncorked a grand slam home run in the night-cap against Red Embree, ace pitcher of the league. The Royals were forced to go into extra innings in this game, too, winning in the eighth.

Newark, still hoping to break through and win the pennant, broke even with Rochester and climbed to with 1½ games of the lead. The wings took the first, 2-1, as Glen Gardner and Frank Hiller hooked up in an airtight pitchers' battle. Don Johnson, young rookie who has yet to lose, racked up his fourth victory in the afterpiece, 5-4.

Bob Malloy, only Syracuse pitcher who has beaten Jersey City this year, turned the trick again the first game of two, 5-4. The second game saw Crip Polli win a 6-4 decision, although he needed help from Ken Brondell.

Buffalo lost two to Toronto, 7-0, and 3-1, for their seventh and eighth defeats in their last eight starts. Luther Knerr threw the seven-hit shutout in the first game and sparkled as he squelched a Bison rally in the seventh inning by striking out Andy Seminick, Al Unser and Les Floyd. The Bisons were saved from a double shutout when Seminick clouted a homer in the nightcap.

Trout Pitches 19th Win For Detroit

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout, Detroit's right-handed pitching ace, the only active American League hurler to win 20 games last year, may become the first one to reach that figure this year.

The hard-working Tiger twirler achieved his 19th victory, more than any other Major League hurler, when he blanked Philadelphia Athletics 6-0 in the nightcap of a twin bill after the A's won the opener 6-1. The Tiger defeat in the first game ended a nine game winning streak.

The league-leading St. Louis Browns and runner-up Boston Red Sox divided the first two games in their "crucial" four-game series, the Red Sox winning the opener 7-6 in the 13 innings, and the Browns winning the nightcap 6-1, cut to five innings by Massachusett's 7 p.m. curfew law.

Max Lanier gained his 15th victory of the season and his fifth over the Dodgers in the opener as the National league-leading St. Louis Cardinals took two games from Brooklyn 4-1 and 7-3. Harry Brecheen got credit for his 11th win against two defeats in winning the second game.

Pirates Take Two.

Pittsburgh Pirates swept a twin bill from Boston Braves 8-1 and 3-1. Frank Colman hit his fourth homer in five games to win the second contest.

New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox split as the Yanks won the opener 10-1 and the White Sox came back to take the second 11-3. Russ Derry of the Yankees joined a select group of seven American leaguers when he hit a grand slam home run in the third inning of the opener.

Philadelphia Phillies took both ends of a double header from Chicago Cubs 3-2 and 7-6. The twin triumph moved them into seventh place, one game ahead of the Dodgers, who fell back into the National League cellar.

Washington Senators snapped a five-game losing streak by downing Cleveland Indians twice 2-1 and 4-1.

Cincinnati Reds handed the New York Giants their fifth and sixth straight defeats by taking both ends of a twin-bill 4-3 and 9-2.

TORONTO, Aug. 14— (CP). — While easterners sweltered in the throes of another heat wave last week, west coasters were talking glibly about the next hockey season. Seems there's a strong possibility a four team International League may be formed out west, with two Vancouver squads and teams from Seattle and Portland in the U.S.

It was reported a few days ago Jimmy Ward, a former Montreal Maroon, is headed for Portland to organize a team there, so it looks as though the hockey pot actually is simmering. After all, it will soon be October, which nowadays actually is the start of the hockey season.

Shore and Crosby!

Eddie Shore, stellar Boston Bruins' defenceman of past years, appeared in a new role at Edmonton. He was listed on the program as owner of a nag at the Edmonton races, run off at Exhibition track only a short trot from the arena where Eddie started the hockey career that took him to the top of stardom. This latest venture wasn't so successful—at least so far—because Eddie's nag ran second.

Incidentally.

Sweeney Schriner has been released by the Canadian navy and is available again for hockey purposes. Rumor had it he would appear with Toronto Maple Leafs this winter, but Frank Selke of the Leafs says there is nothing definite, though Schriner has been talking with him. Sweeney says he has "no oojection" to playing with Leafs. Rival racehorse trainers in British Columbia reportedly are seeking the formula of oats and other equine chow Sandy Gilmore feeds his steeds. So far this season 12 Gilmore-coached horses have gone to the post and of these, seven have won their races, three ran second, one thrd and one fourth. Which is a pretty good average in any mare's league......Friends of Tiny Herman are pulling for him to make a few touchdowns on Nazi U-boats now taht he has command of his own corvette. They wondered how the husky former Ottawa Rough Rider would be able to squeeze his way through the narrow confines of a corvette. But news accounts described it as a super-corvette, which helped to explain it.

Paterson Beats Blackpool Pug

LIVERPOOL, August 14 — (CP Cable). — Jackie Paterson, world flyweight champion, battered and blbody about the face, came off the ropes to defeat Ronnie Clayton of Blackpool in the 12th round of a scheduled 15-round British bantamweight championship eliminator here on Saturday night.

A crowd af 25,000 watched Glasgows Paterson, fighting with one eye nearly closed, send Clayton down for eight-count in the 10th round with a terrific left hook to the body. Up to then Paterson, who is recognized by Britain and the United States as world king, had taken a hammering and the crowd figured Clayton was certain to win by a knockout.

Clayton, who is in the Fleet Air Arm, was badly hurt, but managed to hang on until the 12th, when his handlers threw in the towel as he was being pummelled about the ring. He also had one eye closed and bleeding.

Jackie Paterson, a physical training instructor in the R.A.F., received a tremendous ovation. The victory put the wee Scot in line for the British bantam title fight. Besides the world flyweight crown, he also holds the British and British Empire flyweight titles.

Tories, Liberals Told To Quit Fighting

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 (CP)—An appeal by the leader of a third party for an end to squabbling among Liberals and Progressive Conservatives over Empire relations and refusal of Opposition members to meet Prime Minister Mackenzie King's request to pass External Affairs Department estimates and let him attend to "important duties" brought to an end Saturday a stormy week of lengthy sessions in the Commons.

John Blackmore, Social Credit House Leader, after listening to Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, expound the view of John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, on Canadian autonomy within the Empire, said he failed to see any difference between Mr. Bracken and Mr. King.

"I believe more harm has been done to Canada in times past by disgraceful squabbles among Liberals and Progressive Conservatives over our relations with the Empire than by anything else," said Mr. Blackmore.

Should Get Together

The time has come for Mr. Bracken and Mr. King to get together and say there was no differences between them and then go out and fight the election on the real differences "if there are any." The two parties should stop trying to "cast mud" on each other about imperial relations.

It was just about adjournment hour when Mr. Blackmore spoke. Previously, Mr. King had said he did not often ask consideration from the House, and would appreciate it if the House would remain in session until it passed his External Affairs Department estimates.

"I have no desire to curtail discussion, but I must tell the committee that I have some very important matters to give attention to and I have not been able to give them attention for some time past," said Mr. King. "I would appreciate any helpful co-operation in getting through these items unless there is some reason why they should not be passed."

He said that Norman Roberton, Under-Secretary of External Affairs, who has to be with the Prime Minister when estimates for the department are under discussion, also had heavy duties.

Adjourned to Today

Mr. Blackmore said he wanted a further statement from Mr. King and Mr. Graydon on the point he raised. Clarence Gillis (C.C.F., Cape Breton South) started to speak and other members called "11 o'clock" and the Commons adjourned until Monday.

"I am quite prepared to stay here all next week if the House wishes to keep me here," said Mr. King as he closed up his papers, "But I want it understood that I am thinking about the war and not about an election."

Until mid-afternoon Saturday members hoped they might finish their business and adjourn until Jan. 31, 1945, but at the end of the sitting a large number of estimates remained for consideration this week. It is not believed that they would be able to get through them until some time Tuesday or Wednesay.

Guelph College Changes Set-up

TORONTO, August 14. — The Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph soon will be removed from politics and placed under a board of governors similar to those which direct the affairs of other colleges and universities, it was learned at the week-end A committee is now at work studying the proposed set-up.

It has long been felt that the Guelph College should not be responsible to the Minister of Agriculture and should be removed from political influence. While O.A.C. comes under the University of Toronto and receives its degrees from that university, the appointment of professors and general supervision comes from the Minister of Agriculture.

The proposed board of governors will be an autonomous body and its composition will be entirely non-political, it is learned. It is expected Col. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, wil have an announcement to make soon regarding the personnel of the board.

Development of the extension courses at the O.A.C. will also be undertaken. At present the college has one, two and three-month courses, but it is felt that these do not meet present-day requirements. It is planned to have a three or four-year winter course which will attract farmers on a greater seale than now.

Plan Approved Profit-Sharing

OTTAWA, Aug. 14—(CP)—A system of profitsharing by labor should be studied and applied to all of Canada's aircraft industry, the Commons War Expenditures Committee recommended in a report tabled in the House today.

The committee, reporting Canada had produced 12,908 planes up to June 30 with total government assistance to the industry of $68,000,000 cited the example of the Vickers plant at Montreal where it was found profit-sharing "has increased production and substantially lowered costs."

The committee also found:

1. New aircraft contracts with the United States or the United Kingdom should be for transport planes rather than fighters and bombers, looking to post-war success of the aircraft industry in Canada.

2. There were occasional infractions and isolated indiscretions on the part of army boot inspectors but the Canadian army boot "is now equal if not the superior of any boot supplied to any soldier anywhere."

3. Ownership of the Polymer Corporation synthetic rubber plant at Sarnia, Ont., should be retained by the Crown and that the plant be operated after the war by the government.

4. A policy of post-war public ownership also should be applied to the government-owned ammonium nitrate plants at Calgary and Niagara Falls, Ont., to assure supplies of chemical fertilizers to Canadian agriculture.

Research transformed Cast Iron

ALTHOUGH IT HAD BEEN PROVED by laboratory experiments that the quality of cast iron could be vastly improved by the addition of Nickel, it remained for the Canadian Nickel industry to lead the way in putting this knowledge to commercial use.

In 1921 Nickel investigators began intensive laboratory research on cast iron. They reviewed previous experiments carried on by other scientists. They made countless experiments of their own. They proved that cast iron could be made stronger, more uniform in texture and more resistant to corrosion and wear by adding Nickel. They sent out this information to buyers of castings. They instructed foundries how to use Nickel to get best results.

So Nickel alloy iron was adopted for scores of new uses. Another new market for Nickel had been developed to take the place of war markets wiped out in 1918.

Today Canadian Nickel is again diverted to war purposes, and again the industry looks to the future with confidence. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets, so that the Nickel industry may continue, through its own initiative and enterprise, to make still greater contributions to Canada's welfare.

26-LB. MUSKIE CAUGHT

While fishing on the Trent River, three Toronto visitors at Cedar Isle Lodge made a lucky catch, when they hooked a 26-pound muskie after a 20-minute tussle. They were Eileen Haffey, Jimmie Wunibald, and Bob Fogarty. When the big muskie was brought in, they were using a jointed pikie-minnow.

LOST—ONE HAT.

An airman who has several months of operational flying over Germany to his credit, lost an officer's peak cap which he values for sentimental reasons. The cap was lost from a plane as it passed over the farm lands just east of Balmont Lake. Any person who finds this cap is asked to communicate with the Examiner office.

CAR COLLISION.

Two cars were damaged slightly in a collision at the corner of Charlotte and Reid streets Sunday at 1 p.m., when Elmer Mahood, R.R. No. 4, Omemee, driving a car owned by Jessie Herbert of Wyeodale, Ont., was in collision with the vehicle of Arthur Grier, 8 Heathdale Road, Toronto, denting the right front fender, running board and side of body. The left front fender of Mahood's car was crushed.

WINS OPERATIONAL WINGS

Flying Officer Lorne Brisbin, D.F.M. of Cobourg was presented with his gold operational wings at No. 4 W.S.F.S. St. Catharines at the week-end. The airman has finished one tour of operations overseas as air gunner, making 37 bombing raids on Germany. He is now on aerdrome control at St. Catharines, awaiting posting to a school where he will train as a pilot. FO. Brisbin is the fifth officer at the St. Catharines school with operational wings.

RUSH FOR PEACHES

Peterborough's week-end supply of peaches was sold by two o'clock Saturday afternoon. "We could have sold another thousand baskets," one store reported. "Prices are much more favorable to the consumer this summer under the ceiling prices. A year ago their market was not controlled and prices were about double the present schedule."

NEED RAIN

Most of the Victory Gardens around the city look distressed and wilted with all the signs of needing liquid refreshment.

MOPPING UP "POP"

Of their quota of 200 bags of sugar a month, one of the local soft beverage plants had used 120 bags up to Saturday. That leaves 80 bags for the three weeks until September opens, a problem in voluntary rationing of retailers that is going to leave somebody short if this heat wave continues. One of the plants distributes its "pop" on a set weekly allowance, and will thereby manage to spread its output over the entire month. Main street cooling tubs can't keep up with the demand.

NOT A COLONEL

A news item in the Examiner last week indicated that Lt. Col. Alex DeMaio had been elevated to the rank of full Colonel. This was incorrect and should have read that he is now a Lt. Col. In the European theatre he is the highest ranking Peterborough soldier, not including England.

GET OUT OF TOWN

When early Sunday morning turned out as sultry as the previous afternoon, many Peterborough residents apparently decided to take the high road....and get out of town for the day. Walking along George street in the early morning hours, it was quite common to see people starting for the north. The effect of the exodus was felt in the outlying districts, too, and boat rental places reported they had been "all rented out" at an early hour. Traffic kept its pace until after 3 o'clock, when it slackened off. After the evening meal though, the roads were humming with travellers going home.

OUT OF LUCK

Campers and visitors to the Burleigh Falls-Apsley districts over the week-end found the shortage of ice cream and soft drinks to be just as severe there as any place. Not only were most refreshment establishments out of pop and other confections, but most shops also had to admit they didn't have a drop of milk in the place. One store near Burleigh Falls, unable to cope with the thirsty customers, began to make lemonade, and the people bought it as fast as it could be made.

Resident Of Peterboro 88 Years Mrs. George Munro Died Sunday

Resident of Peterborough eighty-eight years, and eldest daughter of one of its most prominent families, Mrs. George Munro died at her home, 352 Brock street, Sunday.

The former Euphemia Hamilton, Mrs. Munro was the daughter of William Hamilton and his wife, Margaret Patterson. Her father was the founder of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, Reid street, for many years the leading industry in Peterborough, especially during a long period prior to the turn of the century and later when its operation continued after Mr. Hamilton's death. Her husband was works manager for years. In those several generations of the progress and life in this city, the name and family of William Hamilton was outstanding in business and social affairs.

Mrs. Munro is survived by her daughter, Miss Effie Munro of this city, and two sons, W. Hamilton Munro, Ottawa, general manager of the Ottawa Street Railway Company and a past president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, and A. H. Munro of Sarnia; also by two sisters, Mrs. A. E. Lech of Windsor and Mrs. B. A. Ludgate of Philadelphia, Pa. Her passing on Sunday is a severance of another of the few remaining personal links between the Peterborough of today and of the old town of the seventies and eighties preceding the developments which began with the new industrial utility of electricity. Few of her contemporaries remain. Mrs. Munro was a life long member of St. Andrew's Church.

The funeral will take place Tuesday at 3 p.m. from the family residence, 352 Brock street, to Little Lake Cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. William McDonald.

English Wives Taught Customs

TORONTO, Aug. 14. — Women who have been in the services, in war industry and the English wives of Canadian soldiers who have to become adjusted to the ways of this country comprise three groups who will need special help, if they are to establish the satisfactory homes so important to reconstruction in the post war period.

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society has been contributing an unusual service, through certain of its larger branches, during the past two decades, and it is hoped that this service may be extended to other areas, to meet post war problems.

There is to be a co-operative course of intensive training in home-making in Toronto, September 11 to 23, under auspices of Ontario Division of Red Cross and the Toronto Visiting Homemakers' Association. Miss Nesta Hinton, supervisor of nutrition for the former, and Miss Marjorie Bell who directs the latter organization, have planned an excellent program of instruction. Speakers will include the noted child psychologist, Dr. W. E. Blatz, as well as representatives of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Catholic Welfare Bureau and the Hospital for Sick Children.

Those wishing to take the course should contact their nearest Red Cross branch, or write Miss Hinton, 621 Jarvis St., Toronto.

WINS MILITARY CROSS — Lieut. William Angus Paul Smith, son of Mrs. Mary Smith, Lindsay, has been awarded the Military Cross for devotion to duty in France. Although severely wounded in the arm, the young officer refused medical attention until he had made a detailed report at headquarters which enabled troops to clean out a German concentration.

Moves Often

BARI, Italy, Aug. 14—(AP)—A reliable and seemingly unprejudiced observer said yesterday that Gen. Draja Mihailovic, ousted war minister of the Yugoslav Government-in-Cairo accused of being a collaorationist actually moved his headquarters every few days to frustrate repeated German efforts to capture him.

War Is Lost

LONDON, Aug. 14—(CP)—Field Marshal Gen. Friderich Von Paulus, Nazi commander who lost at Stalingrad, told the Germans in a statement broadcast by the Moscow radio yesterday that "the war is lost through the fault of Hitler, and continuation by the Germans is senseless bloodshed."

IN SEA BATTLE

Two Canadian ships, H.M.C.S. Qu'Appelle and H.M.C.S. Assiniboine, which have been mentioned in several sea actions lately, are again in the limelight after report of a battle with German supply ships and trawlers was released over the week-end. Peterborough boys who are serving on the Qu'Appelle are Chum Gillespie, Ray Magee, W. J Roode and Bob Honor. Walter Wheeler, a telegrapher, trained operator, is serving on the Assiniboine.

4th Battery Home From Summer Camp

The 4th (Reserve) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery returned Saturday from a two weeks annual summer camp at Point Petre near Picton.

This beautiful camp situated on the point of the largest peninsula on Lake Ontario was where the battery received intensive instruction on the 3.7" anti aircraft guns together with the predictor, height finder and identification telescope. A considerable number of periods was devoted to actual firing with standard high explosive ammunition at a target or drogue consisting of a rayon sleeve approximately 15 feet long, three feet in diameter, towed behind a lysander airplane at a height of approximately 4,000 feet. This represents a very small target barely visible to the naked eye.

A very high order of gun drill accuracy was attained by the Battery and the instructors highly commended the unit on its previous state of training and enthusiasm of officers and men. Approximately 100 rounds were fired by the Battery and an indication of the excellent state of training which the unit attained is afforded by the recorders reports which indicated 11 effective rounds out of 20. This is considered a high mark.

All members of the Battery had nothing but the highest words of praise for the camp, the accommodation, the food and especially the instructors who were expert in their lines.

A demonstration shoot using radar control instead of visual control was also staged which gave Battery members an insight into the future of Anti-Aircraft gunnery

The unit is hopeful of receiving fire control instruments which coupled with the intensive training they received at Point Petre will enable them to train to a high point of efficiency. All ranks of the Battery are unanimous in saying that Point Petre Camp is the best camp so far attended.

28 Attend Reunion For Mrs. David Drain

WARSAW, August 14 —(ENS) — A happy time was spent Sunday, when the children, grand-children and great-grandchildren of Mrs. David Drain, gathered at a re-union at Gilchrist Bay, in honor of Mrs. Drain's birthday anniversary. Twenty-eight guests sat down to the picnic dinner.

Eight Of Williams' Family Serving In Canada's Forces

With eight members of the family serving in some branch of Canada's armed forces, including one who is still listed as missing, and two son-in-law, who are now serving overseas, Mrs. H. Willams, 263 Engleburn street, has a proud record of service to the country.

The first son to enlist was L.-Cpl. Hector Williams, who went overseas with the first draft in 1939, and has since been serving with the 1st Division fighting in Italy. He married in England, shortly before going to Italy, and has a son. L. Cpl. Williams' brother, Chief Petty Officer Kenneth Williams, R. C. N. V. R., was reported missing after the Athabaskan went down in the early part of this year, and no further word has yet reached his home, as to his fate. But his family has never given up hope he will be heard from again, although they are disappointed it wasn't listed on the last sheet of names reported from the Athabaskan.

Sgt. Reginald Williams, another son, was invalided home from overseas about three months ago, after being injured in a motor accident during a blackout. He enlisted in 1939, and had been overseas four years when he was returned home, narrowly missing taking part in the invasion of France. He is married, and lives in Kingston.

Two sons-in-law are serving overseas, Pte. Jim Keating, whose wife and daughter live at 32 Barnado st., is overseas with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps. His wife is the former Bernadine Williams. Cfn. Harold Lewis, whose wife, formerly Iris Williams, also lives at 32 Barnado street, arrived overseas recently after enlisting in 1943. He worked at the Vickers plant in Montreal before his enlistment.

Another son-in-law is Pte. Wilfred Gedge, whose wife and 2 children live at 263 Engleburn street, and he has been overseas since 1941, and may be serving in the invasion. Formerly working on a farm, he is with the Queens Own Rifles, Toronto.

The enviable record of service to their country is continued by Pte. Frank Boothe, a grand-nephew of Mr. and Mrs. W. Williams, who enlisted in 1942, and went over after a brief training period. Pte. Boothe lived in Huntsville, before enlisting.

Another son, Pte. Jack Williams, is serving in th Home Guard at Kingston.

HARD HEARTED DRIVERS.

"Alls fair in love or war,"....or hitch-hiking, as was proven by two Peterborough hikers Sunday morning on the highway heading for Lakefield. They were having difficulty obtaining a ride, when suddenly, one had an idea. Muttering something about standing first in his first aid-class, he brought out an enromous white towel, and carefully bundled the other hiker's arm into the most painful and genuine looking sling imaginable. Accompanied by spiritual aid and pitying glances from passers-by, the two bobbled along the highway. However, no cars stopped, and those two will have to dream up some better way of influencing drivers, if they ever hope to reach Lakefield in less than 3 hours.—D. M.

DRIVES OUT THIRTY GERMANS — Bob Montgomery of Campbellford who took part in the fighting at Columbelles is reported to have virtually ended resistance at a chateau single handed, when he advanced to point blank range with his Bren gun and ferreted out 30 prisoners.

Brinton Carpet Makes $1,000 For War Victims

For quite some time now, the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd. have been travelling towards the $1,000 mark in money raised to assist the bomb victims in Britain through the local and district British War Victims' Fund operating for that purpose.

This is a real story of achievement on behalf of this one particular war effort which will ever remain a real credit to all concerned, for it represents just the odd change collected week by week on pay days, and shows just what can really be accomplished by steady effort, keeping the vision of the good they are able to do ever in front of them.

Today their latest gift of $25 marks the 74th time their name has appeared in this column on behalf of the fund, a record in itself which is outstanding, being one of the salient reasons why they have now gained the four figure mark in help given to assist the people of Britain in this manner, and through it they attain the mark of $1,000 which only five other groups have so far reached.

Children and Visitors Help

With a mother who has taken quite a part in the work of the Good Neighbour Group on behalf of the fund, little six-year-old Sandra Davidson was quite pleased to hand over $10.10 as proceeds of a bazaar held on the family lawn at Harvey and McDonnel streets on Saturday, in which five other young children also had a part.

Carl and Paul Gustafson of Vancouver, Lorraine and Vera Bartlett of the Toronto area, and Mary Easton of McDonnel street all joined with her in the sale of candy, canned goods, soap, pictures, vegetables and dishes, etc., which had been donated for the occasion and they surely will have very satisfied recollections of this summer's holidays, particularly the young visitors, in the knowledge that they had done something really worth while to add to other people's pleasure besides their own.

On Tuesday of this week, Carmelle Bartley living in the south end of the city and a pupil at Sacred Heart School, together with Barbara Guerin, a visitor from Detroit, Mich., are holding a bazaar at the corner of Lansdowne and George streets through the kindness of Mrs. T. W. Meredith of Lansdowne street to give the fund a helping hand.

Gladiolus, Aquarium Show

Never was such a cosmopolitan opportunity afforded to enter in any show than that afforded by the Eastern Ontario Gladiolus Society and the Peterborough Aquarium Society at their joint exhibition this Wednesday and Thursday, August 16 and 17.

It is not necessary for any exhibitor to be a member of either society, nor is any entry fee reqired, and there are special classes for amateur growers, so that the beginner will not stack up against one who has a long and varied experience.

Five draw prizes for each evening and door prizes, the latter without any extra added cost, are also another attractive feature, the tickets for the former also providing entrance to the show itself on either afternoon or evening. The draw for this will be made by His Worship Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Floyd Curtis, and at the conclusion of the show on Thursday night, all flower exhibits will be sold to give extra help to the fund.

Teenage Boys Given Suspended Sentence

Two local teenage boys who loitered around Lakefield after the dance last Friday night, and could not give a satisfactory account of themselves to Chief Constable Samis, were introduced to police court procedure this morning on technical vagrancy chages. They had located an orchard and stolen some apples, but their offence generally was only of a minor nature.

Crown Attorney McElderry suggested to Magistrate Langley that the Crown would be satisfied with a warning and suspended sentence for six months. The boys and their worried mothers signed good conduct bonds, including an undertaking by these sixteen-year-old youths to report regularly to Chief Thompson.

Magistrate Langley let the two lads go with a warning. It was said they had been staying out late at nights and causing anxious hours at home. It was 1:30 a.m. Saturday, August 12, when Chief Samis noticed them at Lakefield.

An Ottawa boy in a somewhat similar position Friday was required by Magistrate Lieff to make a public apology to his parents for the thoughtless trouble he had caused them. And the tone had to be loud enough for everyone in the court room to hear him say, "I apologize for what I did. I am sorry for the trouble I have caused." He was let go on suspended sentence.

GRADUATES AT MALTON—A radar operator until the autumn of 1943, when he re-mustered as air crew, Sgt. Glenn Burnett Buskard of Deloro was a recent graduate at Malton, receiving his wings as an air bomber on August 10. Formerly attending Pickering Boys' College and Weller's Secretarial School, Sgt. Buskard enlisted in 1940, going overseas two months later, and remaining there throughout the 1940-41 air blitz.

Lindsay Flier Dies In Crash

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 14 (CP)—Two airmen kiled when an R.C.A.F. plane from No. 4 Bombing and Gunnery School at Fingal crashed in a field eight miles east of the school Saturday, were identified today as Sgt. Edwin Donald Hawkins, Lindsay, Ont., and Sgt. Robert Douglas Sharp, Toronto.

Bodies of the airmen have been forwarded to their homes.

Driver In Truck Crash

Two night faring trucks without distinguishing green lights, clusters of three, front and rear, cost their drivers each $5 plus $2.50 costs in police court this morning.

The charges were laid by Provincial Officer McClure who reported the trucks as rolling along the Apsley highway near Haultain at 2 a.m. Their dimensions exceeded the official limits of 30 feet in length and 80 inches in width, and they were without the required lights that designate them as truck to other traffic.

The drivers were James Freeburn of Young's Point and Craig Reeves of Burleigh township, who had pleaded guilty and did not appear in court.

MEMORIAL CENTRE DISPLAY.

An illustrative display picturing the architect's plans for the building which will house the proposed Memorial Centre for Health, Culture and Recreation, may be seen in the C.D.S. window on Charlotte Street. Besides showing in miniature form the actual area design, questions that would naturally occur to the citizens who will later on be asked to make contributions are answered in clear, concise form for all to see.

Prices Board Releases Ammunition

For Peterborough sportsmen, those ardent devotees of the woods and back country who are already looking forward to the hunting season in the fall, it is welcome news from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that beginning Tuesday they can take out permits to supply themselves with shotgun shells and small - calibre rifle ammunition. This reverses the melancholy situation which prevailed last autumn, when hunters' supplies of ammunition were confined to whatever stocks they had previously managed to store away.

The issuing of permits will continue from Aug. 15 to Sept. 30 and ammunition on these permits may be purchased between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31. The regulations allow of a maximum issue of 50 shotgun shells and 100 rounds of ammunition for the rifles of .22, .25 and .32 calibre which use the rimfire bullet. Centre-fire shells, those used in high-power rifles, are still reserved for essential users.

In making application for a permit at the local ration board, it will be necessary for sportsmen to appear both with their registration certificates for shotgun and rifle, together with their ration books. Notation is to be made on the ration book in order to avoid duplication, along much the same lines as the L.C.B.O. stamp is placed on registration cards when application is made for liquor permits. Those who apply and who have satisfied the requirements will then be issued a form to take to the sporting-goods, hardware and departmental stores in the city that handle ammunition. American tourists wishing to obtain ammunition must be able to produce Canadian registration certificates for their guns.

It is expected that retailers will be in a position to fill orders on the spot as they come in after Sept 1, and these merchants have already received advice from the W.P.T.B. to estimate their probable requirements in shells and ammunition under the new regulation. Should the supply they have asked for prove inadequate, consideration will be given later to a further allowance. Retailers must account for amounts of ammunition issued, and are required to make regular reports to the W.P. T.B. at regular intervals.

Property Appeals Heard In January

Assessment of the properties in the North Monaghan suburbs which become incorporated in the city after January next will not be heard by the Court of Revision until early in the New Year, City Clerk Outram stated this morning.

The assessment department completes its rolls for 1945 on September 30. Fifteen days are allowed for the filing of any objections, and the Court of Revision meets after October 15 to deal with them.

The Monaghan properties are placed on city valuation for the first time, and their assessment for the 1945 tax purposes will be considered separately by the Court some time next January. In the meantime the assessment of the present city properties will have been disposed of, and the Monaghan assessments will be considered separately.

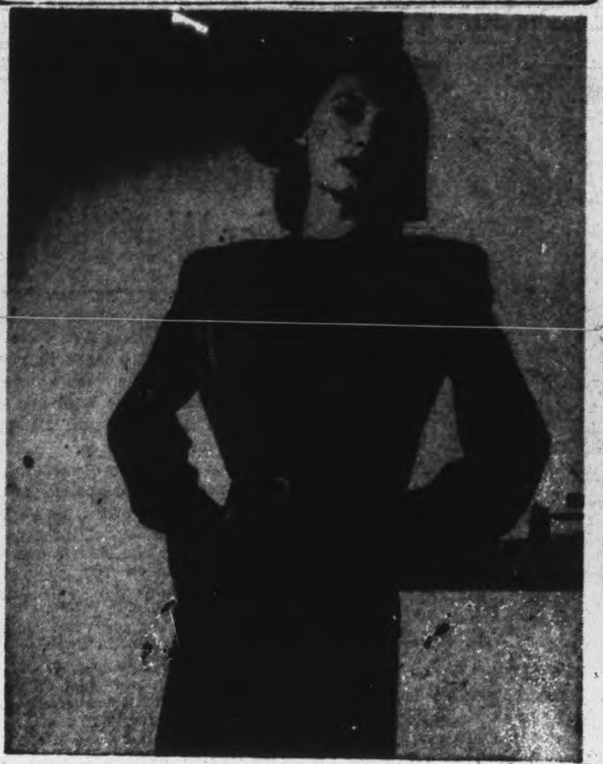
Camp Inglestane

Business girls from Peterborough and other cities are enjoying an ideal two weeks at the Y.W.C.A. Camp Inglestane on Stoney Lake. Numerous activities and recreations are open to them, and there's always a good time in the offing. Latest exploits of the group have included mock trials, bonfires and singsongs, and an evening's serenade to the various cottagers around the lake, who in appreciation for the music, took up a collection, amounting to $6, and presented it to the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund. The camp closes on Saturday, August 19, but will then be taken over by the C.G.I.T. Camp Council, which will keep al accommodations filled until the end of August.



THE SLEEVELESS LOOK — One of the important new trends for the coming season is the no-sleeve effect on dresses for every hour and purpose. Literally, there are no sleeves on many a dress even if it's wool and for winter. Again, a sleeve is set into its dress in such a way that it gives a jumper-over-blouse appearance, as in the model here. The sleeveless pullover with handsome hardware trim on its belt, to be worn with blouse and skirt, is yet another version which promotes the no-sleeve look.

Bacon for Breakfast

In summertime, breakfast is a particularly important meal. Make sure your family gets a breakfast that is both appetizing and nutritionally right!

Hot weather does things to peoples' appetites, but their nutritional needs are just as great. That's why wise wives and mothers lay special stress on breakfast as the summer moves along. And for all-round nutritional value and food energy, you still can't beat the old fashioned eggs and bacon. But eggs and bacon need not always be served the same way. In the panel I make one suggestion which has been very popular wherever it has been tried. You can think of others . . . scramble the eggs sometimes . . . or make an omelette . . . serve bacon with marmalade or jelly, on pancakes. But make the morning meal sustaining and attractive.

Skelcher-Spence Nuptials Solemnized At St Paul's

Get Brighter and Whiter Washes Safely!

"ALMOST unbelievable!"—is the verdict of women all over the country, when they try Sunlight.

The way a touch of Sunlight instantly leaves a film of soap that whips up into the richest, deepest-cleansing lather you ever saw. No hard scrubbing. Yet the most soiled spots on cuffs, hems and edges come sparkling clean and so much brighter—safely. Clothes never have that "half-washed" look. They come gleaming white, spotlessly bright all over and sweet as clover too.

Try Sunlight's extra-soapiness on greasy dishes, pots and pans. See how it loosens grease—makes dishwashing quicker and easier.

Boche Divisions Placed In Tight Corner

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Our best summary of the fluid and confusing battle of western Europe comes from Commander-in-Chief Eisenhower's great order of the day in which he tells his troops that they "have created in France a fleeting but definite opportunity for a major Allied victory."

Those three fateful words, "fleeting but definite," tell the whole story. We mustn't take complete success for granted. Great leadership and gallantry by the Allied forces have put us in position where, Gen. Eisenhower says, "we can make this week a momentous one in the history of this war." But we haven't yet clinched our victory. "This week" may tell the story.

We have the Boche in a tight corner. On the Normandy-Brittany front he is engaged in a general withdrawal to the north-east, that is, towards Paris and the Seine river. Within that broad front is a cul-de-sac of death whose narrow mouth opens towards Paris. Inside this trap is a large force of Germans struggling to escape.

The Allies are attacking furiously to close the mouth of their trap, which is only a few miles wide as this is written. Canadian and British troops are driving down from the bloody Caen sector while American armored forces are striking north from Argenan.

We don't know—nobody knows — how many Germans still are within that trap, but there may be 100,000 they are battling fiercely to escape. They're reported to be doing this grimly and methodically—still exhibiting the discipline and training of what once was an almost perfect fighting machine.

Can they avoid panic and get away? Some certainly will, but only time will tell how many. This great battle, of which the Cul-De-Sac is only a part (though a very important one) is one of the thrilling moments of the war. Its outcome will mean much to the hopes of an early end of the Hitlerian conflict. The whole structure of the German defence in Western Europe will vitally affected by the outcome of Gen. Eisenhower's "momentous" week.

Kinsmen Clubs Sent To Britain Over 15 Million Quarts Of Milk

REGINA, Aug. 14.—Delegates to the annual convention of the Association of Kinsmen Clubs, meeting here last week, learned from the Report of the Association National War Services Committee that, through The Kinsmen Fund for British Children 15,372,160 quarts of Milk-for-Britain had been shipped overseas since September 1941. The Committee also reported that a further 4,728,000 quarts were now on order for shipment within the next few weeks.

J. M. Houston, Treasurer of The Kinsmen Fund, presented a financial statement showing a total of $1,725,902 raised through the united efforts fo the Kinsmen Clubs and the contributions of the Canadian people. Highlighted in this report was the results of the 1943 Hallowe'en "Shell-Out" campaign when Canadian children in many parts of the Dominion raised over $97,000.00 to purchase a million quarts of milk for British children.

Plans for the continued and increasing effort of the Kinsmen and assisting organizations to send Milk-to-Britain "as long as the need exists" were outlined by the National Committee. The Hallowe'en "Shell-Out," sponsored by the Kinsmen and many other organizations from coast to coast, is expected, this year, to raise sufficient money to send 5,000,000 quarts of milk overseas.

H. A. Rogers, National Chairman of The Kinsmen Fund, stated that the need is still great in many parts of the Old Country. Mr. Rogers read part of a letter just received from the Head of the Overseas Department of the Women's Voluntary Services which referring to the robomb blitz said:

"We are tremendously busy at the moment, for not only is the W.V.S. dealing with the people rendered homeless by Hitler's pilotless planes, but we are also coping to a large extent with the evacuation of children from the London area. I need hardly tell you that your chocolate powder is being used to a great extent all over the country and particularly in London, where we are having quite a tough time. These what we call buzz bombs come over all day and all night, though I am glad to say that owing to the R.A.F. the intervals between their advent are more widely spread. Unfortunately their constant zooming overhead is not particularly good for the nerves or for sleeping, and I think I can safely say that absolutely gallons of your chocolate milk powder has been poured down thousands of throats and acted as a sedative and a comfort."

Soul Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"Soul" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ, Scientist in Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was: "My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from Him." (Psalm 62:5).

Selection from the Bible included the following from Psalms 86:4: "Rejoice the soul of Thy servant: for unto Thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul."

Correlative citationus from the Christian Science textbook, included the following: "Soul and Spirit being one, God and Soul are one, and this one never included in a limited mind or a limited body. Because Soul is immortal, it does not exist in mortality. Soul must be incorporeal to be Spirit, for Spirit is not finite. Only by losing the false sense of Soul can we gain the eternal unfolding of Life as immortality brought to light."

Police Chief Battles Thugs

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 14 — (CP) — Three men suspected of breaking and entering a hardware store here made their escape early today after an exchange of gunfire with Police Chief N. H. Grassick. The chief was walking near the store when a man sitting in a parked car called to the others in the store. They ran for the car, firing two or three times. The Chief said he returned the fire and one of the men may have been hit as he staggered when he got near the car.

The gasoline tank of the car was also hit and there was a trail of gasoline on the highway as it sped away, sideswiping a United States car as it left.

Pursuit was delayed five or ten minutes because the chief's car was in the garage for repairs. He and Constable J. F. Bennett followed later but were unable to find any trace of the men who apparently broke into the store about three a.m. and were attempting to remove its 1,500 pound safe when surprised. They had only been able to move it seven feet.

"And the worst of it is, Sir, I don't dare send any men over there to tell him to stop. They'd just add to the din by scooping up some super-delicious Grape-Nuts Flakes themselves!"

"Ah — Grape-Nuts Flakes, is it? Those crinkly, malty-rich flakes that supply such nourishing carbohydrates and proteins, useful quantities of iron for the blood, phosphorus for bones and teeth. I must go over and check up on the disturbance myself!"

Have you ever seen 4,000,000 dinner pails?

PLACED end to end, 4,000,000 dinner pails would reach from Winnipeg to Calgary, or from Halifax to Toronto. And that gives you an idea of the number of people in Canada who own life insurance.

Of course, not all the four million of them carry dinner pails, but the great majority of them are people of limited means—workers, farmers, fishermen, soldiers, sailors, grocers, teachers, clerks—people who have found in life insurance the means of protecting their own future and that of their loved ones.

When people ask why the life insurance companies are large, the answer is simple—life insurance has grown because people themselves wanted security. It is a big business because it provides the best combination of protection and savings that people have been able to find.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE

SERVIUS—In loving memory of Mrs. John Servius, who died four years ago to-day, August 14, 1940.

We do not forget her we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream.
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
In our home she is fondly remembered
Sweet memories cling to her name
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death just the same.
—Sadly missed by husband and daughter.

Mining News

FREDERICTON, N.B., Aug. 14—(CP)—A large section of the nearby mining community of Minto was destroyed during the night by fire which had practically encircled the town. The blaze at Minto is one of 15 fires spreading through the tinder-dry forests of New Brunswick. No casualties have been reported.

Damage to the power lines caused by the Minto fire left Fredericton in darkness last night, and reports this morning showed Fredericton might have to go without power for four or five days. More than two miles of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission lines were burned.

In one county alone there are five serious fires sweeping the timberland. Troops and large crews of civilians have been rushed to the burning areas, but despite their efforts the fires were still gaining headway at latest reports.

In an attempt to eliminate any potential outbreaks, Hon. F. W. Pirie, Minister of Lands and Mines, ordered all forest areas closed, and cancelled forest travel permits until further notice.

TORONTO, Aug. 14 —(CP) —Industrials showed a slight gain this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Other groups were narrowly lower. Volume was better at 496,000 shares.

Senior golds were off a bit with cheaper issues. McIntyre lost ½, Lake Shore ⅛ and Hollinger ¼. In the Kellowknife group Giant, Frobisher and Negus weakened 8 to 15 cents and Bear lost 6 cents. Other moderately soft spots were Malartic Gold Fields, West Malartic, Teck Hughes, Beattie and Pickle Crow.

Waite-Amulet gained slightly and other base metals, including Noranda, Ventures Steep Rock and Smelters, were lower.

Industrials were dull in trade on narrow price adjustments. Papers and steels improved. Utilities were lower. C. P. R. was quite active at ⅛ gain.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

As we are now enjoying our own home-grown fresh vegetables, I am today going to tell you several ways to serve them, other than the ordinary, every day way. Fi[sh] and meat may be combined with vegetables, making a very delicious casserole dish. Our first recipe is made up of corn and tomatoes, two vegetables that are now at their best.

Corn and Tomato Casserole

4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, ¾ teaspoon salt, few grains of pepper, 2 cups cooked corn, 4 medium sized tomatoes, buttered, soft bread crumbs, ½ cup grated Canadian cheese.

Melt butter in a double boiler, add flour and mix well, add milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Add salt and pepper. Place alternate layers of corn, white sauce and sliced tomatoes, sprinkled with salt, in buttered baking dish. Top with bread crumbs, mixed with cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until cheese is melted and the mixture is heated through. This will serve six or eight people.

Salmon and Spinach Epicurean

2 cups boiled flaked salmon (this may be left over from a fish dinner), 1½ tablespoons butter, 2[½] tablespoons flour, 1¾ cups milk, [¼] to ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper.

Place large flakes of salmon [in] the bottom of baking dish. Melt the butter in a double boiler, add the flour and mix well. Add the milk gradually and cook until thickened. Add the salt and pepper and pour over the salmon. Cover with Spinach Souffle, made as follows:

4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup mil[k], salt and pepper, 3 eggs, 1½ cu[ps] finely chopped spinach (about [½] pound).

Melt the butter in a double boiler, add flour and mix well until thickened. Add ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper and stir in the slightly beaten egg yolks gradually. Cool slightly and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and the uncooked spinach which has been mixed with about one teaspoon salt. Place the baking dish in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for about 35 minutes or until set.

This recipe is verp nice made [in] individual dishes and it will make about six servings.

Abbott Family Take Honors In Tournament

In the third round in the C. G. Graham mixed 2-ball foursome tournament held Sunday afternoon, Bob Abbott and Margaret Abbott playing together defeated Graham Whiting and Mary Strickland in the first bracket, while Russell Kitchen and Miss M. Hatton finally eased out Max Lauder and Mrs. O. Hutchings after a thrilling battle which stayed even most of the way round.

The Abbotts will now meet the winners of a match between Joe M. Watson and Mrs. S. McBride playing against Mrs. J. Watson and Stan McBride. Russell Kitchen and Miss M. Hatton must now play Mr. and Mrs. J. McKercher and the tournament will then be in its final round which will be played on September 10.

In the consolation round for the R. R. Faryon prize A. Rutter and Florence Leach will play Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Steer and the winners will meet Mr. and Mrs. O. A. DeGraw to advance in the final bracket. W. E. McCreery and Miss M. Johnston will play against Hec Thompson and Miss I. Bullock to fill in the other half of the final bracket. The finals in this match will also be played on September 10.

The big attraction Sunday was the sweepstake for mixed 2-ball foursomes in which all teams participated.

This event was won by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Watson who managed a gross 91 with a handicap of 23, or a net of 68.

Other scores turned in included Graham Whiting and Mary Strickland with 97-26-71; Bob Abbott and Margaret Abbott 92-22-70; Bruce Butler and Betty Richardson 102-26-76; Russell Kitchen and Miss M. Hatton 94-23-71; Max Lauder and Mrs. O. Hutchings 98-24-74; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lloyd 105-25-80; Mr. and Mrs. J. McKercher 96-26-70.

Saturday afternoon's sweeps did not attract a very large crowd although the weather was warm and condusive of crack golf, the fairways hard, the green perfect. The perennial Bob Abbott according to habit took the low gross prize with a 75. In the second flight Charlie Cummer took the low gross with an 89. Low nets went to M. G. Hardill and Stan Longhurst, both of whom turned in net 69's.

There are many games which have not been played in some of the tournaments and the Match and Handicap committee warns these must be brought up to date at once or both participants will be scratched.

All tournaments must be complete up to the final round which, if possible, will be played on September 10.

For Tuesday, August 15

Propitious planetary indications promise some form of exceptional activity and success, and probably in unusual or unforeseen contacts and openings. Unusual energies and skills applied in out of the ordinary propositions may unfold surprising denouements, in both business and personal experiences. While all business and professional effort should move quickly to satisfactory goals, there may be change of place and plans.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of progress and unforeseen gratification and returns in both business and private affairs. Those forms of endeavor out of the beaten path may be especially favored, although they may involve change, travel and new associates. But all should bring exceptional rewards of a substantial nature as well as adventure and rare fulfillments in friendship, social, domestic and cultural life, with courtships and marriage among the probabilities.

A child born on this day should possess versatile, original and unusual talents and creative skills, promising it a happy, progressive and adventurous career.

MOTHER MONOPOLIZES GIRL

Solution to Possessive Parent Problem Ends in Stalemate Caused by Tears

Dear Miss Dix: I am a girl almost 21 years old. I work six days a week from eight to five and believe that I should be entitled to a week-end to myself now and then. But whenever I am at home my mother follows my every step and makes me go wherever she goes. I have no oy friends as my mother feels that she has a right to monopolize me and that I should devote all of my time to her. In order to avoid an argument I stay at home.

Can you suggest any way in which I can get a little liberty?

ALICE.

Mother Becomes a Tyrant

Answer: I: am afraid not, because a possessive mother is the most grinding tyrant on earth. She feels that her children belong to her, body and soul, and that she has a right to every minute of their time and to direct their every move. It never occurs to the possessive mother to consider anyone but herself. Still less does it cross her mind that her children are not as interested in her as she is in them and that while she enjoys being with them continually, she bores them to death.

You often hear a mother boast about what companions she and her children are and how they do everything together. You wonder that anyone can be so besotted in their selfishness as not to know that youth calls to youth and that no grownup person can really be a companion to a child.

And for proof of this you have only to notice that when little children go out with Mama and Papa they are always stiff and dull and lacking in all animation and spontaneity. It is only when they play with no grownup around them that they whoop and yell and have good times.

The mothers who insist on helping to entertain their girls' boy friends, and who wish themselves on their girls and their beaux when they step out, ruthlessly are sacrificing their daughters to their own pleasure. But I don't know how it can be avoided because when Sally or Mamie try to explain to Mother how they would like to have a little freedom Mother always bursts into tears, and Sally's backbone dissolves in the brine and she gives in to Mother's selfishness.

It is harder to break Mother's apron strings than a steel cable.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married for three years, but what I feel for my husband is merely a protective fondness and not love. I have thought I was in love many times with other men but to cure myself, I merely sit down and concentrate my thoughts on the gentleman in question as long and as often as I have time to, and before I have "been in love" with him very long I am sick at the thought or sight of him.

Am I normal or disillusioned or just what is wrong with me?

A CONSTANT READER.

Answer: I think you are right as rain and that you have made a discovery that is of inestimable value to your sex for there is nothing in this world for which there is a more crying need than for a good, reliable cure for love.

And you have hit upon the real, genuine panacea for broken hearts. It is thinking. For if a woman can think herself in love, she can think herself out of it if she will only put her mind on it and do a good, honest job at it. Especially if, instead of magnifying a man's charms and glorifying them, she will concentrate on his bad points. One good dose of this and she will wonder how she ever happened to fancy him.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am 21 years old and very much in love with the grandest man in the world, but he is 52 years old and my parents think that that is too great a difference in our ages. I don't think so. What do you think?

A HEARTBROKEN GIRL.

Answer: The best answer that I have ever heard made to that question was by an old colored woman whose young mistress was about to marry a man much older than herself. The elderly suitor said to the old woman: "Mammy, I hear you think I am too old for Sally. Why, I'm just in the prime of life." "Yes sir," the old woman responded, "but where are you going to be when Miss Sally is in the prime of life?"

Figure that out for yourself. Thirty years difference in age is a mighty big difference when one gets into the upper brackets.

CWAC Marks 3rd Birthday

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—The Canadian Women's Army Corps marked its third anniversary on Sunday, August 13, with a detachment of its members trained and ready for service in France; with 1,000 volunteers in Italy and in England; with a unit in Washington, D.C., and with many more serving throughout the Dominion. Formed by Order-in-Council, it has grown from an auxiliary branch to a fully-recognized Corps of the Canadian Army with a total enlistment of slightly less than 18,000 women.

Organized to augment soldier reinforcements and to release men for more active service, the C.W.A.C. has taken over a variety of jobs that were formerly in the "for men only" category. During the past year, National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, has announced that army girls have replaced men as night vision testers in depots throughout the Dominion; that many of them have been trained to operate telecord machines and projection equipment; that others have mastered ciphering, instrument mechanics, spray painting, armament fitting and numerous other technical jobs.

C.W.A.C.'s have been posted to the Allied Ordnance Depot in Longue Point, Quebec, to various gun operations rooms and to duty as kinetheodolite operators. They were among the first service women to be employed in the Parliament Buildings where they assisted in issuing of Victory Bonds during the 6th War Loan Drive.

Training for the future has not been neglected in the C.W.A.C. Educational courses have been organized to provide instruction in a variety of academic and commercial subjects as well as in handicrafts and other leisure-hour activities. The study of citizenship and Canadian affairs is a recognized part of the curriculum at the Basic Training Centre in Kitchener, Ontario. Officer cadets at Ste. Ann de Bellevue, Quebec, are trained in discussion group leadership.

MAYBE NOT IMPOSSIBLE

NO MATTER how impossible of fulfillment a contract may appear, you can usually think of some very improbable arrangement of the hidden cards which would enable you to pull through if it existed. The plucky campaigner has a habit of trying to imagine such arrangements when he finds himself up against it, and then playing so as to cash in on them in case luck is with him.

Morgan Howard, financial wizard of the publishing industry and one of the most acute bridge artists you will ever know, required a combination of everything a player could ask in order to make that contract. He needed skill, courage, imagination to the nth degree and optimism, plus a goodly share of pure luck. And he had them all.

Pushed into grand slam by his Blackwooding partner, he had to take every trick despite the fact that five trumps to the Q-J-10-9 were out against him. Preventing loss of a trick to that combination seems impossible, but he found a way to do it.

After West led the diamond 6, he saw a remote chance that the man at the left would have six hearts and the one at his right a singleton, that the right-hand man would ruff the second heart lead [illegible] the spade 4 and that the four trumps would be di-[illegible]. All of these developed.

[illegible]e won the lead with the diamond 10, scored the heart A and led the K. East ruffed with the spade 4, was over-ruffed with the 7, and two rounds of trumps drew the other four spades. The rest was a cinch.

226,416 German Prisoners Do War Work In United States

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (AP) — The War Department disclosed last night that the Allied offensives in France and Italy have resulted in shipment to the United States of large numbers of Axis prisoners.

By Aug. 1, there were 226,416 prisoners in the United States including approximately 30,000 sent in during July, one month after the invasion of France.

The figures were contained in a memorandum from Robert P Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, to James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization. The White House released the memorandum, which is designed to show the uses made of prisoner manpower. The report stated that prisoners are being used in all sorts of work from detasseling corn and labor maintenance at army camps to logging and wood processing.

Utilization Rate High

The report said that during the first 15 days of July there was utilization of 89.5 percent of the ordinary available prisoner labor which excludes those physically disqualified and those legally eliminated from work requirements, such as officers and non-commissioned officers. This utilization percentage was about one point under the 90.3 per cent figure for June, and the drop was partially attributed to the "recent arrival of large numbers of prisoners from overseas."

Of the total number of prisoners in the country, the War Department said thot by Aug. 1, 34,326 were formed into "Italian service units."

"These men are selected from Italian prisoned volunteers," the memorandum said, "who are carefully screened in order to exclude Fascists and Axis sympathisers They are located in 60 stations in various parts of the country They work at general depots, arsenals and ordnance installations, ports of embarkation and army posts, camps and stations.

"They do essential war work, such as loading or unloading railroad cars, handling of equipment and salvage. crating, repairing or processing vehicles or other military equipment. Where members of the units possess valuable mechanical skill, use is made of them, Effective use of these men (except for sickness or other disabling causes) is 100 per cent.

U.S. Takes Over 103 Truck Firms

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 14— ((AP) — The United States government today took over 103 midwestern trucking companies and ordered 25,000 striking drivers in eight States to return to their jobs immediately to clear up halted movement of military supplies.

President Roosevelt last night ordered the seizure of the truck firms and assigned the office of Defence Transport tion to run the industry until the strike is settled. The President sai dthe Army was behind the O.D.T. in its task.

Paul Halpine, Lincoln, Neb., vice-chairman of the Midwest Operators Association, said the operators 'intend to co-operate 100 per cent. with the Federal government."

Thomas E. Flynn, acting President of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (A.F.L.) said his organization was fully in accord with the seizure of the truck properties. In making his statement in Indianapolis, Flynn said, 'our men are instructed to return to work at once."

The drivers walked out a week ago when their employers refused to pay a seven-cents-an-hour wage increase ordered by the War Labor Board, contending they could not afford to pay the increase unless the government extended them financial relief.

200 Airmen Reach Canada

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 (CP) —More than 200 Canadian airmen, many of them with decorations earned in action over the Normandy bridgehead, climbed to-day from a repatriation train here to renew acquaintance with a homeland many of them had not seen for as long as three years.

Among the repatriates was FO. W. A. Bishop Jr., son of Air Marshall W. A. (Billy) Bishop, Director of Recruiting for the R. C. A. F., who was met by his father. Another was Wing. Cmdr. G. C. Keefer, D.F. C. and Bar, of Charlotown, back after two completed tours of operations.

Others returning included Wing Cmdr. J. W. Reid, Kingston, and Flt. Lt. J. L. McCauly, D.F.C., Toronton; Sqdn. Ldrs. R. A. Buckham of Mission City, B.C., and Howard Cleveland, D. F. C., of Vancouver, who both ran up impressive scores of enemy aircraft destroyed.

Buckham has a record of six and one-half planes destroyed, two "probables" and two damaged. Cleveland claimed nine destroyed and one damaged in a single tour of operations.

The returning fliers, all happy to be back, plowed hungrily into the ice cream and soft drink offerings of Canadian Legion representatives who met them at the station.

In the group were Sqdn. Ldr. G. W. Conrad, Richmond, and Flt. Lt. A. J. Van Rassell, Timmins.

GERMAN PRISONERS STAFF FACTORY IN INTERNMENT CAMP—Six hundred carloads of supplies useful to Canada have been turned out in the last 12 months by German prisoners of war in one of Canada's largest internment camps it has just been revealed. The works program, directed by 20 officers and men of the Veterans' Guard of Canada has moved into the big business brackets, and these pictures, first to be released of factory operations in a Canadian prisoner of war camp, show some of the work. The camp, located near Montreal and officially designated as Internment Camp 42, is commanded by Lt.-Col. W. D. Graham, M.C., V.D., of Belleville (Top Left), and a view of one section of the prisoners' living quarters is shown, Centre Left. One article manufactured is wooden shoe trees and at Top Right Lt. D. M. Aird of Toronto, in charge of this branch of the work, checks a shipment with one of the prisoners engaged in the factory. All articles manufactured are carefully examined before being passed and (at Centre Right) Joseph Daoust, inspector of furnishing and bedding, examines hospital operating masks turned out by prisoners in the sewing shop. Stretcher carriers for conveying wounded men are a big item on the factory production sheet and (in Lower photo) two prisoner of war technicians are pictured working on one of the carriers. Prisoners are paid for their work and deal with camp authorities through an official camp "spokesman". Majority are German merchant seamen, many with highly skilled trades as background for their camp activities. (Canadian Army Photos)

Allied Forces Must Occupy Japan, Says Nimitz

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 14 (AP)—Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Pacific Fleet said to-day that a possibility exists of defeating Japan without invading the enemy's homeland.

He said at a press conference:

"I am not sure or convinced that invasion will be necessary, but I do belive occupation of Japan would be necessary to insure a winning peace.

"I do not believe anybody can definitely say that invasion—invasion by assault— will be necessary until the time comes and the situation is unfolded more than it is at present.

"However, we should keep in mind the possible necessity of invasion and be prepared for it."

Admiral Nimitz, just returned from a Guam-Saipan inspection trip expressed his views on the necessity of invading Japan after being asked: "How far can we go in relying on air bombardment to defeat Japan?"

"I do not believe any single form of attack will defeat Japan," he said.

"It will have to be a combination of every weapon— sea blockade, air bombardment, possible surface ship bombardment. Already surface ships have bombarded the Northern Kuriles. A combination of the whole military effort will bring about the defeat of Japan.

"It hardly seems possible because of the great distances involved to deliver the same bomb tonnage on Japan as has been delivered on Germany and German positions in Occupied Europe."

Elmer Davis. Director of the Office of War Information, who also just has returned from the Marianas, suggested it is possible for Japan to be starved out, because virtually all her food is imported.

Admiral Nimitz agreed that a sea blockade cutting off supplies could go a long way toward "bringing Japan down."

John Bracken Places Employes 'At Top Of List

IRRICANA, Alta., Aug. 14 (CP)—John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, yesterday placed full employment at the top of a program for the rehabilitation of veterans.

In an address prepared for delivery at a Progressive Conservative meeting Mr. Bracken outlined his party's policy toward veterans, sketching the broad terms of post-war treatment and making recommendations for immediate action to improve the lot of men while they are still in the service.

Mr. Bracken also touched briefly on the party's policy toward wartime utilization of manpower.

"No question more vitally affects those on service than the provision of adequate reinforcements," he said, urging compulsory national selective service with those selected to serve in the armed forces to be available for service wherever required.

"This part stands committed to the principle of the total utilization and proper allocation for war by compulsion where necessary of all the resources of Canada, including agriculture and industry and finance as well as manpower," he said.

"The present government manpower policy is splitting this country apart. Yet it must be held together. And there is no other basis save equality of sacrifice upon which in the long run it can be held together.

"Dsiunity reigns today in Canada more than ever before in our history. It is the fruit of 27 years of falste teaching. We must retrace those steps. Let us hope, nay, let us determine that we shall retrace them in sanity, in tolerance, in understanding and above all in peace."

Proposals

As a plan for meeting veterans' needs Mr. Bracken proposed:

1. A policy of "first in, first out" for demobilization with the rights of those last out protected.

2. Revision of pension rates to bring them in line with present living costs.

Increased assistance under the Veterans' Land Act and provision of assistance to veterans in urban areas in obtaining housing.

4. Full consultation with Veterans' ing veterans.

5. Low interest rate loans to assist veterans in establishing themselves in business.

6. Complete redrafting of the Pensions Act as it applies to disabled veterans with radical changes in the method of handling appeals and increase in the personnel of the Pensions Commission to speed handling of claims.

7. Payment of pensions to women on a scale equal to those paid men.

For immediate action Mr. Bracken proposed:

1. Introduction of a group insurance plan for all members of the forces.

2. Protection against foreclosure of mortgages on soldiers homes and loss of their insurance policies.

3. Improved hospital facilities

4. Improved housing for soldiers' dependents.

"The cost of winning the war and the cost of re-establishing those who fought it is one and indivisible so far as the nation's responsibility goes," Mr. Bracken said.

Mr. Bracken said he had not had an oportunity of studying details of the gratuities plan introduced in Parliament yesterday, but if it was ample in its generosity it would have his full support.

RussianArmy Cracks Prussian Line

Cross Biebrza River Last Barrier Of Any Consequence

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 15 (AP)—Russian forces started attacking freshly dug German entrenchments today in front of Grajewo, two miles south of the East Prussian border, after cracking the steel and concrete forts around Osowiec and winning a bridgehead across the Biebrza river.

Gen. G. F. Zakharov threw the full offensive might of his 2nd White Russian Army against the Germans' attempts to reorganize their frontier line just below the Masurian Lakes.

A thundering bombardment from the air supported the Red Army attack.

"The waters of the Biebrza ran dark with enemy blood today," a front dispatch to Izvestia said. Zakharov smothered a series of tank counter-attacks with his high-powered drive and struck directly in the rear of large enemy forces tied up in the Suwalki triangle (which East Prussia annexed in 1939) by Gen. Ivan Cherniakovsky's divisions.

Key Points Assaulted

Not only Grajewo but Lyck in East Prussia, 12 miles to the north, was menaced by the two Russian Army groups. Should these communication centres fall, a German withdrawal from the northeastern corner of East Prussia would be imperative.

Enemy casualties at Oswoiecc are expected to run into the thousands, a front dispatch said.

Crackup in Baltic.

The Red Army continued to squeeze the defences of Warsaw and fought bitterly for a larger springboard west of the Vistula river in the area threatening Krakow and Kielce 100 milse south of the Polish capital. Wide advances in the Baltic States gave evidence of the crackup of the enemy divisions in Estonia and Latvia, separated from the main German army by a corridor to the Baltic west of Riga.

A German fortified zone three to six miles in depth lay littered with fire-blackened Nazi tanks and wrecked field guns behind Gen. Zakharov's vanguard.

Flat boggy country intersected by numerous creeks now separates the Red Army from Lyck, East Prussian

Spanish Radio Claims Canadian Troops Taking Part In New Invasion Of France

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—(CP).—The Spanish radio (Radio Nacional) said today that one of the first Allied craft to arrive on a beach in Southern France "was loaded with Canadian and French soldiers." There was no Allied confirmation of the report.

The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The first landing craft reached the beaches at 8 o'clock French time (2 a.m., EDT) and that "two hours later 2,000 men from seven invasion ships set foot on France."

"By 1 p.m. 15,000 soldiers of Gen. Wilson had landed in France and German security troops had begun to react," said the report.

There was no amplification of the reported landing of Canadian troops beyond the initial phrase saying that the first landing barge "was loaded with Canadian and French soldiers."

Ontario House Located In London Boon To Canadians Overseas

TORONTO, Aug. 15—(CP).—Major J. S. P. Armstrong, Ontario Agent General in London, arrived in Toronto today from Montreal after a 12-hour airplane trip from the United Kingdom and told at a press conference of the work of Ontario House in London since it was re-opened early this year. Major Armstrong, who went overseas with the 48th Highlanders of Toronto and was released from military service last February to take up his duties at Ontario House, said that a major activity has been to provide services for Ontario men in the forces overseas. In addition, it has carried on a publicity campaign in the United Kingdom, has developed an industry and trade department and has studied the question of post-war immigration to Ontario from the United Kingdom.

Its services to Ontario men overseas—Major Armstrong estimated they made up nearly 50 per cent. of Canadian overseas forces — include operation of an information bureau and hospitality services. Cigarets were distributed in London, they were given to men in the invasion forces immediately after the landings in Normandy and were being distributed in the Italian theatre.

A prisoner-of-war department was in operation and assistance was being given to British wives of the Canadians in the forces. They were being given information about the Ontario communities in which they would be making their homes and other problems. An information bureau, rest rooms and reading rooms were established for them. The approximately 20,000 brides who have 8,000 to 10,000 children "are of a high type and will be a credit to any Canadian community."

Canteen, Hostel

An Ontario services club, staffed by 40 workers of the Canadian Red Cross Society, contains a canteen and a hostel for women n the services.

Purpose of the public relations department is to publicize the name of Ontario, which is little known in the United Kingdom, and to seek for Ontario a fair share of the post-war business of the United Kingdom itself and Europe as well.

The industrial and trade department will co-operate with the Canadian Manufacturers Association, boards of trade, chambers of comerce and industrial commissions in Ontario. Its purpose is to encourage British industry to come to Ontario after the war to absorb vacant war plant space and to assist in providing employment for those now in the services. But "we don't wish to encourage British plants which will offer serious competition to existing industry here."

The statement concluded:

"Mr. King's explanation that he cannot call a conference because I have expressed a desire to se Mr. Bracken take his place as prime minister of Canada surely reaches an all-time high in pure, unadulter-

Way Is Cleared To Philippines

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 15—(AP) — Allied bombers, striking swiftly and with devastating accuracy, have "practically neutralized" Halmahera, the last major island block to the Philippines.

They accomplished the task in the record time of slightly more than two weeks, and with the record economy of only three major attacks upon airdromes. Halmahera, 200 miles west of New Guinea, is about 300 miles south of Mindanao.

"Our air attacks upon Halmahera were continued, causing great fires and explosions," headquarters announced today. Air raids upon enemy targets from Timor to Bougainville also were announced.

"The enemy's airfields at Halmahera and at contiguous intermediate bases are practically neutralized, his maritime forces largely interdicted and his ground troops immobilized in their present positions.

"The flexibility of this great base is now gone."

A bomb-inflicted creeping paralysis, induced with the conquest of Saipan, Tinian and Guam in the Southern Marianas, thus has struck all along Japan's island defence line.

Gen. MacArthur's announcement today added this warning of deeper punches to come:

"Should the enemy fail to retrieve his weakness on Halmahera, the main line of defence for his conquered Empire in the Southwest Pacific, extending through the Halmaheras and the Philippines, is threatened."

8th Army Units Mopping Up

ROME, Aug. 15 (AP)—Patrols of the American 5th Army engaged the enemy in a sharp fight three miles southeast of Pontedra but otherwise the Italian front remained comparatively quiet yesterday except for artillery fire, Allied headquarters announced today.

8th Army troops were reported continuing to mop up enemy pockets of resistance in the Empoli area, where they killed at least 25 Germans. Allied tanks and mortars were engaged in harassing the enemy on both sides of the Arno bend west of Signa.

The Allied position in Florence "continues to improve steadily," headquarters said, with German shelling of the city almost ceased. Supplies for the civil population are arriving in large volume.

Eisenhower In Command

American Set-Up Follows British Pattern

By JAMES F. KING,
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, August 15 —(AP)—, Gen. Eisenhower has taken personal charge of operations in the Western invasion with the establishment of an American Army group under Lt.-Gen. Omar M. Bradley on an equal status with the British-Canadian command of Gen. Montgomery.

Bradley's group — the 12th — is composed of at least two armies, the 1st and the 3rd. Bradley was succeeded by Lt.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges as commander of the 1st Army and command of the newly formed third went to Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

Both Gen. Montgomery and Gen. Bradley report directly to Gen. Eisenhower's arrival in France more than a week ago.

Still Long Way From The Rhine

AN ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS COMMAND POST IN NORMANDY, Aug. 15—(AP).—Gen. Eisenhower warned today against expecting that the end of the European war would come in a matter of weeks. At a press conference the Allied supreme commander summarized the situation in one of the war's most critical periods—for the Germans.

"This week is marking a very definite climax in one phase of the operational plan that has been in effect since D-Day," the Supreme Commander stid. "Just what will be the result in the sum total no one can say. It is certain that German forces congregated on our front are taking a sound beating. In the campaigns lying ahead numbers of such tactical victories must be won because, even if we realize our fondest hopes in a situation such as this, we are still a long way from the Rhine.

"All of us are keyed up to keep on intensifying our efforts to the moment of final victory—no matter how long it may take."

Guardedly Optimistic.

Allies Slash Escape Gap To 10 Miles

Von Kluge's Units Fight On In Suicidal Battle

By GLADWIN HILL,
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, August 15 — (AP) — Allied armies, clamping a giant vise upon France, broke through the southern wall near Toulon to-day in successful landings against weak resistance while 450 miles to north annihilation battles cut the dying German 7th Army in a tightening Normandy trap.

Cut All Roads.

In Northwest France, meanwhile, the Americans clinched control of the German escape roads to the south by capturing La Ferte Mace between Domfront and Ranes.

Four separate British, American and Canadian armies, squeezing upon Field Marshall Von Kluge's forces of perhaps 100,000 to 200,000 men, pinched his escape gap south of Falaise to only 10 miles, and sealed that off with a wall of bombs and shells.

Von Kluge writhed in a coffin pocket already narrowed to half its earlier size, and apparently was putting up a forced last stand. Little movement was observed overnight in the Falaise escape hatch.

(Berlin broadcasts said "a furious battle unprecedented in living memory is being fought" for this narrow gap.)

Biting off this final avenue of flight were the 1st Canadian Army pounding down from north of Falaise, and now with 2½ miles of that communications centre, and the American 3rd Army commanded by Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, which was a scant eight miles south of Falaise.

The British 2nd Army, operating west, pressed in against the pocket-the American 1st Army, farther west of the 1st Canadian Army, and ted enemy.

Met Wall of Bombs.

The trap upon Von Kluge was nearly snapped shut.

A front dispatch said that again this morning the Germans tried to break out eastward, but the route south of Canadian-dominated Falaise was blocked by a wall of bombs and shells.

TORONTO, Aug. 15—(CP). —Morris Snider, 86, tried to beat the heat last night by sleeping on the roof of his sunroom, and today he is in hospital unconscious as the result of a 30-foot fall to the ground. Police said he had slept on the flat sunroom roof in hot weather for the last 15 years, and this was the first time he had an accident.

Last Session Involved Plenty Of Money

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 — (CP) — The 1944 session of parliament will probably go down in history as the "big money" session.

Laws passed as the Nation's legislators made preparations for the post-war period and provided for a continuation of Canada's war effort call for the spending of many billions of dollars during the next five years, either in direct governmental outlay or in private investments and developments induced and supported by government guarantees and loans.

From the point of view of legislation it was the most important session in many years in that it placed on the statute books some measures intended to form the basis of a new post-war structure of economic stability and social security. The sessional work divided itself into three parts; war legislation, post-war legislation and legislation of a normal character which had only incidental reference to the war.

Under the head of war legislation the important item was the War Appropriation Bill. It provided a total of $3,650,000,000 for the conduct of the war on land, sea and in the air and on the home front through production and other subsidies.

Added to this appropriation was a vote of $800,000,000 in another bill for mutual aid to other United Nations out of which will come Canada's contribution to the United Nations' Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Canadians Dominate Routes Leading From Falaise City

By ROBERT C. WILSON,
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN 1ST ARMY, August 15 —(AP) — First Canadian Army troops slugged forward today only 2½ miles from Falaise whose value to the Germans is all but lost through the Canadian domination from the high ground north of the city of the escape routes eastward to Lisieux and Paris.

Sweeping up at least 1,000 prisoners in an offensive launched at noon yesterday the Canadians drove far south of Epaney, where a battle now is being waged.

Lt.-Gen. Crerar is pressing home the attack on a narrow three-mile front and the Canucks have captured Sassy and Olendon villages, which puts them within observable artillery range of the Falaise-Lisieux road.

The troops now are hammering south toward Falaise in direction of Aubiny with thus far no signs the Germans have been able to gather for a counter-attack.

Poles Mop Up

To the west, Polish troops in a night of fighting which drew special praise from a senior Canadian officer mopped up the Pitigny area and mopping up is going on in the Quesney woods which were heavily bombed by R.A.F. Lancasters and Halifaxes yesterday.

This was one of the cores of German defence which stopped the Canadians last week and now is described as "no longer of operational concern to us."

The Canadians also are attacking in the vicinity of Ussy, while in an effort to widen their salient British troops are pushing east in the Vimont sector, southeast of Caen, and towards St. Pierre-Sur-Dives.

The German sector of resistance in the area between Clair Tizon and Fontaine le Pin is said to have been cleared up with both towns now in our hands.

R.A.F. fighter-bombers flew 248 sorties in direct support of the Canadian push, attacking concealed enemy positions.

The Germans sent over about 50 night bombers to attack bridges and communications in the Caen area, losing four Junkers 88s.

14,000 British Paratroopers Drop Behind Coast Defences

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Aug. 15 — (AP) — The army of France and a great force of British and American troops, struck Hitler on a fourth major front today, invading southern France and successfully completing all their landings along a broad section of Mediterranean beach around Toulon. A special communique a few hours after the blow was struck said beaches along a considerable length of the Riviera had been seized by mid-morning according to schedule with scarcely any ground opposition and no air opposition. One of the greatest airborne combat forces ever assembled paved the way for the assault and likewise carried out operations successfully far inland. Most of the airborne troops were believed to be British.

The record Allied airborne force which descended on Southern France early today consisted of more than 14,000 air combat men.

Record Number.

In no Allied operation before had so many men been dropped as this airborne force sent down behind the German coastal defences.

(A communique from Gen. Maitland Wilson Mediterranean commander, mentioned British troops as part of the invasion force while a naval communique mentioned only that French and American forces were being landed. It was presumed, therefore, that the British forces were part of the Airborne units.)

(A BBC broadcast said it was officially stated that French forces "predominated" in the Allied landings).

Striking after sunrise, seven waves of infantry splashed ashore in the first two hours and seized their initial objectives with great rapidity at many places along a 125-mile stretch of the Riviera between the great port of Marseille and Nice.

They encountered only the weakest opposition for enemy defences had been pulverized by five straight days of powerful air offensive.

Area Isolated.

An air force spokesman said the landing area had been virtually isolated by the destruction of every rail bridge in the Rhone valley from Valence to Marseille— a distance of 120 miles— while the Riviera rail line into Italy had been blocked for several days.

This afternoon American heavy bombers attacked five highway bridges crossing the Rhone between Valance and Avigon and the road leading from the beach to Frejus, near the mouth of the Argens river west of Cannes.

Enemy airfields in the Marseille area appeared to have been knocked out or abandoned.

The Germans apparently had pulled a large part of their effectives in southern France northward to meet the threat to Marshal Von Kluge's seventh army.

Met No Planes

Shortly before dawn a large airborne combat force descended into the rugged hills which rise from the coastline and went into a grapple with the German defenders for possession of key communication points and commanding vantage points.

CENTRE OF INVASION—French, British and American troops invaded France from the south along a 125-mile front with the port of Marseille (above) being one point in the attack. Early reports said enemy airfields in the Marseille area had been completely knocked out.

Nazis Mention 70-Mile Section

LONDON, Aug. 15 (CP)—A German communique said Allied troops had landed on a 70-mile section of the south French coast between Toulon and Cannes during early morning hours today and that "our coastal defence is engaged in a fight with the enemy landing troops."

The announcement followed a strange of several hours and tacitly admitted the invading British, American and French amphibious forces had obtained a footing.

Toulon is one of France's greatest naval bases where the French fleet was scuttled after Hitler grabbed "unoccupied France" in the first days of the Allied invasion of North Africa. Cannes is a famous French Riviera resort city.

The German communique noted that the Allies landed "after having intensified in the last few days air attacks on defence installations and communication lines in the Southern French coastal area." The official announcement said 30 Allied planes were downed in the opening hours.

Great Air Armadas Pound Europe Smashing Huns Defending France

LONDON, Aug. 15—(AP).—At least 2,000 British and American heavy bombers were hurled today against Germany, Holland and Belgium while other hundreds of planes from Italy and England laid explosive carpets on the Nazis in the paths of the invasions of Northern and Southern France.

At least 19 German air force bases and non-operational stations were deluged with about 8,000 tons of bombs. The widespread attacks were designed to knock out what is left of Hitler's air units before the enemy can marshal his remaining strength for all-out support of the desperate German ground forces.

More than 1,000 British Lancaster and Halifax heavy bombers attacked nine German fighter bases in Belgium and Holland, and caught 20 or 30 planes parked on each field.

American fighters flew side by side with R.A.F. Pursuit squadrons in escorting the bombers. Only two of the big craft were lost. It was the first time American planes have been disclosed as escorting R.A.F. bombers.

NEW YORK — (CP). — The Germans have announced that Allied parachute troops have been dropped in Marseille, the B.B.C. reported to-day in a broadcast recorded at the C.B.S. listening station here.

R.A.F. Bombs Hit Canadians

Vehicles Fired 4 Miles From Target

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 15 —(CP Cable)—A few of more than 700 British heavy bombers attacking enemy positions in the Falaise area yesterday dropped their bombs behind the Canadian lines killing and injuring some troops.

It was the second time in five days that Allied aircraft had caused damage and casualties behind their own lines. On Aug. 8 Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller of Kelowna, B.C., commander of the 3rd Canadian Division, was wounded by shrapnel when a formation of U.S. heavy bombers dropped a group of fragmentation bombs short into the Canadian area.

The bombs dropped Monday hit about four miles of their objective, some of them striking in fields and orchards where troops and vehicles were parked. Vehicles were set on fire.

The explosives fell as far back as Cintheaux and one result was the halting of some flights of bombers which were sent back with their loads undropped, but a senior Canadian officer said that 90 per cent of the bombs fell in the target area.

Draper Favors International Police Bureau

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15 — The setting up of an international police bureau in the postwar period as a means of combatting crime and subversive movements was urged here Monday by Chief Constable Brig.-Gen. D. C. Draper of Toronto.

Chief Draper, who was addressing the annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, proposed that the association, during its convention, appoint a committee to study the advisability of setting up an international police system and to draw up plans of operation and control.

He reminded the convention that the last war was followed by crime and unrest, adding that "the greatest task we have to face, both now and in the postwar era, is that of combatting those evil influences which inevitably arise from confusion and unrest which follow any prolonged period of widely waged war." This would mean "new and additional responsibilities" for the police.

Becaues of this he urged greater co-operation between the police of all countries, particularly of Canada and the United States. The criminal "is international in scope and operation," and faster means of travel between countries makes international police action imperative.

"Increased mechanization in the past has always meant the expansion of criminal operaions," said Chief Draper. "We all know, only too well, that the criminal is quick to make use of scientific invention in carrying out his lawless purposes. Let us remember that our scientists are promising an abundance of new inventions in many fields after the war, and the criminal class will not hesitate to make use of these new devices in his fight against society.

"In this connection, I suggest very strongly that the development of international radio contact should be given very serious study.

"The operations of the crook and the criminal are becoming more international than ever, and there is no reason to suppose that this condition will show an abatement in days to come. Rather, it is likely to increase.

"To cope successfully with crime in the potswar period, we need an international police system with power to detain wanted individuals in any country, pending extradition or other proceedings."

He looked for the time when an international police bureau would be established ot enable quick coordination of effort "in the eternal war against crime and subversion."

"The intervening years since the last war have witnessed international crime emanating from Germany and other countries, of a character and design intended to promote armed revolution and destroy democractic Government," he said. "Clever international criminal agents have been employed and given latitude, which should never have been permitted."

Chief Draper believed that the police, through their training, were the best qualified to understand this, and continued: "I make no apology, therefore, for suggesting that this association, at this convention, should appoint a representative committee to consider the feasibility of establishing an international police system, and to draw up a plan for operation and control."

demobilized was made in another bill.

The post-war legislation was directed towards three objectives, re-establishment of service personnel, maintenanee of a stable economy after war activities and expenditures taper off, and broadening Canada's structure of social security.

For veterans the major measure was the War Services Gratuities Act, which provides for grants on discharge based on length of service for all volunteer members of the forces and for drafted soldiers who serve ouside the western hemisphere. In addition to the cash there is provision for rehabilitation credits. It is hoped to bring this into effect before Jan. 1, 1945.

Total cost of the scheme is estimated at $750,000,000.

A veterans' insurance scheme is provided in another act which will enable veterans to take out life insurance without medical examination up to a maximum of $10,000.

Helped Veterans

Parliament also moved to consolidate and reorganize all services relating to veterans by the creation of a veterans' affairs department.

With a view to general economic conditions after the war the enactment of a new and broadened national housing act was the most important step. The measure is designed to bring about house construction and improvements to a maximum of about $760,000,000.

Two bills designed to make additional credit facilities available to farmers, fishermen and small industrial concerns were passed.

The industrial development bank was set up as a government-owned institution with an initial capital of $25,000,000 to be subscribed by the government and power to raise $75,000,000 more by borrowing for lending to small industry.

Under the farm mprovement loans act chartered banks are empowered to make loans to farmers and fishermen for improving their equipment and properties to an aggregate of $250,000,000.

Stabilize Prices

Measures designed to provide stable prices to farmers and fishermen authorize the government to spend $200,000,000 in purchasing farm products and $25,000,000 in purchasing fish products should prices fall below levels considered reasonable.

The removal of the customs duties and war exchange conservation tax from all imports for farm implements, one of the major provisions in the budget, was put forward by Finance Minister Ilsley as a means of assuring farmers the minimum cost of implements of production after the war.

With a view to encouraging and assisting export trade in a period of probable uncertainty in world economic conditions the export credits insurance bill was passed.

It sets up a corporation to insure exporters against loss through failure of foreign buyers to pay for their purchase of goods in Canada to the Government to guarantee securities of other Governments issued for the purchasee of goods in Canada to the extent of $200,000,0000 and make loans to other Governments to enable them to purchase in Canada to the extent of $100,000,000.

Another measure established the War Assets Corporation, a Crown Company charged with the job of disposing of all surplus war materials and properties.

To co-ordinate all post-war adjustment measures on the economic front the new department of Reconstruction will carry out reconstruction projects itself or through the agency of other departments.

Social Legislation.

The Family Allowances Act was the one important Social Security Measure of the session. Under it cash allowances will be paid in respect of all children in Canada. Subject to the reservation they will not improve the position of any parents who now receive exemption from income tax payments on account of their children.

The total net cost of the Allowances is estimated at $200,000,000 a year or $1,000,000,000 for the first five years. The allowances are due to start July 1, 1945.

Further study was made on a Natioanl Health Insurance plan by the House Social Security Committee, but it and other Social Security measures contemplated, await the result of discussions at a Dominion-Provincial conference.

For the purpose of administering Family Allowances and other projected Social Security Measures as well as the present Federal National Health and Welfare.

The budget, falling into the category of normal legislation, brought no important change in the wartime tax structure but a measure of relief to some tax-payers through the abolition of Compulsory Savings or the refundable portion of Income Tax.

The Bank Act and the Quebec Savings Bank Act under which all banks operate went through their annual 10-year revision.

Major changes in the banking laws were those designed to make credit facilities available to farmers, to reduce the maximum interest rate chargeable on bank loans from seven to six per cent.

A new arrangement for the control of aviation was provided in amendments to the Aeronautics Act. They set up an Air Transport Board to take over regulatory functions. Formerly discharged by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Following a recommendation from the Radio special committee the House passed a bill to provide for a full-time paid chairman of the Board of Governors of the CBC.

Other normal pieces of legislation which went through were provision for an extra judge on the Exchequer Court of Canada; Provision for Pensions for Widows of Judges, an act to bring a large number of employees hitherto not covered under the Civil Service Superannuation Act and a revision and consolidation of law relating to the navy in a new Naval Service Act.

The invasion was accompanied by the signal from the French National Committee and Allied commanders to all Frenchmen to rise up against their German oppressors and indications were that the well organized underground army of Southern France had responded.

Scarcely a shot was fired at the big transport planes and gliders which put the air-borne troops down, and the first returning pilots of the massive fighter plane screen which covered the invasion said not a single enemy plane opposed the early operations.

Later, when fighters encountered the first German planes to be seen, three Messerschmitts were shot down without loss.

An Allied spotter plane flew 60 miles inland without sighting a single enemy troop concentration.

800 Battleships.

While Allied bombers struck incessantly at objectives inland, the huge invasion fleet of more than 800 battleships and other warships, hurled tons of steel into German coastal defences.

British, American, French, Canadian, Netherlands, Polish Greek and Belgian warships covered the swarms of landing craft carrying American veterans of Italy and French forces which had fought in Italy and North Africa.

Experiences gained in the Sicilian, Salerno, Anzio and Normandy landings and weeks of special amphibious exercise were employed as the Allies struck along the great military avenues leading northward across France.

The prodigious invasion effort, involving hundreds of thousands of men and mountains of supplies and equipment, was not far from the mouth of the Rhone river leading northward across France.

Marseille, a city of more than 800,000 population, is 25 miles east of the Rhone mouth and at the edge of a large triangular coastal plain where many important air bases are located.

Nice is less than 20 miles from the Italian frontier. Coming down almost to the coast along this stretch are the mountains and hills of Provence, and between these two points are the great naval base of Toulon, burial ground of most of the French fleet; the resort of Cannes, and many other famous resorts.

Near Toulon

(German broadcasts were more specific on what they said was the invasion sector than were Allied announcements. The Germans narrowed the landing area to a 70-mile stretch between Toulon, 30 miles east of Marseille, and Cannts.

(Focal point of the strike, the Germans added, was the 16-mile stretch between St. Raphael and Cap Camarat, about midway between Toulon and Cannes.)

The path for the striking force was prepared by thousands of planes which had pinpointed guns, coastal defences, bridges and roads since Friday.

These attacks already had sealed off the Germans in the area under attck from speedy help either from Italy or Northern France.

Bombers today alone flew more than 1,000 sorties over the beachheads without opposition.

Drop Leaflets

The air forces also dropped several million leaflets today, some inviting German troops to surrender, others instructing French civilians to keep off the roads and away from military objectives and yet others advising the underground what to do.

The coast line from Marseille to Nice had bristled with big guns installed by the Germans to beat off just such an attack as came this morning, but these had been terrifically attacked by Allied air forces in an intensive four-day offensive in which thousands of tons of bombs were dropped.

An hour before the first troops were landed the beaches were left a spectacle of devastation by a final load of air bombs.

This new invasion of Europe opened up the fourth major front against Hitler, one that may well prove the death blow to the Germans.

The swarms of landing craft did not begin disgorging their fighters and armor until after daylight, but parachute glider-borne troops were streaming into southern France before dawn.

The parachutists descended on several German strong points inland.

"The assault, which was in strong force, was led by specially trained Allied troops, many of them veterans of previous invasions and campaigns in the Mediterranean theatre," Allied headquarters announced.

A brief special communique announcing the invasion did not locate the landings, but returning correspondents said the Allied troops struck at many points over a broad stretch of the Mediterranean coast.

Announcement of the invasion was accompanied by an appeal from Gen. Sir. Henry Maitland Wilson Allied Mediterranean commander, to the French people to "play their part" in the new battle of France.

Appeal to French

Gen. Wilson said the objective of the troops now ashore in the south was "to drive out the Germans and

A broadcast by the Nazi-controlledVichy radio yesterday said the German army commander at Marseille, France's second largest city had ordered evacuation from that seaport of all persons whose presence "is not of direct or indirect interest" to the German Army.

The landing operations in southern France opened up the fourth major front against Hitler even as British, American, Canadian and other Allied troops in Normandy-Brittany were closing in on between 100,000 and 200,000 Germans or what Gen. Eisenhower said promised to be a major victory for Allied arms.

The Allies drove into the area that Prime Minister Churchill once called "the soft underbelly" of Europe just 69 days after Gen. Eisenhower's forces invaded western Europe.

Mr. Churchill himself was close at hand as this new blow was landed upon the enemy. He arrived in Italy last Friday. An official announcement yesterday said he was conferring with Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav partisans.

Experts Draft Army Plan To Keep Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 —(AP) —Creation of special new military units which would operate beyond the traditional limits of international law has been suggested in official quarters here as possibly the most effective way of organizing post-war forces to maintain peace.

The proposal, it was learned today, was developed by military and naval authorities and is steadily growing in importance as American plans for the Four-Power Peace Organization talks here take final shape. It is expected to be put forward during the talks, although it is not necessarily considered a part of the formal American plan.

Should the proposal not be favorably considered for general adoption by the other conferees—Russia, Britain and, later on, China—authorities predict it may still supply the answer to the question of how the United States can help preserve world peace by force without basically altering the division of foreign policy and military powers between the President and Congress.

Earmark Portion of Forces

Essentially the proposal is that each country should earmark a part of its land, sea and airpower as its own peace police organization. Each organization would retain its separate national identity. An important part of such a United States organization might be the world-roving 20th Air Force of superbombers.

In event of a threat to peace which the world organization could not stop by political and economic measures, units of the various peace police organizations could be ordered into joint action by their respective Governments in much the same way that many different Allied divisions today fight together under a single commander.

Such a use of military forces would not be considered an act of war since it could be taken only by the peace-preserving countries after common agreement and in accordance with their declarations for maintaining peace.

Status Like Marines

The peace police might be said to have the same sort of special legal status that United States Marines occasionally have invoked in their peacetime operations.

Behind the peace police would be the rest of the armies, navies and air forces of each country—available for action if necessary, but presumably subject to the usual controls of international law.

The proposal is regarded by its backers as about midway between the world police-force idea and the idea that, while force should be available if necessary to supress aggression, it need not be organized to that end beforehand.

communications centre, but the Biebrza was the last major natural obstacle.

The crossing of the Biebrza came while Moscow's victory guns were marking the fall of the fortress city of Osowiec near the stream in northern Poland.

(A Reuters news agency dispatch from Moscow said the Russians stormed across the Biebrza last night in the area of Goniadz, about fve miles from Osowiec. A German broadcast said the Red Army had "tried to approach the German frontier from the southeast through the Bobr swamps.")

This new menace to the Nazi province appeared likely to ease the pressure of Gen. Ivan Cherniakovsky's 3rd White Russian Army, which has been stalled a fortnight by desperate resistance near the East Prussia-Lithuania border farther north.

Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's 3rd Baltic Army, smashing through southern Estonia, captured Antsla and 100 other communities, further shattering lines of two German armies cut off from their homeland by the Red Army corridor that was driven to the Baltic Sea west of Riga.

Gen. Maselennikov's thrust carried to wtihin 16 miles of Valga, key junction on the Pskov-Riga and Tallinn-Riga railways.

Gen. Zakharov's offensive from the southeast was astride one of the few highways suitable for extensive military operations that run through the historic swamp-marsh area of the Masurian Lakes where 30 years ago the great battle of Tannenberg was fought.

ated hypocrisy. He has known that since December, 1942. If that was to be his excuse he could have given that reason when we first proposed a conference nearly a year ago.

"It would be really touching if one could believe that Mr. King is so affected by the sudden discovery that I will not be supporting him in the next Dominion election. Does he think Mr. Duplessis will? Is he under the slightest illusion that he will get the support of Mr. Douglas or Mr. Manning? For that matter can he have any hope that either Mr. Garson or Mr. Hart will be supporting him? Mr. King should have found some better excuse for his refusal."

Parliament Winds Up At Midnight

By JACK WILLIAMS,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, August 15 — (CP) — Parliament to-day stood adjourned until January 31.

The adjournment came after an arduous day's work climaxed in the early hours of this morning with the announcement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that plans for holding a Dominion-Provincial Conference had been postponed until after the next Federal General Election.

Through one of the hottest days in Ottawa's weather records members had toiled through departmental estimates. They finished that task shortly after midnight.

From the Commons chamber the members went down the corridor to the Senate Chamber where Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, acting as Deputy to the Governor General, gave Royal Assent to 25 Government Bills and a number of private measures.

Members of the Senate had assembled first at three o'clock in the afternoon. They adjourned until 9 p.m. and from that time on had waited about the building for the Commons to complete its business, which came at 12:33 a.m. e.d.t.

The Commons sat 123 days, compared to 119 in the session of 1943 and piled up an imposing set of new legislation, most of it designed to smooth Canada's passage into and through the post-war period.

The bills to which Royal Assent was given included such measures as Family Allowances, War Services Gratuities, Veterans' Insurance, Floors for Farm and Fishery Products, establishment of Export Credit Insurance and of an Industrial Development Bank, Provision for Intermediate and Long Term Farm Credit, Housing Legislation and amendments to a number of acts, including the Bank Act and acts affected by provisions of the budget.

Many Subjects.

Discussion in the Commons during the day covered a wide range of subjects. Prime Minister Mackenzie King with his External Affairs Department estimates up for approval, said both that department and the Trade Department were planning to have increased personnel recruited and trained to strengthen Canada's relationships with other countries.

Some time was spent on Indian Affairs and Resources, Minister Crerar said his department had already undertaken a detailed study of the Indian Act with a view to have it entirely rewritten after the war. It also was proposed to extend the medical service to Indians which now was reduced because of the difficulty in obtaining doctors and nurses.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie told the Commons plans had been prepared for Occupational Training Centres in every Province to assist returned men in preparing themselves to take civilian employment.

The Government's proposal to establish a Royal Commission to investigate the Canadian Coal Industry also came in for some attention with Clarence Gillis (CCF--Cape Breton) and Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) asking that the commission be given broad powers in its inquiry.

Allies Slash

West of Falaise, the roof of his corridor "appeared to be collapsing to-day" under a British avalanche of tanks and men, a front report declared.

On all sides the Allies pressed in. Hundreds of captives were taken by Americans closing from the wets. The pocket was slimmed to half its size. Thousands of Germans were still believed caught. A British staff officer said Von Kluge was throwing in reinforcements, but they were apparently 80 per cent "slave troops," tossed in as sacrifice rear-guards while Von Kluge sought to save his armor and his best men.

A half-dozen more towns fell as the downstring tightened all around the Normandy pocket The Americans invested Ger, eight miles east of Mortain, and Domfront, 15 miles southeast. Mortain formerly was the western tip of the German salient.

Gen. Patton Again

It was announced that Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley is Commander of the U.S. 12th Army group, the largest American force ever massed in battle. It includes the 3rd Army commanded by Lt.-Gen. George S Patton, who is hitting the comeback trail after the soldier-slapping incident in the Sicily campaign, and the 1st Army, Gen. Bradley's old command now headed by Lt.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges.

A French Division of armor under Brig.-Gen. Jacques Leler C, who joined the Allies from Lake Chad in Africa, is fighting with Gen. Patton's forces.

Formations of the 1st Canadian Army, topping their 6,000-yard assault yesterday north of Falaise, in a new surge on a two-mile front captured Epaney and Hill 184, a scant four miles north of Falaise and surged on to within 2½ miles of the town. Epaney is barely a mile from the Falaire Lisieux Highway, the main German escape route from the Allied trap. The Canadians swept up at least 1,000 prisoners.

A front dispatch said the value of Falaise was all but lost to the Germans since the Canadians from positions on high ground north of the city dominated escape routes eastward to Lisieux and Paris.

Gen. Pattons's American 3rd Army on the southern side of the trap now is only a little more than eight miles from Falaise. Units of this army were fighting in the by-passed town of Argentan, 13 miles south of Falaise.

WANTED JOB?

A full grown pig caused considerable excitement at Genelco this morning when it endeavored to get into the plant as the workers poured through the gates before the deadline. Two employees, Mrs. Annie Clegg and Mrs. Helen Heuback, were making for the Genelco Albert street gate when they spotted the animal standing near the fence watching them. They changed their course and in a few minutes discovered that the porker was close on their heels. The harder they tried to lose their unwelcome companion, the more eagerly he stuck with them, and it was only after considerable effort that one of the guards "persuaded" him to leave. Fellow-workers are suggesting it might have been the attractive shade of red that one of the girls was wearing which had such a "come-hither" effect.

Invaders Meet No Resistance

By KENNETH DIXON
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON A MEDIUM BOMBER OVER SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 15. — (AP).—So far as I could see from a height of 1,000 feet above the beaches where the Allies smashed ashore less than hour ago no major fighting had yet developed.

As far as 20 miles inland a complete lack of any sign of struggle marked the rugged landscape.

From this vantage point 1,000 feet up the new Allied blows at southern France this morning seemed to be meeting almost no resistance in the preliminary stages

There was plenty of visual evidence, however, that the preliminary stages of the Allied operation —parachute and glider landings — were carried out successfully.

We came in with the first wave of glider troops to strike southern France. Some miles inland they cut loose from tow planes and glided down into little meadows between rugged crags just outside the coastline.

With the exception of a few which crashed into ditches and fences or turned over on their backs the gliders seemed to make it safely.

Nowhere was there any sign of resistance to them. We sometimes got as low as 200 feet over the treetops and not a shot was fired at us.

Walks To Be Started At Plastics Building

Laying of sidewalks on Stewart and Wolfe streets, alongside and in front of the new plastic building of the Canadian General Electric Company will begin next Monday, Alderman Dutton definitely promised as chairman of the Board of Works Monday night. A letter from W. E. English on behalf of the company reminded the council of a promise earlier in the year. Completion of grading and draining is waiting on the sidewalk job.

"I promised it," Mayor Hamilton said. "I guess I stuck my neck out again, as Alderman Sands says."

City Engineer Parsons said that only two other short stretches of sidewalk have been approved by the Municipal Board, and they will be laid after the plastics plant walks are finished.

ed guardedly optimistic over the trend of the fighting and again cited the co-ordination of the Army, Navy and Air Forces and their supply services.

Paying particular tribute to the R.A.F. and the U.S.A.A.F., Gen. Eisenhower said the Allies now were realizing opportunities that they had expected to have all through the campaign, because they had expected good weather.

Gen. Eisenhower said, however, that a man who attempts to measure the length of war remaining in terms of weeks is not attempting to use any logic, but merely hunches and wishful thinking.

Hitler has nothing to lose by fighting to the last man, he continued, and with the people fighting under the heel of a despot, there is no reason to expect them to quit until the bitter end.

Blood Testing Program Recommended

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 (CP)—Encouragement of blood testing as a protective measure against syphillis was recommended by delegates attending a national conference last week of venereal disease control officials of the Dominion, Provnces and armed forces.

"The protection of the family group—wife, children and bread-winner—must be our constant aim," said Major J. A. Leroux, Ontario director of venereal disease control. "Premarital, prenatal and pre-employment blood testing can assist greatly in achieving this goal."

Rehabilitation as well as treatment of the "borderline" girl was advocated by Dr. Dorothy Saxton, Vancouver. She urged establishment of rapid-treatment centres along lines found effective in the United States. In one centre which she had visited, Dr. Saxton said, she found a program of special training being given to girls while under treatment.

The public would support realistic action in cleaning up unsavory community conditions, said Lt.-Col. D. H. Williams, chief of the venereal disease control division, Department of Pensions and National Health, in urging health departments to continue energetic measures.

Certain cities, notably Quebec, Halifax and Prince Rupert, B.C., had reduced venereal disease rates "very considerably" when strong community action was taken.

Dr. P. S. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Health for Nova Scotia, said that specially trained personnel were essential to success in all phases of venereal disease control.

Plans were laid for co-operative studies, one of which would be an attempt to determine primary socio-economic factors leading to promiscuity and venereal disease.

Discuss New Methods Of Snow Removal

The council spent two hours and a half in the heat Monday night chiefly discussing affairs of tomorrow and the long view, rather than of immediate concern.

One of the subjects posed a question of snow removal from the streets and sidewalks by motorized equipment, the only cool note of the evening. It may be reviewed in this general form: "Do the ratepayers wish the council to abandon the contract system of cleaning off the sidewalks during the winter, assume the work by a city staff as in the collection of garbage, and invest in motor-driven plows?"

That was the sidewalk phase of the discussion. It includes the improvement in control and community service to the extent that plows would start out soon after snow begins falling, day or night. Assuming that the public wishes that change the council authorized Alderman Dutton and City Engineer Parsons to obtain information as to whether motorized plows are available, and their costs, with similar information regarding a snow blower for snow removal from the traffic strips of the streets.

Alderman Sullivan said that both these types of equipment had proved their worth in some cities he had visited.

Court Dismisses Charge Against Meat Salesman

COBOURG, August 15—(ENS).—Jointly charged with stealing a purse containing $1,150 from Mrs Adelaide Skinner at Cobourg on July 27, Harold White of Toronto and Isabelle Smith of Guelph appeared in Police Court on Monday. White, who is a soldier, was represented by W. Gordon, military counsel, and along with the woman pleaded not guilty. Had he pleaded guilty the Crown was prepared to go ahead, but the not guilty plea necessitated a week's adjournment after which a further adjournment will likely be asked in order that the Crown can bring up witnesses from Montreal, where the pair were arrested last month. White is 26 years of age, and the young woman is 17.

Evans Jones of Hilton and Dean Summerville of Brighton appeared in Police Court on Monday on a charge of theft of a car from C B. Graham of Trenton on August 5 in Murray Township, and also were charged with assaulting Isaac Cook, Trenton taxi driver No plea or election was taken and they were remanded in custody for one week. It is alleged that the pair hired a taxi in Trenton and near Stockdale slugged the driver, tossed him out on the road, and sped off. They were arrested in a doctor's office at Hastings after their car had gone into the ditch, and they went to the doctor for treatment.

Chicken Underweight.

Gidean Demers of Cobourg was found not guilty of obtaining $2.00 by false pretences, said false pretences being that a chicken weighing four pounds 14 ounces was sold at the market for five pounds 12 ounces. Ray Maher of Niagara Falls testified that on August 15 he bought a chicken from Demers at the market, and paid him $2.00—the chicken being marked as weighing 5¾ pounds. As he made the purchase for his father, W. J. Maher, local butcher, who wanted it for a customer, took it to the shop where it was weighed and found to be only four pounds 14 ounces in weight. Chief Carey happened to be going by the store and he was called in while it was being weighed.

In reply to a question from A. R. Willmott, defence counsel, the witness said that he had merely made the purchase for his father, and that he didn't go back to see Demers.

Chief W. J. Carey was called to Maher's store and said that he saw the chicken weighed at four pounds 14 ounces. He took it to another shop where it weighed four pounds 14 ounces. The charge was then laid.

"I laid a charge some time ago in another short weight case and I did the same here. It is not for me but the court to decide what should be done in such cases."

"Should not his scale have been tested before the charge was laid?" asked Mr. Willmott. Chief Carey replied that it was the courts place to decide.

Scales Inaccurate.

Demers said that the scales, which were produced in court, had been bought in Cobourg from a lady who assured him that they were correct. Later he found that they would balance only at two pounds and his weighing from then on took that discrepancy into consideration. He declared emphatically that he had no idea that he had weighed the chicken wrong which Mr. Maher bought and not knowing who the chicken was for he later had sold W. J. Maher some chickens which were left on his hands at the market.

"All they had to do was come to me and let me know that the weight was wrong and I could have corrected it in two minutes without them laying charges of cattle thieving, cattle rustling, and what not against me. I lost a day already on this case when I was ready last week, one of their witnesses was out of town, and I had to come back to-day," stated Demers.

Mr. Demers related further that he had weighed 2 chickens on the town scales at the market which totalled 10¼ pounds and then weighed them on a butcher's scales and they weighed 11¼ pounds. He sold the same pair of chickens later to W. J. Maher where they weighed 11¼ pounds.

Dismissing the charge the magistrate said that there was no evidence of intent to defraud and that the Chief was in his rights to lay the charge as it was a matter for the court to decide as to the intent. He advised Mr. Demers to check up on his scales and suggested that other butchers on the market see if their scales were right.

Driver Fined $5

COBOURG, August 15—(ENS)—Emmet Butler of Port Hope was found guilty of careless driving and fined $5 and costs in police court, Monday. He pleaded guilty to not having a driver's license and was fined $10 and costs. His car was involved in an accident on August 30 with one driven by Lance Sherwin of Port Hope, near the Dye Works. The cars were slightly damaged.

Convoys Steam Past Gibraltar

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(CP).—The German radio, asserting that large Allied convoys were streaming through the Strait of Gibraltar into the Mediterranean, speculated last night that landings in the south of Europe were imminent.

There was no Allied confirmation of such reports. For three consecutive days, however, strong forces of American heavy bombers from Italy have pounded military installations in Southern France.

The Germans spoke of possible landings in Southern France, on the islands of Greece and of new incursions in Italy above the Gothic line, which Allied land forces now are approaching.

The appearance of Prime Minister Churchill in Italy clearly created anxiety in Berlin.

WA Hears Story Of War Parcels

ROSENEATH, Aug. 15 (ENS)—A special feature of the August meeting of Centenary United Church W. A. was an address by A. King, a visitor in the commmunity.

Mr. King is a member of the Windsor Branch Prisoners of War Parcels. A list of the contents of these parcels, the details concerning the packing, the shipment, their arrival at prison camps, and their distribution, was an interesting story as told by Mr. King who had talked with repatriated prisoners and learned first hand how valuable these parcels are in preventing malnutrition and helping also to keeping up morale.

It was disclosed the members had made ten pairs of pyjamas and fifty "Personal Belongings" bags, since the July meeting for the Alnwick Red Cross Branch.

It was decided on motion to donate $5 to the parsonage fund. Making plans and appointing committees to arrange for the afternoon tea to be held on Tuesday afternoon, September 5 in the church, when Mrs. R. C. White will be guest speaker, absorbed the remainder of the business period.

Canada Needs Trained Men

OTTAWA, August 15 — (CP). — Anticipating a need for a large number of highly trained men to represent Canada abroad in both diplomatic and commercial capacities the Departments of Trade and Comemrce and External Affairs "are working together in recruiting personnel from the armed forces," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday in the Commons.

This is taking place under plans prepared by a joint committee of the two departments with a view to co-ordinating the work of the diplomatic service abroad with that of the Trade Commissioner Service in the Trade and Commerce Department. It had been decided the two services could not be merged, but they should be co-ordinated.

"There are many young Canadians in the Navy, the Army or Air Force who by education, experience and ability are well suited for the work of these two departments," said Mr. King.

"Some of them will be immediately available upon discharge and others will require additional education under the arrangements for rehabilitation and re-education established by the Department of Pensions and National Health..."

Development of a consular service and its relationship to the commercial service would have to be worked out carefuly in the next few years, Mr. King said.

Christ Church Honors Late Dr. Archer

CAMPBELLFORD, August 15 — (ENS) — At Christ Church, Campbellford, a memorial service was held Sunday afternoon for the late Dr. Archer, medical missionary of the Church of England in India, who was brutally shot while sleeping on the verandah of his home.

Speaking from the text Acts 11.22, "He was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith and much people were added unto the Lord," the rector, Rev. W. J. Lennox, quoted from letters received from those who were closey associated with Dr. Archer and his work. Canon Dixon, Professor Taylor of Wycliffe College; The Secretary of Missions; and the members of his staff in Bengal, The Editor of C. C. and others and in conclusion said.

"The whole Christian Church and Christ Church in particular mourns the passing of this brave warrior for Christ who for so many years has so faihtfully represented this congregation on the mission field. Campbellford to-day honors one of her sons who has earned the highest honor the King of Kings could betow—Well done thou good and faithful servant.

"We extend our sincere sympathy to those who mourn the loss of such a brother who I feel would not bear a grudge against his assassin. His passing leaves a blank in the Mission Field which must be filled. Who will dedicate himself or herself to India? The Mission Field needs teachers, doctors, nurses and pastors. His passing challenges us all, What will people say about us when we pass on? If Dr. Archer were here, I feel that he would point us to his Lord and Master and invite you to accept him as your Savior and Lord. I ask you to do so now."

Among those who attended the service were: Mrs. Higginson, Miss Marion Higginson, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Gordon, Miss Barbara Gordon, Dr. and Mrs. G. A. MacGowan and John McGowan, Mr. and Mrs. Urquahart and Ronald of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Touchburn of Lakefield.

New Brunswick To Vote On August 28

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Aug. 15 (CP).—The New Brunswick election campaign entered the home stretch Monday when 137 candidates were nominated officially in the 17 constituencies. The election is to be August 28.

The Liberal and Progressive Conservative Parties had candidates for each of the 48 seats at stake in the 17 ridings. The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, making its first bid for power in the Province placed 41 candidates in the field and assured three-cornered contests in every constituency but Northumberland county, where Liberals and Progressive Conservatives will wage a straight fight.

Only two C.C.F. candidates will run in the four-seat riding of Gloucester and only three in Charlotte, which also has four seats.

Premier J. B. McNair, leading the Liberal Government's appeal for re-election, is a candidate in York. The Progressive Conservative Leader, Hugh Mackay, is running in Kings, and the C.C.F. Leader, J. A. Mugridge, is among 12 candidates in Saint John City.

The number of candidates is unusually high for New Brunswick. Previous contests generally have been a two-party affair, with a few independents.

Nomination day proceedings were quiet, without any last-minute withdrawal of candidates or appearance of new ones. In some constituencies, the old practice of debate by opposing candidates was dispensed with to avoid interference with agricultural and other activities and to conserve gasoline.

Furniture Wrecked In Summer Cottage

COBOURG, August 15—(ENS)—Vandals played havoc with the interior furnture furnishings of Charles Clegg's summer home on Black Island off Gore's Landing, it was discovered by Tom Wallace, caretaker, during the week-end. Entering through a door in the cellar the marauders smashed over a dozen windows, smashed china and crockery into bits, threw household articles about and destroyed a large library of phonograph records. Using a crowbar they forced open a steel strong box and strewed its contents of silverware all over the verandah. Hardly a thing in the house was left untouched. Apparently nothing was taken, the vandals contenting themselves with destroying almost everything breakable in the place. Mr. Clegg, who is a street bus-line executive of Dayton, Ohio, has not been a regular visitor at the place for two years. At one time, about forty years ago, Hobart Bosworth, Hollywood character actor, owned the summer home.

No Guest Speaker

CAMPBELLFORD, August 15 — (ENS) — There was no guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon on Monday. Guests were Rotarian F. Corbus, Hudson, Ohio, and Abram Rappaport, Toronto. A letter was received from the Kinsmen's Club thanking the Rotarians for the use of booths and equipment. Congratulations were extended to Rotarian Mort Sayers on the arrival of a son, and the good wishes were extended to Mr. R. J. Locke who is convalescing in Belleville Hopsital. Rotarian Ralph Locke outlined briefly his visit to the Toronto Club where Rotarian Dick Wells, president of Rotary International addressed that club.

The Old, Old Story

Parliament finished its business last night. The Commons sat morning, noon and night in hopes that the members might get away before Saturday. And legislation which involves millions of dollars worth of expenditure of the country's money—which means our money, the money which we must pay before the end of the month—has been rushed through in a hurry, without adequate debate.

If this were something which had suddenly happened this year it would cause the strongest protest all over the country; but it has been growing worse, year after year, for several years, and now it has become a recognized abuse of our particular democratic parliamentary system.

When Parliament meets after the New Year it has a remarkably leisurely character. It is cold in Ottawa, and the Commons is snug and the seats fairly comfortable. The debates drone on and on; small interchanges pass hours of time; the debate on the Throne Speech gives every eager M.P. a chance to spread the treasures of his mind before his colleagues; trifles are swollen into matters of importance. But when the hot weather comes, and Ottawa becomes one of the hottest cities in Canada, the anxiety of the parliamentarians to get away is like that of children who anticipate a holiday from school. And undoubtedly the business of the country suffers. The Senate, in particular, is suddenly flooded with legislation which it cannot possibly examine with care in the time available.

The cure for this condition is obvious; our Parliament could adopt the system of limited debates which has been in use for some time at Westminster. For some reason which we do not understand, but which we suspect has its roots in mere foolish hatred of change, it has not done so. And so we see our legislators squandering our money like drunken sailors, so that they may catch a train on Tuesday. No wonder the Nazis thought that our democracy was half-baked. In many respects it is.

A Home For The Premier

Recently wide publicity was given to the fact that Laurier House, where Mr. Mackenzie King lives, is his own property, and not that of the Liberal Party, as many people had supposed. It is by no means unlikely, however, that Mr. King may leave it to his Party when he dies, for its associations with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and himself give it special interest, and it is an excellent official residence for a party leader. The Conservative Party has no official residence for its leader, either. Earnscliffe, the home of Sir John A. Macdonald, is now the home of the British High Commissioner, and Conservative Premiers since his time have lived in a variety of houses, and often in hotels. The suggestion has been made that the country should acquire a suitable home for the Prime Minister, whoever he may be, to correspond to No. 10 Downing Street in London, or less directly with the White House in Washington.

The suggestion has much to recommend it. Politicians are not usually wealthy men, and the purchase and upkeep of a fine home becomes more and more difficult in our overtaxed country. But we do not think that many people will deny that the Prime Minister should have a fine home, adequately furnished and staffed, in which he can live and entertain in a manner fitting the dignity of his position. The position of Premier carries the heaviest responsibilities; we think that it ought to carry a high degree of comfort, dignity and privilege, as well. The principle of democracy does not demand that the Premier, if he happens to be a poor man, should live in a mean house in a terrace, where the smell of yesterday's cabbage haunts the 'front parlour' in which he receives the envoys of foreign countries, and where great deliberations are disturbed by the noise of the butcher's boy throwing the meat in the front door.

The spirit of our age, and of our country, is somewhat neglectful of the pageantry which has always been associated with successful governmental systems. Russia, the youngest of the great states, has learned in her brief life that a certain amount of spectacle is a necessity, and we know that Premier Stalin lives in a great style. It would be a good thing for Canada if her Prime Minister had a fine official home, not palatial or ostentatious, for that is not in the character either of the country or the office, but luxurious, handsomely appointed, comfortable and, in the course of time, of historic interest.

Winnipeg Shows Foresight

The Winnipeg Free Press reports that in a recent council meeting in that city Alderman Brotman proposed and carried a motion "that the Playhouse be withdrawn from the list of city properties for sale, and be reserved and used as a municipal project". Thus Winnipeg becomes the only city in Canada to possess a municipal theatre. It will be used for travelling theatrical entertainments, local theatricals and concerts. Winnipeg has an active artistic life ,and will be able to make good use of a theatre.

The example is one which might be followed in other Canadian cities. Municipal playhouses are common enough in Europe, and they have done great work in educating public taste and fostering national culture in the Scandinavian countries. A few municipal playhouses in Canada could very readily lead to a revival of the touring theatre in this country—that institution which brought the liveliness, the literature and the intellectual stimulus of the outside world to so many Canadian cities from the 70's until after the first Great War.

Perhaps the time has come for Canada to take steps to develop a national theatre of her own. South Africa is doing so, and it has been a great success. Marda Vanne, a South African who was for many years a star in London, and Gwen ffrangcon-Davies, another West End star, have organized and headed a company which has toured the Union since 1940, and South Africa has now made up its mind that it will never be without a theatre again. Canada, which used to show the most generous hospitality to the best British and American theatrical companies, might do well to see what she can develop within her own borders.

Stalin Reassures The Pope

A report comes from a neutral country that when the Russo-Polish talks were concluded, Premier Stalin made a suggestion to the Vatican that Russia and the Vatican might take counsel together about the Polish settlement. Obviously Stalin wants to reassure the Catholic Church, which has long dreaded a spread of Communism in Europe. Stalin has declared that "Russia not only does not seek anywhere to change the existing social order by force, but would even oppose it". This should quiet the fears of the Church, and open the way for friendly co-operation.

It also makes things much easier for Russia. Poland is a strongly Catholic country. Indeed, the centuries of enmity between Poland and Russia sprang in part from the quarrels of the Catholic and the Orthodox churches. At present Poland is in turmoil, and there is little to guarantee that its leaders today will be its leaders six months from now. Whatever arrangements Russia makes with Poland rest upon this unsure foundation. But one thing in Poland is fixed and firm, and that is the Catholicism of the Poles. If Russia comes to an agreement on the Polish question with the Church, Russia may depend upon the assistance of the Church in making the agreement stick.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Don't let the summer weather fool you. Birds, an ornithologist tells us, are already growing their winter feathers.

We read that no more tires will be released to civilians this year. These are the times that try men's soles.

A New York man has addressed his tax payment to the Collector of Eternal Revenue. Like all the best jokes, this stems from a bitter truth.

It is said that another 3,000 civil servants will be needed to take care of the baby bonus. Sometimes we wonder whether the Canadian Dream is not a Dominion in which everybody is on the government payroll, and where there are so many clubs that everybody can be a vice-president.

The Record Elsewhere

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA: Family allowances have been either considered or adopted in many countries and a considerable body of opinion and experience exists.

The opponents of the policy in Canada point to the fact that allowances were adopted in France, Belgium, Italy, Germany and other continental European countries and associate the policy with fascism and general degeneracy. This, however, does not follow. Allowances have been in force in Australia and New Zealand for many years. They have recently been adopted in the Irish Free State and have been recommended both by the Beveridge Commission and by a Royal Commission in South Africa.

Undoubtedly, one of the chief arguments in every case for the allowances is that in this way undue and uneconomic increases in wages and prices can be avoided. An equally potent argument—as yet unsubstantiated by experience—is that they will increase the birth rate.

The record in Australia is interesting on the first point. An Australian Royal Commission, appointed after the First Great War, decided that the basic wage needed to meet actual cost of living for a man and wife and three children under 14 years of age varied from £5 17 shillings per week in Sydney to £5 6s 2d in Brisbane. The Commission was unsure if such wage could be paid and referred the matter to the Commonwealth statistician who reported as follows:

"Such a wage cannot be paid to all adult emplyoees because the whole produced wealth of the country....would not, if divided up equally amongst employees, yield the necessary weekly amount."

The Commission found against the basic wage for these reasons:

It would provide for 2,100,000 non-existent children and 450,000 non-existent wives.

It would disregard the needs of all families with more than three children.

It would so increase labour costs that industries manufacturing for export would probably be ruined.

It would so increase prices that the basic wage would have to be again raised within a few months in order to maintain the decreed level of comfort and that would lead to an interminable race between wages and prices.

The Commission recommended as an alternate a system of child endowment or allowances. That was the origin of the policy in Australia. In New Zealand it was adopted in 1926 and extended in 1938.

The basic wage argument in Australia applies to similar proposals in Canada. There is, for example, the essential wage worked out by the Toronto Welfare Council which called (1939 prices) for $28.36 per week for a family of five. Trade unions have repeatedy used such calculations in their demands for higher wages. The McTague report notes that:

"Statistics as to the amount of money required for bare necessities in an average family clearly demonstrate that the head of a family on a wage of 50 cents per hour for a 48-hour week (24 weekly) cannot provide his family on the standard necessary for normal health."

The Cohen minority report makes great play with this argument (paragraph 73).

It is true to say that allowances have been adopted in the main as the alternative to high wages. In France, prior to the fall of that country, the allowances amounted to from 10 to 20 per cent of the wage bill.

Sweden, Norway and other European countries investigated and rejected the policy on the ground of cost. They decided that the wiser course was to give aid to needy families in services and in kind.

The United States National Resources Planning Board in 1942 reported against the policy. The board believed that wages and prices should be high enough to meet basic needs.

The Quebec Commission of 1930 turned down allowances because of the probable effect on wages. The Commissoin regarded the policy as a means of keepnig wages down. No consideration appears to have been given to the effect of allowances on the rural population.

This covers the ground, in a brief way, except for the United Kingdom. The British government had been investigating social services before the Beveridge committee was appointed in 1940. Independently of the Beveridge report, a White Paper was issued in May, 1942 (the Beveridge report came in the following December). This White Paper, broadly speaking, was critical of allowances and in favour of giving greater services and aid in kind.

The Beveridge report, however, recommended family allowances and paragraphs 411, 412, and 413 give the arguments which, apparently, were decisive.

First is the wage argument. "A wage system must be based on the product of a man's labour and not on the size of his family."

Second is the urgent need of increasing birth rate. "With its present rate of reproduction, the British race cannot continue; measures of reversing the recent course of the birth rate must be found." Family allowances, declaredly, are one of these measures.

Third is the need of assuring the economic urge to work. Relief payments often result in heads of families preferring the dole to employment. The revelant passage from the Beveridge report has already been quoted in these articles.

As to the controversy on the point of whether or not the British government has accepted the Beveridge recommendation on family allowances the facts are clear. The government's attitude was disclosed in a three-day debate on Feb. 16, 17, 18, 1943.

Current statements that this recommendation was rejected appear to be based upon passages in Miss Whitton's book and a speech she delivered to the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association on April 10, last. Miss Whitton quotes Sir John Anderson as follows: "Before the publication of the (Beveridge) report, they (the government) had come to one clear and definite conclusion, that whatever might be decided about cash allowances, by far the best and most effective measures within the limits of its possibilities, is the fullest development of the various child welfare services which bring the benefits directly to the children. It has been, and it will be in the future, the aim of the government to develop these services to the fullest extent."

This suited Miss Whitton perfectly and she quoted it.

But Sir John went on to say (Manchester Guardian report):

"The government saw no difficulty in providing services equivalent in money value to 2s 6d per head or even more per week against the 1 shilling assumed by Sir William Beveridge. For that and other reasons the government's proposal was that the rate of children's allowances should be fixed at 5 shillings a week and to be given for the second and subsequent children instead fo 8 shillings a week as recommended by the Beveridge report."

Rt. Hon. C. R. Attlee, in a speech on Feb. 8, 1943, accepted on behalf of the government this recommendation of the Beveridge report. Other members of the government have done likewise.

One interesting point is made in the British White Paper of May, 1942. When allowances are tied to income tax—as in the proposed Canadian policy—the effect, the White Paper argues, is to make reductions in the tax more difficult.

Income tax payers receive their allowances in exemption from tax.

Those who do not pay income tax receive their allowances in cash.

If the income tax is reduced—and everyone hopes it will be—and the basic exemption is raised, the results can be illustrated in this way:

If the present basic exemption is raised from $1,200 to $1,500, all the heads of families in this group would cease to pay taxes and automatically qualify for family allowances. The treasury would not only lose revenue but its expenditures would go up. The tendency, it is thought, would be to retain the existing income tax exemption. It is odd that under such circumstances some heads of families who had been deemed to be well enough off to pay taxes and thus help less fortunate heads of families, should suddenly be regarded as, themselves, requiring allowances.

CBC Advertising Increases

(HANSARD, AUG. 3, 1944)

MR. J. G. DIEFENBAKER (Prog. Cons., Lake Centre, Sask.):...I should like the Minister (Hon. L. R. LaFleche) to explain why there has been such a change in the attitude of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation with respect to advertising. On January 8, 1938, the then General Manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (Major W. E. Gladstone Murray) in a memorandum given to the publishers, said:

"The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, in attempting to exercise a public conscience, hopes to carry out its duties in intimate alliance with the publishing industry of Canada. Once the extensive construction and development stages have been passed, the financial burden should tend to ease and it might be possible to do away entirely with commercial programs".

That was the point of view in 1938. A little later, on February 3, 1938, the then Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Mr. Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., made this statement:

"The total commercial revenue from all local stations controlled by us and from our networks for the current fiscal year will be less than $400,000. Beyond the figure of $500,000 of commercial revenue from network and local stations, it is not the desire, nor the intention of the Corporation to go, and that only until we are self-supporting from other sources".

Therefore in 1938 the general conception was that advertising should not be utilized beyond the half million dollar mark.

On February 8, 1938, the then Minister in charge of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (Hon. C. D. Howe) said as reported at page 245 of Hansard:

"It is not the desire or intention of the Corporation at any time to obtain a revenue of over $500,000 from commercial sources, for reasons that are obvious."

What do we find? In the last few years, particularly since 1941, there has been a rapidly mounting increase in the volume and certainly in the amount being expended for advertising on the national network. In 1940 the gross was $700,867; in 1941 the gross was $895,066. I have not the exact figures for 1942, but I think the gross would be around $2,000,000, having regard to the net figures for that year. In 1943 the gross amounted to $2,489,224. In other words, in a matter of three years there has been an increase in the advertising revenue of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation of over $1,700,000. There is no reason, sir, why this trend should continue and there is good reason why it should be diminished.

I have no licence to speak for the press. I do not believe that the press asks for preferential treatment. Representing as it does thousands of newspapers and periodicals, it has the right to demand equality of opportunity which it does not and cannot receive, having regard to the greater benefits that must follow from a national advertising radio campaign on an intensive basis compared with that in any particular newspaper.

There are in this country 91 daily newspapers and 884 weekly newspapers, magazines and periodicals. I feel that there should be an assurance on the part of this government-owned Corporation that it will not unfairly imfinge upon the field of advertising, for without advertising revenues the press of this country, in the main, could not continue to exist. Yet the trend during the last three years, as far as this corporation is concerned, if not retarded, will lead to a virtual monopoly in national advertising.

A Children's Theatre

(Christian Science Monitor)

IN Sydney, New South Wales, up a quiet lane off Pitt Street, there is a studio with a red door. There is a brightly coloured awning above it, and on each side a tree set in a green tub. On the door is the sign of the jester in cap and bells, and the name "The Young People's Theater."

Patsy, a lass of nine summers, knocked at the door. It opened.

"Please, Miss Benjamin, I want to be an actress," she said.

"Come in, Patsy," Miss Benjamin smiled. Patsy peered past her at the gay interior. There were shelves of books and a girl and boy were reading. There was a small stage where two girls rehearsed loudly and unself-consciously. As Patsy advanced, she could see into the property room where several children amused themselves by dressing-up.

"Do you want to be a member of our club, Patsy?"

"Ooh, yes, please! I have my sixpence."

Miss Benjamin put the money into the Club fund box and pinned on Patsy's frock the badge with its red embossed jester's head. "Now you are a life member of the club, Patsy."

"When may I start acting?" asked Patsy, eyeing the stage.

"Well," said Miss Benjamin, "those girls wrote a play between them. The girl in the pink frock is producing it. That means that she is telling the other girl how she wants the words said, and where to stand and when to move."

After some questioning, it was discovered that Patsy wanted a dog of her very own. So Patsy's play would be about a little girl who wanted a dog, and in the end, had one. Patsy spent the first day of her membership putting together a three-minute sketch of a mother, a daughter and a dog. As a play, it might not have pleased a dramatic critic, but it had opened up a new avenue of thought and expression for Patsy.

The next few times that Patsy came to the club, she read books, she played in the property room, she listened for a few minutes to an older group reading "As You Like It" with the Director.

On the day that Patsy's play had been received with moderation, it was announced amidst excitement that there would be a play for the Young People's Theater—not in a studio, but in a real theater. Several times a year, this happens. The plays are written especially for child audiences. They are mainly dramatized versions of fairy stories, legends and interesting historical happenings.

The Director of the Young People's Theater, Miss Rosemary Benjamin, wishes: To encourage and stimulate the child audience to active interest in the value of the theater by presenting, with an adult acting cast, good artistic dramatic productions; to give them a standard of comparison; to stimulate their critical powers. She hopes that these children's heritage of the theater will be a "Challenge to fuller living" rather than an escape from reality.

SMOKE-GENERATOR

For all we know, smoke generators were used to conceal the Allied trops as they landed in France. One of the newest was developed by De Vilbiss engineers for the National Defence Research Committee of the Office of Scientific Research and Development and in co-operation with the United States Navy. The generator is mounted on wheels and can be set in operation on land craft, transferred to a beachhead, then moved to any point required.—New York Times.

COPS, COWS AND BARTENDERS

Apparently there are cows loose in Brooklyn, and Patrolman Peter Maggio, of the Miller Street Station ,has considered it a part of his police duty to round them up. At least, he was leading one of the Holstein breed to his station house after it had eaten up a Victory garden when he ran afoul of a facetious bartender. We don't know why a Brooklyn bartender should consider it funny that a policeman should be leading a cow. Bartenders should be inured to the bizarre. But this one proceeded to ridicule the officer of the law and to shadow box with his charge, and to earn for himself subsequently a fine of $3 in Night Court for disorderly conduct.

He got of lightly in our opinion. It is not only the dignity of the police that requires support in such circumstances but that of the cow as well. A cow under arrest should be considered not a ribald but a pathetic spectacle. Suppose she did eat up a Victory garden, yet presumably she was devoid of any sense of guilt or mischief, no more to blame for her dereliction than a barroom customer consuming a free lunch. Of all people, bartenders should be chary of heaping ignominy on such.—New York Herald Tribune.

A Bible Message

Remember the former things of old: for I am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand and I will do all my pleasure. (Isa. 46: 9, 10.)

Editorial Influence Is Being Demonstrated

A brilliant editorial writer before he becam[e a] columnist, Walter Lippman believes that Am[eri]can newspaper editorial pages are gainin[g] influence.

We quote from an interview he has just g[iven] Editor and Publisher:

"A good editorial writer definitely still in[flu]ences his readers even though they do not [fol]low him all the way.

As a matter of fact, even though, to take [the] last election as a case in point, most daily n[ews]papers in the country supported Wendell W[illkie] as opposed to President Roosevelt's third [term,] newspaper criticism during that campaign e[xert]ed a profound effect upon the New Deal."

A good editorial is one that appeals t[o the] reason of its reader.

Mr. Roosevelt's long years of warring a[gainst] the newspapers has been due to the fact th[at the] press has remained independent and has r[efused] to agree with him just for agreement's [sake] where editors have felt that fundamental [prin]ciples are involved. A good instance was [his ef]fort to pack the Supreme Court.

As Mr. Lippmann says, the editorials [of the] daily press have had a profound influe[nce on] the trend of the New Deal. To what ex[tent] it might have gone for the bulwark of [public] opinion made articulate by the newspaper[s] ...

The function of an editorial is not to [tell the] reader how or what to think, but to p[resent a] viewpoint sufficiently intelligent for him [to base] judgment on. Out of the free discussion [of is]sues in editorials, columns and artic[les he] evolves his own opinion.—Detroit Free P[ress.]

Proper Placing Of Utensils Saves Steps For Housewife

Hot, unbearable weather makes everyone feel worn out, and seems to sap all the energy the body has stored up, so that it tends to slow down a little bit. "Taking it easy" is a wonderful thing if you can do it, but in a great many occupations, the work goes on, heat or no heat, seven days a week. This reference is to housework, since the woman of the house must keep it tidy, and do the regular work—washing, iron, dusting, cleaning— and at the same time prepare nourishing meals, which will also tempt the jaded appetites of her family, in spite of the heat.

It's an accepted fact that a good deal of time and energy is wasted in housework, by unnecessary and retraced steps, and the little "fiddling" jobs which are time-consuming, yet don't give marked results. Here are a few tips which might be of help on conserving her energy, and saving as many a steps as possible.

Try re-arranging cupboard space around the sink, so that all articles which are used at the sink alone, or are used first, are right at hand. That is, the dishpan, drainer, plate scraper, garbage container, paper towels, soap, kitchen towels, waste paper basket, scouring powder and utensils, should all be within easy reach of the person standing at the sink or the draining board. Since a great deal of the preparation for a meal is done near the sink, any drawers available should contain sharp knives, the potato peeler, and other utensils needed in getting a meal. If it is possible, a few saucepans could be stored there too, so that the vegetables could be placed in the pan, and the water poured on them, preparatory to cooking, with a minimum of steps.

Storing Space.

The stove, the centre for cooking and serving food, is the next "sphere of influence" in the kitchen. Most large stoves have sufficient storing space for a frying pan or two, perhaps a sauce pan, covers, forks and serving spoons and the tea pot. In addition, there are usually matching containers for salt and pepper, and space can generally be found for a container of favorite spices.

The third centre in the kitchen is represented by the refrigerator and the main storage cupboards. All articles needed for baking should be stored close to one another. Measuring spoons and cups, the baking board, rolling pin, flour sifter, bowls, knives and spatula, as well as the flour, spices, sugar, soda, baking powder, and cereals, can all be placed within easy reach in this centre are the egg beater, food chopper, grater, baking pans, casseroles, can opener and recipe books.

It's surprising how many steps can really be saved with a little thought. Each woman knows what articles she uses most often, and where they should be placed to save the most steps, and where they would be handiest. It may require a little more effort at first when things are re-arranged, but before very long, tasks will whisk by much faster.

Take Rest Period.

However, it's not all work and no play. Time should be allowed for relaxation so that the body doesn't become too tired. A little rest period of, even five minutes, makes all the difference in the world. Surveys have shown that most women can work through the morning without tiring, but that fatigue catches up with them in the early afternoon, and early evening. Wherever possible, tasks which require little physical effort should be relegated to these spots, so that the housewife can rest while she works.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

UNDER HIGHLY stimulated forces, emotions and energies this should prove to be a day of satisfaction and attainment, with many pleasant and progressive accomplishments and adventures in both business and private affairs. Initiative and ingenuity should be directed along ambitious lines, and this in connection with important organizations, secret as well as open, should bring rewards and a definite degree of happiness, possibly in relation to elderly persons or relatives. But be careful to handle these with sympathy and amiability.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a pleasant and prosperous year, with much stirring happily in both private and business life. There may be exceptional or intriguing experiences with out of the ordinary persons, who may be endowend with artistic, intellectual or other cultural talents, although practical and dependable despite psychic, intuitive or emotional tendencies. Such contact might be with elders or mature relatives, responding to kindly, sympathetic and understanding gestures. Those in high places may also be cooperative.

A child born on this day should have many creative abilities, perhaps in cultural lines, although constructive and enterprising. It should enjoy a pleasant and productive life.
